

BIG MASSACRE AT COAL MINE

Over Score Brutally Killed, Some Shot, Some Hanged

ATROCITIES SHOCKING

Strike Breakers Shot Down and Butchered, Stabbed and Hacked To Death—Some Women Inhuman Toward Injured

Herrin, Ill., June 25.—Herrin today remained quiet after a fight in which 27 men were killed, an unknown number wounded when 5,000 union miners and sympathizers attacked approximately half a hundred imported steam shovel men and laborers working in the Lester strip pit of the Southern Illinois Coal company.

County officials maintained that since no one remained at work in the strip pit that of itself was a guarantee against further outbreaks and asserted the 1,000 members of the Illinois national guard ordered to mobilize in Chicago for possible duty here were unnecessary.

Miners and their supporters, influenced by moonshine whisky and angered at the efforts of the strip pit workers who had been termed in a telegram from the mine workers' international chief "common strike-breakers," bore down at dawn on the huddled group.

Miners in Herrin streets openly boasted that they participated in the infliction of deaths by gunfire, hanging and dragging through the streets in a veritable Roman holiday.

That the death list would be increased seemed to be the consensus of opinion. Fifteen bodies were weighted about the necks and cast into a pond, a miner told a correspondent for the Associated Press, and the area over which killings occurred was estimated at 15 square miles of hilly, timbered land.

The statement of Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois branch of the United Mine Workers of America, issued at Cincinnati, that his information indicated that 44 men had been killed, was interpreted as meaning that the entire number of besieged strike-breakers had perished, although of his own knowledge the Associated Press correspondent could account for but seven more than a score of bodies.

The dead at first were reported accounted for in a pitched battle between the strikers and sympathizers and the imported pit strippers when the local men attacked the barricaded workers at dawn.

Later, however, open statements from scores of persons on the streets here were to the effect that the working men surrendered at the first onslaught and, after having been tied into groups of three and six, were cruelly massacred; told to run a gauntlet of rifle fire, only to be shot to death at distances of a few feet when, wounded, one or two of a group would fall and drag the others to the ground; stabbed and hacked to death with knives; beaten with clubs and at least three of them hanged, while in the instance of six men, at least, they were said to have been dragged over a rough, rocky road behind an automobile.

The women, some carrying infants, urged the men on, it was stated, and in at least one instance the Associated Press correspondent observed unbelievable cruelty from a woman. He came across a group lying in the road, one of the men badly mauled and his shoulder shot away. Begging piteously for water and evidently near death, the worker was only jeered at by the men and women about. The correspondent dashed into a house and obtained water but was restrained by men who pointed pistols. A moment later a woman carrying a baby spurned the dying man with her foot and told him she would "see him in hell" before he could drink.

COAL COMPANY BLAMED FOR WHOLESALE MASSACRE

Herrin, Ill., June 25.—"We, the jury, find from the evidence that deaths of decedents were due to acts direct and indirect of officials of the Southern Illinois Coal company."

"We recommend that an investigation be conducted for the purpose of fixing the blame personally on individuals responsible."

This was the verdict of the coroner's jury held here today.

"George" Henderson, one of the union men slain, was killed by C. K. McDowell, superintendent of the Southern Illinois Coal company, according to the verdict of the jury. This was the only murder verdict returned.

Tariff Would Cost Over Billion Dollars

Washington, June 25.—Increases in tariff duties proposed on fresh meats, sugars, cereals, beans, potatoes and apples, if effective, would advance the cost of these commodities to American consumers by a total of $1,316,569,449 annually, Senator Watson, Democrat, of Massachusetts, said today in a formal statement. He explained that this estimate had been prepared by the department at his request and was based on the total consumption in this country multiplied by the increased tax proposed over the law of 1913.

GREAT CELEBRATION BATTLEGROUND JULY 4

Major McLendon Will Speak, Events Will Include Basket Dinners, Military Drill and Flag Raising

Members of the Henry K. Burtner post of the American Legion and hundreds of other people from various sections of Guilford county are anticipating with a marked degree of pleasure the Fourth of July celebration to be staged at Guilford Battleground one week from tomorrow. Officials of the legion believe that the program will prove one of the most delightful in the history of the county.

