LOCAL NEWS.

—Now for Trinity.

—Salem commencement is this week.

—Eggs continue in demand at 20 cents per dozen.

—The Federal Court officials left this morning for Charlotte.

—Tax listing begins next Monday and closes on the 30th of the month.

—The Methodist ladies cleared about $100 on their entertainments.

—Tobacco is coming in quite freely since the rain and is bringing good prices.

—A cargo of iron for the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railroad has arrived at Wilmington.

—The opera house project on West Market has been abandoned. Dreadfully sorry to hear it.

—Col. Connally's two sermons at the Baptist church yesterday were masterpieces of robust pulpit logic.

High Point had a big blow yesterday. A number of shade trees in different parts of the town were blown up by the roots.

—The rains of the past few days have made glad the hearts of the farmer, as he watched the swelling grain and the growing corn.

—“What shall the harvest be?” has been settled by the rains of the past few days. It will be as fine as last year in this county—and a better wheat year was never known.

—This is commencement week at Trinity College and Salem Female Academy, and many of our people will attend one or the other. The railroad will sell return tickets—good until Friday—as follows: High Point $1.10; Salem $2.05.

—The commencement party of the High Point High school is down for Thursday night, June 21. P. H. Dalton, Jr., is chief manager and J. C. Hoskins, M. A. Smith, Archie Remfry, John Weedon, W. S. Dalton and Norman Nissen, marshals. The party will be given at Jarrell's hotel.

—The Petersburg verdict in the Dodson trial causes great indignation in Danville. In all he gets 10 years in the penitentiary. Five on murder in the second degree, three on arson and two on embezzlement. The current opinion in Danville is that he ought to be hanged.

—Heavy rains are reported on the Western North Carolina Railroad. A washout near Salisbury surprised a freight train, but no serious damage was done. The locomotive had been detached from the train and was feeling its way carefully along, when it went down. Very little rain fell about Concord.

—Mr. J. Van Lindley left last week for a three weeks trip to Missouri. While absent he will attend the National Nurserymen's Association which meets in St. Louis, June 20th.

—Trinity is booked for a meteoric shower on Thursday next. It rarely falls to the lot of any institution to have two such commencement orators as Reid, of Rockingham, and Staples, of Guilford.

Cut Them Down.

Since the cows have been debarred the privilege of grazing on the alleys and vacant lots, a rank growth of grass, weeds dog fennel and thistles have sprung up. It may not be detrimental to health, but is certainly unsightly. Let them be cut down. While the farmer is gathering in the golden grain, let the city harvest her crop of weeds, before the seed mature and are scattered by the winds all over town.

Sunday School Excursion.

It was officially announced on yesterday that the Methodist Sunday school would go on an excursion to Chapel Hill on Tuesday, 19th instant. This will be a delightful trip for the children and their parents and friends. The fare for outsiders has been placed at $1, but only a limited number of tickets can be sold. The Presbyterian Sunday school went to Chapel Hill last year and were delighted with the ride, the place and the people.

Hog Pens.

With our streets free from the hogs and cows, it does seem an oversight in our city fathers to allow the hog pens—which are an admitted nuisance—to stand all over town. Some are within good smelling distance of the principal streets. Wilmington has been forced to pass an ordinance against them, and to-day not a hog pen pollutes the salubrious atmosphere of our fair neighbor near the sea. Will our law makers talk this matter over at their next meeting? We are now nearing the heated term, when the sanitary condition of the city should receive special attention.

Glorious June.

June is upon us and it is a veritable June so far. We almost lost May entirely this year, a few fleeting smiles being all that permitted us to recognize her annual coming. Her leave taking of April while frigid was nevertheless protracted and she even had one or two uncompleted engagements with March. But the transformation scene has come suddenly. The change and the illusion are complete. From May cold and distant we have June ardent, clinging and beautiful. Verdure has attained the perfection of freshness and luxuriance. The flowers have opened out in a miracle of sensuous richness of color and fragrance. All nature calls to man and beast to come forth from their artificial retreats and enjoy her hospitality. June is a short month. Her beauty is a thing of to-day, and our readers should not forget that her ministrations must be enjoyed at once to be enjoyed at all. Her mission is beauty and she has no sympathy with the business cares and worry of life. Coquettish as she is lovely, she represents a slight, and the man who stops to balance his accounts before paying court to her voluptuousness and regal splendor will find himself counted out of the list of those who enjoy her prodigal charms. A day in June is the rarest of the days upon earth.

