HOEY SELECTED FOR TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN

SENATOR OVERMAN TO DELIVER KEYNOTE SPEECH AT THE STATE CONVENTION.

Washington, March 10.—Senator Lee S. Overman will deliver the keynote address on national issues at the Democratic state convention which will meet in Raleigh on April 1 and Representative Clyde Hoey will preside as temporary chairman and deliver the keynote address on state issues.

Both to-day accepted invitations extended by State Chairman Thomas D. Warren and National Committeeman A. W. McLean urging that both Senator Overman and Mr. Hoey accept. It does not eliminate either the senator or Mr. Hoey as prospective members of the "big four" delegation to San Francisco.

The selection of two keynote speakers is a departure from the usual custom but is certain to meet with the approval of the throngs of Democrats expected to attend the convention as delegates and spectators.

Want Hoey as Delegate.

Senator Overman delivered the keynote speech at the famous Charlotte convention in 1903 when the convention, after many days and nights, nominated Governor W. W. Holden as standard bearer of the party.

The suggestion coming from colleagues of Mr. Hoey a few days ago that he be given a place on the "big four" delegation to San Francisco has met the approval of many Tar Heels who have recently been here talking about the political situation. Almost universal endorsement of the suggestion that Mrs. Palmer Jernan, of Raleigh, be given a place on the delegation has been made by Tar Heel members of Congress and politicians from the state.

Mrs. Jernan, Representative Hoey and two senators would constitute the "big four" delegation as the state will send and the convention might send them, with the district delegates, uninstructed. This view is generally shared by folks from the state who have not made up their mind regarding the best man for the party to nominate.

PANIC FEAR "ABSURD," THINKS W. G. McADOO.

New York, March 9.—William G. McAdoo, in a statement to-day, characterized as "absurd" the assertions that the reductions of taxes which he recently proposed would cause a panic.

His statement follows: "It is absurd to say that a beneficial reduction of taxes through rigid economies in expenditures, postponement of the sinking fund for two years and the issue of not exceeding one and a half billion dollars of bonds, as I have suggested, will cause a panic.

"It is more likely to prevent trouble by helping the business situation during a coming period of essential readjustment, when the load should be lightened and enterprise stimulated so that prosperity may be reserved.

"I believe that a safe and sound plan for easing the tax burden, simplifying the present complicated tax law, and distributing the burden of taxation more equitably can be found if we all approach it not in a partisan spirit, but with a genuine desire to deal wisely with a very serious problem which should be taken up immediately."

Shipping Gold to America.

New York, March 9.—Gold valued at $1,250,000 is being shipped from England to-day to this country, according to an announcement made here by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. This is the first large shipment in several months and is believed to be the forerunner of others.

Gold coin worth $3,000,000 also has been received from Canada at the sub-treasury here. A like amount was received here from the same source last week.

Another large shipment of gold will be made to South America late this week, according to local bankers.

SIMS STAYS TO FIGHT HIS CHARGES.

Washington, March 10.—Rear Admiral Sims gave the senate naval investigation committee to-day what he asserted was indisputable evidence that the navy department fell down almost completely during the first six months of the war. Numerous messages sent by the admiral to the navy department during the early days of America's participation in the conflict and other documents were offered as proof that despite the officer's urgent and reiterated requests that every available vessel be sent to the critical area of submarine activity, the department neither followed his recommendations nor informed him of its plans and policies. Six months after the United States entered the war, the admiral said, the department adopted many of the policies he had urged from the first.

Prolonged War, He Says.

The lack of whole-hearted American co-operation with the allies from the start, the admiral said, resulted in prolongation of the war until November, 1918, when it could have been ended in July, needless sacrifice of 500,000 lives, expenditure of fifteen billion dollars which might have been saved, and destruction of 2,500,000 tons of shipping. If the navy department had acted promptly, he asserted, the United States would have had a million instead of 300,000 soldiers in France by the time the Germans began their great drive on the western front in March, 1918.

Explaining that his recommendations many times were made after conferences with the allied naval commanders, the admiral said the failure of the department to keep him properly informed as to its plans and policies was a source of great embarrassment to him.

THINKS GOVERNMENT WILL LOSE HALF A BILLION.

Washington, March 10.—The loss to the government as a result of the Supreme court decision declaring stock dividends not taxable, as income will be nearly half billion dollars, according to an estimate to-day by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Roper.

With some 4,000,000,000 dividend returns on the bureau's files it will take months to make accurate estimate of the effect of the decision. Mr. Roper said, by a hasty search indicates that $70,000,000 paid in 1917 and 1918 will have to be returned while the loss in uncollected taxes in 1919 will be $100,000,000 and that for 1920 $300,000,000.

Some of the loss the commissioner said, will be offset by the tax on stock sales. Mr. Roper emphasized that estimates of the government's loss are not official and the loss might be found to be lower than now estimated.

Oxford Postoffice Robbed.

Oxford, March 9.—War savings stamps valued at $10,000, postage stamps to the amount of $5,000 and about $75 in cash was secured by safe-blowers who blew open the safe of the Oxford postoffice early to-day and made their escape. No arrests have been made.

Five strangers reported to have been seen at Franklinton, 15 miles from here last night, who are believed to have taken a large touring car belonging to a wealthy cotton mill man there, stolen during the night, are thought to have been the same persons who robbed the postoffice.

These men are being sought by the authorities in the surrounding towns.

The robbery was not discovered until the postoffice was opened this morning.

Some Pallets, This.

Miami, Fla., March 8.—Princess Lucy, a barred rock pullet that is officially credited with laying 85 eggs during the past three months, was the center of attraction of the Dade county poultry show here to-day.

The hen laid 29 eggs in December, 29 in January and during February, a short month, 27 eggs.

Princess Lucy took second prize in her class, an unusual feat for record egg-producing hens.

STOCK DIVIDENDS NOT SUBJECT TO FEDERAL TAX

PROVISIONS OF 1916 ACT NULLIFIED BY DECISION OF THE SUPREME COURT.

Washington, March 8.—Corporation dividends distributed in the form of stock do not constitute "income" and consequently are not subject to the federal income taxes, the Supreme court decided to-day in a five to four decision.

Provisions of the 1916 federal income tax law levying taxes on stock dividends were declared unconstitutional. The decision also nullified similar provisions of the present law and will involve great loss in revenues to the government in future collections and also refunds of such taxes already collected. Large financial interests likewise will be affected and numerous stock dividends of generous proportions are expected to be declared soon.

Not Realized Profits.

In the majority decision read by Justice Pitney, Chief Justice White and Justices McKenna, Van Devanter and McReynolds concurred. Of the four dissenting members of the court, Justice Holmes read a brief opinion in which he was joined by Justice Day and Justice Brandeis. Justice Clarke concurred. In holding that stock dividends are not dividends on account of no separation of corporate assets being involved, Justice Pitney, in behalf of the majority declared that stock shares "are nothing except paper certificates" in undistributed assets, are not realized profits and, therefore, not taxable.

The attempt of Congress in the income tax law to tax stock distribution the majority decided to be unconstitutional and not permitted by the sixteenth, or income tax amendment to the federal constitution. Stock dividends, the majority held may be taxed only after stockholders realize upon them by sale in which case the government may levy income taxes on such profits.

All four dissenting justices contended that Congress had power to tax stock dividends, holding that such dividends are "income" the same as if in cash. The sixteenth amendment, the minority declared, is broad enough to justify tax.

Appraised Roosevelt Estate.

Mineola, N. Y., March 8.—The state of New York will receive $8,891 as an inheritance tax from the estate of the late Col. Theodore Roosevelt, according to the report of James N. Gehrig, state inheritance tax appraiser, filed here to-day.

The official transfer tax appraisal shows that the former President left an estate worth $727,713 after all expenses and debts had been deducted. The total value of the estate was placed at $781,082 divided between $630,107 personal and $150,975 real property.

Colonel Roosevelt's widow, Mrs. Edith Kermit Roosevelt, has a life interest in the estate placed at $724,763, the remainder being divided between the children, with the exception of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, as her father, in his will, said that she had been amply provided for previously.

Nice Gift to Salvation Army.

Salisbury, March 8.—W. F. Snider, of the Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, and member of the Salisbury foundation committee, which foundation was recently created by the Wachovia people, has announced the first gift to the foundation. A citizen who wants his name withheld leaves a third of his estate to the foundation with the request that the income shall be used for the promotion of the Salvation Army in Salisbury. But if the Salvation Army should cease to function here then the income is to be used for charitable and religious work in the city.

High Point Man Falls Dead.

High Point, March 8.—A. M. Hornady, an aged white man of this city, died suddenly at a local furniture plant, where he was employed. Apoplexy of the heart is attributed as the cause of death.

NO COURT MARTIAL FOR OTHER INMATES

SECRETARY BAKER SENDS INSTRUCTION DIRECTING NO TRIALS BE CALLED.

Washington, March 8.—Instructions have been sent to the commanding officer at the government's general hospital at Oteen directing that no men be tried by court martial for telegrams which they may have sent to members of Congress. Announcement to this effect was made at the office of Senator Simmons this afternoon when a memorandum from Inspector General Chamberlain to Secretary Baker was made public.

In transmitting the memorandum to the senator, Secretary Baker writes Senator Simmons that the Oteen investigation is not yet completed and the memorandum "deals solely with the instance of the retention of Private James A. Neely."

Planned Congressional Probe.

The letter from the secretary of war to Senator Simmons is in answer to a demand made by the latter for an answer to the charge that the soldier patients there who have made kicks to their senators would be court martialed for so doing. It was the purpose of the senator, in the event this proved true, to introduce a resolution calling for a congressional probe into the conditions at Oteen.

Whether this will be done or not depends upon the outcome of a conference that will be held this week between Senators Pomerene, McKellar and Simmons. They will consider the complaints registered by Captain Walter Clark, Jr., in behalf of the American Legion.

Writes Secretary Baker.

The inspector general wrote the secretary of war Saturday as follows:

"On February 26, this office received a memorandum from the surgeon general, stating that numerous communications had been received by him regarding conditions at United States army general hospital No. 19, Oteen, North Carolina, and requesting that full investigation be made by an officer of the inspector general's department. On the following day Col. C. C. Kinney left Washington to make this investigation and he is still at Oteen in connection with same.