The celebration is referred to as an "All-Day Picnic." Features will include basket dinner, military drill, the ceremony of raising the American flag and an address by Maj. L. P. McLendon, of Durham, formerly of the 113th field artillery, 30th division. In the breaking of the Hindenburg line in September, 1918, Major McLendon played an important part. Not only is he considered a valiant soldier but he also has an enviable reputation as a speaker. Recently he was nominated for solicitor in his district in the Democratic primary, following a spirited contest with Solicitor Sam Gattis, of Hillsboro.

Foot races will be engaged in by children and adults and prizes are to be awarded. The Battleground is regarded as an ideal place for such a celebration and it is confidently expected that the activities of the day will be witnessed by large throngs. Plans for the Independence day events are in the hands of a special legion committee, headed by B. T. Baynes. Post Commander Jack Stevens and Post Adjutant McDaniel Lewis are also actively identified with the enterprise.

OAKES IS ACQUITTED BY ALAMANCE JURY

Former Greensboro Policeman Cleared of Killing Charge After Sharp Legal Fight

B. D. Oakes, tried at Graham in Alamance Superior court for the killing of Thomas Robertson on May 4, 1921, was acquitted by the jury, the verdict being returned a few minutes before 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The jury deliberated on the case of the former Greensboro policeman for a little over two hours. Two ballots were taken. The first was 11 to 1 for acquittal. The jury had been instructed by Judge John H. Kerr that it could bring in one of three verdicts, not guilty, manslaughter or second degree murder.

The trial was a warmly contested legal fight. Judge W. P. Bynum and Judge R. C. Strudwick, of this city, and Parker and Long, of Graham, representing Oakes, made a determined fight for his acquittal, while Solicitor Gattis and A. D. Avery, of the Rockingham county bar, fought for his conviction. Throughout the trial, which began Tuesday afternoon, Oakes remained calm.

Details of the case are well known to the public. On the afternoon of May 4, 1921, Policeman W. Thomas McCusick and Oakes were on the lookout for a liquor car. One drove up on East Washington street here. McCusick leaped on the running board and was shot to death by someone in the car. Oakes pursued it, picking up Clyde Cobb and E. R. Holt. Lewis Edwards left the pursued car and was captured near the Guilford Battleground, tried later, found guilty and given a 10-year sentence in the penitentiary. Carl Talley also left the car somewhere and has never been found. He was declared an outlaw. Robertson was killed on the road between Greensboro and Reidsville when Oakes thought he was attempting to cause more trouble.

Court Restrains Suits Brought By Watauga Men

An order restraining T. F. Lovell, Caleb Greer, H. S. Wagoner and W. J. Wagoner, all of Watauga county, with interfering with the property of the Boone Fork Manufacturing company, now in the hands of receivers, was issued by Judge James E. Boyd in Federal court Thursday. He also issued an order restraining Sheriff J. E. Young, of Watauga, from attempting to seize the property for taxes. In prosecuting their claims against the company it seems that Messrs. Lovell, Greer, the Wagoners, and Sheriff Young ignored the fact that Judge Boyd had appointed receivers for the company.

A contract has been let for the construction of two new warehouses by the Rucker Warehouse corporation to be erected next to the old Rucker warehouse with a capacity of 5,000 bales of cotton. W. B. Hunt, of this city, was given the contract and expects to complete them by the middle of October. The buildings will be 75 feet wide and 330 feet long, the approximate cost being $50,000.

HUSBANDS PAY, AVOIDING GANG

Wife-Shooter Will Not Have To Serve Time

ANOTHER HIRES OUT

But If Walter Bryant Fails To Work Well or To Support His Wife To the Roads He Goes. Other Cases

In Guilford Superior court a week of considerable activity was brought to a close Friday afternoon, Judge B. F. Long adjourning it after a large number of criminal cases had been tried, for varied offenses, ranging from wife-shooting down to liquor and larceny.

A special one-week term began this morning, Judge Garland S. Ferguson presiding.

On Friday B. R. Foster, Greensboro barber who had been sentenced Wednesday to serve three years on the county roads for shooting his wife on last April 4, severely wounded her, was freed Friday under bond of $2,000. He must pay $65 a month for the support of his wife and the two little children until the sum of $2,000 has been paid. The money must be deposited with the clerk of court, Mason W. Gant, and Foster must report at the next three terms of criminal court to show good behavior. The reason Judge Long allowed Foster to pay instead of serve on the chain gang is because of pity for the children of the couple, the judge stated. Foster also escapes a year on the roads for carrying concealed weapons.