Peaches For the Million.

[New York Herald—S.]

“This season will be the best for the Delaware peach crop that has been known in many years,” a Washington street produce dealer said to a reporter yesterday. “I returned two days ago from a trip through the peninsula, where the principal peach district is situated, and during visits to that section for many years past I never knew such a fine outlook for the yield of peaches as that of this summer. The fruit will be magnificent in size and remarkably rich in that sweet, exquisitely saccharine flavor and juice for which the perfectly developed peach is most valuable.”

Death of Capt. A. P. Hurt.

[Wilmington Review—June 9th.]

The sad intelligence reached here this morning of the sudden and entirely unexpected death of Capt. A. P. Hurt, at Fayetteville, yesterday. He was about the hotel where he boarded yesterday morning, conversing cheerfully with his many acquaintances and in apparently excellent health and spirits. At about noon he went to his room, leaving orders to be called at dinner time, and when called he was found dead on his bed. The cause of death has not yet been received here.

The True Position.

The true and safe position for the Democratic party to take on the tariff question—the position which every Democratic Congress and every Democratic President has taken while the party held power in this country—a position illustrated in every Democratic tariff since the foundation of the government, and never repudiated in the legislation of Congress—is, that as a secondary consideration in a revenue tariff the encouragement of American industries should not be excluded. We have always contended that the word “only,” as used in the platform of 1880, does exclude the idea of any, the least, protection to home industries and for that reason we have opposed the use of the phrase.

The Ohio Contest.

[New York World.]

The State election in Ohio excites great interest among the Republicans. This is to be expected. It is the effort of the drowning wretch to seize on any fragment of the boat which once carried him in safety, but whose wreck has left him struggling helplessly in the waves.

Democratic Governors now rule the northern States of California, Colorado, Connecticut, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Nevada, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. Eight of these States were wrested from the Republicans at their last State elections. In Kansas a steady Republican majority of from 40,000 to 50,000 was overcome. In Michigan a Republican majority of from 40,000 to 50,000 was swept away. In New York an unprecedented Democratic majority of nearly 200,000 was secured.

The desperate effort of the Republicans is not to redeem Ohio but to preserve the State. Its present Republican governor was elected two years ago by 25,000 majority. With the Republican party the question is one of life or death. Can they hope to cling on to one of the few Republican States still left in their shattered column?

To the Democrats the Ohio election, while of great interest, is not one of which victory is a vital necessity. They do not possess the governor of Ohio now. They want the office to redeem the State from misrule—to establish the personal rights of its citizens against bigotry and intolerance—to prevent oppressive, sumptuary laws—to enforce economy and honesty in the administration. They want it also because a victory in Ohio next October would foreclose the presidential contest of 1884 and assure the Democracy the next national administration. But if the Democrats should fail to wrest the State from a Republican Governor the disappointment would not affect their prospects in the presidential campaign.

The Democrats could afford to lose two-thirds of the States they have wrenched from the Republicans and now hold, and their chance of electing the next President would still be good.

But the Democrats will win Ohio. They will add to their roll of governors the name of the nominee of the Ohio Democratic State convention.

The defeat of the Republicans is almost certain. It is foreshadowed in the insignificance of their nomination. It is bespoken by the refusal of Senator Sherman to become the candidate. Mr. Sherman is the Artful Dodger of politics. Like Joe Bagstock, John Sherman is “sly—Devilish sly.”

Importance of the French Broad Route.

[Raleigh Observer.]

The importance of the connections recently opened to the Western Carolina Railroad company will be best appreciated by the following figures: From Louisville to Asheville by the new route is 339 miles, by the Atlanta route 945. From Louisville to Salisbury by the new route is 541 miles, by Atlanta 787 miles. From Louisville to Raleigh is 671 miles by the new route and 852 by Richmond. From Louisville to Wilmington is 748 by the new route and 931 by Atlanta. Charlotte saves 183 miles, one-third the distance; Raleigh saves 181 and Wilmington 183, about one-fifth the distance. The effect of these changes may be to build up new distributing points. Charlotte or Salisbury may become very important in this respect.

It Depends a Good Deal on the Husband.

[Adrian Times.]

It took the ladies of the Michigan Woman's Christian Temperance Union a little while to get acquainted, but when the acquaintance was once formed it ripened fast.

