He was a Confederate soldier and fought in many battles during the Civil war and escaped without injury.

He is survived by one sister, Matilda Phipps, two nephews, Capt. L. C. Smith, and Charles Phipps, of the United States army of occupation now in Coblenz, Germany; one niece, Mrs. G. H. Lynch, of the old home place.

E. S. Huffine, a young white man residing about 15 miles east of this city, upon conviction in Municipal court Thursday on the charge of transporting whiskey was fined $200 and his automobile was ordered to be confiscated. The car will be sold and the proceeds of the sale applied to the school fund.

Huffine was arrested by policemen about a week ago and at the time of his apprehension it was charged that he had seven quarts of whiskey in his possession. The young man claimed in court that he was carrying the whiskey for friends and intended no violation of the law.

Application Approved.

The comptroller of the currency has approved the application of the American Exchange National Bank, of Greensboro, for an increase of $200,000 in its capital stock. The increase will make the bank's capital stock $600,000.

R. C. NORMAN AND L. C. WOOD HELD UNDER BONDS OF $1,000.

Richard C. Norman and L. C. Wood, both of this city, were held for the next term of Federal court following a hearing Saturday morning before United States Commissioner D. H. Collins on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic act. Each of the defendants were required to give bond in the sum of $1,000.

Norman and Wood were arrested by the city police Friday afternoon. The men were accused of having in their possession two bottles of morphine and cocaine for sale.

Charles E. Duggins, of Colfax, was given a hearing before Squire Collins Saturday on a charge of selling a bird dog under false pretense to E. E. Lowdermilk. The case was dismissed for lack of evidence.

J. R. Parker, charged with stealing a mule from the Swift Fertilizer plant, a wagon from Mottsinger brother, of Friendship, and a set of harness from George Putnam, of Mulrs chapel community, was bound over to Superior court under bond of $1,000. Despite the fact that Sheriff Stafford and Deputy Caffey caught Parker with the mule and wagon in his possession near High Point Friday afternoon, the defendant denied any knowledge of the theft.

COBLE-STARR GARAGE BURNED; LOSS $100,000.

The garage operated on South Elm street by H. M. Coble and W. G. Starr, under the partnership of Coble & Starr, was almost completely destroyed Thursday night by a fire which gutted the building and entailed a loss of approximately $100,000. Sixty automobiles, some of them new ones belonging to the firm, were totally destroyed, and not a penny of insurance was carried by the firm of Coble & Starr. It is stated that private owners of some of the machines stored in the garage were partially covered by insurance.

Three members of the fire department were injured while fighting the flames and one member of the police force suffered minor injuries. The firemen were Claude Ingram, Frank Shaw and Howard Thornton. The injured policeman was J. J. Smith. Ingram and Shaw were badly burned on the face and head, the other men receiving slight injuries. None of them are in a serious condition.

The fire was discovered about 9 o'clock in the rear of the big building. Its origin was unknown. Gasoline in the tanks of the automobiles within the garage made the fire a difficult one to combat and several explosions occurred when the flames reached the gasoline tanks. The store of B. W. Terrell, located next to the garage, was seriously threatened several times and only good work of the firemen prevented the flames from spreading to other portions of the block.

The report of W. A. Hornaday, city dairy and meat inspector, showed that Tom Pemberton's dairy made the highest score during the month of January. The report of the inspector was filed with the city commissioners Saturday. An inspection was made during the month of 155 cattle, 230 hogs, 214 veal and 8 sheep, and 520 pounds of meat were condemned.

The individual scores made by the various dairies were as follows: Pemberton, 98.2; Textile, 98; Williams, 97.9; Stephens, 96.4; N. C. W., 94.5; Piedmont, 94; Sun City Hill, 93.8; Oak Grove, 93.4; Edwards, 91.6; Kindley, 91.4; Landler, 91.1; Harden, 87.5; Glendale, 74.3.

ROBERT C. RANKIN DEAD; FUNERAL HELD FRIDAY.

Robert C. Rankin, a splendid citizen of Guilford and a typical representative of the staunch and sterling stock that settled this county, passed to his reward above last Wednesday night at the home of his son, Millard J. Rankin, of Gibsonville. Mr. Rankin within a few weeks would have reached his 91st birthday. His death was attributed to infirmities of old age.

Funeral services were held Friday morning at 11.30 o'clock at Bethel church, near McLeansville. The exercises were conducted by Rev. G. L. Whiteley, pastor of the church, and Rev. R. Murphy Williams, pastor of the Church of the Covenant. Beautiful and appropriate tributes were paid to the memory of the Christian character and high ideals as displayed by the deceased throughout his long and useful life.

Mr. Rankin is survived by three sons, Millard J., of Gibsonville; James R., of Henderson, and Rev. Sam Rankin, of this city. Eight grand children and two great grand children also survive. His wife, who was Miss Mary A. McLean, preceded him in death 14 years ago.

Since 1880 Mr. Rankin has been an ardent believer and advocate of prohibition and no man rejoiced more truly when it became nationally effective. For 55 years he had served as an officer of Bethel church and at the time of his death he was the senior in years and membership of that congregation.

Chief Fred N. Taylor urges a dam at Reedy Fork.

Chief Fred N. Taylor, chief of the Greensboro fire department, in his report filed with the city commissioners Saturday afternoon, urged the early construction of a dam at Reedy Fork pumping station in order to provide sufficient water for fire fighting purposes. Mr. Taylor also recommended the installation of electricity to be used in case of emergency. During the dry seasons, the chief pointed out, the city water supply becomes very low, and in the event of a big fire it is improbable in his opinion that a sufficient amount of water would be available.