Walter Bryant, who was convicted of abandonment, must work and pay something each month for the support of his wife. He goes with J. M. Hayworth, who offered to employ him. Further, he was made to deposit $200 with Clerk of Court Gant, to be used by Mrs. Hayworth for medical treatment. Bryant thus escapes the four months road sentence imposed, but in making the change Friday Judge Long stated that if Bryant fails to support his wife or fails to work he will have to go to the roads.

Carl Palmer, who pleaded guilty to stealing an automobile belonging to W. F. Kellam, of Winston-Salem, from in front of the courthouse Monday, was sentenced Friday to serve three and one-half years on the county roads. Judge Long stated that, of account of such boldness in taking a car while court was in session, he would have made the sentence six years, but it appeared that Palmer had reimbursed Kellam for the expense incident to recovering the car.

Other sentences Friday included: John Iddings, 12 months on the roads for retailing liquor.

L. H. Matthews, convicted of reckless driving, five months, but sentence suspended, providing Matthews pays a fine of $200 and puts up a bond of $200 insuring good behavior for two years. Furthermore, he is not allowed to drive an automobile on the public roads of the state for the next five months.

A. E. Pfaff, assault with a deadly weapon, $600 or six months on the roads. Pfaff was acquitted of charges of driving a car while drunk and driving in a reckless manner.

Col. John A. Barringer, who appealed from a verdict in Municipal court here last winter, one of the cases brought by the city for failure to clear the sidewalk after a snowfall, won his case. Judge Long directed a verdict after the evidence was presented.

Walter Bryant, convicted of abandonment, received four months on the roads, with the probability that the sentence will be suspended if he deposits $200 in the clerk's office to be used by his wife, and gives medical attention, and gives bond to insure her support. He testified that this is his third wife; that the first is dead and that the second is divorced. He said that his second left him seven times before he got a divorce and that he married his third the day after he met her.

James Brown, who pleaded guilty to retailing and transporting liquor, was given 12 months on the roads.

Harry Stewart, for having whisky in his possession for the purpose of sale, got a six months' road sentence.

Vernon Boulden, for an assault with a deadly weapon and for carrying concealed weapons, was given 12 months.

Dewey Straughn, for larceny and receiving stolen goods, received six months.

BIG LOAN FOR TOBACCO MEN

$30,000,000 Assured For Tobacco Co-ops

FOR 70,000 FARMERS

Loan From War Finance Corporation Is Largest Ever Made By A Farm Organization—Secured By $50,000,000 Pounds of Tobacco

Raleigh, June 24.—With a loan of more than 30 million dollars from the War Finance Corporation, the Tobacco Growers' Co-operative association of North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia is now prepared to pay its members cash advances upon the delivery of tobacco and is assured of the same orderly marketing that gave to the organized burley growers of Kentucky increased profits on their product.

The announcement of the loan negotiated Wednesday, was made from the Raleigh headquarters of the association which represents seventy-five thousand tobacco farmers in the three states, Thursday. And this clincher to the elaborate plan of marketing tobacco through the giant association wiped away all fear of failure on the part of most growers.

In addition to the loan of $30,000,000, the War Finance corporation has agreed to rediscunt loans secured by green or soft order tobacco for local banks throughout the Virginia-Carolina tobacco belt. The loan itself is to be secured by more than 530,000,000 pounds of tobacco owned by the members of the association now under a five year contract. This tobacco represents a value of over $70,000,000 in the first year of operation.

Close to 80 per cent. of the tobacco farmers of Virginia have joined the marketing association, and North Carolina growers are nearing a 75 per cent. sign up following the recent state-wide campaign for members.

C. F. DRAKE PROVED NOT TO BE MAYS

Charlie Nowell, of Selma, Who Knew Both Men, Identifies Charlie Drake In Raleigh

Raleigh, June 24.—A cheerful grin helped C. F. Drake to win his freedom from the city jail here Wednesday. Drake was alleged to have been Mill Mays, the gambler, who sent young Cleve Watkins to meet his Maker with a bullet through his heart at the conclusion of a game of draw poker here eight years ago. "Mays could never smile like that man," said Charlie Nowell, of Selma, as he identified C. F. Drake as an innocent man, Nowell, who knew both Drake and Mays at the time of Watkins' murder, described Mays as a shorter, stumper man than Drake. He also described a crooked arm which the gambler had and which was lacking in the suspect, Mays, he said, was a cold, saturnine man, who scarcely ever smiled or laughed, indulging when he did in a cruel, forced sort of snort. One of the things that characterizes Drake is his frank, ingenuous smile and his hearty laugh.