“How do you give your name?” asked one lady of another as they removed their wraps at the door one morning.

“I have usually written it Mrs. James P. Jones.”

“Did your mother name you ‘James P.’?” inquired the first speaker with considerable emphasis. I will never call myself by my husband's name.”

“Nor I,” “Nor I,” “Nor I” came from a number of bystanders.

The little woman appeared surprised to find herself so largely in the minority, but she finally found breath and courage to say:

“Well, I suppose it does make a difference what kind a man the husband is.”

A Texas Tornado.

[Dallas (Texas) Special to Chicago Times.]

“Squire Carroll, from near Cedar Hill, reports widespread destruction of crops in that neighborhood. In Wesley Chapel neighborhood a residence, a black-smith shop and a carriage-house were destroyed. At Duncan Station Emerson's new store-house was blown down. Reapers and farm wagons were picked up by the wind, torn to pieces and portions of them carried distances varying from 200 yards to over a mile. At what is known as Kidd's Springs, on the Trindan river bluffs two miles west of Davis, a part of the residence of J. W. Kidd was destroyed and his family barely escaped death. Two miles further on another farm-house was destroyed, and still further to the west another was torn to pieces and the inmates injured, one supposed to be fatally, but the name of the family is not remembered. From E. W. Cameron, residing 15 miles west of Dallas, near the Tarrant county line, it is learned that in the locality three miles south of the Texas and Pacific track a strip of country a mile and a half in width was swept clean. Many buildings were demolished. No one is known to have been killed. Mr. Cameron says his loss will exceed $2,000 and his is only a sample case out of hundreds. The prairies are strewn with dead rabbits, chickens, ducks, game, &c. There is but little loss of live stock. In the stricken sections orchards are torn to pieces. Great trees were torn up by the roots and many two feet in diameter twisted in two. Reports indicate that the storms ranged in belts and alternate strips of country escaped the cyclone. The centre appeared to have been near Greenville, about 35 miles northeast of Dallas, and where upwards of 100 houses were destroyed or badly injured and scores of people wounded, a few fatally. Rain was badly needed in north Texas, and in some localities crops were benefitted, but in the aggregate the harm done will exceed the good by at least a full $1,000,000.

Mr. I. P. Walkup, Monroe, N. C., says: “I have derived great benefit using Brown's Iron Bitters for palpitation of the heart and dyspepsia.”

Dr. E. H. Babbitt, Hickory, N. C., says: “Brown's Iron Bitters give great satisfaction.”

By its Own Merit

and efficiency, the Seven Springs Iron and Alum Mass, made by Landrum & Litchfield, Abingdon, Va., has won for itself a name and reputation unequalled in the history of medicines. For Uterine and Constitutional diseases, Kidney Affections, Chills and Fever, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, etc., it has no equal. Price 50 cents and $1 a bottle. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Editor and Proprietor.

PEOPLE'S CHOICE FOR GOVERNOR

ALFRED M. SCALES, OF GUILFORD.

—Gen. Atlas J. Dargan, of Anson county, is dead.

—Tumble Bug Kingsbury says we insulted Senator Merrimon, but can't insult him! Conceited blatherskite. Was ever such effrontery heard off!

—No, no. LL. D. doesn't stand for Doctor of Lies. If it did, every college in North Carolina would be eager to dub T. B. Kingsbury an "LL. D."

—Our paper bills run up to $75 per month, and sometimes as high as $100. They are paid on sight drafts through the Greensboro National Bank. If the mendacious cur, T. B. Kingsbury, wants more specific information on this subject he can apply to that source.

—Saturday the remains of John Howard Payne were given a final resting place in Oak Hill cemetery. There was an imposing escort, of which President Arthur and his cabinet formed a part. The obsequies took place at Oak Hill cemetery, and the services consisted of a poem by Mr. Robert S. Chilson, an oration by Mr. Leigh Robinson, religious ministrations by Bishop Pinkney and vocal and instrumental music. One of the principal features was the singing of the last stanza of "Home, Sweet Home," by those present.

PERSONAL.