The report showed that the fire department equipment now consists of one motor aerial hook and ladder, two steamers and four triple combination trucks, all of which are in good condition.

Fire losses in the city from January 1, 1920, to January 1, 1921, according to the report, amounted to over $65,000, buildings and contents. An itemization follows: Building values $303,000; insurance $127,900; damages $56,905; contents $143,200; insurance on contents $122,050; damage to contents $8,671.

Fires in the month of June, July, August and September did no damages, as indicated by the annual report.

THOMAS J. JEROME DIED HERE FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

Thomas J. Jerome, author and prominent attorney of the Greensboro bar, died Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at his home on North Edgeworth street. Mr. Jerome suffered a break down in health about a year ago, from which he never fully recovered. His condition had been serious during the past few weeks and although the end came as a severe shock to his friends and loved ones, they had been prepared for the worst by the continual decline in his strength.

Funeral services were conducted from the late residence Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, the Rev. J. H. Barnhardt, pastor of West Market Street Methodist church, and Rev. R. E. Rowe, pastor of Holy Trinity Episcopal church, officiating.

Mr. Jerome was born in Union county. After a thorough training he began the practice of law at Monroe, later going to Salisbury. About seven years ago he moved to this city, where he had engaged in his profession until failing health forced him to give up active work. He was considered an authority on criminal law and was the author of several text books on that subject.

Surviving are his widow, three children, Edward Jerome, Vance Jerome and Miss Mary Jerome.

MUCH EVIL IN TWIN CITY ACCORDING TO PREACHER.

Winston-Salem, Feb. 11.—A communication appearing in a local paper to-day and signed by Rev. T. V. Crouse, pastor of the Methodist church at Stokesdale, Guilford county, in which he criticises the courts for small fines imposed on violators of prohibition laws, may be the means of stirring up a "hornets nest."

The communication was read in open session of Municipal court this morning by Solicitor Watson, who asked that a capias be issued for the minister to appear before Judge Hartman and testify in ad testificandum proceedings. The papers were drawn and this afternoon mailed to the sheriff of Guilford county who was requested to see that the minister gave bond for his appearance here next Tuesday morning when he will be asked to tell what he knows regarding allegations made in the letter appearing in a local paper over his signature.

In his communication, Rev. Mr. Crouse is bold enough to say:

"I know a man in Winston-Salem who has boasted that he actually cleared $50,000 last year in the liquor business. He was caught once or twice and had fines not to exceed $500 or $1,000. I suppose that the $50,000 was above fines paid as well as other expenses—and he is still in the business."

"I know another man who was bonded out and made enough money the same night he was turned loose to pay his $500 bond. I know plenty of others who have worked in a hurry to get money with which to pay the fine before they were brought into regular trial; and in one case the blockader's lawyer instructed him to go back home and make the money quick with which to pay his fine. He had already had his preliminary hearing and was turned loose under bond."

He believes the increase will drive the banks to go higher on their savings deposits. He thinks the long time depositor will get a five per cent interest instead of four now.

Many others spoke briefly. Representative McBee shook his head during the speech of Mr. Cox, who told the Mitchell member that there was no politics in it. "I think we belong to the same party," Mr. Cox said.

"If you are a good Republican we do," McBee answered.

"We both voted for Mr. Harding," the gentleman of the Democratic candidate's name rejoined.

Many members feel inclined to vote for the change for two years. Dozens are at home tonight. Senator Joe Brown, of Chadbourn, declares it will cost the east $200,000,000 not to pass this bill.

McAdoo leaves Mexico after a brief rest.

Mexico City, Feb. 10.—William G. McAdoo, who left for the United States last night, said his trip to Mexico had been one of pleasure and not connected with business. Mr. McAdoo denied he had entered into any negotiations with the Mexican government for the administration or supervision of the rehabilitation of the railroad system.

In a formal statement issued just before his departure for the north, Mr. McAdoo thanked his Mexican hosts for their hospitality and concluded with a tribute to President Obregon.

"The whole world," said Mr. McAdoo in his tribute, "is looking to President Obregon and his colleagues with genuine sentiments of friendship and hopefulness. There is general confidence in him and his administration, and I believe President Obregon will create a new era of peace, progress and prosperity for the Mexican people."

"I have been greatly impressed with President Obregon's sterling qualities and sound views. His agreeable and engaging personality and his intelligent comprehension of the serious problems of the day give encouragement to every friend and well wisher of Mexico."

FINANCIAL AID ASKED IN EXPORT BUSINESS.

Washington, Feb. 11.—Thirty inquiries and tentative applications for financial assistance have come from exporting concerns in the south since the revival of the war finance corporation, but "very few definite applications have been received."

This is revealed by a list prepared to-day by Angus W. McLean, the Tar Heel director of the corporation, in response to a request that he furnish information regarding the public response to the action of Congress directing that the finance corporation resume its activities. The finance corporation withheld the names of the applicants, but furnished information regarding the number applying in several states, including five in North Carolina. Nearly all of the southern applicants are for Asiatic exporting of farm products. However, it is intimated that many of the applications do not represent complete transactions, and the war finance corporation cannot make advances except when the sale has actually been made and security offered.

"Obviously," it was said at the corporation offices to-day, "it is necessary for American exporters to complete their contracts or commitments for the exportation of products before they can make a definite application involving particular sums and giving other details. This process necessarily takes time. For this reason very few definite applications have been received up to the present time."

Tentative Applications.

Tentative application received from states in the south and southwest are listed by the finance corporation as follows:

Alabama—Two from Decatur and Cullman, covering cotton and general farm products.