Chief Glenn took the testimony of Nowell at its face value and Drake was released from the city jail yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock. He left for Greensboro, where he was working when arrested and will go to Hurt, Va., to join his wife and two small children for a short holiday. He seemed none the worse for his enforced visit to Raleigh, and was in a good humor with everybody in the world but Will Mays when he left.

"If I ever run across that fellow," he said, "there is going to be some real trouble."

Drake stated that the reason he had been slow in having witnesses come to Raleigh to identify him was that he had but $35 in the bank and he needed that to go to see his wife. He understood that witnesses would have to be summoned here at his expense and he was willing to take a chance at facing a jury on trial for his life, rather than strip his scant savings.

Eastern Carolina Is Curing Tobacco Crop

Kinston, June 25.—Early curing of tobacco is in progress in the eastern belt. On several Lenoir county farms first "barns" have been put in. In a few days curing fires will be built in many barns, and a large part of the crop will be ready for market before the middle of July.

The record rains of the past three months have hastened the crop to maturity, at the expense of quality. The stand in many fields is in such shape that the growers are compelled to start harvesting now in self-defense. The weed stripped so far has ranged from shabby to fair in quality, and very little rate tobacco has been reported.

Hamlet, June 24.—Charges of murder against Branson Millikin, his wife, Annie Mae Millikin, and James Smith resulting from the killing of John McGee, a negro, at the home of Mr. Millikin on Sunday morning, June 11, was dismissed after a preliminary hearing in a packed courtroom before Recorder J. C. Leigh yesterday afternoon.

EVENTS 80 YEARS AGO

It is the purpose of this paper to publish at frequent intervals comparative brief references to events chronicled in The Greensboro (as it was then) Patriot of 80 years ago. In this enterprise valuable assistance is rendered by members of the staff of the Greensboro Public Library.

June 28th, 1842
GOVERNOR MOREHEAD'S VISIT TO GUILFORD.—Our citizens having learned that Governor Morehead would be here on Friday morning on a public visit, determined to receive him with a demonstration of affection and respect. Accordingly, at 9 o'clock on that morning, "the citizens without distinction of party or sex, repaired to the Southern limit of the town and formed in front of the Caldwell Institute, on each side of the street. A committee on horseback met his excellency on the Fayetteville road, at the South Buffalo bridge, one mile and a half from town, and escorted him to the borders of the village. On his entering between the lines in an open carriage, Ralph Gorrell, esq., who had been appointed to welcome him among us made an address, closing with the following words: "But no official station; no honors which have been heretofore bestowed, or which can be hereafter conferred upon you, can give you any higher title to our regard than that which you acquired as a man in a residence of 20 years among us. We welcome you, therefore, as an old and highly prized fellow citizen, as an associate, companion, friend, we welcome you more than all, as John M. Morehead."

FOURTH OF JULY.—The Washington Temperance society of Greensboro proposes to celebrate the approaching anniversary of the independence by a public dinner. The celebration will commence at 11 o'clock.

SPICES.—Nutmegs, cloves, cinnamon bark, pulv-ditto, race ginger, pulv-ditto, mustard, Jamaica ginger. D. P. Weir.

CAMP MEETING.—There will be a camp meeting held at the Mt. Gilead camp ground, one mile from Germantown, to commence on Friday, the 5th of August. Brethren in the ministry, traveling and local, are respectfully invited to attend.—G. E. Brown, Stokes Circuit, N. C. Conference, June 1, 1942.

LIMIT TO USE OF MOLASSES IN FEED

Limit To Economical Use of Molasses To Fatten Steers Proved By Agriculture Department

That there is a limit to the quantity of blackstrap molasses which can be added with economy to a ration of 5.4 pounds of cottonseed meal and 46 pounds of corn silage for fattening yearling steers was shown in a test made by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the Louisiana experiment station.

