Osborn, on Saturday contributed $5,000 to the North Carolina Children's Home society as part of the fund being raised to finance the building of the babies' cottage. The proposed structure will be known as "Sunshine Cottage" and is a memorial to the first baby received in the home, "Sunshine," later named Mary Lee Hutchens. It is now certain that the cottage will be constructed, according to plans of the institution. A number of gifts have been received, including a $400 contribution from a devoted friend of "Sunshine" and a donation of $100 from C. C. Hudson.

A younger sister was bitten by the same animal, but took the pasteur treatment and no ill effect developed.

CONFERENCE

Washington, Dec. 30.—President Harding, in a letter today to Mr. Wallace, of the department of agriculture, asked that the department call a national conference at Washington to discuss practical ways of improvement for the severe agricultural depression which exists throughout the country. The conference was taken at the department of agriculture in response to the request, telegraphic invitations being dispatched immediately to a number of organizations and individuals. Secretary Wallace said tonight that the date of the conference has not yet been fixed, nor a complete invitation list made up. It is expected, however, that the conference will be held within a month, and that, in addition to farmers and their organizations, industries associated directly and indirectly with agriculture will be called in to assist in the efforts to improve conditions. "No one will pretend that the present conditions could have been avoided," Secretary Wallace said in his letter to the secretary, "but none of us is willing to agree that they ought not to become more correct and constructive steps taken as remedies for the hardships under which we are passing a portion of our productive citizenship is struggling. I am convinced that a conference may be made a most helpful agency in suggesting ways of improvement, particularly if brought into co-ordination with the help of a congressional committee committed to a related work."

Green claims to have killed the Indian in self-defense and is being held in jail. The Indian is said to have been a bad character.

Kinston, Dec. 29.—The LaGrange Bank and Trust company, in business 13 months, has been closed by a state bank examiner and unjust business placed in the hands of John G. Dawson, local attorney. Last week depositors were practically paid out. About $1,300 is yet unpaid, and there is $1,800 with which to pay it, it is understood. Outstanding notes will liquidate at par the stock of the bank. The notes are stated to be perfectly solvent.

Heavy Menhaden Catches.

Wilmington, Dec. 29.—More menhaden fish were caught off the North and South Carolina coasts during the season for these fish, which just recently ended, than in any other season in the history of the local fishing plants. It was announced this morning at the general offices of the Fisheries Products company here that the seven boats which they operated this season caught a total of 211,000 barrels of the oil and fertilizer producing fish, or more than 100,000 barrels more than was ever caught here before in a single season.

Poe Talks to Farmers.

Winston-Salem, Dec. 29.—Editor Clarence Poe, of the Progressive Farmer, addressed a number of Forsyth farmers here today on "Co-operative Marketing." He filled an appointment made for James G. Organization of the county association was deferred.

NEW COMPANY HERE.

A. K. Moore Realty Company Formed With Capital of $200,000. Organization of a new concern known as the A. K. Moore Realty company was announced here Thursday when the certificate of incorporation was filed in the office of Clerk of Court Gant. The company begins business with authorized capital stock of $200,000, of which $44,500 has been paid in by A. K. Moore, M. W. Gant and J. H. Lassiter.

At the same time it was announced that the new concern had purchased from the Guilford Insurance and Realty company all the real estate holdings of the latter. The chief realty thus purchased is Westwood, which is generally recognized as an unusually successful Greensboro development. It is understood that the purchase price was approximately $125,000. Westwood will be developed in accordance with an even more ambitious program than in the past, it is expected. "Definite announcement concerning those plans cannot now be made, however," A. K. Moore, who so successfully planned and executed the plans for the development of Westwood in past months, will be in active direction of the new company. Mr. Moore is considered one of the leading real estate men in this section and his friends predict that he will continue to attain a large degree of success. For a number of years Mr. Moore has also served with marked ability as secretary-treasurer of the Home Building and Loan association. It is understood that he will continue to hold that important position. O. L. Grubbs, president of the Guilford Insurance and Realty company, states that there will be no change in the management of the company.

Mr. Houser has many friends in Greensboro who regret that he is leaving the city.

WILLIAM LILES IS HELD UPON CHARGE OF ARSON.

Probable cause was the finding of Judge D. H. Collins in Municipal court Friday morning in the case against William Liles, negro, charged with arson. The warrant, which was served at the instigation of the state insurance department, alleges that Liles burned his own house. The defendant's home was destroyed by fire some weeks ago and when information regarding the insurance carried on the house was obtained by the department Deputy Commissioner W. A. Scott was sent to this city for an investigation. Liles will be given a hearing in Superior court. Bond was fixed at $500.

APARTMENT BUILDING IS FORMALLY OPENED.

Formal opening of Dr. J. W. Long's new apartment building, a short distance south of the Wesley Long hospital, on North Elm street was witnessed by many interested visitors Saturday afternoon and evening. It was a most enjoyable house-warming. Much admiring comment regarding the beauty and convenience of the modern four apartment establishment was heard. There also was much praise of the furniture display provided in one of the downstairs apartments by the Morrison-Neese Furniture company of this city.

NEWS OF THE NATION

Raleigh Man Shot. Richmond, Va., Dec. 29.—Joe Woodson, 16 year old white youth was held today for a hearing January 19 on the charge of shooting at a southbound Seaboard Air Line train with a rifle while it was passing through South Richmond yesterday, and injuring J. A. Lamprey, a flagman, of Raleigh, N. C. The bullet passed through a window striking Lamprey in the forehead. Lamprey was sent home last night after receiving treatment at Memorial hospital here. Although the bullet apparently penetrated the skull, it did not pierce the brain. The boy says he fired merely to break the window and did not expect to hit any one.

Marshall Is Suicide. Miami, Fla., Dec. 29.—An autopsy on the body of Adam W. Oberlin, deputy United States marshal, who disappeared November 15 and whose corpse was found in the Everglades 20 miles from here yesterday, developed the fact today that Oberlin had shot himself through the mouth. Persons in the big crowd which formed about the Debs home were bedecked with red hats carrying brands of red fire and large MAIL IS FREED OF ALL CHARGES BUT ONE. Waukegan, Ills., Dec. 29.—Gov. Len Small today was freed of every charge against him except that of conspiring with Lieutenant Governor Fred E. Sterling and Vernon Curtis to defraud the state of $2,000,000, during Mr. Sterling's term as state treasurer.