Georgia—Two from Gainesville and Brunswick, both covering lumber.

Louisiana—Two from New Orleans and Mansfield, covering cotton and cattle products.

Maryland—Three, all from Baltimore, covering acid phosphate, tobacco and underwear.

Mississippi—Five from Agricola, Askew, Greenville, Greenwood and Smithdale, covering cotton and general farm products.

Missouri—Three, all from St. Louis, covering flour, grain and general farm products.

North Carolina—Five from Rocky Mount, Durham, Farmville, New Bern and Wilmington, covering cotton and tobacco.

Texas—Six from Dallas, Lockhart, Houston, Alanreed and Corpus Christi, covering cotton, planting seed and general farm products.

Virginia—Two from Leesburg and Norfolk, covering cotton, tobacco and electrical apparatus.

In addition there have been a great many inquiries from concerns in the northern states in regard to financing the export of cotton, cotton seed and by products, tobacco, sugar, rice, hides, oil products and manufactured cotton goods, all of which would be produced in southern and southwestern states.

THE PUBLISHER'S RESPONSIBILITY.

Much demoralizing reading is printed on the plea that "the public wants it." A mother might as excusably give her child the glistening arsenic for which it cries. The publisher bears a responsibility to society like that of the preacher or the teacher. This, at any rate, is the view of the publishers of The Youth's Companion. From its first issue to the present it has been a constant force for character building. And with all that it has been so wisely edited that no publication exists of more varied charm, more inexhaustible and refreshing sources of interest.

The 52 issues of the coming year will be crowded with serial stories, short stories, editorials, poetry, facts and fun. Only $2.50 for an amount of reading equal to thirty-five volumes of fiction, humor, etc.

Baptist Parsonage Dynamited.

Pocahontas, Va., Feb. 11.—While the family of Rev. W. R. Rickman were asleep in the Baptist parsonage here early to-day some one threw a stick of dynamite through a window in the second-floor of the home, causing the explosion which partially wrecked the structure. No one in the house was injured. Police to-day attributed the deed to Mr. Rickman's "vigorous activities" in suppressing the violation of the prohibition laws.

I am not ashamed to own my follies but I am ashamed not to put an end to them.

A DUTY THAT CANNOT BE IGNORED.

Twenty years ago Governor Charles B. Aycock caught the attention of the people of North Carolina and effectively preached to them the fact that North Carolina needed more and better schools. With compelling eloquence and facts he convinced the people of this state that there should be a good school in reach of every boy and girl in North Carolina. Governor Aycock did not concern himself with the institution of higher learning because of the fact that our colleges were then able to take care of all that came knocking at their doors. He fought for more and better grammar schools and for more and better high schools. Thanks to the great labor of Governor Aycock and his associates, the grammar schools and the high schools have been increased and decidedly improved during the past twenty years.

North Carolina is now confronted with the fact that her secondary school system, though it may be undeveloped and not yet perfected, has already outgrown her higher educational system. This is clearly proved by the fact that last year our high schools graduated more boys and girls than the colleges were able to receive. It is tragic that it is true that hundreds of worthy young men and women, native sons and daughters of North Carolina, were denied entrance to college because of lack of room. Such a condition is a reflection on the good sense of the people of our state.

In the language of Dr. H. W. Chase, shall we continue to have "barred gates instead of an open road to learning; youth cramped, denied, confined; future leaders untrained, penalized for their North Carolina birth—will the great heart of the state suffer these things to be?"

It cannot, it must not continue so. We must make North Carolina as great in education as she is already great in riches and noble citizenship. Write to the legislators among your acquaintance and urge upon them the necessity of providing for the state supported institutions. Otherwise, your son or your daughter may be penalized, surely your beloved state will be made to suffer. There is no Aycock to lead the fight for education to-day. It is a cause of the people—a solemn responsibility that rests upon every man and woman.

The congressional "smelling committee," which during the past year has been engaged in investigating everything pertaining to the conduct of the war from construction of battleships to the awarding of victory medals, has concluded its task. The principal results from the innumerable blind trails that were followed is the expense incurred, which is estimated from $200,000 to $2,000,000. Some of the committee men journeys to the Pacific coast, others to Europe—the taxpayers footing the bills.

As General Daws expressed it, all for the purpose of trying to "find a fly speck on the record of the American army after it had won a war."

EDISON MARCHES TOWARD CENTURY MARK.

Thomas A. Edison, acknowledged inventive genius of all times, celebrated his 74th birthday Friday and at the same time declared his intention of out-distancing his long-lived forefathers. His grandfather lived to be 103 and his great grandfather to be 102 years old.

The life of Edison, even from the time of his unpromising youth, is one contradiction after another of the generally accepted rules of human conduct. This very faculty of being and seeing beyond the regular and beaten paths may be responsible for the almost super-human accomplishments of this man. He tells us himself that his failures he counted as success, and of easy success he was always suspicious. His customary process is to dismiss the accepted theories and blazing new trails, to approach his object by entirely new routes.

Edison has made sufficient contributions to the uplift and happiness of humanity to permit him to eternal distinction in the archives of the world's history. Not content, however, he is now engaged in seeking communication with departed spirits. Were it other than the wizard Edison, the world would smile and let it pass at that. Mere men have smiled before, however, without being heeded by this inquisitive person. And even in such an endeavor the world looks on, with bated breath, almost fearful lest Edison will—as usual, laugh last.

NEGLECTING OPPORTUNITIES.