"On or about February 27, inquiries were made of this office by members of Congress relative to the delay in discharge of Private James A. Neely, one of the patients at United States army general hospital No. 19. In reply to inquiries from this office Colonel Kinney reported that Private Neely, with two other soldier patients, had visited wards other than their own, urging enlisted men to send telegrams to senators and representatives, requesting that they cause a civilian investigation. Their efforts resulted in the sending of not less than 55 telegrams. Because of these efforts to stir up trouble, and not because of telegrams which Private Neely had sent Colonel Kinney requested the commanding general, southeastern department, to delay Neely's discharge until the matter could be reported to Washington (Private Neely's discharge on surgeon's certificate of disability has been authorized.)

"On March, upon receipt of Colonel Kinney's report in this office, he was directed to withdraw his request for retention in the service of Private Neely.

No Court Martial Ordered.

"A telegram was sent yesterday by the adjutant general to the commanding officer, general hospital No. 19, directing that no men be tried by court martial for telegrams which they may have sent asking for an investigation.

"Concerning the matter of interviewing patients by members of the American Legion at Asheville, Colonel Kinney has been directed to make full investigation and reports. "Colonel Kinney has not yet completed the investigation at general hospital No. 19. Pending receipt of further action by the war department appears to be called for."

NEGRO IN DEATH HOUSE CONFESSES TWO MURDERS.

Eddyville, Ky., March 8.—Will Lockett, negro, slayer of Geneva Hardman, 10 years old, and central figure in the riots at Lexington, February 9, to-day confessed to the murder of two other persons, the probable murder of a third and another frustrated attempt. All his victims were women. Each was strangled except the Hardman child, whose head he crushed with a stone.

Lockett's victims, he told Warden Ghilton in his cell in death row of the Eddyville penitentiary, were a white woman whom he attacked and killed at Carmi, Illinois, in 1912, or 1913; a negro woman choked, attacked and left for dead at Evansville, Indiana, in 1917, and a woman of whose color he was in doubt, attacked and choked to death near Camp Zachary Taylor Louisville, in February, 1919, while he was in the army.

Lockett further confessed that his true name is Petrie Himbrough and that he was reared near Pembroke, Christian county, Kentucky. He fled from that locality, he said, in 1905 after he had attempted to attack a white woman.

Lockett is condemned to die in the electric chair here March 11, for the murder of the Hardman girl.

OFFICE OF REVENUE AGENT WILL BE LOCATED HERE.

Washington, March 8.—Upon representations and requests made by Hon. Manly McDowell, revenue agent in charge at Raleigh, through Senator Simmons, the commissioner of internal revenue has consented to locate the office of the revenue agent in charge for North Carolina at Greensboro.

Revenue Agent McDowell has been stationed at Raleigh since the reorganization went into effect but, owing to the congestion of the federal building business at Raleigh, it was impracticable for Revenue Agent McDowell to secure the necessary office space in the federal building at the capital. The commissioner will therefore direct Revenue Agent McDowell to proceed to Greensboro and establish his office there. This order is in line with Agent McDowell's own preference.

ONLY HOTEL IN SANFORD IS DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Sanford, March 9.—The Sanford hotel, which was the principal hostelry of this city, was totally destroyed by fire this afternoon. The fire was discovered first in an attic room, which was used for discarded furniture, at 4 o'clock.

Before the fire department, which was greatly hindered by a long freight train cutting them off at a crossing, could reach the scene, the entire roof was ablaze and the fire beyond control. The origin of the fire is not known.

The hotel property was valued at about $20,000. The loss is partially covered by insurance. Most of the furniture on the first and second floors was saved, but nothing on the third floor.

G. L. Davis, formerly of Lumberton and Clinton, recently purchased the hotel and was planning to make extensive improvements in the building which was the successor to the old Page hotel, burned some 25 years ago.

The hotel will be rebuilt as soon as practicable, in the meantime the citizens of the town will throw open their homes and take care of the traveling public as best they can.

Contract For $1,000,000 Hotel.

Winston-Salem, March 8.—The H. L. Stevens Company of Chicago, was to-day awarded the contract to erect Winston-Salem's million dollar hotel at the corner of Fifth and Cherry streets. The building committee has also leased the property for a term of 20 years to David Olmstead, of Cleveland, Ohio, a widely known hotel man. According to the lease the stockholders will receive six per cent on the ground and seven per cent on the building. The building committee, contractor and lessee will work out the plans and details of the contract.

PRESIDENT AGAIN STATES POSITION ON ARTICLE TEN

WRITES LETTER TO SENATOR HITCHCOCK REITERATING HIS POSITION.

Washington, March 8.—President Wilson restated for Democratic senators to-day his opposition to any peace treaty reservations which would weaken the full force of article ten or otherwise materially impair the provisions of the league covenant.

Without saying specifically what qualification, he would or would not accept, he wrote in a letter to Senator Hitchcock, the administration leader, that almost all of the reservations he had heard suggested were "in effect virtual nullifications" of the treaty articles to which they applied.

"I hear of reservationists and mild reservationists," the letter added, "but I cannot understand the difference between a nullifier and mild nullifier."

Discussing article ten particularly, the President wrote that there was "not escaping the moral obligations which are expressed in positive terms in this article," though there could be no objection to explaining in an interpretation the constitutional methods by which such an obligation would have to be fulfilled. The "very heart" of the covenant, he reiterated, would be "impaired by weakening article ten."

The President's letter was written in response to a request that he confer with Senator Simmons of North Carolina, in charge for the Democratic side of the senate in current negotiations for a compromise.

AGED MAN FORCES RETURN OF YOUNG SON.

Lexington, Ky., March 9.—John Shell, oldest living human being at 132 years and 6 months, is able to take care of his own. According to word from Shell's home in Leslie county to-day, Shell returned home from a visit a few miles away to find his thirty-five-year-old wife lying dead in the front yard. He carried her into the house and notified her relatives.

George Chappell, seventy years old, father-in-law of Shell, without Shell's consent, took charge of Shell's youngest son, aged six years, after the funeral, and started to the Chappell home with him. Shell objected strenuously to this virtual kidnapping, but Chappell rode away with the child.

Shell, who is the champion rifle shot of the mountains notwithstanding his vast age, procured his flintlock rifle, which he made over 100 years ago, and pursued Chappell and the Shell child, and, overtaking him, forced Chappell at the gun's point to yield up his boy. Shell then rode back home, where he and the child are apparently happy together. Shell has gone through the winter in excellent health.

Wants Beer Made Salable.

Albany, N. Y., March 10.—A bill defining intoxicating beverages as those containing more than three and a half per cent of alcohol by weight, was introduced in the legislature to-day by Assemblyman Maurice Bloch, Democrat, of New York. The measure, according to the introducer, is "Governor Edwards' New Jersey bill adapted to this state."

Mrs. Starbuck Dead.

Winston-Salem, March 8.—Mrs. Ellen Starbuck, widow of the late Judge D. H. Starbuck, died this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. E. Liberty, near Bethesda, aged 86. She had been in failing health for many months. Besides the daughter she is survived by one son, Judge H. R. Starbuck, of Forsyth county court.

Wants His Name Off.

Lansing, Mich., March 10.—William Jennings Bryan telegraphed Secretary of State Vaughn to-day requesting that his name be withdrawn from the Michigan presidential primary April 5. He was advised by Mr. Vaughn that the state law does not permit withdrawal after certification.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF FORM

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO THE READERS OF THE PATRIOT FAR AND NEAR.

Fell and Broke His Shoulder.
The many friends of Mr. J. F. Gossett, who lives 10 miles south of Greensboro, will regret to learn that on February 21 he had the misfortune to fall on the back step of his home and break his shoulder. An X-ray showed a bad break, but at present Mr. Gossett is slowly improving.

Long Heavily Fined.
In Municipal court Tuesday morning Walter Long, a negro, who on the preceding day had been convicted of having whiskey for the purpose of sale, was ordered to pay a fine of $150. Judge C. A. Jones also directed that Long, who operates a barber shop on East Market street, in which four gallons of liquor were found, report to the court on the first Monday of each month for a period of six months to show that he is not dealing in whiskey.

Speedy Organization Favored.
As a result of the recent influenza epidemic, organization activities in the interest of the proposed new Guilford county farm bureau have been impeded, but it is now indicated that with the return of normal health conditions definite development of the enterprise may reasonably be expected in the early future. Prior to the epidemic, organization plans were proceeding with gratifying dispatch. From various sections of the county had come many applications from prospective members and popular interest was very keen. But, like many other public undertakings, the work was delayed during recent weeks. Leaders of the movement say that the bureau will prove of tremendous value in furtherance of the various interests of the farmers. The project has been sanctioned by the state and federal agricultural authorities.

Johnson-Stewart Nuptials.
The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Johnson, at Jamestown, was the scene of a pretty wedding at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when their daughter, Miss Mary Evelyn, became the bride of M. Barton Stewart, of Badin. Roses and ferns formed very pretty decorations in the sitting room, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. J. M. Arnette, of Badin, in the presence of relatives of the young couple. Promptly at 4 o'clock the little ring-bearer, Margaret Bundy, niece of the bride, entered while Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Miss Linda Barnes, carrying the ring in a large white rose. Next came the bridegroom and his best man, K. H. Erb, of Badin. The maid-of-honor, Miss Annie Mae Bundy, then entered, followed by the flower girl, little Miss Hettie York, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. York, of this city, and who is a niece of the bride. The next entrance was that of the bride, who was accompanied by her brother, Robah Johnson. During the ceremony Miss Barnes softly played "To a Wild Rose," and Mendelssohn's wedding march was played as the recessional. The bride was beautifully gowned in white satin, with white satin bands, and carried a bouquet of Brides roses. The maid-of-honor was very pretty, dressed in white, and she carried a bouquet of sweet peas. An informal reception following the ceremony was carried out in a dainty color scheme of pink and white. The bridal couple left immediately for Asheville and other points of interests in this state. Following their bridal trip, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will make their home in Badin, where the former has extensive business interests. The bride is a very charming young lady, with many noteworthy accomplishments and, like the bridegroom, has a wide circle of friends. Mrs. O. F. York and Mrs. Walter Clark, of Greensboro, sisters of the bride, witnessed the ceremony.