Two lots of nine 700-pound steers were fed for 112 days. Forty-six pounds of silage per steer per day was practically the limit of their capacity. Lot 1 was fed 5.42 pounds of molasses per steer daily, while lot 2 was fed 8.07 pounds of molasses per steer daily. As lot 1 gained 2.48 pounds per steer daily, while lot 2 gained only 2.41 pounds per steer daily, it is evident that 2.65 pounds of molasses was wasted daily per steer in lot 2. The results in lot 2 might have been more favorable to the use of so much molasses had the cottonseed-meal ration been reduced to 3.5 or 4 pounds. In the test, lot 1 consumed 1,880 pounds of silage, 218 pounds of cottonseed meal, and 218 pounds of molasses per 100 pounds gain, while lot 2 required 2 per cent. more silage, 3 per cent. more cottonseed meal, and 54 per cent. more molasses to produce 100 pounds of gain.

Labor Leaders Charge Industrial Feudalism

Cincinnati, June 25.—Industrial feudalism supported by political bureaucracy seems to have made its way into the White House, declared the report today of the special policy committee of the American Federation of Labor in setting forth organized labor's stand against the Kansas Industrial court and other proposals for compulsory submission of labor disputes to state tribunals. President Harding's declaration to Congress last December, suggesting regulation of labor unions, prompted the committee's criticism.

"It would seem," declared the committee, "that propaganda for industrial feudalism supported by political bureaucracy has found its way into the White House. It is most regrettable to note the utterances of the President of the United States wherein he disapproves of labor's reluctant resort to the right to strike against industrial oppression. It may be well to recall in this connection a most appropriate utterance upon the same subject by another President, Abraham Lincoln, who said 'I am glad that a system of labor prevails under which laborers can strike when they want to.'"

UNKNOWN MEN BEAT YOUNG WHITE MAN

Julius Garrett Taken From Home and Severely Beaten By Six Unidentified Men

Julius Garrett, young white man of Jamestown, was taken from his home and severely beaten by a party of six men, thought by some to have been members of the Ku Klux Klan, Wednesday night. He was placed in an automobile and taken to a place near Deep Creek church, four miles from Jamestown and there the whipping took place.

Garrett told officers that about two months ago he had received a warning, thought to have come from the Ku Klux Klan, saying he must go to work. It seems that Garrett has no permanent business, but works at odd jobs. His father, J. F. Garrett, is in the employ of the Southern Railway company, and has an excellent reputation. Sheriff D. B. Stafford was not informed of the matter until late Thursday afternoon, but stated that he would make an immediate investigation.

FARM DEMONSTRATION

Control of Anthracnose

Anthracnose in watermelons can be prevented by spraying with Bordeaux mixture if it is done properly and at the proper times. In seasons when the disease is severe two or three applications will save the crop, of which half or more might otherwise be lost.

Inasmuch as some trials of spraying have failed to give satisfactory results, the attention of growers is directed to some essential details, the neglect of which is responsible for all failures investigated.

Dates and number of applications.—The weather is the deciding factor. It has been pointed out that the disease cannot spread without moisture and that its severity is proportional to the number of rainy days during the period when the melons are ripening. Since it is desirable to avoid the expense of unnecessary sprayings, the weather and fields should be watched closely. If a drought prevails during the early growing season, spraying may be postponed until two weeks before ripening time, when a thorough spraying should be given. If evidence of the disease on the leaves is detected earlier, spraying should begin sooner. Second and third applications should be given at intervals of five to 10 days, depending upon the rainfall. The more rain, the more one must spray. It is better to spray in advance of the rain rather than after it, provided there will be enough time for the Bordeaux mixture to dry on the leaves. Once dry it is not easily washed off.

Methods and apparatus.—For large melon fields under southern conditions a power spray similar to those used for orchards is most effective. No material change in equipment will be needed, unless it will be to provide longer lines of hose, so as to reach 25 to 30 feet on each side of the sprayer. Keep open throughout the season, at intervals of 50 to 70 feet, such roadways as will be necessary for hauling out the melons.

Spray under high pressure—140 to 200 pounds. Spray thoroughly, spraying as much of the under sides of the leaves as is practicable. Provide loading stations with elevated platforms for refilling the sprayer with Bordeaux mixture and use stock solutions when possible, as this saves time and reduces expense.