There should be more orchards and better orchards in Guilford county. Every farm in the county should have an orchard capable of providing for home needs, while a surplus would help to replenish the family larder with cash at a season of the year when cash is most usually needed.

If one visits the western section of the state, or the hilly country of Virginia, he will be surprised to view thriving and apparently profitable orchards clinging to almost every rugged hillside. By sheer necessity those people are forced to fruit growing in order to augment the crops produced on their soil. So it is often the case that the side of a young mountain, a tract which in this section would be regarded as only worthy of holding the world together, is made to contribute an annual revenue.

Excepting of course the tropical varieties, Guilford soil and climate is well adapted to a wide range of fruits. It is indeed surprising that the thrifty farmers of this community have heretofore neglected and overlooked as they have the possibilities of this side line.

Saturday, February 12, was the birth date of Abraham Lincoln. Throughout the nation the event was commemorated in a manner fitting to the memory of one of America's greatest citizens.

In view of the fact that we are to-day confronted with the after-war problem, just as was Lincoln, his famous pronouncement immediately following the Civil war is of especial interest, which we quote as follows:

"With malice toward none;
With charity for all;
With firmness in the right,
As God gives us to see the right,
Let us strive to finish the work
We are in;

To bind up the nation's wounds;
To care for him,
Who shall have borne the battle,
And for his widow
And his orphan—
To do all which may achieve and cherish
A just and lasting peace,
Among ourselves,
And with all nations."

Was Very Weak

"After the birth of my baby I had a back-set," writes Mrs. Mattie Crosswhite, of Glade Spring, Va. "I was very ill; thought I was going to die. I was so weak I couldn't raise my head to get a drink of water. I took . . . medicine, yet I didn't get any better. I was constipated and very weak, getting worse and worse. I sent for Cardui."

TAKE CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"I found after one bottle of Cardui I was improving," adds Mrs. Crosswhite. "Six bottles of Cardui and . . . I was cured, yes, I can say they were a God-send to me. I believe I would have died, had it not been for Cardui." Cardui has been found beneficial in many thousands of other cases of womanly troubles. If you feel the need of a good, strengthening tonic, why not try Cardui? It may be just what you need.

WANT BRANCH BANK ESTABLISHED IN STATE.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 11.—Recent passage by the North Carolina legislature of an act designed to block what is known as the par-clearance plan of the federal reserve system presents an insuperable obstacle in the way of establishing a branch bank of that system at some place in the Piedmont sections of one of the two Carolinas, as requested in a petition filed with the federal reserve board of Richmond last November.

Such was the information which Governor George J. S. Seay, of the reserve board imparted to-day to members of a delegation of bankers from these two states at a conference on the subject between officers and directors of the board and the members of the delegation.

Speaks For Entire Board.
Asked if the law were repealed before the legislature adjourned what action might be taken on the proposal, Governor Seay was not prepared to say. He was spokesman for the board, the directors and other officers being apparently content to let him do practically all the talking for that side. Governor W. P. G. Harding, of the central reserve board at Washington, happened to be in the city on a social visit, it was stated, and attended the meeting by invitation. The only director not present was David R. Coker, of Hartsville, S. C., who was detained at home by illness in his family, it was said.

The visiting bankers stressed the need for a branch bank, pointing out that the sections asking for it were losing at least a day more than was necessary in the handling of collections and were otherwise hampered by reason of the long distance from Richmond. Attention was called to the fact that 78 out of 98 member banks in South Carolina had signed the petition and that 46 member banks in North Carolina west of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad had signed it.

NEGRO "CLEAR FORGET" DATE FOR HANGING ALSO.

Shreveport, La., Feb. 10.—When Sheriff Grant, of Ouachita parish, got busy last Friday and overlooked the fact that the hanging of Lonnie Eaton, negro, was on his day's program, he was not the only absent minded person in the parish. For Lonnie, himself, "clear forgot" the date, according to the story he told in the Caddo parish jail here last night.

"I may be dead but I don't feel it," said Lonnie. "But I sure am glad that sheriff forgot about me. I knew I was supposed to hang sometime, but I clear forgot the date."

Lonnie received the news that the sheriff had forgotten him in a casual manner. He hopes now to get a life term.

Sheriff Grant issued a statement in Monroe declaring he overlooked the matter because the negro had been in jail at Shreveport three years and he was not reminded of the date for the execution.

WITH OUR BUSY ADVERTISERS

—Meyer's annual February white sale is now on. This great sale will continue all this week. See ad. on the third page.

—Tell your wife she can buy nice lace curtains at cost or below cost from Thacker & Brickmann now. They are not going to carry curtains at the new store on account of not having sufficient room. Some remarkable special values in good shoes are also offered in the ad. on page eight. Be sure to look it up.

—Do you make your surplus dollars work for you. If not, why not. It is easy. Just deposit them in the savings department of the American Exchange National Bank and the trick is done. The bank will superintend their services and see that your deposited dollars earn four per cent interest for you, compounded quarterly. Try it. It will start you on the right road to success. See ad. on third page.

"Assistance" is a most important word, and many of us need it often, but we do not realize the fact that to get assistance we must merit it. And one good way to merit it is to associate yourself with the Greensboro National Bank by opening an account there and keep all your earnings on deposit, either in the checking or savings department. The officers of this staid old banking institution would be glad to have you consult them on financial matters. See their new ad. on the eighth page.

—February, with its ever changing weather, is always a source of danger for many ailments, and the proper course to pursue is to keep a good supply of Sykes' standard remedies in your medicine chest where they will be handy when you need them. These you can procure at a small cost at Ralph J. Sykes' drug store, only a short distance north of the Southern Railway passenger station. Mr. Sykes has arranged to keep his drug store open both day and night for the accommodation of the public. His quarter page announcement on the fifth page to-day is full of good reading.