A few days since the Wilmington Star alluded to "the little railroad concern at Greensboro" in such a way as to satisfy us that the reference was intended for the PATRIOT. We repelled the insinuation and characterized the sneak who made it as a liar. One T. B. Kingsbury replies and assumes the responsibility, Mr. Bernard, the editor of the Star, being absent. The reply occupies a column in the Star, and there is hardly a line in it that does not contain one or more deliberate, reckless, malicious and unmitigated lies. It is belittling to notice such a weak-minded egotist as T. B. Kingsbury. The point at issue is the ownership of the PATRIOT. Having made the charge that the paper was not owned by its ostensible proprietor he exultingly calls upon Superintendent Anderson, D. F. Caldwell, Esq., of Greensboro, and the register of deeds of Guilford county, to sustain it. All the witnesses, we presume, are accessible, and we shall see what effort is made to establish the truth of the charge.

THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK.

More or less of national interest will attach to all the State elections to be held this year, save those of Kentucky, Maryland and Mississippi, where the dominant party is expected to score its usual easily won victories. The election in Massachusetts will attract attention and the result will determine whether Gov. Butler's administration has weakened or strengthened the Democratic party. The vote in 1882 was 133,946 for Butler, 119,997 for Bishop, Republican, and 2,137 for Almy, prohibition. This year a complete State ticket and a legislature is to be elected, as usual. New York will elect only a legislature and minor State officers, but the election is regarded of supreme importance, as it will show how many of the independents and Republicans who voted for Cleveland last year propose to stay inside the Democratic ranks. The result will also be taken as a pretty sure indication of the State's position in the great contest of next year. The vote in 1882 was 535,318 for Cleveland, Democrat; 242,464 for Folger, Republican; 25,783 for Hopkins, prohibition, and 11,974 for Howe, Greenback. The Ohio election, in October, will be of the highest importance. The vote there will determine how far the liquor and other local questions have demoralized the Republicans and whether or not the German-American vote has left the Republican party for good. As goes the State in 1883, so, it is generally believed, it will go in 1884. The vote in 1881 was 312,735 for Foster, Republican; 288,426 for Bookwalter, Democrat; 16,597 for Ludlow, Prohibitionist; 6,330 for Seltz, Greenback, and 138 scattered. This year a governor and other State officers and a legislature will be elected. The Pennsylvania election will excite a good deal of interest. The only important officer to be elected is a State treasurer, but a sharp contest is assured and the Democrats will make every effort to retain their ascendancy. The result will show how much Pattison's clean-handed administration has helped his party and whether or not there is a reasonable chance for the Democrats to carry the State next year.

The vote for governor in 1882 was 355,791 for Pattison, Democrat; 315,589 for Beaver, Republican; 43,743 for Stewart, Independent-Republican; 23,996 for Armstrong, Greenback-Labor, and 5,196 for Pettit, Prohibition. Iowa's election, ordinarily uninteresting because of its one-sidedness, promises to be really exciting this year. The Republican party there is now better than ever. The State is more or less demoralized, on local issues chiefly, and for the first time in 25 years the Democrats are active and really hopeful of carrying the State. A governor and legislature besides minor executive officers are to be elected. At the last gubernatorial election there was a Republican plurality of 59,929 over the Democrats and Greenbackers. Virginia will elect a portion of her legislature this year, and the growing chances of a straight Democratic victory invest the election with an extraordinary interest. The present legislature consists of 81 Mahone men and 59 Democrats. New Jersey will elect a governor, representatives and one-third the Senate. The vote for governor in 1880 (the term is three years) was 121,666 for Ludlow, Democrat; 121,015 for Potts, Republican; 2,759 for Hoxsey, Greenback, and 195 for Ransom, Prohibition. The result in this State is always looked forward to with much interest. It is a close State, and one in which it does not do to count the chickens before they are hatched. Connecticut elects a house and half the senate. The State is outrageously apportioned in the interest of Republicans, and the Democrats can only capture the legislature when they have a large popular majority. The present house has 138 Republicans and 110 Democrats, but the Democrats carried the State on the general ticket in 1882, the vote being for governor: Waller, Democrat, 59,014; Bulkeley, Republican, 54,853; Rogers, Temperance, 1,034. Minnesota will elect a governor, other State officers, and a legislature this year. The State is reliably Republican, but the majority last year was only 22,157, which is below the average. The surface indications, taking these elections as a whole, are decidedly favorable to the Democrats, but it is too early to predict results with any degree of certainty.

WHEELER'S SKETCHES.

[Reminiscences and memories of North Carolina and eminent North Carolinians. By John H. Wheeler, author of the History of North Carolina, and member of the Historical Societies of North Carolina, Virginia and Georgia.]