Kickless Wine Maker Here.
Boston, March 9.—Among the saloon passengers who arrived here on the White Star Liner Canopic, from Naples, was Cav. U. F. F. Salvatore Cassisa, Italian inventor. He brings to this country his method of manufacturing a non-alcoholic wine, with the same sparkle, taste and bouquet of a seven or eight year old champagne. He also will make a non-alcoholic wine that after three months of aging will be as good, he says, except for intoxicating qualities, as the revered seven and eight year old champagnes.

Another invention of Sig. Cassisa is a device for raising aircraft perpendicularly from the decks of ships or from any location. The invention, he says, is a type of helicopter.

AN INTERESTING PROGRAM FOR COUNTY WELFARE DAY.

Final plans are being perfected for the observance of "County Welfare Day" in Greensboro Saturday, March 13, and a glance at the printed program reveals a number of interest-compelling features. If the new Guilford court house is completed in time, the sessions will be held there, but if not, some other building in the city will be utilized. Mrs. Blanch B. Carr, county superintendent of public welfare, is confident that the program will make a particularly potent appeal to a large number of people from every section of Guilford. Numerous phases of welfare work will be given consideration, the list of speakers including men and women who possess intimate knowledge of their subjects.

For example, Roland F. Beasley, of Raleigh, state commissioner of public welfare, will discuss county welfare work. A. W. McAllister, of Greensboro, a pioneer in such activities in North Carolina, will attempt to define public welfare. Dr. E. C. Lindeman, of the North Carolina College for Women, who is one of the foremost exponents of social service in the country and a recognized leader in the field of community organization, will talk of social work. Other speakers will include county officials, volunteer workers and ministers.

Leaders of public welfare activities in Guilford this year are pursuing with confidence a very ambitious program. They realize, of course, that not all of their plans can be translated into actual accomplishment, but the total sum of these enterprises is certain to be expressed finally in terms of human betterment that will incalculably enrich the community, county and state. The salvation of one wayward boy, the reclamation of one delinquent girl—these are things which appeal powerfully to the imagination and when such efforts are multiplied in large fashion the result invariably is the signal for general thanksgiving.

But here is the program, which speaks for itself:

- E. S. Willis, chairman Guilford county board of public welfare, presiding.
- Music.
- 10 A. M.—Opening prayer, Dr. E. L. Bain; "County Welfare Work," Hon. R. F. Beasley.
- 10.35—"Our Schools," Supt. T. R. Foust and Miss Bettie Aiken Land.
- 11—"First Six Months of Welfare Work in Guilford County," Mrs. Blanch B. Carr and Miss Clara Cox.
- 11.30—"What is Public Welfare?" A. W. McAllister, member of state board of charities and public welfare.
- Music.
- 11.45—"County Government in North Carolina," W. C. Boren, chairman board of county commissioners.
- 12—"The Juvenile Court and the Children of the County," Judge M. W. Gant and Supt. W. M. Marr.
- 12.20—"Objects and Methods of County Health Work," Dr. W. M. Jones.
- Intermission for lunch.
- 2.30—Community singing, conducted by Wade R. Brown.
- 2.45—"How the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare Co-operate With the Counties in Child Welfare Work," Mrs. Clarence Johnson.
- 3.05—"Some New Principles of Social Work," Prof. E. C. Lindeman.
- 3.20—"The Church and the Public Welfare," Rev. W. A. Lambeth and Rev. R. Murphy Williams.
- Music.
- 3.45—"Wanted—Volunteers to Help in the Making of Citizens," C. E. Hudson.
- 4.15—"Home Demonstration Work," Miss Ola Stephenson.
- 4.25—"Farm Demonstration Work," S. R. Bivens.

SEVEN DIVORCES GRANTED MONDAY.

The afternoon session of Superior court Monday was taken up with the trial of divorce cases, and during the afternoon seven matrimonial knots were severed and that many couples freed from the bonds of wedlock. The cases disposed of in which divorces were granted follow:

- Nellie Hill vs. James Hill.
- Josephine Jones vs. Charlie Jones.
- May V. Martin vs. J. S. Martin.
- Amanda Coley vs. William C. Coley.
- Lula Brooks vs. Bun Brooks.
- Ester Austin vs. Ernest Austin.
- J. W. Teachey vs. Russle Teachey.

About the only interesting thing in connection with the granting of the divorces is that in all of the cases except one the wife sought and secured the separation from the husband.

MILLIONS FOOD STUFFS IN COLD STORAGE NOW.

Chicago, March 9.—Plans to force into the retail trade the largest amount of food ever thrown on the market in the United States were announced to-day by District Attorney Clyne before leaving for Washington to lay the scheme before Attorney General Palmer.

James A. Miller, assistant district attorney, has gathered figures to show that Chicago storage houses now hold 4,949,398 pounds of butter, as compared to 2,122,361 pounds stored here a year ago. More than five and one half million pounds of cheese are being held, where there was but 1,561,460 pounds last year.

Mr. Clyne said prices were being kept up by withholding these foodstuffs. He said he planned to use both the pure food and drug act and the Lever law against storage houses to force the food stocks on the market.

FACT ABOUT HYDROPHOBIA EVERY ONE SHOULD KNOW.

The chief agents in the continuation of hydrophobia are the stray dogs. Valuable dogs are allowed to roam at will and come in contact with the worthless curs at some garbage can, where they exchange germs and bites with the mongrel and later develop the disease. The loose cur dog is a menace to any community.

Children are more liable to be bitten than adults as they will often attempt to caress a stray dog.

There are two forms of hydrophobia or rabies, depending upon whether the poison is located in the brain or spinal cord. These forms are known as "raging" and "dumb" rabies. In the raging form the brain is first affected and later the cord with paralysis. This form comes on suddenly, and it is generally this form that the dog has when he suddenly bites his best friends, regardless whether man or animal. It has paralysis of the muscles of swallowing, and consequently foams at the mouth. Hence the popular idea of a "mad dog." Death occurs anywhere from three to six days.

In the dumb form, paralysis comes on early on account of the cord being affected, and there is little or no stage of excitement. The dog is not inclined to bite or does not foam at the mouth so much, and is generally not supposed to be mad. However, if it does bite, it is as dangerous as the other form.

Only a very small per cent of dogs have rabies, and only a small per cent of the bites of rabid animals produce hydrophobia, yet the danger is always present and no one can afford not to take every precaution.

When a dog bites an individual there are certain things that should be done and some that should not be done.

First, the place should be well disinfected with nitric acid which will greatly diminish the possibility of infection. This is effective for some hours after the bite, as the poison does not go by the blood stream or lymph, but slowly follows up the nerve sheaths. Don't go to a so-called "mad stone" or lose valuable time fooling with fake cures.

The next thing to do is to make a diagnosis of the disease that the dog has. If it is possible, the dog should be secured alive and without injuring him, when he should be placed securely in any place where he cannot possibly get out, and watched for five days. If he is not dead within this period he does not have rabies. If he does die in a day or so, or is killed as often happens, his head should be cut off and sent to the state laboratory of hygiene for diagnosis. Even when suspected heads are sent, you will find that not fifty per cent are found to be rabid. The head should be "packed only in ice," and no preservative used.

No vital time has been lost by such a procedure, as the disease does not develop earlier than fifteen days after a bite, and in the majority of cases it is forty days. The report from the laboratory should be decisive and should dispell all doubt. When the report is positive, that the animal was mad, then the only thing to do is to take the Pasteur treatment. This treatment consists in the administration of a hyperdermic of the Anti-Rabies Vaccine for twenty-one consecutive days. This may be taken free at the State Laboratory of Hygiene at Raleigh or in the office of the Guilford county board of health.

COURT TAKES RECESS IN MEMORY OF MR. WEATHERLY.

Superior court for the trial of civil cases convened here Monday morning with Judge P. A. McElroy, of Madison county, presiding. After court had convened and the jury list called it was announced that court would take a recess until the afternoon out of respect to the memory of W. J. Weatherly, a deputy sheriff of the county and officer of the court who died suddenly Saturday morning.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon, just prior to the reconvening of court, a meeting of the Guilford bar was held in the court room when a resolution of respect to the memory of Mr. Weatherly, who had served Guilford so long and so efficiently as an officer, was presented by Judge R. C. Strudwick and adopted. The resolution was ordered recorded upon the minutes of the court and made a part of the court record.

The resolution as adopted by the Guilford County Bar Association follows:

"Whereas, W. J. Weatherly, for 50 years was deputy sheriff of this county, departed this life on the 6th day of March, 1920, in the 75th year of his age; and

"Whereas, the bar of Guilford county wishes to express in permanent form its respect for his character as an officer and as a man;

"Therefore, be it resolved by the bar of Guilford county that by the death of this faithful, courageous, diligent and humane public servant the administration of justice by the courts of this county, has sustained a loss which it will be difficult to replace. Thus we deplore his death, and would by these resolutions do honor to his memory.

"The court is respectfully requested to direct that these resolutions be recorded upon the minutes of the court. So ordered."

BIG LAND TRANSFER IN OAK RIDGE TOWNSHIP.

The office of Register of Deeds Wharton was literally swamped with official papers Monday. Many of the papers filed for record were deeds conveying Greensboro and country property while many other papers were contracts, deeds of trust, etc. Although there was marked activity in the real estate market during the day as reflected by the deeds of conveyance filed the property changes for the most part involved no large sums or important real estate.

The day's record did, however, carry the largest rural transaction of the year. It was a deed conveying what is known as the John L. King property in Oak Ridge township to the Atlantic Lumber Company. The holdings purchased by the lumber concern consists of 703 acres of finely timbered lands near Stokesdale. It is said to contain millions of feet of oak, poplar and pine timber. The deed to the lumber company was made by John L. King, Walter W. King, R. Roy King, J. D. King and John W. King. The consideration named in the deed of conveyance was $10 and other valuable considerations, but revenue stamps attached to the paper indicated that about $70,000 was involved.

Dean of the Wharton School of Finance on the Need of Good Railroad Credit.

TO MAKE INVESTMENT SAFE.

National Authority on Railroad Transportation Says Roads Must Be Self-Supporting or Become Bankrupt.

In an address on "The Railroad Puzzle," delivered in Philadelphia, January 3, Dr. Emory R. Johnson, dean of the Wharton School of Finance, and one of the nation's leading authorities on railroad transportation, declared that "after the first of March the companies must be self-supporting or become bankrupt." Continuing, he said:

"Can the railroads be successfully financed and operated when they are returned to their owners? For two years the government has drawn upon the public treasury to sustain the credit of carriers.