—Mr. W. H. McGlamery, owner of the McGlamery Auto Company, is giving away a mighty valuable book to the farmers of Guilford. The title is "The Fordson at Work," and its pages are full of apt illustrations and good information for the power farmer. Call and get a copy, or if you live too far away to call drop Mr. McGlamery a card and he will send you one by mail free of charge. The age of machine farming is here, and its latest advance step civilization has taken to help the farmer produce bigger crops at a less cost of labor and money. Turn to another page and read Mr. McGlamery's fresh Fordson announcement.

ESSENTIAL THAT CROPS FIT SOIL

Red Clover and Timothy Should Not Be Depended On Entirely for Maximum Crops.

REDTOP FAVORS MOIST GROUND

No Perennial Hay Plants Will Produce Well on Poor, Sandy Soil—Most Grass Seeds Are Small and Require Good Seedbed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While timothy and red clover undoubtedly are the best hay crops on good soils in the northeastern quarter of the United States, they should by no means be depended on to produce maximum yields of soils. Other hay crops are better suited and are more dependable in some cases and under particular soil conditions. Alsike clover, for example, is better adapted to sour and moist soils than common red clover, and the two mixed together and seeded on some uplands often insure a crop where the latter seeded alone would fail. Redtop is the best wet-land grass and on such land a mixture of red-top meadow fescue, and alsike clover usually gives good returns. While no hay grasses can be depended upon to make a commercial crop on poor land, redtop, orchard grass, and tall oats-grass are better than any others. These are facts discussed in detail in Farmers' Bulletin No. 1170, Meadows for the Northern States, just issued and ready for distribution by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Has Bulk of Tame Hay Acreage. In that section of the United States, north of and including Tennessee, and east of central Nebraska, Kansas and the Dakotas, is found 83 per cent of the tame hay acreage of the nation. Eighty-eight per cent of this acreage is seeded to timothy and clover. While these two plants undoubtedly will continue to hold the popularity they now possess, there are a number of other plants which, though not so well known, are more desirable for particular purposes and for certain conditions of soil and climate. The latter are given special attention in the bulletin.

Field of Bur Clover.

There is little difference of opinion as to the plants to be seeded on rich well-drained land. Timothy is seeded alone if the hay is to be sold on the market, and timothy and clover, often mixed with redtop, where part or all of the hay is utilized on the farm. Some of the advantages of these plants are that they have good seed habits, especially timothy and redtop. Red clover is a deep-rooted legume, and has a beneficial effect on succeeding crops.

Timothy is considered by feeders the best hay for horses, and clover, or clover and timothy mixed produce better yields and are excellent for cattle and sheep. The comparatively long period during which these plants may be left standing without serious deterioration before cutting, together with the fact that the time of their maturity interferes little with the harvesting of the cereals and other farm work, have much to do with their popularity.

The most serious objection to the red clover and timothy mixture is due to the difference in time of their maturity, the former usually being ready to cut two weeks before the latter. For this reason mammoth clover, a variety of the common red, which is somewhat later in maturing, is sometimes substituted for red clover in the seed mixture.

There are many soils along the southern border of the area under discussion which will give a larger hay yield if seeded to orchard grass, tall oats-grass, and alsike clover than if seeded to timothy, redtop and red clover. These soils are usually poor in organic matter and are inclined to be sour. It is important that this mixture be cut when the plants first head out, for if harvesting is delayed they will make a tough, less palatable hay. This is especially true of orchard grass. If cut early, however, this hay will be relished by all classes of live stock. For general use in the localities referred to, the bulletin recommends the following mixture: Orchard grass, 14 pounds; tall oats-grass, 12 pounds; alsike clover, 6 pounds per acre.

Gives Best Results.

Raising hay on poor land is not satisfactory, but when it is necessary this mixture gives best results. In some places in the Middle West sweet clover has given good results under unpromising soil conditions. According to the bulletin, no perennial hay plants will produce well on poor, sandy soil. Under such soil conditions, however, some temporary crop, such as rye or oats and peas, and, along the Atlantic coast, early sorghum and cowpeas, are preferable to perennial hay crops.

The best temporary hay plants are the small grains seeded either alone or in mixture with some legume, such as peas, vetch or crimson clover. Millets are sometimes used for this purpose, as are sudan grass and coarse forage, such as corn and sorghum. In the northern states a combination of oats and Canada field peas makes a very good hay crop. Excellent results have been obtained in eastern Maryland and Virginia with the following mixture: Oats, 1 bushel; hairy vetch, 30 pounds; white-blooming crimson clover, 10 pounds per acre.

In order to avoid losing the use of land for an entire season, and to permit late-summer and early-fall seeding, grass crops usually follow small grains. The seedbed should be prepared as soon as possible after the grain is harvested. As a three-inch mellow seedbed with firm soil beneath will give better results for summer seeding than one that is deeper, the disk harrow is usually used in place of the plow for preparing land for grass. Most grass seeds are very small and must have a fine, mellow, well pulverized surface soil in order that the seedling may become established. A good seedbed may mean the difference between the success and failure of the hay crop.

Use Too Little Seed.

Most farmers use too little grass seed for best results, according to the bulletin. Rich land with a well-prepared seedbed does not require as much seed as thin land or land poorly fitted. From 20 to 30 pounds of seed per acre are generally sufficient, and this rate is usually more profitable than lighter seedings of mixtures. Small-seeded grasses, such as red-top and timothy, do not require so heavy a seeding as orchard grass or rye grass. Usually 10 pounds of timothy or 6 pounds of redtop are sufficient when these are seeded alone.