Wheeler's History of North Carolina was published many years ago. The work could hardly be said to possess the dignity and stately flow of "history"—it was sketchy and statistical. But such was the minuteness and accuracy of detail, and perspicuous statement of biographical and historical facts, concerning men and things in North Carolina, that it found its place as a reference book in the library of every citizen whose calling required an intelligent knowledge of State annals.

The author, whose habits of industry and research were remarkable, seems to have had a quantity of matter "left over" from his history, and to have kept on accumulating up to the time of his death. His matter, embodied in a work under the above title, is now in course of publication, in monthly installments. The first part, for May, 1883, in a large quarto of 100 pages, is upon our table. It contains sketches embracing eleven counties, taken up in alphabetical order.

Beginning with Alamance, interesting reference is made to the "regulation" troubles which preceded the Revolution. Mr. Wheeler says:

"I copied from the Rolls office when in England, a despatch from the royal Governor of North Carolina, (Martin) dated Hillsboro, 30th August, 1772, never before published. The Governor describes his journey to the western part of the State, through the Moravian settlements, which he pronounces 'models of industry,' to Salisbury. He passed through the region of the late disturbances. He records: 'My eyes have been opened in regard to these commotions. These people have been provoked by the 'ken of their ignorance by mercenary, tricking attorneys, clerks and other little officers, who have practiced upon them every sort of rapine and extortion. The resentment of the Government was craftily worked up against the oppressed; protection denied to them when they expected to find it, and drove them to desperation, which ended in bloodshed. My indignation is not only disarmed, but converted into pity.'"

A notice of the life and character of Judge Ruffin, Sr., appears under the Alamance heading.

Under Anson further records are given of the troublous times and conspicuous actors of the "regulation," and some of the old families of the country written up.

Under Beaufort appear the names of Blount, Guthrie, Stanly, &c. For Buncombe, Gov. Swain, Gov. Vance and others. And so of the other eleven counties embodied in this installment of the work—satisfactory sketches of the lives of their eminent men and their families, those that are living as well as those passed away.

With no pretension to the stately style of history, Mr. Wheeler introduces his "heroes" without any formality; the reader feeling as easy in their company as in that of the judges and colonels and congressmen and 'squires of the present day. We chat with them in their every day clothes. We feel the truth that those men of former days were men of like passions with ourselves, and that when the odor of antiquity shall attach to the leading men of our own times they will appear just about as good as the old folks.

It is pleasant to have the halo of the past brushed away from around the prominent characters of history and find them presented as fellow men possessed of the same human nature as our own. Yet this impertinence is repugnant to a certain habit of mind which we are apt to cultivate. The shades of the departed grow bigger to the view as they recede in the mists of the past. An elegant writer says that Dean Milman was fiercely attacked by the anger of an alarmed orthodoxy, simply because he had spoken of Abraham as "an Eastern Sheikh." But, followed by Dean Stanly, in his lectures on the Jewish Church, the reading public has been educated up to a more just appreciation of the truth of history. "Investing the ancient annals of the chosen people with all the brightness of contemporary history," the reverend writer "made the world feel that Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and David and Isaiah were not shadowy emblems and dim abstractions, but living, breathing human beings of like passions and temptations with ourselves."

Without pretence of extraordinary literary excellence, the familiar and talky sketches of Mr. Wheeler have a similar effect upon the reader. His peculiar faculty of research and detail makes us acquainted with many little characteristics of our notable men, too trifling for the solemn pages of history, nevertheless just what we like to know, and what every true North Carolinian will enjoy.

—Merrick has concluded his argument, and the star route trial stands adjourned to to day. Probably not one man in 1,000 has any idea that the eminent thieves on trial will be convicted. The case will be given to the jury Wednesday or Thursday.

GREEN FRONT.

The Fate of the Graduate.

"I have come," remarked the graduate
As he stood with smiling face
Within the open doorway
On his features all the grace
Of a Belvidere Apollo,
And of baseball lore a trace
In the broken-jointed fingers—
That were won on second base—

"To say to the biggest editor—
He that Right against Wrong maintains,
And weapons of cold logic
On the ranks of Sophism trains—
That, to help his worthy paper,
I have loosed my seething brains
And evolved therefrom a paper
On the subject, 'Why it Rains'."

There was ne'er a larger funeral
Went from out the city's gate
Than that which followed slowly
The corpse of the graduate.
He was laid beneath the willows,
O'er his grave the daisies nod,
And the essay on the rainfall
Rests beside him in the sod.