All charges of embezzlement during his own term as state treasurer were stricken from the record, partly by Judge Claire A. Edwards, and partly by the state, and the court also quashed a charge of operating a confidence game. A missing word, the position of a name, three errors in drawing indictments, and the shuffling of a pile of papers accounted for the victories by the governor today.

"BREATH INSPECTOR" IS TO BE APPOINTED SOON. Youngstown, Ohio, Dec. 30.—Notive of a "breath inspector" to be appointed for the police force, inserted in the police roll call here yesterday as a joke, was hailed as a good idea by Mayor-elect George L. Oles, who said today that he would put it into force when he assumes office January 1.

The police said that the "breath inspector" would sniff at all policemen every four hours, and that scents of cloves, wintergreen or peppermint would put a black mark on the record of the offending officer.

PENROSE DEAD.

Finance Committee Chairman Is Victim of Heart Failure. Washington, Jan. 1.—High officials and leaders of both parties joined today in expressions of regret over the death of Senator Boies Penrose, of Pennsylvania, for a quarter of a century an outstanding figure in Republican councils, who died here just before midnight from an attack of heart failure.

Both branches of Congress, upon reconvening next Tuesday, will adjourn for the day out of respect to the late senator, but will forgo other customary ceremonies. A request of Senator Penrose, that his funeral should be private and that no congressional committees should be appointed, was communicated today to Vice-President Coolidge and Speaker Gillett and probably will be followed.

Senator Penrose's body was taken this morning to his home at Philadelphia, accompanied by his brother, Dr. Charles B. Penrose, and the senator's secretary. Funeral arrangements are to be made at Philadelphia.

A special meeting of the senate finance committee is to be held tomorrow to determine measures for honoring Senator Penrose, who had been its chairman for several years, and an influential member of the committee for a generation. The Pennsylvania delegation in Congress also is to meet for appropriate action. Capitol flags will fly at half-mast for 30 days, and the late senator's seat on the front row of the senate chamber will be draped in mourning. The impress of Senator Penrose's great force of character on legislative and political events was voiced generally in statements today by his colleagues, including leaders of both Captures Smallest Still.

Lenoir, Dec. 30.—Bob Kent, the newly appointed prohibition enforcement agent, brought in the smallest still ever seen in Caldwell county yesterday. The still was made from a gallon syrup can, a old bucket, a doubling keg was with it, and this was made from a quart tomato can. The connecting pipes were made from rods. The still had been in operation and the doubling keg was about half full of doublings, Mr. Kent said, when it found it.

Bryant Harrison yesterday staged Wake county's largest sale of captured whiskey stills, 2,889 pounds of virgin copper being bought by the Raleigh Junk company, for $256.50, the price being a little less than nine cents a pound. CHAIRMAN NAMED.

Chas. A. Hines Will Direct Near East Relief in This County.

Charles A. Hines, well known attorney of Greensboro, has been appointed county chairman for the near east relief in Guilford county by Col. George H. Bellamy, state chairman, according to advices received from Raleigh.

Mr. Hines will have charge of the work of raising $15,000 in Guilford county this year to save the lives of 250 Armenian orphans whose parents were murdered because they refused to renounce Christ and become Mohammedans.

J. Norman Walls, treasurer of the Odell Hardware company, has been chairman of Guilford county for the past two years and on both occasions succeeded in raising more than his quota. Business pressure and local church work caused his resignation this year. Mr. Hines will immediately start to work effecting his county organization. The annual drive of the Near East Relief will take place in February of this year.

This organization is feeding, clothing and educating 110,000 orphans of Armenian martyrs in the Bible lands. It is also feeding 550,000 refugees daily at its soup kitchens, and trying to enable the people to become self-supporting since the recent evacuation of that unfortunate country by the Turks.

North Carolina is supporting five separate orphanages containing 3,334 children at Trebizond, a Black sea port. These children are fed, clothed and educated on $5 per month each, money given by North Carolinians.

TERRIBLE THINGS ARE FORETOLD FOR 1926

London, Dec. 30.—The year 1926 is destined to shake the world to its foundation, both physically and politically. It is to be a succession of plagues, famine, floods, shipwrecks, rioting and revolution. So says the British Journal of Astrology, which has drawn the horoscope for that year, when the planets Mars and Mercury will be in conjunction.

Six years later, the great armageddon is to take place. It will be a final conflict between Mohammedanism, allied with bolshevism, against the United Anglo-Saxon world. It will end in a "universal peace" in 1932, but "there will be so few of us left and we all shall be so tired that peace will come anyhow," the horoscope says.

FORMER CASHIER WILL BE TRIED IN KINSTON.

Kinston, Dec. 30.—Samuel Abbott, who was cashier of the Farmers' Bank and Trust company at LaGrange until that institution was closed some months ago, indicted here for alleged irregularities, will probably be tried at a spring term of Superior court. Abbott is under $1,000 bail. Abbott has been involved in a factional fight of stockholders of a new bank at LaGrange. His friends, including many influential persons, declare he is innocent of misappropriation. The affairs of the new bank are involved in litigation to come before Judge Oliver Allen in chambers here shortly, including two injunctions.

PLANS FOR WILSON FOUNDATION FUND

Raleigh, Dec. 30.—In common with the other states of the union, North Carolina, during the week beginning January 16, 1922, will be asked to contribute its quota of $35,000 toward the Woodrow Wilson foundation fund, to be used as a memorial fund to the war President and the perpetuation of the Wilson ideals. The goal of the foundation executive committee is one million dollars.

Mrs. Josephus Daniels has accepted the chairmanship of the state committee and will shortly announce the complete organization for each county in the state. Offices for the committee will be opened in Raleigh, and the work will be directed from the city, with the assistance of many prominent men and women who have pledged their co-operation.