"If the carriers avoid failure their income must cover operating expenses, maintenance and capital charges; if the companies succeed to the extent that is demanded in public interest, they must not only be able to meet unavoidable expenses, they must have some surplus revenue.

"If there is no income to be used in part for betterments and in part for building up a surplus or reserve fund, the public will not invest in the railroads, their credit cannot be re-established and maintained and corporate ownership and operation of the railroads will fail.

"The income of the carriers is determined by public regulation, and properly so; but from this it follows that the country must decide between a policy of adequate revenues to the railroad corporations of the future and a policy of government ownership.

"The government is entitled to credit for having given greater unity to railroad operation, both line and terminal. It has done much that the carriers were prohibited from doing. The public now realize that co-operation of the carriers in the joint use of equipment and terminals should be encouraged, instead of prevented.

"The railroad legislation now pending in Congress must solve many difficult questions, but the most critical one is that of providing for the future regulation of railroads in accordance with a policy that will cause the carriers to secure revenue sufficient to enable them to perform their services adequately and with progressive efficiency. The railroad business must be made attractive to private investments or the country will have to adopt government ownership and operation of the railroads. There is no other alternative."

MAN SHOULD BE REAL HEAD OF THE FAMILY.

Boston, March 8.—Growing weakness on the part of the men of the country is developing a sinister feminism, Cardinal O'Connell told a gathering of men at the cathedral of the Holy Cross last night. Man, as the head of the house, he said, should assert his proper authority in the home.

Failure to do this, the cardinal asserted, leads to a false feminism which unless it is curbed in time, will have disastrous results for humanity. "The women are becoming masculine, if you please, and the men are becoming effeminate. This is disorder."

Cardinal O'Connell questioned how a father could "look on and see his children, especially the girls, running rampant without any consideration for modesty. Headship of the family, he said, meant that the father should look after the morals of the whole family.

The evil of extravagant expenditure which, he predicted would cause a financial reaction in America to some degree similar to that which has caused Europe's virtual bankruptcy, was criticized. The cardinal argued also against what he said was a continual clamor for more pay by working men, and advised that they be on their guard against a spirit working underhanded for perpetual strikes with the purpose of destroying organization and industry.

SENATORS AND GOVERNORS TO ADDRESS MEETING.

Two governors, one United States senator, traffic experts and business men of the southeast will address the big foreign trade conference, to be held in the convention hall of the O. Henry hotel tomorrow, according to a telegram received here by President E. P. Wharton, of the Greensboro National Bank, from President Matthew Hale, of the South Atlantic Export Corporation, and who lives in Washington.

Mr. Hale announces that the following speakers will be heard: Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina; Governor T. W. Bickett, of North Carolina; Governor Robert A. Cooper, of South Carolina; A. V. Snell, of the Atlanta freight bureau; Hugh McRae, of Wilmington; Matthew Hale, of Washington; George McLeod, of Washington, of the federal bureau of foreign and domestic commerce; Hollins N. Randolph, of Atlanta, and E. P. Mapes, foreign trade expert.

The prime purpose of the conference is to promote definite plans for the expansion of the foreign trade of the four commonwealths. In order to accomplish this purpose it will be necessary to provide for greatly improved transportation conditions, both by land and water, it is pointed out. Of course there are many difficulties ahead, but leaders of the movement declare that none of them will prove insuperable.

Persons who have devoted much study to the question declare that heretofore the southeast has not really had fair treatment as to the development of foreign trade interests. One of the largest opportunities of the reconstruction period will be the systematic development of such activities, interested business men say, and they expect the conference here to prove a tremendous factor in the advancement of plans of this character.

MORRISON MADE GOOD.

Hon. Cam Morrison went to the University at the invitation of the students. He and the other candidates for governor have been invited to go to the University—and they were told in advance that they were not expected to come and perform the part of hot air artists—but to come and tell the students and the public what they have in their heads on the subjects that concern the folks in this state.

Morrison surpassed the expectations of his closest friends and has started the Morrison stock skyward all over North Carolina.

As we pointed out in last week's paper there has been a disposition to belittle the candidacy of Morrison for two very sorry reasons—in fact no reasons at all. One because Simmons is for him, the other because he was once affiliated with Republicans.

Morrison does not see a cure for all the tax inequalities in the new tax law, but he sees in it a start in the right direction. He puts himself on record for tax reform with no uncertainty on this point. Many predicted that he would not stand for reform along this line—and some were boasting that Morrison would join with Bailey to undo what had been done towards reform along this line. In short Morrison made good at the University.

LET THE OTHERS AT RALEIGH DO LIKEWISE.

We are glad to see that Hon. James R. Young has decided that he will not be a candidate for re-election as insurance commissioner.

Now let the other state officers who have been in office since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary do exactly what Mr. Young has done.

There is need of some new life and some new blood in the state offices of North Carolina—and we mean no reflection on any of the men now in office. We mean that it is possible for some people to stay in office until they rather think they are the masters than the servants of the people.

The one thing in the past that has been used against the Democratic party is that it does not give its young men an opportunity to serve in an official capacity—but the trouble is not with the young men in the Democratic party—the trouble is with the men who are once elected to office—that they want to hang on until they die.

Let other announcements be made by the state officials at Raleigh. Mr. Young has started a good movement for the life of the Democratic party. We wonder how many will follow the splendid example set by Mr. Young.

NOTHING BUT COCKROACHES AND MICE.

The conditions at Oteen hospital and reports of what was found there in the food reminds us of the story told on a minister in one of the mountain counties on one occasion. It seems that it was during the summer months when numerous bugs and insects were flying around and a big bug landed in the glass of milk of the minister—the lady of the house seeing that the visitor did not drink his milk observed that a bug was in it and said: "It is nothing but a bug, our boys eat em."

LET THE PRIVATES HAVE THE BONUS.

Mr. Tillett, of Charlotte, writes very patriotically and spurns the idea of a bonus to the soldier boys in the late world war.

It is alright for Mr. Tillett and the officers who were paid good salaries during the war to write like it would be an insult to them to be paid anything—and we certainly do not want to see these officers who drew good salaries during the war have one cent of bonus—they do not need it and have been paid for their services—but there are thousands of young private soldiers who drew about $23 per month—for going into the trenches and fighting for the freedom of mankind—and these are the ones who ought to have the bonus.

IMPORTANT DECISION OF THE SUPREME COURT.

An important decision has been handed down by the Supreme court of the United States relative to the income tax. The court holds that an income tax on stock dividends is unconstitutional and can not be collected.

This will mean that a large amount of taxes that have been collected will have to be refunded and it means that thousands of dollars of revenue will be cut off from the United States revenue.

CHARLOTTE HAD A STEADY GROWTH.

The city of Charlotte can "point with pride" as the politicians say to its past record. There has been no mush room development but a steady, wholesome growth and development of the city's population.

Charlotte is fast becoming an industrial, financial and educational center and her citizens have built even better than they knew in the years that have come and gone.

APPLIES TO ADMIRAL SIMS.

Rev. Henry N. Couden, the chaplain of the house of representatives, opened a recent session with a prayer in which he used the following lines:

The man who goes ahead and tries to do his level best,
Has little time to criticize
The failures of the rest.

The verse is very appropriate to the times, but in no case is it more applicable than that of Rear Admiral Sims. Had the "best British admiral in the United States navy" been trying to do his "level best" he would have had no time to criticize what, in his opinion, was "the failure of the rest," the rest being his superior officers.—Charleston American.

A Guilfordite's Success.

TRACTOR SCHOOL HERE EVERY DAY NEXT WEEK.

You are cordially invited to attend a tractor school which we will hold in the Chamber of Commerce room, on South Elm street, Greensboro, N. C., March 16, 17, 18 19 and 20. M. G. Newell Company, of Greensboro, are co-operating with us by furnishing tractor and other equipment for the school.

This is an opportunity that tractor owners and others interested in farm power cannot afford to miss. If the operator understands his tractor, he will be able to prevent many troubles. He will also be able to get more power from his fuel and to keep the tractor running the maximum number of hours. It is to the advantage of the tractor owner to attend this school and learn about the underlying principles of tractor construction and all the little tricks in tractor care and operation. If he hires some one to operate his tractor, it is to his advantage to have the operator attend.

The school will be practical in every way. The instructors are men who have been handling tractors for a number of years and not only know tractors from the standpoint of theory but have operated them and can give you the benefit of their practical experience. Their lectures will be illustrated with charts and diagrams prepared with the idea of making them as clear and easily understood as possible.

Be prepared to ask questions. Make a list of the things you want to know about your tractor and have them ready at the school. Time may not permit answering all the questions but they will be answered by correspondence or the information will be given you in the form of a book. Authorities say this is the best book on tractors now in print.

The school will be absolutely free to all who attend. There will be nothing offered for sale and there will be no selling talks. The school is conducted purely for the benefit of those interested in power farming. If you cannot attend, be sure to have the man or boy who operates your tractor attend. Plan to be on hand early. School opens promptly at 9 A. M. each day. Bring a pair of overalls along, as you will need them if you get the full benefit of the school.

Yours truly,
INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER COMPANY.

UNCLE SAM HAS PLENTY UNDERWEAR FOR SALE.

Washington, March 9.—The director of sales of the war department announces that approximately 7,000,000 summer undershirts and drawers are included in the items on clothing and equipage, list No. 6, to be sold by the surplus property division, office of the quartermaster general, by informal bids, which will be accepted until 3 o'clock (Eastern time), April 2.

The drawers, knee lengths, are nainsook, while the ankle lengths are of jeans. They are offered in regulation sizes from 32 to 42 inclusive. The undershirts are of balbriggan in both pull on and vent styles and are in regulation sizes from 34 to 46. All of the garments were manufactured by a number of the best knitting mills in this country.

They are offered in lots of 200 and 400 garments, which make it possible for the small retailers of the country to bid on this merchandise as well as the larger distributors.

The list also includes approximately 275,000 pairs of men's new rubber boots in hip and half lengths. These boots were made by the representative bootmakers of the United States. They are of regulation sizes and are offered in minimum lots of twelve pairs. This will give an opportunity to even the smallest retailers to bid on them. There also is on this list approximately 100,000 pairs of men's new overshoes and arctics, all rubber and in regulation sizes. The minimum bidding unit is twenty pairs.