In order that the seed may get a good start, it is frequently advisable to apply some readily available fertilizer. Formerly the grain crop received the fertilizer, but experiments have demonstrated that when it is applied to the grass it will not only increase the yield of this crop but frequently show beneficial effects on succeeding crops for two or three years. Top dressings of suitable manure will increase the yield of hay, and there is probably no better crop than grass on which to apply it. A great deal of grass and clover seed is wasted every year from seeding on sour or acid soils. Applications of lime correct this condition, and should be made particularly where legumes are to be grown.

LITTLE TIME NEEDED TO KEEP LABOR DATA

Records Often Are Means of Saving Working Costs.

Farmer Enabled to Determine Number of Days of Man and Horse Power Necessary to Produce an Acre of Any Crop.

A record kept of farm labor does not require much time, yet it is often the means of saving labor costs. The labor records show just how much labor and team work is required on each crop and the time in the season when it is used. They should show what proportion of the labor is devoted to work that produces an income and the amount that is consumed on odd jobs of unproductive tasks. This will enable the farmer to determine the number of days of man and horse labor necessary to produce an acre of any crop, or the care of any class of animals for a year says the United States Department of Agriculture. Thus he may be able to rearrange his system of management so that he can get along with less labor and at the same time maintain production.

A year's labor records show also just how much man power and horse power is necessary to run the entire farm at different seasons, and point out accurately just when the rush seasons occur. With such records before him, the farmer knows approximately what his labor requirements will be in advance of the rush season. He is able to increase or decrease the different farm enterprises and fit them together until he has outlined a complete year's work with an even load of labor for the entire season.

GIVE GAS ENGINE ATTENTION

Vibration Tends to Loosen Bolts, Nuts and Various Connections Which Need Tightening.

All screws and nuts on gas engines should be kept tight. The engine should be gone over every day or so when it is used, and all connections tightened and all oil and dirt wiped off. Such practice will go far toward preventing operating troubles, since all gas engines vibrate to some extent and this vibration tends to loosen bolts, nuts and other parts.

Horticultural Notes

TOLL OF STORAGE DISEASES

Aliments Greatly Reduce Important Food Supply and Increase the Marketing Costs.

Storage diseases take a heavy annual toll on the harvested crop of apples, greatly reducing an important food supply and increasing the cost and uncertainty of marketing operations. The responsibility for this loss may lie with the orchardist, the transportation company, the dealer, or the storage management, say specialists of the bureau of plant industry of the United States Department of Agriculture. In Farmers' Bulletin 1160, "Diseases of Apples in Storage," now available for general distribution.

The diseases may be due to the work of a parasite or to the direct action of unfavorable conditions upon the fruit itself. Diseases like scab and certain rots that are definitely traceable to the action of particular fungi are called parasitic diseases, while bitter-rot, water-core, and scald are known to be wholly due to abnormal physiological conditions in the fruit itself, and are called non-parasitic or physiological diseases. Both these classes of diseases can be prevented largely by proper methods of growing and handling the fruit, but each has its own peculiar laws of behavior upon which the requirements for its control must be based.

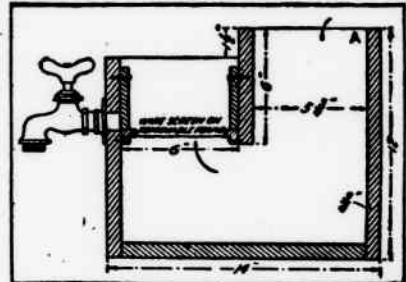

Delay in warm packing sheds or cars shortens the natural life of apples and greatly increases their tendency to rots and to scald. Filling the storage rooms so rapidly that cold-storage temperatures cannot be maintained has a similar bad effect. Apple rots are slow to start at a temperature of 32 degrees Fahrenheit, but if a beginning has been made at a higher temperature they proceed much more rapidly.

Ventilation is as important as low temperature in the prevention of scald. Apples that receive good aeration when delays occur in handling them do not have the tendency to scald increased by the delay. (Any ventilation of the storage room that results in an actual renewal of the air within the package is of great value in scald control.) Apples scald far less in boxes, baskets or ventilated barrels than in the usual tight barrel. Wrapping apples in oiled wrappers furnishes the most complete protection against scald.

STRAINER FOR LIME-SULPHUR

Device Designed to Overcome Clogging of Screen May Be Made Like One Shown Herewith.

After the lime-sulphur has been made it should be strained before storage in order to remove the coarser undissolved particles. Any kind of a strainer having either brass or tinned iron wire (never copper), 30 to 50 meshes to the inch, may be used. With the usual type of strainer, however, the sediment will clog the wire mesh more or less and thereby will prevent the rapid flow of the solution through the screen. A strainer designed to overcome the clogging of the screen may be made upon the principle of the model shown in the illustration, says Michigan Farmer. With this type of strainer the material is poured in at A and is strained upward through the screen. The coarse particles settle to the bottom of the strainer, instead of lodging on the screen as in the ordinary type of strainer.

DORMANT SPRAY IS FAVORED

Nowadays No Orchard Is Worth Its Keep That Is Not Both Pruned and Sprayed.

As soon as the trees are dormant it is time to spray the orchard. Nowadays no orchard is worth its keep that is not both pruned and sprayed. Do not figure on the cost, but do a good job. The value will appear, bringing a big per cent later, when the fine fruit is sold. Spraying is done four times in a season: 1. Dormant spraying, with lime-sulphur alone. 2. After the petals fall, using arsenate of lead, lime-sulphur and nicotine sulphate. 3. Fifteen or twenty days later, using the same materials, minus the nicotine sulphate. 4. A month after the third spraying, using the same materials.