A. W. McLean, originally designated as chairman for North Carolina finds that he will be unable to serve owing to the pressure of his duties as a member of the war finance corporation. He was in Raleigh recently to confer with friends of Mr. Wilson here, and induced Mrs. Daniels to undertake the work in the state. Details of the organization are in process of consummation, and will be announced before the end of the month.

The Woodrow Wilson foundation will be patterned somewhat after the Nobel foundation of Sweden. The income from the foundation fund will be awarded by a nationally constituted committee to the individual or group that has rendered within a specified period either of four ways:

Meritorious service to democracy.
Meritorious service to public welfare.

Meritorious service to liberal thought, or
Meritorious service to peace through justice.

EXPRESS CHARGES ARE NOW BEING LOWERED.

Express shipments are to cost 5 per cent less now and in the future than for the past several years, is the announcement made in a letter from George C. Taylor, president of the American Railway Express company.

Mr. Taylor writes that the revenue act of 1921 eliminates the war tax of 1 cent on every 20 cents and fractions thereof in transportation charges on express shipments, and that this tax amounted to $17,502,918 during 1920; that the average transportation charge for each express shipment was approximately $1.50, so that the average war tax on each express shipment was 8 cents. The reduction virtually amounts to a decrease in rates to a fraction over 5 per cent.

The cutting out of this war tax on express shipments will relieve the Southeastern and the American Railway Express companies of an immense amount of labor, which has been involved in calculating amount of war tax due on each shipment, entering same on way bills and collection of the tax, not to mention the large expense of checking and account work entailed.

Elaborate plans are being developed for the annual meeting of the $100,000 club of the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance company to be held in Miami, Fla., on January 4, 5 and 6. The sessions will be held in the Royal Palm hotel.

Last night a number of the leading officials and agents of the company left Greensboro on special cars. The Jefferson special cars will be boarded at Jacksonville by agents from West Virginia and the eastern sections of the Carolinas.

Delegates from Greensboro include Julian Price, president of the company; J. E. Latham, vice-president; Chas. W. Gold, treasurer, Mrs. Gold and their daughter, Miss Margaret; A. L. Brooks, general counsel; W. T. O'Donohue, secretary; H. P. Leak, assistant secretary; Auditor and Mrs. E. P. Ross, and L. M. Johnson, assistant treasurer.

More than 200 Jefferson Standard men will attend the meeting, it is expected. The club is composed of agents whose insurance sales for the year total not less than $100,000. The past year has been a very successful one with this great company, which has its home offices in Greensboro.

POSTMASTER COOKE

VOICES APPRECIATION.

The following statement is given out by Postmaster A. Wayland Cooke:

To the Officers, Clerks, Carriers and Employees of the Greensboro Post-office:

I wish to thank you one and all for the very efficient manner in which you have handled the business of the office during this holiday season. Through your co-operation and effort and high ideals we have a splendid organization. Your teamwork was admirable and the spirit of the organization was of the highest order. After all it is a sense of duty well performed that brings us the greatest happiness.

I have been with you almost six years. So quickly have they past that I can scarcely realize that this is the last holiday that I shall be with you. I shall carry with me all through life many pleasant memories of my association with you gentlemen and treasure always the many manifestations of friendship, courtesy and loyalty on your part. I thank you very greatly and appreciate most highly your splendid accomplishment.

MAN ONLY TO BLAME.

WOMAN BISHOP SAYS.

Washington, Dec. 30.—Responsibility for women's immodesty in dress has been placed squarely on man's cupid by Bishop Alma White, head of the Pillar of Fire denomination.

She told a Brooklyn congregation that man really "was the culprit behind the scene" and that all the low-necked and sleeveless gowns, the short skirts and gauzy stockings were outgrowths of his schemes for seduction.

For selfish and mercenary purposes, she declared, man had forced woman out half clad before the public gaze to become the object of unkind remarks and criticisms.

LOVE FEAST.

Spiritual Rejoicing Marks Service at West Market Street Church.

At West Market Street Methodist church yesterday morning an old-fashioned "Love Feast" was held, signaling the beginning of the new year. The pastor, Rev. J. H. Barnhardt, D. D., spoke briefly, referring to the heavenly benediction which had been placed upon the work during the past year and voicing the confident expectation of greater attainments in the bright new year.

Many members of the great congregation then testified to the blessings accorded from above during the year which has just closed and told of their determination to press forward to the realization of increasingly great spiritual riches. The speakers included Charles H. Ireland, chairman of the board of stewards; B. W. Rainey, chairman of the finance committee; Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Tysler, Frank C. Boyles, Dr. J. H. Wheeler, Dr. J. H. Boyles, Miss Flossie Byrd, M. H. Pinnix and Mrs. Blanche Carr Sterne.

Last night Dr. Barnhardt preached on the text, "And God crowned the year with goodness." He took occasion to recall some of the major accomplishments of 1921 and to outline briefly some plans for larger service now being developed, plans which should be carried forward to fruition in 1922.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS TO POOR OF COMMUNITY.

Gifts donated to charitable organizations for distribution among the poor people of the city and county during the 1921 Christmas season were of greater magnitude than ever before, according to Mrs. Blanche Carr Sterne, county superintendent of public welfare. The gifts included much food, clothing and money. Mrs. Sterne reports, adding that "a great many blankets were given us, and coal and wood. We were able to distribute more than 150 baskets and between 12 and 15 tons of coal. Generous aid came from the city and county and even from communities beyond Guilford. For all this we are immensely grateful. I am sure Christmas has been made much happier by the generosity of these persons."

Adjutant Henderson and his assistants of the Salvation army here also dispensed much Christmas cheer among the poor.

Takes His Own Life.

Smithfield, Dec. 30.—News spread over the county this week that Arthur Godwin, who lived in the western part of Cleveland township, near Mount Zion church had committed suicide. He was a little above 50 years old and had been in poor health for a year or more. His ill health seemed to affect his mind to some extent. In his room about 8 o'clock Monday morning the fatal step was taken when he killed himself with a breech-loading shot gun. He is survived by his wife and nine children.

Held For Larceny.