VETERANS' REUNION

COMES TO AN END

6,000 Veterans Attended—Runion Ends With Colorful Parade and Grand Ball

Richmond, June 24.—With a spectacular and colorful street parade Thursday morning, the laying of the cornerstone of the Matthew Montaine Maury monument that afternoon and a grand ball that night as a fitting climax, the 32nd annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans was brought to a successful conclusion in a blaze of glory.

Attendance figures, according to those in charge of registration headquarters, exceeded all expectations, credentials being issued to more than 6,000 veterans. This number was augmented by upwards of 25,000 Sons of Confederate Veterans, members of the Confederate Memorial association, the United Daughters of the Confederacy and other visitors.

One of the last official acts of the Sons of Confederate Veterans before the Sons, as an organization, began taking leave of the convention city was to re-elect Carl Hinton, of Denver, Colo., as adjutant chief of the sons by the executive council of that body, composed of W. McDonald Lee, of Richmond and Irvington, the new commander in chief, the three department commanders and three members at large.

Reunion visitors are privileged to return on any regular train until July 9 and for this reason many are expected to remain here until that time, making side trips to the nation's capital, to the crater at Petersburg and to the several battlefields and other historic places around Richmond.

MONEY FOR TOBACCO

Success attends the Tobacco Growers' Co-operative association. The loan of $30,000,000 made by the War Finance corporation to the association for cash advances to the growers of Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina is one of the biggest things for the success of the movement yet accomplished.

That means that the money for the tobacco will be ready. It is a good loan, a safe, secure loan, for the tobacco itself will be worth more than that. It will enable the association to market its tobacco in an ordinary way, without glutting the market—the aim of the organization.

Members of the association should be greatly cheered by the financial activities of those in charge of the organization. They are busy. They have not sat around and waited for something to turn up. They have planned for the future, big plans, worked out in detail, so that when the season opens everything will be ready and move smoothly.

The association is a great business organization, run upon business principles. The fundamentals along which it operates are sound and the methods used to achieve its purposes are admirable. Nothing is left undone, nothing left to chance. Tobacco growers were told that they would find their affairs well conducted by the men in charge of the association. It was no idle boast.

Those who thought that the co-operative tobacco movement was the dream of visionaries, incapable of executing their plans, have received a rude shock. They will receive others when the season opens. The co-operative movement is an intensely practical one, in the hands of able men, who, while they see far into the future, have great vision, are practical business men.

ATROCITIES DESERVING PUNISHMENT

The bloodshed attending the strike of coal miners in Illinois is shocking—men shot down in cold blood after they surrendered to the miners, wounded, dragged across roads, dying refused water. It is a tale of brutality that seems beyond belief. But it is vouched for by Associated Press reporters, men who are taught above all things to get their facts straight, not to exaggerate, to be conservative in their statements.

Scores of strikebreakers were slaughtered, butchered, the victims of a hellish fury that would have shamed the Hun. What sort of people are those who treated their fellow-men with such barbarity? Are they human beings?

Yet they expect public sympathy in a strike. They recite the lists of wrongs they say their employers inflict upon them. They call for the public to aid them in securing their demands.

The public does not know a great deal about the dispute between the miners and their employers. Each side makes positive, conflicting statements. But it does know that such barbarity is unexcusable. Under any conditions it is unexcusable.

It will not line up with such men as those guilty of barbarities. It would not be labeled as associated with them. Such put themselves beyond the pale of sympathy. Rather will the public demand that those who murdered and tortured others be severely punished.

The union principle is endorsed, generally, by the American people. They are in sympathy with unions. They recognize that in many instances they are the only means to combat the greed of some employers. But surely the mass of union men do not sympathize with such criminals as were guilty of the atrocities at the Lester mine at Herrin, Ill.

BAWLING BRATS, FULL STOMACHED

Starting in the kitchen, levying heavier duties in kitchen utensils and ware, then on table ware, then on furniture, that is what the Republicans in the senate are doing with the tariff bill. Senator Simmons, telling them how they are invading the home, does not know anything of consequence entering into household or the building of the home or that goes on the backs of the people upon which a tariff duty is not levied.

That is the record of the Republican party. "Protection" must be granted to a few in order that they may fatten off the many, the many who are not able to protect themselves, let alone others. Taking from those who have but a little, in order that those who have much may have more—that is what protection is.