GREAT DAMAGE BY CURCULIO

One State Suffered Loss of $2,000,000 by Insect—New Method of Extermination.

Curculio caused $2,000,000 damage to the peach crop in one southern state in 1920. The insect lives in the foliage several months beyond the fruit season, and the United States Department of Agriculture is experimenting with a new method of extermination.

TARIFF MAKERS FIDDLED ON JOB IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, Feb. 11.—House tariff constructors fiddled on the job today.

The ways and means committee had up the "violins" schedule and W. R. Clymer, of Columbus, Ohio, was on hand with an arm full of fiddles to contend that American fiddle builders did just as good a job as anybody and ought to have tariff protection for their product.

He also brought along a local violinist who treated the committee to a classical selection played in turn on a $10, a $30, $300 and an $1,800 fiddle, the first two instruments being a month out of the factory while the $300 box was six years old and the $1,800 one nobody knew how old.

Clymer defied the tariff makers to detect differences in tone. It looked like a clash of experts was coming when Chairman Fordney announced that he owned a Stradivarius made in 1713. Tension passed, however, when Mr. Fordney said to the violinist:

"How about the Arkansas Traveler?"

The musician complied with the suggestion and in a moment the brisk measures of the old tune went rollicking through the staid committee room and out into the wide corridors of the office building to tickle the ears of busy legislators and their helpers. Committeemen and onlookers sat with toes tapping and heads nodding. Yankee Doodle followed, then Dixie, just to avoid sectionalism.

At this point the committee stenographer addressed the chairman: "How," asked the shorthand man, "am I going to make a full and complete record of this testimony?"

It used to be the bright lights that dazzled; now it's the moonshine that blinds.—Seattle Times.

A DISASTROUS TORNADO HITS GEORGIA TOWN

TWO WHITES AND THIRTY NEGROES KILLED—SWEEPS LAND CLEAN.

Oconee, Ga., Feb. 10.—A tornado that struck the Gardner settlement, one mile from here, shortly after the noon hour to-day, brought death to two white persons and nearly 30 negroes, and serious injury to five white persons and more than a score of negroes.

A stretch of land extending from Conee almost to Toombsboro, in Washington county, nearly five miles long and about a half mile wide, is as barren as a prairie to-night, not a building nor a tree being left standing.

Among the dead is Benjamin Franklin Orr, 14 year old youth, who was decapitated. His head had not been found at a late hour to-night.

The only other white person who met death in the tornado is the three year old daughter of E. L. Minor, manager of Shepherd's commissary, at the plant of the Cleveland-Oconee Lumber Company.

Eighty-two children and three teachers were in a school building on the edge of the Gardner settlement when the tornado struck. The building was literally twisted to pieces and the fragments scattered for miles around. Children were picked up by the wind and carried for some distance, but it is officially announced tonight that only one child was seriously bruised.

Forty Houses Wrecked.
Approximately 40 houses were blown down in the Gardner settlement. The Shepherd brothers' commissary at the big lumber plant was reduced to kindling wood, Orr and four negroes meeting death there. Ten feet away from the commissary was the general office of the Cleveland-Oconee Lumber Company, which was untouched by the storm. The 15-acre plant of the lumber company, which practically owns the settlement site of Gardner, was not seriously damaged by the wind, although millions of feet of lumber piled in the yards was scattered.

The tornado spent its force locally immediately beyond the plant of the lumber company, in the settlement of 40 houses and four stores. Most of the people residing in this section were negroes, the white people of the town residing on higher ground, a short distance away.

These negro houses and stores faced the tracks of the Savannah division of the Central and Georgia railroad. In the rear of the houses was an open field, extending for nearly a mile from the Oconee station to the lumber mill. It was into this field that men, women and children were carried to their death from their seats at dinner tables.

Locomotive Brings Aid.

Ten minutes after the tornado wiped out the Gardner settlement a Central of Georgia local freight train, running from Savannah to Macon, arrived on the scene. W. O. King, of Wadley, conductor in charge, viewed the bodies scattered about the ground.

The conductor ordered his locomotive detached from the train and with his crew hastened to Tennille, 11 miles away, for aid. Coaches were commandeered from the Wrightsville and Tennille railroad, and four doctors and 46 persons were obtained in the relief party. The train returned to Oconee as speedily as possible.

Doctors found one negro boy with a board driven into his forehead. They removed the board and gave temporary aid. The youth was alive tonight and it is believed that he will live.

The body of a three-year-old negro infant was found at the roots of a tree, the top of which had been twisted off. The child's head had been crushed in, having been carried headforemost from its home against the tree. One negro's body was cut in two.

A negro man and his wife were found more than a hundred yards from their home lying side by side in the road, both dead.

The bodies of several small negroes were found in trees, out of the path of the tornado, being suspended on the limbs by their clothing.

The bodies of grown negroes were thrown into the field in a semi-circle and in the center of the group was a goat, who stood like a statue, too frightened to move for hours after the storm passed.

Six fine oak trees, along the railroad at Gardner, were snapped off at different heights. On top of one of these stumps, 20 feet from the ground, was a pillow from the bed of one of the wrecked homes.

Occurred at Dinner Hour.
According to residents of the community the clouds lowered just as the employees of the lumber plant left their work for dinner. The atmosphere became extremely hot and because of the darkness in many homes lamps had been lighted, when the tornado broke.