There are also a few pairs of lumbermen's new overshoes on C. & E. list No. 6. These shoes are leather tops. Also there are a few reclaimed pairs of overshoes in sizes running from 6 to 11. These too are offered in minimum bidding units of twenty pairs.

The merchandise on the list is stored in various sections of the United States. Retailers and jobbers interested should submit bids on the lots which are stored in proximity to their places of business.

Woodrow is not himself—that's evident. In his letter to Senator Hitchcock he ended a sentence with a preposition and split an infinitive.

Carnegie's Will

Andrew Carnegie appointed the Home Trust Company, of Hoboken, as Executor of his Last Will and Testament and Trustee of his Estate. The instrument was written by Mr. Elihu Root, of New York.

This is another proof that a Trust Company is the best instrumentality for the administration of an estate.

If a Trust Company is best for Mr. Carnegie and his estate of many millions, it is best for YOU.

MRS. S. A. DENNY AND FAMILY.

MCADOO MAKES PLAIN HE IS NOT A CANDIDATE.

New York, March 8.—William G. McAdoo again made plain his intention not to permit his name to be entered on presidential preferential ballots when he sent a telegram today to B. F. Swing, chairman of the Democratic state committee of California, requesting that he be kept out of the California primary.

Mr. McAdoo reiterated the statement he recently made to Georgia Democrats that he favored the sending of uninvited delegates to the national convention.

Mr. Ewing had offered the services of the California organization in circulating a petition to enter Mr. McAdoo's name in the primary. The former secretary of the treasury replied as follows:

"Thank you warmly for your telegram offering services of the Democratic organization of California in circulating petitions to enter me in the primary of that state. Recently I stated to friends who wished to enter me in the Georgia primary that I was strongly convinced that all Democrats should as far as practicable go to the next national convention uninvited so that we might have a free conference of unbound delegates who would strive to do the best thing for country regardless of individual claims or ambitions. If we are to win in the next election, principles and service, not personalities or expediences, must control the action of the convention. I cannot, therefore, enter any primary or seek to have any delegates or delegations instructed for me. I am not interested in the fortunes of any individual but I am eager to join my party associates in every form of patriotic effort to serve the interests of our country which in the hearts of every virile American must always transcend every other consideration. Please therefore keep me out of the California primary and convey to the members of the committee my best wishes and sincere appreciation. I do not doubt the triumph of Democracy in the coming campaign if our constant guide and inspiration is: For service to country, everything; for service to selfish interests, corporate or individual, nothing."

JOHN S. MICHAUX, JR., DIES FROM EFFECTS OF ACCIDENT.

John S. Michaux, Jr., 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Michaux, Sr., of 220 North Cedar street, was painfully injured at 9 o'clock Tuesday night when a motorcycle in which he was a passenger became unmanageable at the corner of North Greene and Price streets, throwing him and Fireman E. E. Ballenger, who was operating the machine, out. Young Michaux was taken to the Wesley Long hospital, where it was stated that his injuries did not appear to be particularly serious. He was rather badly bruised about the head, it appeared, but did not sustain a fracture of the skull, early examination indicated. Fireman Ballenger suffered only slight bruises. The machine was not badly damaged, although a tree and fence were struck by it with considerable force. Fireman Ballenger was attempting to round the corner when the motorcycle struck the curb and got beyond control, running into a nearby tree and fence and throwing the two occupants out.

Since the above was put in type young Michaux died at the Wesley Long hospital yesterday at 12.30 o'clock.

At first it was thought that young Michaux's injuries would probably not prove very serious. Yesterday, however, he took a turn for the worse and death came quickly. Internal hemorrhages were believed to be the immediate cause of death.

Besides his parents, the boy is survived by a brother, Paul Carraway Michaux; two sisters, Mildred and Lola Michaux, of this city. He was a grandson of the late Dr. Paul J. Carraway, a beloved Methodist minister, who long lived in Greensboro. He also was a nephew of Dr. E. R. Michaux, of this city, and he leaves an uncle in Goldsboro. His father, a lawyer, for many years served as city clerk here.

FIRE CHIEF TAYLOR TO HAVE A NEW CAR.

The city commissioners are going to buy the chief of the Greensboro fire department a car in which to go to fires. They are going to buy a good car, too, and in addition raise the salary of the chief from $15 to $25 a month and pay the assistant chief $10 a month.

Final action on the request of the volunteer firemen that the city officials do these things was taken at the session of the commissioners Tuesday afternoon on motion of Commissioner Donovan. In adopting Mr. Donovan's motion that the city buy the chief a fire-car the commissioners left open the question of make and style of car. However, bids will be received by the city to be opened March 20 for the car.

The car that will be purchased for the fire chief will doubtless be similar to cars used by chiefs in other cities. It may carry a first-aid kit, be equipped with a chemical extinguisher and carry a smoke mask. It may be a roadster or it may be a five-passenger car. Whatever style or make the city selects it will be a good one. It is probable that the fire chief's car and the new aerial truck ordered some time ago by the city will be placed in commission about the same time and then the Greensboro firemen may be pardoned if they appear a little cheery over their new

WITH OUR BUSY ADVERTISERS

—Mr. Hagan has a good second-hand cream separator for sale. See his notice in the bargain column.

—Cashier Boring, of the Bank of Gibsonville, makes a fine report for his bank in another column to-day.

—W. A. King has qualified as administrator of the estate of the late Peter R. Michael, and gives notice of the same elsewhere.

—Notice is given in another column that application will be made to Gov. Bickett soon for a pardon for R. C. Hoffman, convicted in Guilford Superior court last December.

—Nothing wears out a car faster than the use of poor oil and the lack of proper oiling. We suggest that you get your next supply from the McGlamery Auto Co., where you can always find the best. See Mr. McGlamery's new ad. elsewhere to-day.

—W. A. King, as commissioner, will sell some valuable Guilford county farming land, at public auction, on Wednesday, April 14. Also at the same time and place a fine lot of personal property. See notice in our advertising columns for details.

—The Southern Bargain House at W. S. Moore's old stand on East Market street, has just received a full line of remnants which are being offered at very attractive prices. Better get what you need now, as goods are scarce and advancing in price almost daily. See their new ad. elsewhere for a few prices.

—Mr. J. E. Dillon has just received another shipment of the best mules that has ever been brought to Guilford county. Mr. Dillon says that they are all well broken and ready to work, and if you need a good mule you had better look this bunch over at once and make your selection. See Mr. Dillon's ad. elsewhere to-day.

—Mr. N. Luffy, proprietor of the Guilford Bargain House, extends the ladies and misses of Guilford county a most cordial invitation to attend his opening of new spring hats next Saturday, March 13. Bring your neighbor with you—both will be welcomed. A fine display of ready-to-wear will also be made at the same time. See Mr. Luffy's announcement in another part of today's Patriot.

—That was all a mistake about the hearse of Poole & Blue using wrecked in Monday's Patriot. It was only "up-side-down," and is now in better shape than ever, as will be seen by reference to our advertising columns. The equipment of this firm is second to none in the state, and Mr. Blue gives the service his personal attention at all times, which insures the best. Call them when you need their services.

—If you have a farm or real estate of any kind you wish to turn into quick ready cash, get into communication at once with the England Realty and Auction Co., of this city, and they will do it for you. They charge nothing for looking your farm over and making you a proposition. The famous double auctioneering force—England and Thomas—cry all sales. See announcement in another column.

—Mr. M. G. Newell extends through the columns of to-day's Patriot a most cordial invitation to Guilford farmers to attend the spring opening of standard farm implements and machinery at his place. A large shipment has just been unloaded at M. G. Newell Co.'s in preparation for this opening. Prices on all farm implements and machinery are advancing, and Mr. Newell's advice is to buy now what you need, you may have to pay more for them later on in the season. Here you can find about everything needed on the farm. See Mr. Newell's announcement in another part of the Patriot to-day.

—The weather man promises to be good and give us some real nice Easter weather this year, which reminds us that it is time you were making preparations for your spring work on the farm. To get the best results at a minimum cost of labor and time you will need good farm labor-saving implements, and right here is where we are prepared to tell you the big warehouse of the Beall Hardware and Implement Co. is chock full of all kinds of the best, and Manager Beall assures us that his firm was never better prepared to serve the farmers than this year. Make out a list of what you need at once and place your order before the spring rush. See ad. on the fifth

REWARDS FOR SLAUGHTER OF RATS IN THE CITY.

A campaign for the eradication of rats in Greensboro is being undertaken by the students of biology at the local high school, this movement having been started some time ago, and is now spreading from the high school to the grammar and other schools of the city.

The plan as outlined by the biology department of the high school is for each and every pupil to kill as many of the rodents as possible and bring the tails of their kill to the school so that a record may be kept of the number killed.

It is stated that this move has made an appeal to the pupils of the schools and a great number of rats have already met their doom by the inauguration of this campaign to rid Greensboro of the pest that made the "Pied Piper of Hamelin Town" famous. But instead of luring rats away with beautiful music, the young people of this city intend to annihilate them and bring their tails to the teachers at the school so that they may be rewarded.

The move is also meeting with favor with the merchants and business men of the city, and several of the merchants have made voluntary contributions of $5 to start a fund to provide prizes for pupils who bring in the largest number of rat tails within a given length of time.

Her Rowdy

By WILL T. AMES

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The strike was called by the motor-men and conductors themselves, at the end of a turbulent meeting, during which the men, yielding to the magnetic influence of Kolb, the oratorical agitator, had booted their own officials and jeered at a letter from the head of their national union declaring the proposed walkout to be ill advised, if not wholly unjustifiable. "You are being sold out!" Kolb had shouted. And somehow he made the men believe him. Setting tradition and discretion aside at defiance, the trolley-men streamed out of their hall alight with the excitement of a fight in which they felt, under the spell of Kolb, that they were championing the cause of all oppressed workers as well as their own. An hour after midnight the last car had been returned to the barn, and next morning not a wheel turned on any of the city lines.

At 5:30 that afternoon a girl with gold-brown eyes and red hair plodded wearily along on the last half mile of a two-mile walk between office and home. All the time she was walking, save a handful of adventurous souls who took chances on the one occasional car the traction people had been operating since noon, defying the jeers of the mob and the risk of pebbles flung by hoodlums.