"The backs of the people." Shame that the greed for gain would reach out and thus tax the already overburdened. There is no limit to the demands of the protectionists. They are never satisfied. They reach out their grasping clutches in every direction. Even the home is not safe from them.

"Infant" industries, they say, must be protected. Yet these infants have been with us for many years, long years, bawling brats that devour more and more. They have full grown stomachs; their digestive organs are in fine shape. Their hands are strong; their arms are long. They may be infants but they know all about taking care of themselves.

Isn't it time that they did business on an equality with other people? Isn't it time that they are made to do without the tariff tax that comes from the pockets of people, pockets empty most of the time?

LEAGUE SENTIMENT

The Confederate Veterans at their reunion in Richmond last week proved loyal to principles of democracy, those principles for which their country stands, in that they honored Woodrow Wilson with acclamations of praise for his great work.

These veterans, who went to war against great odds, losing like men and coming back to their devastated homes to rebuild them with unsurpassed courage—surely they should know what is best for their country. They have lived long enough to realize the mistakes of America and to glory in its accomplishments.

Notwithstanding the fact that President Harding and other Republican leaders have attempted to belittle Wilson and his ideas of a league of nations with America in the leadership, it is becoming more apparent each day that league sentiment is increasingly popular. The youth of the country, as well as thinking people of all classes, are beginning to demand a means of insuring permanent peace.

Garment workers in New York seem to be trying to sew up the clothing industry.

With philosophic calm we announce that we shall bear as best we can the idea of having to wait another year for more commencement speeches.

Walter Johnson has pitched 75 scoreless games, according to a New York sports writer. In spite of that achievement, however, he might even consent to speak to Hiram.

MOSTLY NONSENSE

By Gee Gee Dee.

THE IDEA OF SERMONS being found in stones first appealed to William Shakespeare more than three hundred years ago. Doubtless the Stratford bard would have been able to do quite a bit of sermonizing in connection with the examination of the cornerstone of the recently demolished Guilford courthouse had he lived in this age.

Perhaps one of the lessons which Shakespeare would have drawn would have pertained to the changing popular attitude toward history. When that cornerstone was laid in June, 1858, people evidently attached more importance to history than do those of the present generation. It is interesting to observe the great care which characterized their efforts to preserve important historical facts of that day. The comprehensiveness of the collection of papers carefully folded away in the copper box and placed in the cornerstone now seems almost amazing. The names of government officials from President Buchanan down to the members of the special commission entrusted with the task of building the courthouse constitute a part of the record found in the cornerstone. Interesting information relating to Masonry was thus preserved. Facts of special significance in connection with the churches and other organizations were placed among the treasures. Copies of the newspapers of that day form an important part of the collection. In short, there is every indication that Guilford citizens in the late fifties were not unmindful of the importance of preserving for posterity the annals of that day.

Today most people in this country are so busily engaged in the making of history that little time is devoted to the writing of it. The business structure which was erected a decade ago is hastily razed in order to make room for a more modern building, and the crowds, scurrying by in performance of their marketing tasks or while seeing other prospective customers for insurance, real estate or phonographs, hardly glance in the direction of the latest triumph of a civilized community. Ask the average man you meet on the street or road to tell you something about Bull Run and he will ask you to excuse him, as he doesn't know much about the cattle industry. Tell him that you crave information concerning the Renaissance and he will say in a shamefaced manner that he hasn't seen the moving picture programs at any of the local theaters recently and therefore cannot satisfy your curiosity. But the same fellow doubtless will be able to tell you in half a second how much North Elm street property should bring per front foot or when the next hard-surface road in Guilford county should be surveyed.

The truth of the matter is that many of us are so busy that we do not find time for the writing or even the contemplation of history. The pages of history are being turned so rapidly that many of us do not even catch the titles. On the recent Memorial day celebration in Greensboro members of the American Legion and other people in the audience were amazed to note the remarkable familiarity with war history evidenced in the address of Frank Graham. In terms that were vivid but which failed to do violence to the truth, so far as could be observed here, the University professor told of the various important military maneuvers from August, 1914, to November, 1918. We venture the opinion that in all North Carolina there are not a dozen persons who could present such a narrative in historical accuracy, but there seems to be no doubt as to the authentic nature of Frank Graham's gripping recital of war events. We should cultivate such talents assiduously. Of course we do not want to live in the past, but we can draw some highly valuable lessons from the records of former years. And the next time we lay a cornerstone let us emulate the example of our forebears let us set down and preserve important historical facts for coming generations.