Hints on Calling.

Do not stare around the room.
Do not take a dog or a small child.

Do not linger at the dinner-hour.
Do not lay aside the bonnet at a formal call.

Do not fidget with your cane, hat
or parasol.

Do not make a call of ceremony
on a wet day.

Do not turn your back to one seated near you.

Do not touch the pinao unless
invited to do so.

Do not make a display of consulting your watch.

Do not go to the room of an id-valid unless invited.

Do not remove the gloves when making a formal call.

Do not continue to stay longer
when conversation begins to lag.

Do not remain when you find the lady on the point of going out.

Do not make the first call if you are a new comer in the neighborhood.

Do not open or shut doors or windows or alter the arrangements of the room.

Do not enter a room without first knocking and receiving an invitation to come in.

Do not resume your seat after having arisen to go unless for important reason.

Do not walk around the room,
examining pictures, while waiting for the hostess.

Do not introduce politics, religion or weighty topics for conversation when making calls.

Do not prolong the call if the room is crowded. It is better to call another day or two afterwards.

Do not call upon a person in reduced circumstances with a display of wealth, dress and equipage.

Do not tattle. Do not speak ill of your neighbors. Do not carry gossip from one family to another.

Do not, if a gentleman, seat yourself upon the sofa beside the hostess or in near proximity, unless
invited to do so.

Do not, if a lady, call upon a gentleman, except officially or professionally, unless he may be a confirmed invalid.

Do not take a strange gentlemen with you, unless positively certain that his introduction will be recieved with favor.

A General Outlook.

[Ploughman.]

A long and uniformly hard winter having been succeeded by an equally uninterrupted term of rigorous spring weather, we are all entered upon summer in an unprepared state of the nervous system for encountering a precipitate visitation of heat. It seems, however, to have come upon us all at once;
in fact, dog days may fairly be said to have come in on the same day on which spring went out. The agriculturists of every section are at the present time the busiest part, as they are also the largest part, of the population all over the country. This is the opening time for their long programme of outdoor labor, to be persistently followed up till the white frosts coat the stubble of the harvest. Labor in the sun is the healthiest kind of labor, and vastly easier than that of trying to keep comfortable in the shade in a state of half idleness.
It is this kind of labor, too, that yields the green sum of products on which all human interests and activities depend. If we could take a wide survey of the entire field of agricultural industry now going forward all over the country, it would leave such an impression of the greatness of labor on the soil as all the other events of a lifetime could not efface.

The crops come out into the sunshine of summer with as full a promise as in any of the years which have constituted such a series of productive abundance. If there is a falling off in the promise of winter wheat, it is more than compensated in the increased acreage and present prospects of the spring sowing. If corn so far shrinks in one State in its promises, it makes up for it in another. Upon corn depends our hog crop, which Germany is doing her utmost to prohibit from entering her boundaries. Pig iron is low and falling, while the threatened strike of the iron-workers west of Pittsburgh has happily been averted by a timely concession of the great manufacturers. Trade is comparatively dull in the east in its general departments, though it is thoroughly sound and reliable; while in the west it manifests decided activity, owing chiefly to the fact that the farmers have held back their wheat, and hence are in prime purchasing condition. On the whole, the condition of the country is in a very high degree prosperous. If the present season yields agricultural products at all comparable with those of last year and its predecessors, it is hardly possible that the entire circle of the country's interests will be other than a grateful people can desire.

DOVE'S TRUE TURF OIL.

To Physicians, Farmers, Livery Stable Keepers, and Railroad Men and Heads of Families.

If any member of your household, from parent to the newest infant, are afflicted with Malignant Sores, Scrofulous or otherwise, Salt Rheum or scald Head, Burns, Wounds, no matter how severe or of how long standing, or from whatever cause produced, send and get a 25 cent bottle of TURF OIL, and we guarantee a cure or no pay. It cures before any other remedy begins to act. It is equally applicable to all the Ulcers or Sores, or inflamed surfaces of all domestic animals or anything that moves on the turf. One or two applications are all that is necessary to neutralize the action of the virus and heal the Ulcer. It arrests at once the progress of Erysipelas and removes the inflammation left in the track of the disease.

For sale at Glen's drug-store, Greensboro, N. C. Ask for the "Turf Oil Spelling Book and Reader," with certificates of cures.