Lyman Bradford, Herman Williams and Allen Jones, negroes, have been ordered held for Superior court under bond of $1,000. Municipal court the negroes were given a hearing in answer to charges of breaking and entering and larceny. They were arrested some days ago in connection with the robbery of Allred's store, on East Market street.

ODELL BANQUET.

President Ireland Speaks in Optimistic Vein Regarding Business.

The New Year banquet of the Odell companies on Friday evening in the dining room of the Odell Hardware company was a most enjoyable occasion. Approximately 100 persons were present, the diners including the officers and employees of the Odell Hardware company, the officers and employees of Odell's, Inc., and a number from the Odell Mill Supply company, also the traveling salesmen.

At the conclusion of the dinner R. H. Brooks, vice-president, presented Charles H. Ireland, president of the Odell Hardware company and Odell's, Inc., who made an unusually interesting talk. Mr. Ireland told of many of his experiences in Europe last summer, making pointed observations concerning the prosperity of this country and the depression existing in the old countries.

Entering the realm of prophecy, President Ireland declared that business will be handled upon a sane basis in 1922. There will be no booms, he said, but he expects at least two rises and two recessions. Business conducted by men of wisdom will survive, the chief executive of the Odell companies believes. At the same time work and sacrifice will prove absolutely essential qualities.

Musical selections by the Premier quartet afforded much pleasure. The members of the quartet are Dr. J. C. Waddy, J. H. Dillard, G. A. Nelson, Albert Foster, Francis Thomas and J. C. Crump.

The Odell establishment made its initial bow in the business world on January 1, 1873.

DEBS NOW FREE.

Socialist Leader's Statement and Mr. Daugherty's Are in Conflict.

Washington, Dec. 20.—Eugene V. Debs, the socialist leader, whose ten-year prison sentence for violation of the espionage act was commuted on Christmas day, came here today direct from the Atlanta federal penitentiary and called upon President Harding and Attorney General Daugherty.

Mr. Daugherty said that Debs came of his own "volition" while Debs declared his visit to Washington was at the "request" of the attorney general and that he was given a railroad ticket to the capital by the warden of the penitentiary without choice of destination, although he had planned to go immediately to his home at Terra Haute, Indiana.

After his conference with Debs the attorney general declared in a statement there were no unusual conditions attached to the commutation of the socialist leader's sentence, that no advice was offered to Debs nor any requested, and that he hoped Debs would direct his talents to a useful purpose.

No statement was made at the White House after the conference there, but upon reaching his hotel Mr. Debs broke the silence he had maintained from the moment of quitting the penitentiary and declared he would devote his time to the freedom of all prisoners. He added that he had discussed his opinions with President Harding in order that there might be no misunderstanding as to his principles and ideas.

New Motor Company.

The certificate of incorporation of a new High Point business enterprise, the Kephart Motor company, has been filed in the office of Mason W. Gant, clerk of Guilford Superior court. The concern proposes to engage in the automobile business with an authorized capital stock of $100,000. Charles M. Kephart, Louise S. Kephart and Dr. Dred Peacock are the incorporators.

Find Radium in Ashes.

Newton, Kans., Dec. 30.—Nearly $2,000 worth of radium, or about one-third of a quantity from Axtel hospital here, has been recovered from 350 pounds of ashes by eastern chemists. It was announced here. The radium disappeared about two months ago and investigation prompted the theory that it had found its way to the furnace in bandages removed from patients.

American Exports Decline.

Washington, Dec. 30.—American exports to Europe declined $43,000,000 in November as compared with the previous month, according to an official summary of foreign trade issued here by the department of commerce. Imports from Europe increased in the same period about $3,500,000.

BANK DIVIDEND.

Atlantic Bank & Trust Company Declares Dividend of Four Per Cent.

Dividend of four per cent upon its capital stock of $1,000,000 for the year 1921 has been declared by the Atlantic Bank & Trust company, according to announcement by J. W. Simpson, vice-president and cashier. The dividends are payable on Monday, January 2, official notices to that effect having been sent to all stockholders.

This is the first dividend declared by the bank since its doors were opened for business in April, 1920. Ability of the institution to pay a four per cent dividend within less than two years since it began business is heralded as convincing evidence of the successful policies which characterize the activities of this bank.

Besides the dividend a substantial amount has been placed in the undivided profits. Referring to the matter, Vice President and Cashier Simpson pointed out that it had been "a good year for the bank. In many respects it has been a hard year for banks, but we have been able to make progress and the directors, after full discussion, felt justified in declaring the dividend. The directors also have added considerably to the undivided profits."

Julius W. Cone is president of this bank; William Simpson and J. E. Latham, vice-presidents; J. W. Simpson, vice-president and cashier; C. E. Fleming and J. M. Wallace, assistant cashiers.

A BIG HEART STILLED.

Few North Carolinians have been accorded so large a measure of popular affection as former Governor Bickett, whose death at his home in Raleigh last week saddened the entire commonwealth. It is also true that few men have loved North Carolina with the degree of affection which he lavished upon his state.

Back of all his constructive measures was that constant affection for North Carolina. It manifested itself (unostentatiously even as the great elements in his life were lacking in ostentation) in his achievements in the sphere of promoting better conditions in agriculture; it was discernible in his work in behalf of honest taxation; it made itself felt in the extension of the public school system, in service to the Democratic party, in improving the condition of the state's unfortunate and in scores of other accomplishments which may properly be credited largely to the state's war governor.

His was a very real eloquence, a fact which may be attributed, in part at least, to the depth of his emotions. He had a very definite conception of his duties and privileges as the chief executive of a great state and he pursued definite policies throughout his administration. While he possessed great powers of vision, Governor Bickett always had at hand practical measures for translating his ideals into accomplishments, as tangibly evidenced by the success he attained in getting desired legislation. This fact also was clearly demonstrated in his handling of industrial disputes. At Charlotte, at High Point and other places where there was great industrial strife he rendered conspicuously able service in bringing the warring elements together.

It was as war governor that Mr. Bickett's achievements were most noteworthy. How effectively he aroused the people to a realizing sense of the epochal character of the great issues involved should be a matter of profound gratification to his fellowmen everywhere. The manner in which he turned the tide of sentiment among young men in the mountain country in regard to the fight for world democracy challenged the admiration of patriots in every North Carolina county.