But company in misery very slightly palliated the discomfort of the unaccustomed tramp that Glory Blair had been compelled to take with scarcely an idle minute in it. She could do very well without any pedestrian exercise immediately before or after it, she thought. "It's an outrage, that's what it is!" she protested.

The worst of it was, Glory was worried about the job, too. She had begun to suspect that McKnight, the proprietor by whom she was employed, might be a bit of a wildcatter. Glory was merely his stenographer and had nothing to do with his accounts; but little things recently had given her the impression that it would not be surprising if McKnight were to close that office of his suddenly, some of the days, and fade away. So, altogether, Miss Blair was in a rather depressed state at the moment when a group of uniformed trolley-men, standing on the corner and scoffing loudly at the efforts of a couple of traction company office men to run a car, caught her eye.

It wasn't exactly the group that caught her eye. It was Ford Burgoyne. Ford was one of the strikers. He hadn't been a trolleyman very long, he had been a "tech" school man, and then he had gone across and got gassed and came back with a bronchitis that forbade his staying indoors, the doctors said, for at least two years; and meantime his father had died broke, and Ford had found himself obliged to quit college and earn a living, and do it at "outside work."

All of a sudden Ford, who was laughing as loudly as any of the crowd at the unfortunate amateurs on the car, realized that Glory Blair was standing stock still, six feet away, looking at him with an expression he had never seen on her face before. He left the group instantly.

Glory didn't give him so much as time to say "How do you do?"

"I'm rather glad that I chanced to see you, Mr. Burgoyne," she said, and the chill of discomfiture was in her voice. "If some one else had told me they heard you hooting and black-guarding decent people on the public streets, I should have refused to believe it."

"But, Glory," protested Ford, "these fellows are just plain strike-breakers, now surely—"

"Surely," blazed Glory, interrupting him. "To be a strike-breaker in this kind of a strike is infinitely more creditable, Ford Burgoyne, than to set a city full of tired, worn-out people about in foul weather like this. But I see now that I have given my friendship to a mere rowdy, who could never, by any possibility, look at things as I do. I just wanted to say that you needn't come to see me this evening—no ever, Good-by." And Glory Blair, stopping around Burgoyne, who would have been torn by her if he could, marched off with the air of a duchess—and a lump in her throat and an ache in her heart—for she had come to be more than fond of this tall young fellow, who had faced his altered future with so sunny a laugh and so willingly followed the admonition: "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do."

The strike had been on a week. The company was operating. The public was riding when it could. The strikers, feeling themselves losing ground and failing to secure the endorsement of their own national organization or of other labor unions, had fallen into an ugly mood. They stood moodily about in groups. There was no more of the amused railing at incompetent strike-breakers. Some of them, completely dominated by the ubiquitous Kolb, were working themselves up to the point of violence. Sheer stubborn pride kept most of the men in line. One of these was Ford Burgoyne, who had been harder hit by the loss of his job, and who was in a somber, pessimistic frame of mind. He felt the smashing thing.

Ford was standing, one of a group of twenty trolley men, at the very corner where had occurred his disastrous encounter with Glory. Half an hour before a West side car had been held up, stoned and the motorman and conductor taken off and beaten. Now every passing trolley was a target for verbal abuse for passengers and crew alike. Several of Kolb's best adherents were in the crowd of riff-raff that fringed the group of strikers. One of these, a red-faced rough, suddenly called out:

"Get onto what's on the tail end of this car—a skirt! Whatcha know about that! Hey, you people, you gotta stop that when it's startin' or they'll have 'em in all your jobs. Come on an' get her!" The red-faced man started toward the car as it stopped for the crossing. Three or four gangster type youths yelled, "Get the skirt!" As with one impulse, half a hundred men and boys surged about the platform. The red-faced man leaping up the steps, seized the small figure of the conductor and dragged it to the street. Some one struck at the strike-breaker over the red-faced man's shoulder—and then Ford Burgoyne came smashing and boring into the crowd with all the grim relentlessness of those football days before the gas had got to him.

"You dirty yellow dogs!" he panted, ripping the collar clear off one gangster's coat as he hauled him out of his path and landing a rangy right under the red-faced man's ear at the same instant. "Turn around here and fight a man—you woman beaters!" and another went down for the count.

The little conductor, freed from her assailant's grip, was reeling, her hands to her head, when Ford seized her arms, lifted her to the platform and, kicking a last ambitious rough off the step, rang the starting bell. As the car pulled away from the corner and out of the incipient mob, he looked down at the little conductor. "Good God! Glory Blair!" he breathed.

"You see, Ford," said Glory, as they sat on the tiny side porch of Glory's little home, "if it had been just for me it might not have made quite so much difference. Any man will fight for the woman he wants. But I knew you didn't get a good look at me—and how could you ever guess I'd lose my place and just had to have work, with that interest coming due on the houses? And a man who'll do that sort of thing just for woman—any woman—well, he isn't a rowdy, any-how, Ford. Seeing that you're not—and now that crazy strike is all over—maybe, as you say, I'd better give up conducting and take the job you offered me."

GOT GOOD IDEA FROM HUNS

French Scientist Has Adapted Idea Which Made "Big Bertha" Formidable to Aerial Travel.

When the Germans accidentally discovered that a projectile fired from a big Bertha normally designed for a range of from 25 to 30 miles would achieve a range of about three times the normal by simply elevating the muzzle so that the projectile would travel through the rarefied air in the high altitude they unwittingly contributed an idea which may revolutionize aerial travel. The resistance to progress of an object in the upper reaches of the air is very much less than in the denser atmosphere of the lower altitudes, but the rarity of oxygen in the higher altitudes reduces the efficiency of the gasoline engine by as much as 50 per cent.

To overcome this, remarks the Vancouver Sun, a French inventor has attached an automatic air condenser to the exhaust, and air with a normal content of oxygen is thus supplied to the engines, which, retaining their normal power, drive the plane through the rarefied air at a greatly accelerated speed.

It is now said to be possible, with this improvement, to cross the Atlantic in one day.

Spiders Hard to Tame:

A spider is one of the hardest creatures in the world to tame, according to scientists who have made the attempt. They say the insect hasn't any idea of time, and to seek its confidence one must have unlimited patience. One scientist, after gaining the confidence of a spider by feeding it flies, sought to test its senses by fooling it with a piece of meat, the size of a fly, rigged up with a fly's head and wings. The spider stopped in its web, about an inch from the camouflage, and later couldn't be gotten from its nest to even look at the thing. Other spiders evinced the same wariness, although it is not known whether it was their sense of sight or smell that was keenest. One scientist destroyed a spider's web and stayed up all night to watch it make another, believing it worked at night. At 6 a. m. it ran out of a window without attempting to work before his gaze.

Only One Explanation.

It was at an evening party. A young man with a tall collar and pale hair was reciting a poem. He had ground out 47 stanzas—and the end was not yet.

"What's going on?" whispered the guest who had just come in.

"Rhyme is letting out his latest poem," answered the pessimistic person.

"What's the subject—the motive?" queried the late comer.

"I have forgotten the subject," replied the pessimistic person. "But I suspect the motive must be revenge. At least I can't see any other reason for it."

J. R. OETTINGER PRESIDENT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce of Greensboro at Tuesday evening's meeting elected J. R. Oettinger as president, the choice being unanimous. Also without division, A. B. High was made first vice president and H. H. Felder second vice president. The president was authorized to appoint a committee of five, himself chairman, to choose a secretary and treasurer.

The election of officers came last in the order of business, President H. R. Hush, having presided while a considerable amount of business was transacted.

Resolution was adopted making the president of the Merchants' Association ex-officio a member of the board of directors of the chamber.

It was reported that the fund for Bennett College remained uncompleted, lacking $560. This was at once disposed of by the following subscribing the remainder: J. W. Patterson, C. H. Ireland, H. S. Richardson, J. J. Stone, E. Sternberger, J. E. Latham, C. B. Hole, W. C. Boren, Southern Real Estate Company, C. C. Hudson, Greensboro Daily News, R. E. Steele, C. W. Gold and C. H. McKnight.

The retiring president and C. H. Ireland and C. W. Gold were selected as representatives of the convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Encouraging Honesty?

New York, March 9.—An order on the Bank of Montreal, entitling the bearer to $1,200,000 in railroad bonds was picked up in the street in the financial district yesterday by Harry Hahn, a 17 year old clerk.

Noting the brokerage firm's signature on the order, the youth delivered the paper at its office. A reward of two dollars was given to him with the advice "that he was an honest lad and probably would make his way in the world."

The Crow's Nest

By FREDERICK CLARK

John Burt, a lonely man, except for a company of an aged mother, came on the spiral staircase at the top of the city hall and started for home. As he took one elevator down, another reached the top floor and a young woman left it. She was far more lonely than he. Wretchedness showed on her face and her eyes roved about like those of a hunted being seeking a refuge.

She was Lucy Newton, and ever since she could remember until recently she had lived in a lonely old house in a dead country town, a drudge to a cross grained exacting relative.

Then the latter had died Lucy had come to the city. For days she had walked the streets, seeking work but finding none. Footsore, weary, hungry, despairing, she had been told to present her case to the free employment bureau at the city hall, to find the doors closed. It was chill outside and the building was a warm welcome to her.

"I must rest for a little time," she murmured brokenly, came to the spiral staircase, noticed a landing half way up, sat down on its broad surface, rested utterly exhausted, and was fast asleep.

"What is this?" came to her confused hearing twelve hours later, and she sat up and blinked at the light of a new morning. John Burt, a small man under his arm, stared down strangely at the haggard, frightened refugee.

"I—I was very tired," stammered Lucy. "I had no place to go. It was warm here—I meant no harm."

"You have done none," Burt quickly answered her in the kindest of tones. "Wait until I unlock the door," and he stepped past her. "Come in and rest a bit."

Lucy stared vaguely. Her host had opened the door of a queer turret shaped room, the entire upper half of which was framed in glass. Over a hundred feet below was the street. Far in every direction the city spread out. She could not surmise the object or utility of this narrow apartment.

"This is the Crow's Nest, as it is called," explained Burt, "and I am its keeper, employed by the city to note smoke violations, watch, specify and report the same. There is a comfortable arm chair."