One person on the outer edge of the storm swept path, which escaped injury, declared he saw a string of box cars moving toward him. Then as suddenly, he declared, the box cars were reversed, and when he looked a second later he said they were again coming toward him. These cars were found to have been blown from the rails.

Chickens that escaped death in the path of the storm were in many instances plucked of their feathers. There were many animals killed.

FARMER RECOVERS STOLEN BONDS AND STAMPS.

Washington, Feb. 10.—When E. K. Flowers, a substantial farmer of Wilson county, N. C., was advised that a note he hadn't signed was due at the Terminal Commercial and Savings Bank in Washington, he was enabled to locate $500 worth of liberty bonds and war savings stamps stolen from him several weeks ago.

The thief stole from Mr. Flowers $450 of the war savings stamps, a $50 bond and about $40 in cash. Mr. Flowers was never able to get any trace of it. Recently he was advised by the above mentioned bank that his note there for which the bonds and stamps had been put up as collateral, was due. The thief, or somebody for him had made out a note, signed Mr. Flowers' name to it and borrowed money on the stamps and bonds at the bank.

Mr. Flowers came to the city yesterday and recovered his bond and stamps. The bank is out the amount it had loaned on them, and is now looking for the thief and forger.

AUNT SARAH WYCOFF NOT AS INNOCENT AS REPORTED.

Hickory, Feb. 10.—Persons who resided in the vicinity of the Wesley Wycoff murder in the lower edge of Catawba county many years ago, were amazed by the recent stories sent out from Raleigh as to "Aunt Sarah" Wycoff, alleged victim of circumstantial evidence, receiving information several months before her death that somebody else had confessed to the crime for which Bob McCorkle, negro, was hanged in Alexander county. Those who do not care to read further may set it down that "Aunt Sarah," however well she might have behaved during her long term in the state prison, was no innocent and modest woman during the days that she reigned on a throne of immorality.

T. A. Sherrill, well known Hickory man, living within two miles of the Wycoff home, knew Wesley Wycoff and his wife and Bob McCorkle personally and got all the news in court and out of it as to the character of woman she was. Discussing her case Mr. Sherrill said that if the officers, spurred on by public opinion as they are to-day, had made half the effort to clear the mystery in the Wycoff case, probably a white man would have been hanged and "Aunt Sarah" still would have gone to prison. The negro on the scaffold muttered something about others as guilty as he, but he did not give his white friend away. He never denied shooting Wesley Wycoff.

The case was tried twice, the second time in Alexander county, because of feeling in Catawba in the matter. McCorkle was found guilty of murder and the Wycoff woman as an accessory before the fact. The chain of circumstances was conclusive.

To begin with, the court had a very bad woman as one of the principals. Her immorality was generally known and it was practiced at the home of her husband, a good-natured but worthless fellow, whose force of character did not commend him to anybody.

Some white man in the community, whose name has been mentioned privately a thousand times, was believed to be at the bottom of the murder. He wanted Wesley Wycoff out of the way and his unfaithful spouse was a party to the conspiracy, the evidence showed, that ended in his murder at his barn, where he was lured. The correspondents all get the facts straight about Bob McCorkle, Mr. Sherrill said, because that was such an interesting detail that it appealed to them. It was a fact that McCorkle carried a single-barreled muzzle-loading shotgun with him everywhere he went and everybody in the country knew it by the sound. He also carried a pistol in his coat and when he removed his coat he left it close by, always placing it near him when he went away for any distance. McCorkle was impudent, but not regarded as mean.

When his gun went off on that fatal night, a man sleeping in the neighborhood was awakened and remarked to his wife, "That's Bob McCorkle's gun." By means of comparing paper wadding shot from the gun with paper found in his shot pouch, the authorities were able positively to connect McCorkle with the case. He refused to make a confession on the scaffold, but he admitted that somebody else was in it.

The alleged confession, to which reference has been made on one or more occasions, was never made in the opinion of Mr. Sherrill. No names were given and no dates, and the mutterings of an old woman who had caused much trouble in her neighborhood, were seized upon to tell the world that an innocent person had been convicted on circumstantial evidence.

J. W. Blackwelder, of Hickory to whom Warden Busbee wired when the old woman died, also bore out Mr. Sherrill's statement as to the facts in the case. Mr. Blackwelder said he preferred to let the public forget the affair, but he was astonished at the importance given the old woman without any apparent investigation.

FARMER'S WIFE VALUES KISS AT $1,000

Rutland, Va., Feb. 11.—Mrs. Florence A. Brown, of Sherburne, Va., wife of a farmer, although past the usual age of coquetry, values her kisses at $1,000 each. She brought suit to-day against Pearl W. Green, a neighbor, to recover that amount, claiming that while her husband was away Green entered her house uninvited, embraced her and took a kiss forcibly.

She asserts that she has since been in a state of fear and is unable to remain home alone with any sense of protection. Mrs. Brown is prominent socially in Sherburne.

SOUTHERN FARMERS ARE IN A BAD WAY?

Raleigh, Feb. 10.—On account of the low prices that have been paid for tobacco and cotton this season, many Southern farmers have experienced great difficulty in meeting their obligations.

As reflecting the plight of one planter, former Governor Richard I. Manning, of South Carolina, at a meeting of tobacco and cotton growers here recently, read the following letter which, he said, was sent to a South Carolina fertilizer company:

"I received your letter about what I owe you. Now, be patient. I ain't forgot you, and soon as folks pay me I'll pay you, but if this was judgement day and you no more prepared to meet your God than I am to meet your account, then you sho' going to hell."