Posterity alone can properly appraise the life and works of this good man. But we know that he was the soul of honor. We know that he possessed courage of the finest type. We know that he had great breadth of vision and commonsense which showed him the way through many an exceedingly difficult situation. And, above all those things, we are conscious of the fact that Thomas Walter Bickett's heart was filled with love—love for his Maker, love for his family, love for his friends, love for his state and all of its great resources. The record of his patriotic service is written on the pages of history of the state and the nation, but the record of his warm-hearted devotion to his people is written in lustrous indelible characters upon the hearts of the men, women and children of North Carolina who are now so greatly distressed because of his passing.

THE IRISH SITUATION.

Michael Collins is a figure in the Irish situation hitherto not especially well known to casual observers, but it may presently develop that Michael Collins is a tremendously important factor. It may even transpire that his influence will be the deciding factor in bringing about real peace between Ireland and England. Numbered among our acquaintances have been quite a few Mikes and it is impossible to recall one who was not a capable delegate. From Michael Angelo, the sculptor, to Mike Caffey, the jailer and terror-to-blockaders deputy sheriff, they have been fine exponents of the art of getting along.

It was Michael Collins who in the daily stream shortly before Christmas submitted a motion to adjourn further debate on the Irish treaty until January 3. It was on an amendment that the vote was taken; the amendment, presented and supported by opponents of the treaty, having called for continuance of sittings until definite action on the treaty could be taken. Mr. Collins and his associates in favor of ratification of the treaty won that fight, the amendment having been defeated by a vote of 77 to 44. The Associated Press correspondent in Dublin is authority for the statement that "there is no doubt in the minds of those who have been following the debates fairly that this vote approximates the sentiment for and against the treaty."

Observers, mindful of the ups and downs (mainly downs) which have characterized efforts to bring about peace between the two countries, naturally are somewhat hesitant as to making predictions concerning the outcome of the British-Irish negotiations. However, the present situation appears to afford the basis for substantial hope that a settlement of the trying issues is near at hand. There seems little doubt that a majority of the Irish people heartily desire peace and at least a majority would probably be willing to make peace upon the basis of the terms now available. If Eamonn DeValera has his way the negotiations will hardly be successful, but counsels other than those of the nominal Irish chief may yet prevail.

Certainly it is encouraging to note that the Irish delegates have a season for reflection without haste before voting upon the treaty. Michael Collins and others of moderate views may succeed in ratifying the treaty. From this distance it appears to be a very good treaty, one under which Ireland can enjoy real independence in so far as that is possible without Ireland becoming completely dissociated from Great Britain. Of course some professional politicians will not be satisfied, but the interests of the p. p. and the mass of people often are not identical. It should also be borne in mind that under the pact Ireland would doubtless obtain greater concessions than would be obtainable through force. From a military standpoint there can be no question as to which side is in ascendancy.

COLONEL WATTERSON.

The death of Col. Henry Watterson marks the passing of a type which unquestionably left a strong imprint upon American life. He was one of the few surviving members of the old school of American journalism, one of the most engaging exponents of that school. The Louisville editor favored and practiced the direct style of treating questions under discussion. A man of simple tastes and undoubted culture, he compressed into his writing a wealth of information and views in comparatively few words. At the same time his literary style was distinctly his own. No one could successfully contend that he was an imitator or even a disciple of any other writer. Perhaps that was one of Watterson's chief charms. He would have succeeded in a number of other spheres, but those of the fourth estate feel that it was fortunate for the newspaper profession that he chose it. He did much to advance the profession.

However, it was not merely in his newspaper work that Colonel Watterson contributed in rich measure to helpful development in this country. He impressed his acquaintances (seen and unseen) with the fact that in all his activities there was real strength of character, together with an exceptionally large degree of understanding of human nature. His life might accurately be described as a finished poem, one whose radiance naturally enveloped numberless thousands who, while they could not always see the author, could still feel a strong bond of kinship with him, could fancy that they heard his heartbeats and could clearly visualize his aspirations, at the same time catching a cheerless measure of his inspiration. And the poetic figure clings to the picture even in his death. "Marse Henry" was conscious almost to the end, and surely no one could say that he was unhappy.

COMMUNITY ORGANIZATION.

The times may be hard but one of the best signs of the brightening of the lot of the farmer, his wife and his children is the fact that there is no let up in the many efforts in the way of community organization to make the rural communities more attractive places in which to live. With the school house as a center, the community has broadened as it has grown together.

The farmers find that it furthers their interests in a business way in addition to drawing them together socially, to get together often. The farmers' wives find that meetings of various sources make the life of the rural woman a far more pleasant one, and the young folks derive great benefit from practically every situation that calls them together.

The greatest drawback to rural life heretofore has been the isolation, the loneliness, especially of the women and children. Modern methods, in conjunction with modern schools, with the school serving for far more than just a cog in the educational system, are changing all that and will change it more and more.

Was Very Weak

"After the birth of my baby I had a back-set," writes Mrs. Mattie Crosswhite, of Glade Spring, Va. "I was very ill; thought I was going to die. I was so weak I couldn't raise my head to get a drink of water. I took . . . medicine, yet I didn't get any better. I was completely and very weak, getting worse and worse. I sent for Dr. Cardui."

"I found after one bottle of Cardui I was improving," adds Mrs. Crosswhite. "Six bottles of Cardui and . . . I was cured, yes, I can say they were a God-send to me. I believe I would have died, had it not been for Cardui." Cardui has been found beneficial in many thousands of other cases of womanly troubles. If you feel the need of a good, strengthening tonic, why not try Cardui? It will be just what you need."

AT YULETIDE.

Friends all unchanged as seasons fade and fly;
Love not estranged by stretch of alien sky;
Truth still secure through every variant mood,
And surer still when rises jargon rude
To mark the hour—I thank Thee, Gracious God,
As down the years my eager feet have trod
Vistas have ever widened, and heartening me
Some souls have kept their faith unflinching.

I send this line as dawn the cycle rare
The watching shepherds saw the glowing star
Above the manger at their journey's end;
May Christmas find your faith serene, and fair
The skies that hold your dreams; and through the far
Onsweeping years be Christ your guiding friend.