Burt went over to a bench on which was a small oil stove. He lit it and took down a coffee pot from a shelf, opened the parcel he had carried and as his guest sat staring dreamily from the loftyerie, placed on a stand at her elbow a steaming cup of coffee and his noonday lunch.

He left his guest to herself as he set about his usual duties. With a telescope he swung the circle of his lower room. When he noted some factory chimney pouring out smoke he would consult a chart, a clock, and finally write upon a tab sheet records as: "Brown and Company, plant smoked for seventeen minutes. Apparently use low grade fuel, with no smoke consumer." Glancing toward the girl he noted that she had fallen asleep in her chair. She awoke about noon, all embarrassment over a sense of intrusion upon the time and attention of a perfect stranger. She arose, words of gratitude upon her lips, and tears came, she broke down utterly, and then, as Burt gently questioned her, all the sadder story of her lonely life came out.

"Your child," he commented, and he had rested like benison upon her bowed head. "You indeed need a friend, and I know where to find you one. I have an old mother who will be glad as myself to shelter you as a welcome visitor, until you are more able to cope with a cold, heartless world."

The aged mother of John Burt welcomed Lucy Newton as only a kind-hearted woman could do. It was well that Lucy had fallen into such friendly hands, for she had an attack of fever lasting for over two weeks, two evenings during her convalescence she heard mother and son discussing their affairs.

"Yes, I feel I shall have to give up my position," Burt was saying. "The doctor directs that I must rest my eyes completely for six months. It has not so that I cannot locate the smoke, but even with the telescope."

A wave of infinite love swept over the mind of Lucy as she realized how much she owed to these good kind people. She gazed into the adjoining room and approached the grave-faced Burt and his anxious mother.

"Oh, Mr. Burt," she pleaded, "let me be your eyes until you are all well again. Let me labor for you day and night. It is necessary, to show you how my heart prizes your helplessness, your blindness, and that of your mother for a homeless, friendless orphan girl."

Lucy was duly installed in the Crow's Nest, directed by Burt, but quickly becoming expert in her task. It was like a new dream-life to the poor way, the glory of far vision over the world below, the peace of those beautiful evenings in the little home. She had never had a love experience until now. Burt had long since settled down into the conviction that he was destined to remain a bachelor. What could come about, save that these two so strangely drifted together should have their longed-for souls in a mutual love so sweet, so precious, that life became to him a real paradise!

Happiness Alley

By OTILLIA FRANCES PFEIFFER

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

A peculiarly placid and uneventful life had Arline Merritt led. Her mother had died when she was twelve and for six years the daughter had passed most of her time at a select boarding school.

All that time Arline never returned to the home where she was born. Four times a year her father spent a day at the school, brought her many presents and supplied her liberally with spending money. At each visit Arline referred to the old home in the city and expressed a longing desire to spend her vacation there.

"You will soon be eighteen," said her father, "and then you shall come home for good to keep house for me," and at his last visit he had added: "You won't know the old place, Arline. My means have continued modest, but I have managed to save enough to renovate house and grounds and it will be a snug nest. 'Happiness Alley' as they call the little blind end block; it has only ten houses its entire length, but each one is occupied by some old time family residents."

"Happiness Alley," repeated Arline dreamily. "What a charming name! Why do they call it that, papa?"

"It is really Gresham court, of course," responded Mr. Merritt, "the little spot right in the heart of the city and yet quiet and vernal as some country lane. You see, our neighbors and myself started in trade on the business street nearby when it was far from being built up, and settled in Gresham court for our homes. We have been closely connected, both as to business and socially, and a little community of genial, humble storekeepers have led peaceful, happy lives, with no ambition toward splurge and show."

It was a golden day in the experience of Arline when she left school for home. She went into raptures over the broad porched cottage looking out upon a lovely garden, all fenced in and at its rear a high brick wall shutting out the rear of the business buildings fronting on the next street. An old woman servant relieved Arline of all household drudgery, the neighbors greeted her warmly. Plain, practical people, the denizens of Happiness Alley were sincere, unpretentious and entirely apart from show or glitter. Their clean, even lives shut out all extravagance and folly, and Happiness Alley was not a misnomer.

Unexpectedly Mr. Merritt sickened and died and Arline was left alone. It was her first real sorrow, and the kindly sympathy of the neighbors bound her more closely to them and to her home. She settled resignedly into the groove of a calm, even life. She grew sedate, instead of gloomy.

A bench under a great flowering tree overhanging the rear wall became a favorite spot with Arline. One evening she looked up as there was a rustling in the tree overhead. She started to her feet as she made out a figure, hanging on the top of the wall and clutching at a swaying branch.

It broke with the adventurer, and he fell in a senseless heap almost at Arline's feet. She could not repress a scream. From the little two room cottage where he had his living quarters the old gardener came hurrying to the spot. The intruder was a young man dressed in neglectful attire and his pale face suggested the invalid or convalescent. Old Hugh carried him to the cottage and placed him on his bed.

"He is not hurt by his fall, only stunned," he said. "It looks to me as if he was getting away from somebody. Shall we call the police?"

"Oh, no! No!" responded Arline quickly, interested strangely in the intruder—"at least not until we learn his story. You will undertake his care, Hugh?"

"Surely, if you say so, Miss," replied the old gardener and the next day, able to sit up but still looking weak and troubled, the young man told Arline of himself and her compassionate soul was moved to new kindly sympathy.

He was Sidney Marsh, he told Arline, and for over a year the subject of peril and prosecution at the hands of schemers who had swindled his father out of his rights in a corporation of which the latter, now dead, had been an official. In order to terrorize Sidney their emissaries had assaulted him, had kidnapped him and held him a captive for months, and everything now depended on the young man finding a safe seclusion until the day of trial, a few weeks ahead. They had located him the day of his fall from the tree, and he was escaping Sidney had sealed the wall and met with his present friends.

And loyal, helpful friends they proved, old Hugh and the housekeeper, as well as Arline. Interest and sympathy aroused new emotions in that tender, innocent heart and Sidney seemed to wander in a lonely paradise, safe and secure from the troubles and dangers that had made of him a persecuted refugee.

It was a glad day for him when he appeared in court, sustained his claim and secured a verdict against the plotters which made of him a rich man.

"I lay it all at your feet, dear girl," he told Arline, "and my life's devotion with it! One favor I crave: that we remain in this Eden always, and the peace, and loveliness, and contentment of Happiness Alley."

MARCH 1—BACK ON THE JOB

DEFERRED WORK ADDS TO RAILROADS' TASK

Large Capital Expenditures Required, Says Hines—Impossible to Do All Now.

In order to keep pace with the growth of business and production in this country and the demand for increased transportation facilities an enormous amount of railroad work must be done in the next few years which will require the investment of billions of dollars of new money. This is essential not only to maintain the railways at their normal high standard of service and efficiency, but also to make up for ordinary expansion and improvement needs on existing lines which were interrupted by the war and to a large extent deferred altogether.

Railroad managers realize that even if the necessary new capital was available it would be practically a physical impossibility for the railroads to accomplish any large part of this delayed and accumulated work during the present year. Consequently the most vital needs of the railroads will receive first consideration in the plans for the immediate future so that the public demands in the months of heaviest traffic may be served as efficiently as possible.

Vast Amount of Work to Be Done.
Walker D. Hines, Director General of Railroads under government control, emphasized this task facing the railroads after their return to private operation in a letter to Senator Albert B. Cummins, chairman of Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, and Representative John J. Esch, chairman of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. Mr. Hines presented this phase of the railroad problem to them in urging the necessity for pressing the railroad legislation and to point out that delay would seriously impair the public service by virtually suspending improvements and the acquisition of equipment.

"In order to keep abreast of the growth of business in this country," wrote Mr. Hines, "it is indispensable that railroads should continue to spend large sums in the acquisition of new equipment, the enlargement and unification of terminals and the construction of additional and the enlargement of existing shops, engine houses, turntables, etc., and in the carrying forward of normal programs for the revision of grades, construction of additional main line tracks, longer and more numerous passing tracks, etc."

"A vast amount of work now remains to be done," he added, "which the intervention of the war has necessarily delayed and accumulated, and the result is that during the year 1920 very large capital expenditures ought to be made to make up for the interruptions inevitably due to the war and to prepare the railroads to serve adequately the increased traffic throughout the country."

"In the year or two prior to the beginning of federal control this work was largely arrested by the difficulties of securing materials and labor and also by the difficulty of securing new capital. During the year 1918 this work was largely restricted to things which could be promptly done and which would have a relation to winning the war and also restricted by the scarcity of materials. The result was that comprehensive programs for developing the railroads were largely interrupted."

"During the calendar year 1919 there has been unavoidably an almost complete stoppage of all these matters because of the prospect of early termination of federal control and the resulting indecision on the part of Congress to make appropriations."

TRAFFIC INCREASE TREBLED SINCE 1898

Greater Efficiency Enabled Railroads to Meet Country's Growing Demands.

The American railroads are more than one-third of the railways of the world. The traffic hauled on the railways of the United States is now three times as great as it was twenty years ago. In four months now the railroads carry as much freight and as many passengers as they did then in a year. In the three months alone of the harvest movement in 1919 the traffic equaled that of the whole year of 1898.

In 1898 freight ton miles carried by the railroads of the country were more than 100,000,000,000 a year. In 1910 they were more than 250,000,000,000, in 1913 more than 300,000,000,000 and in 1918 more than 400,000,000,000. Although the railway mileage increased only about 65 per cent since 1890, improvements in tracks, terminals, equipment, etc., have been so marked that the volume of goods carried (measured in the number of freight tons carried one mile) increased more than five times from 1890 to 1917.

Increased Efficiency.
Taking account of both freight and passenger service, the railroads in 1900 hauled 186,000 traffic units (freight tons carried one mile, plus passengers carried one mile) for each railway employee. By 1917, the last year of private operation of the railroads prior to the entry of the United States into the war, that 186,000 had been increased to 290,000.

The following table shows the increase in efficiency of American railroads since 1900, which enabled the railroads to keep pace with the growth of the country:

Ton miles increased.....	190%
Passenger miles increased.....	170%
Trackage increased.....	56%
Cars and engine increased.....	75%
Workers increased.....	85%
Output per worker increased.....	60%
Average train load increased.....	130%

These figures show that the traffic hauled by the railroads of the country has increased more than three times as fast as the trackage, more than twice as fast as the equipment and more than twice as fast as the number of workers. This has been made possible by far-sighted investment of new capital to increase the efficiency of the transportation facilities and thereby enable the railroads to increase the amount of traffic handled and reduce the amount of labor required to handle it.

Urge Adequate Rates.

In a resolution adopted by the Association of Life Insurance Presidents the heads of the country's largest insurance companies express their attitude toward the railroad situation as follows:

"Rehabilitation of the railroads and establishment by law of rates adequate to provide for the present and future demands of our growing commerce and to stabilize the credit and securities of the roads."

Protection for Public.

The executive council of the National Association of Credit Men in a public statement on the credit situation of the country says:

"The council in its consideration of the transfer of the railways to private control felt that it is of the highest importance that the railways be protected from the dangers of receivership and the public assured against interrupted service."

PATIENCE AND VISION

Link Patience with Vision, work the two in double harness and they will in the end emerge triumphant from "the crash of systems and the wreck of worlds."

Vision and Patience stand as a constant rebuke to those who are in much too great a hurry. Haste makes for waste. That is especially true, as far as the problems arising out of our social relations are concerned. And, in this connection, it would probably be found that social problems never present a national crisis unless there are a great many people who are in a very great hurry to do something or other.

Patience and vision are wise. They know that it is not so much by reason of being served as it is by serving that human creatures are brought into normal community relations with their fellows. Therein lies the secret of Community Service as it is now conceived. It is not so much that through Community Service the individual is ministered to as it is that through Community Service the individual ministers to the community.

Community Service, organized by Patience and Vision, constitutes an open door. Through that door the individual can pass and be something in and for the community. In order to unite those who may be separated by prejudice, by passion, by misunderstanding, it is only necessary to unite them in a common objective. Those who are working for the same end cannot forever continue working against each other.

Community Service has in our time come to stand for both an Organization and for an Idea. As an organization, Community Service has back of it this principle: Community Service is the medium through which the residents of a community get together and truly become members of it, with a consequent real interest in Community well-being, prosperity and stability.

Can the thing be done? Not over night, perhaps. Not by day after tomorrow, or even by next month. But, in the end—Patience and Vision both answer for it.

Death of Mrs. Benton.

Mrs. Elizabeth Riddick Benton died at the home of her son, W. A. Britt, 315 North Forbis street, at 9.15 Tuesday night. She was 82 years of age and death was attributed largely to the infirmities of advanced years. She was a native of Halifax county, but for several months had resided with her son in this city. She is survived by two sons, W. A. Britt, of Greensboro, and S. Y. Britt, of Oakland, Cal. The remains were taken to Henderson for interment.

Married Here Yesterday.

Miss Tivoli Ingram and Clifton Atkins, both of the Colfax section, were united in marriage at 1.15 yesterday afternoon by Justice of the Peace D. H. Collins. The ceremony, which was witnessed by a few friends of the happy young couple, was performed by the justice. Shortly after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Atkins left for their home near Colfax, where the former has agricultural interests. The bride, who is the daughter of Deputy Sheriff and Mrs. Joe Ingram, of Colfax, is a charming and accomplished young lady.

Officers Find Large Still.

Monday afternoon Special Prohibition Agent J. H. Johnson, Deputy Sheriffs Mike Caffey and J. W. Ingram discovered a 60-gallon block-ade still in the woods eight miles north of the city, on the Brown Summit road. The operators were not among those present, but the complete still was secured and brought to the city. The plant had recently been in operation and was evidently being prepared for further distilling. The county officers Sunday went to a place in Sumner township, 12 miles south of Greensboro, and poured out 2,500 gallons of beer, which having been found near a still which was captured by the deputies Friday night.

Hillsboro Man Bankrupt.

Monday morning a petition in voluntary bankruptcy was filed before Judge James E. Boyd in the Federal court, this city, by Henry D. Smith, a Hillsboro merchant. The liabilities were placed at $5,311.07 and the assets at $4,108. However, the petitioner claims the homestead and personal property exemption of $1,500, which would cut the assets down to $2,608. Judge Boyd appointed Clifford Frazier, of this city, referee, and the latter will arrange for a meeting of the creditors and make other plans for disposing of the matter.

Little Boy Breaks Leg.

Archie B. Joyner, Jr., seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Joyner, had his right leg broken Tuesday day at noon on the playground at Lindsey street school. The boy was running by one of the slides when the foot of a youngster who was on the slide struck him with great force, the affair being entirely accidental. First aid was rendered by Mrs. Blanche Lamb, the city school nurse. A few minutes later Archie's father arrived and a physician dressed the wound. The boy suffered intensely, but at last accounts he is getting on as well as could be expected.

Banks Will Get Large Sum.

Two hundred thousand dollars will be payable March 15 on treasury certificates of indebtedness bought by and through Greensboro banks and trust companies. Four series of the certificates mature and are redeemable that day. The money will be paid by the federal reserve bank of Richmond upon receipt of the securities; or the certificates are acceptable by the collector of internal revenue in payment of federal income and excess profits taxes due March 15. For the state the figures will be $3,049,000; for the fifth federal reserve district it will be $26,683,500.

A Victim of Cancer.

Mrs. Laura Grant Gover, aged 51, died at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon at her home, 813 South Mendenhall street, following a long illness of cancer of the stomach. Her husband, Frank Gover, died February 19. Prior to her marriage she was Miss Laura Sutton. She came to Greensboro five years ago from Williamsburg, Ky. She is survived by a daughter, Miss Mabel Gover, of this city; a brother, Ernest Sutton, of Toledo, Ohio, and three sisters, Mrs. G. W. Patrick, of Williamsburg, Ky.; Mrs. W. H. Craig, of Glendale, Ky., and Mrs. Margaret Worth, of Louisville, Ky. The body will be taken to Williamsburg for interment, the funeral party leaving Greensboro at 7.35 this morning.

Victim of Apoplectic Stroke.

George Nelson, aged 85, who for about a year had been connected with the Guilford Barber Shop, this city, died at 11 o'clock Tuesday at the home of his father at Stokesdale. Death resulted from apoplexy. Mr. Nelson having been stricken Sunday while visiting relatives at Stokesdale, where he had formerly resided. Mr. Nelson is survived by his wife and a daughter, the latter being eight years of age. Both were with him when the end came. Mr. Nelson possessed many admirable traits and his passing brings keen regret to a large circle of devoted friends. He was a member of the Christian church. The funeral was held at the home at Stokesdale at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, followed by interment in the Stokesdale cemetery.

Mrs. Patterson Passes.

Mrs. Roxie Collins Patterson, aged 59, died at 7.30 yesterday morning at her home, 124 Wainman street, following a stroke of paralysis which she suffered at 2.30 A. M. yesterday. Although for many years Mrs. Patterson had been in declining health, her death came as a great shock to the large circle of devoted friends. Mrs. Patterson had spent nearly all of her life in Greensboro and was highly esteemed here. She was a daughter of the late William Collins, who long was an undertaker in this city and a very popular citizen and who died about 15 years ago. In 1890 she was married to Hugh S. Patterson, then of Statesville, who survives, together with two sons and two daughters, these being Charlie and Ralph Patterson and Misses Lella and Mary Patterson; also a brother, C. C. Collins, all of this city. The funeral services were held at the home at 11 o'clock this morning. Rev. E. L. Bain, D. D., pastor of West Market Street Methodist church, of which Mrs. Patterson was a member, officiating. Interment was in Greene Hill cemetery.

W. H. Rawlins Passes.

W. H. Rawlins, aged 54, died at 10.25 Tuesday night at his home, 228 North Cedar street, following an illness of two weeks, fatality being ascribed to influenza and pneumonia. Mr. Rawlins had lived in Greensboro 25 years, having come to this city from Caswell county. He was born in Rockingham county, the son of James and Martha Gatewood Rawlins, both now deceased. In 1890 he was married to Miss Laura Lewis, who survives, together with five sons and a daughter, these being W. L. Rawlins, of Bladenboro; J. M. Rawlins, of Asheville; S. S. H. L. and P. W. Rawlins and Miss Florine Rawlins, all of Greensboro. He also is survived by a brother, Charlie Rawlins, of Rumin, and a sister, Mrs. Charlie Gatewood, of Chatham, Va.

Fifteen Recruits in One Day.

Fifteen men were accepted for enlistment in the army yesterday by the recruiting authorities on Elm street. This is the largest number of enlistments in a single day since the recruiting campaign started in North Carolina. Eight men enlisted in the field artillery, six in the corps of engineers and one in the infantry. The short term enlistments in the field artillery and the corps of engineers, with the opportunity of getting a good technical education, was responsible for those branches being favored by the applicants. The big Mach army searchlight truck left last night for White Oak on a recruiting tour. Tonight the huge searchlight will be operated in High Point, and from there it will go to Salisbury, Concord and Charlotte.

Gets His Auto Back.

Yesterday Deputy Marshal C. T. Roane returned to W. J. Pettigrew the latter's automobile, which was seized by Special Prohibition Agent J. H. Johnson in Center Grove township several weeks ago. Joe Martin was found with the car, in which 16 gallons of whiskey were being transported, according to charges preferred against Martin, who will be given a hearing at the June term of Federal court in this city. Subsequently Pettigrew claimed the machine and Judge James E. Boyd yesterday permitted him to recover it after the former filed $550 bond. The car having been appraised at this figure. The machine was libeled by District Attorney W. C. Hammer, of Asheboro, acting for the federal government. Final disposition of the automobile will be made at the Federal court in June, it is expected.

Yow-Baynes Marriage.

Coming as a complete surprise to their many friends is the wedding which occurred yesterday at high noon of Miss Moleta C. Yow and Bascom T. Baynes, the ceremony being performed by Rev. R. C. Stubbins, pastor of Grace M. P. church at his study on Hendrix street. Only a few close friends witnessed the ceremony. Mrs. Baynes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Yow, of Randolph county, but has made Greensboro her home for the past three years, and has made many warm friends here. Mr. Baynes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Baynes, of Caswell county, and has made Greensboro his home for the past ten years. He is one of Greensboro's promising young business men, holding a position with the Odell Hardware Company. Mr. and Mrs. Baynes left immediately for Tampa and St. Petersburg, Fla., on their honeymoon. On their return they will be at home at 219 North Spring street.