The moon is hid, the night is still;
The Christmas bells from hill
To hill
Answer each other in the mist.
—ALFRED TENNYSON.

This is the month, and this the happy morn,
Wherein the Son of Heaven's eternal King,
Of wedded maid and virgin mother born,
Our great redemption from above did bring.
For so the holy sages once did sing,
That he our deadly forfeit should release,
And with his Father work us a perpetual peace.
—JOHN MILTON.

At Christmas play, and make good cheer,
For Christmas comes but once a year.
—TUSSEY.

Like circles widening round
Upon a clear, blue river,
Orb after orb, the wondrous sound
Is echoed on forever;
Glory to God on high, on earth be peace,
And love to men of love,—salvation and release.
—KEBLE.

A CHRISTMAS LYRIC.

The stars of night are all a-gleam,
And all around us as a dream
Are lucent seas of light;
Our thoughts are far in Galilee,
Where once again we watching see
The shepherds in the night.

The white clad flocks drowse on the hill,
The star of hope is burning still,
And gloriously again
The echoes of the heart prolong
The angel melody of song,
"Peace, good-will to men."

The greening glamour of the wall
Of mistletoe, and holly tall,
The Yule fire's flashing light,
Dear Childhood's happy, careless gleam,
The festive ball, the jollity,
Proclaim the Christmas night.

Oh, night of nights for all the year,
When gathering hearts the hearthstone cheer,
The full-orbed family,
From dainty, dimpled darling queen
To him with staff who looks serene,
Into the western sea.
—W. T. WHITSETT.

DO YOU wish to know how thousands and thousands of women have gone thru motherhood without knowing some of the pains and discomforts incident to childbirth? Listen to this:

Motherhood creates almost a new state of being for a woman.

As a result, new nerves, those heretofore restful and quiescent, spring into activity, they cry out, they tingle, they burn in their unrest.

The network of nerves across the abdomen, the loins, the back and other parts now become super-sensitive. All these nerves are being called on to perform unusual duties.

These nerves must be pacified and comforted; must be put in condition for the crisis that is pending.

If these nerves are not soothed and quieted, they may set up aggravated nerve tension, increasing in severity from month to month, some times even culminating in a nervous paralysis of the back and limbs. This leaves the mother-to-be in a condition where she is unable, fully, to meet the test when the climax of maternity arrives.

FORMER GOVERNOR BICKETT RESTS BENEATH A MOUNTAIN OF ROSES

Raleigh News and Observer.

Beneath a mountain of red roses, flowers that he loved, with his dead arms enwrapping a great cluster of them, under a great white oak tree through which December winds wall ceaselessly, Thomas Walter Bickett, North Carolina's war governor, rests from mortal service to the state in the little cemetery at Louisburg beside his two children who died in infancy.

Hands that loved him brought him to the place where he sleeps and laid him down to rest; eyes that loved him looked through a mist of tears as the casket was lowered into the earth, covered over, hidden altogether with flowers that went down into the grave with him. Voices that loved him, choked and breaking with grief, were lifted up in the old songs that he loved as the piling clay hid the sight of him forever.

Is Home At Last.

The war governor is home at last, among scenes where life ran richest for him, among the people who were nearer to his great heart than any beside. The state paid its solemn tribute when thousands of its men and women and children filed past his bier under the rotunda of the capitol where he lay in state yesterday morning. Louisburg and Franklin county mourned the death of Mr. Bickett, who though gone from them for twelve eventful years, was their own alway.

Brief as he himself would have wished it, simple as he himself would have made it, the two funeral services, the first at Christ church, where he was a communicant, and the other at the graveside with thousands of his own people gathered around, scarcely one among them able to keep back the tears that welled up, were deeply impressive. No word of eulogy was needed. It was written with tears upon the faces of all they who stood by and looked upon the laying away of the dead friend of all things that drew the breadth of life.

Friends From Everywhere.

From every quarter of the state, from among all of its people, sorrowful travelers converged upon the capitol yesterday morning, long before the hour when the war governor's body was brought to lie in state for a brief hour before the funeral service at Christ church. When the doors of the capitol were thrown open at 9.45, a human tide flowed past in an unbroken stream for an hour and a half, until the doors were shut again, and the cortege removed to the church. Outside thousands stood with bared heads in silent tribute.

Almost among the first to cross the threshold to the rotunda where the war governor lay were an old negro man and his son from Moore county. Not long before he retired from office, the governor had pardoned the old man's son, and together they came yesterday morning, with wet faces, to look for the last time upon the face of the man who had freed the son. Behind them came hundreds, many among them those who had been befriended by him who lay there still in death, with his arms about a great mass of red roses.

Body Lies in State.

Heavy emblems of mourning draped the walls of the rotunda. Piled high against the casket, and completely hiding it save for the cover through which the war governor could be seen, were scores of floral gifts, some of them simple, many of them magnificent in their splendor. At either end of the casket, standing at parade rest, were members of the headquarters company of the First regiment of the North Carolina national guard, with fixed bayonets.

The throng flowed past in single file, each pausing for a moment to gaze upon the features of the war governor. He seemed to be but asleep, with a faint tinge of his well loved smile about his lips. It was difficult to think even that he was dead, that the face was cold, that the eyes would never open again. People were numb with grief shocked to the point where not even sight of him dead could quite convey the terrible reality of death.

Governor Cooper Here.

They came in endless stream. Among them Governor Robert A. Cooper, of South Carolina, devoted friend. There were boyhood friends, Roland F. Beasley, of Monroe, former commissioner of public welfare; Dr. E. W. Sikes, president of Coker college; there also was Aunt Nancy, and her two children, she a servant for a generation in the governor's household, and her children reared to love and to serve her master and her mistress. They lingered tearfully beside the bier. Nearby, Roache, messenger in the governor's office during the Bickett administration, his face wet with tears.

At 11.30 o'clock the cortege was removed to Christ church, at the northeast corner of Capitol square. The funeral party entered at the north door, and the casket was laid before the chancel. The family of the war governor, bowed low with grief, followed the body into the church, and after them came the honorary pallbearers to sections of seats reserved for them.

Funeral Service Simple.

"I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me though he were dead, yet shall he live."

The solemn words of the opening of the Episcopal service rang through the hushed stillness of the church. From the muffled tones of the organ, the choir caught up the funeral hymn as the body was borne into the church. The massed throng stood silently throughout the hymn, save for here and there sobs among them that could not be subdued.

The church was filled to the doors and without, in the Capitol square in the streets adjacent, stood thousands with bared heads throughout the service. In the west balcony of the church were grouped scores of weeping friends that the governor had made among the negroes of the state. They were there in their rough working clothes, some of them, and others in immaculate dress. A common sorrow had drawn all classes of them together.

The simple funeral service of the Episcopal church was read by the rector, Rev. Milton A. Barber, and by the Rt. Rev. Joseph Blount Chesire, D. D., bishop of the diocese of North Carolina. The organ pealed forth again, and the congregation took up the hymn. The casket was lifted up and carried out to the waiting hearse by the south door, and the last journey of the war governor was begun. Following in the train were scores of automobiles, bearing friends and relatives.

Louisburg in Mourning.

In Louisburg, the whole population laid by its routine of life and waited for the coming of the war governor. In the public square, a great mass of crepe was suspended, and over the building where still the name of the governor's old law firm "Bickett, White and Malone" shines on the window, heavy bands of mourning were draped. Along the streets hundreds of automobiles waited as the cortege approached, to fall in with the sorrowful procession, and accompany the governor to his last resting place.

A mile beyond the town is the little cemetery where had been digged the grave. The serried ranks of grave stones are marshalled under great, wide-spreading white oaks, gaunt and funeral, leafless and cold in the pale winter sunshine. The wind mourned through their branches. The grave had been lined with long leaf pine needles, insignia of the state that he loved so well, and the mound of earth that was thrown out was hidden under a mass of pine.

His Neighbors There.

Here were assembled hundreds from the country round about. Humble men and women, others of higher estate, but all bowed low under the common burden of grief. Here were massed more flowers to be added to the two tons of such tributes that had been sent ahead of the funeral party in trucks. There were the governor's own people, and the people of his stricken wife, who rode sadly behind him into the cemetery of White Oaks.

Brief prayers were said at the graveside. The cover to the casket was lifted for a moment for relatives who could not let him go without another look upon his face. Then the body of the war governor was lowered tenderly into the earth, and covered over. Red roses that he loved, such roses as he loved to tell his friends he was going to tend in profusion at his new home, were taken from the masses of flowers and laid over the grave, until it was hidden.

But there yet remained, a vast profusion of flowers to be scattered over the graves around about. The little graves of his two children who died in infancy were covered; the tombs of Mrs. Bickett's mother and father were hidden away in flowers, and other graves near by were covered up. Such an expression of love has rarely been witnessed in North Carolina.

From the residence to the capitol and from the capitol to the church yesterday morning, the war governor's casket was borne by W. B. Drake, Jr., K. P. Hill, William Bailey, Ben Dixon MacNeill, John Davis, Murray Allen, Dr. W. S. Rankin, and Gilbert Crabtree. When the journey home was begun, the casket was given into the hands of his former neighbors, D. F. McKinnis, E. H. Malone, R. B. White, W. H. Yarborough, P. A. Reavis, Joe Mumford, M. S. Clifton and J. R. Collier.

Honorary pallbearers, who accompanied the remains from the capitol to the grave at Louisburg, were State Auditor Baxter Durham, State Superintendent of Public Instruction E. C. Brooks, Attorney General James S. Manning, Chief Justice Walter Clark, Justice Hoke, Justice Walker, Justice Stacy and Justice Adams, Josephus Daniels, and practically every member of the Wake County Bar association.

Among the friends of the governor gathered at the grave were Corporation Commissioner A. J. Maxwell, Highway Commissioner Frank Page, M. L. Shipman, commissioner of labor and printing; Dr. W. S. Rankin, former Speaker Dennis Brummitt, Representative Parham, Hon. and Mrs. Sidney P. Cooper, A. C. Zollcoffer, Judge W. A. Graham, Judge John H. Kerr, and scores of others prominent in the life of the state.

TO BUILD SPUR.

From Randleman This Spur Will Tap Main Road at Hinshaw's.

The state highway commission will not authorize the proposed detour from the High Point-Ashboro hard-surface road into Randleman. Instead Randleman will be connected with that highway by means of a spur leading from that town to the High Point-Ashboro road at Hinshaw's cross roads.

Announcement to this effect was made in Greensboro by J. Elwood Cox, of High Point, state highway commissioner of the fifth district. Such an agreement was reached recently when Frank Page, chairman of the state highway commission, and Mr. Cox inspected the proposed detour. They also inspected the proposed route from Greensboro to Randleman via Pleasant Garden.

Contract for the work on the spur from Hinshaw's cross roads to Randleman will be awarded simultaneously with the letting of contract for the High Point-Ashboro highway, Mr. Cox stated. The survey is now being completed and the award will probably be made in February. Mr. Cox said that the road leading from Randleman to Greensboro would be rerouted just outside Randleman in the interest of avoidance of a heavy grade and an unsatisfactory crossing. The new route will be a short distance east of the present road, extending through the Salem church community.

The spur will serve as a part of the Greensboro-Randleman-Ashboro road.

By declining to sanction the proposed detour the state will save a substantial amount of money.

OFFER REWARD FOR CAPTURE OF HOLLOWAY.

Winston-Salem, Dec. 30.—Wilkes county has offered a reward of $200 for the capture of Joe Holloway, wanted for what may prove a fatal assault upon one of his neighbors and the latter's five year old son Martin Sexton. The parties reside near Joynes, Wilkes county, and the seriously wounded man is a successful farmer.

According to reports received here Sexton was badly cut with a knife about the face, while his wife has several ugly lacerations on her face. The wounded father fell on his young son and it is thought broke his back. The trouble started Monday when Holloway bought some handkerchiefs from the Sexton children for a small price and when asked to return them, a controversy arose and the fight followed. Sexton and his boy are not expected to recover.

WHAT STOCK SHOULD BE WINTERED?

Is it going to pay to winter all the livestock that are now going into winter quarters? Is it going to pay to try to fatten the old cows and other cattle that are being fed? Poor cows classed as "canners" or even "cutters" will now only bring 1 1-2 to 2 cents a pound. Will it pay to feed these poor cows 60 or 90 days? Will it pay to winter steers and dry cattle to turn on pasture next summer? Will it pay to winter the shoats and carry them until next fall rather than sell them for what they will bring now. Will it pay to wean the beef calves and winter them to put on pasture next summer. If the feeds must be bought, the answer to all of these questions is a positive No. If the feeds are on hand or if the most important feeds are on hand and only supplements, like cottonseed meal for cattle and tankage for hogs, must be bought, then the question is open to debate.

Unless you are willing to back your judgment that the old cows will sell for at least 2 cents a pound more after feeding 90 days it will probably not pay to try to fatten them. They are very low in price now, but will they be higher in 90 days and if fed for 90 days, gaining say 150 pounds, will they sell for 2 cents a pound more? It is, to say the least, doubtful if a cow that now only brings 1 1-2 cents a pound will, after being fed for 90 days, bring 3 cents or 3 1-2 cents a pound unless the market improves. If there will be plenty of pasture next summer and there is slage or other cheap roughage on hand it may pay to buy cottonseed meal or other cheaper concentrate for carrying them through the winter, but it will not pay to buy feed to winter these cattle to put them on an overstocked pasture next spring or on a pasture which will not make them fat enough to sell next fall.

If there be plenty of cheap feed next summer and fall for the shoats on hand, it may pay to winter them if there is some green feed and cheap corn on hand without buying, although tankage must be bought; but if the feed must be bought now and next summer both, it will be better to sell the shoats at once or feed them all they will eat and sell them by the time they weigh 175 to 200 pounds. But unless good conditions for feeding exist, good feeding is done, and feeds are on hand, or can be bought cheap, it will pay best to sell the shoats to some one who can supply such conditions.

Ninety-nine out of every one hundred Southern feeders had better sell the beef calves before weaning. They will bring more clear money than at any other time. The one out of a hundred will generally make money feeding the calves out.

It will not pay to winter the cow that will not produce a fair calf next summer. To do this she must already be bred to a good purebred bull, she must be a fair milker, and she must go on to a fair pasture next summer. Don't feed any cow all winter that does not fulfill these conditions.—Tait Butler in Progressive Farmer.

PARIS POLITICS IN WASHINGTON

The French cabinet does not content itself with giving M. Briand a general backing in his course at Washington; it has specifically spoken for the absurd allowance of 90,000 tons of submarines for France, to that extent making it more likely that a special conference to deal with this vexing subject may yet have to be called.

The only possible gain to be expected from an intransigent attitude on submarines is a gain in time, which might be valuable in a partisan political view. In the final settlement of the question, M. Briand probably hopes to use the inevitable surrender to wrest some counterbalancing advantage in another direction, thus repeating his manoeuvre with Premier Lloyd George at the London conference. But it cannot be said that such victories raise the prestige of France.

It is quite true—M. Briand might say in defense of his course—that playing politics with submarines in Washington for political advantage in Paris is morally no worse than the conduct of Republican senators in playing politics with the Versailles treaty to influence a presidential election here—and is not nearly so destructive of the peace and prosperity of humanity. But whatever Republican senators may think they or their party gained by burking a treaty for a political campaign, the country gained nothing. On the contrary, it lost heavily in prestige at the time and is still losing heavily in pocket because of that irresponsible action.

The same inexorable law of compensation runs in France. French politicians may gain from playing politics in Washington. France has nothing to gain and much to lose by obstructing or delaying the limitation of armament that must come if civilization is not to be wrecked by its pretended defenders.—New York World.

CAMPAIGN NEARS CLOSE.

As we go to press, the great Virginia-North Carolina-South Carolina tri-state campaign for co-operative marketing of tobacco is coming to a glorious conclusion. Spendid reports are coming in from South Carolina; Virginia began closing up her books December 20; and North Carolina is setting out to make the last week of the year the biggest week of the year.

Fresh from the magnificent victory in Kentucky, where Burley growers have signed up nearly 90 per cent of the state's total production, Aaron Sapiro is touring North Carolina and "helping to make it unanimous," or mighty nearly so among farmers in some of the greatest tobacco growing areas.

In fact, eleventh hour contracts are now piling in so fast and new signers are being secured at such a rapid rate that there is a general demand for a two-weeks extension of time. In other words, there is request for making January 15 instead of January 1 the final closing date. Whether this will be done or not has not been determined as we write this. But at any rate, we are on the last round of the struggle with every indication of overwhelming victory. Those farmers who have not yet signed the co-operative marketing contract should make haste to do so. Those who have neighbors who have not signed up should make haste to see these neighbors.

If the time is extended two weeks on tobacco, it will also be extended on cotton. But unless there is such extension, the next big job is to elect the very ablest men in each organization as directors and get down to business.—Progressive Farmer.

Kentucky Signers.

Knoxington, Ky., Dec. 31.—As in the other warehouse districts of Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana, the Central Kentucky district Friday signed up almost every warehouse in the territory, and in Lexington every warehouse but one which could legally be turned over to the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative association was turned over for the immediate possession and use of the association.

CAROLINA WEDDINGS

DAWN.

The hills again look skyward with a smile.
Again, with waking life along its way,
The landscape marches westward mile on mile
And time throbs white into another day.

Though eager life must wait on five-lihood,
And all our hopes be tethered to the mart,
Lacking the eagle's wild, high freedom, would
That ours might be this day the eagle's heart!

Top of Head Blown Off.

Bristol, Va.-Tenn., Dec. 30.—The body of Charles Swinney, aged 27, with the top of his head blown away by the charge of a shotgun, was found this week by searchers within a stone's throw of his home in Holston Valley, after he had been missing several days. An examination of the body led members of his family to believe that he had been shot to death and robbed, as it was known that he had about $500 on his person when he left home to investigate a forest fire a short distance away.