WEALTH OF OLD DOCUMENTS
IN COURTHOUSE CORNERSTONE

Found a Foot Under Ground With Many Papers, Books and Historical Documents—Patriot of June 25, 1858, Is Very Interesting

The cornerstone of the old Guilford county courthouse was unearthed Thursday by the steam shovel which is used in excavating for the Jefferson Standard 17-story building. The cornerstone was one foot under the ground when found, where it had been laid 64 years ago.

The steam shovel had cracked the stone open and in it was embedded a coffer box filled with historical documents, newspapers, books and other valuable papers. Many had expected to find a bottle of some kind, but none was there. Among the contents of the box was a copy of the constitution and by-laws of the Greensboro division No. 6 of the Sons of Temperance, and a copy of the constitution and by-laws of the "Grand and Subordinate Sections of the Cadets of Temperance of the State of North Carolina."

The box is made of copper and measures six inches wide, five inches deep, and eight and a half inches long. A letter on the inside reveals the identity of the maker as Charles C. Yates, a manufacturer and dealer in tin, on West street, Greensboro. The box was tightly packed with the papers and documents, and some moisture had seeped in, injuring some of the contents.

In the box was a six-page leaflet showing that the Masons of North Carolina played an important part in the laying of the cornerstone. The Masons now have the contents of the box in charge.

Former Fireman Tries To Kill Self With Gas

Ernest Wooters, who was for many years connected with the city fire department, and rooming at the Eagle Hotel company, was found unconscious in his room Friday afternoon, with gas escaping from an open jet.

Mr. Wooters went to his room early Friday afternoon, locking the door, and members of the fire department thinking he wished to sleep did not for a long while bother him.

Copies of newspapers and journals among those found in the box are: The Semi-Weekly Dispatch, of Richmond, Va., of June 15, 1858.

The Messenger, of June 26, 1858. Part of this name was obliterated.

A sealed copy of the Fayetteville Observer.

A copy of the Greensborough Patriot, of June 25, 1858, was in perhaps the best condition. It was a recipe for making wine, and it seems that many persons have copied it, also an advertisement which stated that a man had for sale a negro slave, a mule, and a wagon.

There were many letters, papers, and documents signed by men of prominence at that time. Some of the most interesting were on display in the windows of King's Cigar store Friday morning, but are now in charge of the Masons.

Later in the day the odor of escaping gas was detected and the men forced their way into the room, where he was found unconscious. He was taken to the police station for medical aid and later placed in the city jail.

NEW PROCESS
Wick Oil Cook Stove

"A COMBINATION OF COMFORT AND CONVENIENCE!"

Three and Four Burners—with Oven and Cabinet or Without.

ECONOMICAL

ONE Gallon of Oil burns to the burner 22 1/2 hours in the NEW PROCESS, whereas in some long burner oil stoves a gallon of oil only burns 11 hours to the burner. The NEW PROCESS will boil water one-third quicker—hence another saving of time as well as oil.

It is a real pleasure to us to exhibit the New Process Oil Cook Stove. With the oven and cabinet this is a complete stove, capable of rendering the service you have been getting from your coal or wood range. Baking in this oven is ideal. The oven is lined with asbestos, has ample room and its construction is ideal, both from a practical and a scientific standpoint. Heat is by contact rather than by radiation, and we guarantee a saving of one third in fuel, together with better and quicker baking as a result of the superior construction of this oven.

We have the exclusive agency on this NEW PROCESS, which we can supply in all sizes, with or without oven and cabinet. There are many features about this stove which we want to show you—the arrangement of the burners, the kind of material used, especially the construction of parts that usually wear or rust. You will appreciate the advantages and we will appreciate your giving us the opportunity to show you the many practical reasons why you should consider no other oil stove.

NEXT TO THE SOIL--SILAGE A NECESSITY--CUTWORM CONTROL

CATTLE SHOULD BE FED SOME SILAGE

To Get Most Economical Results Demonstration Shows That Steers Must Be Fed Silage

To get results economically most cattle feeders should use some kind of silage in the rations, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Steers fed on silage usually not only make more economical gains, shrink less, and make more profits than steers fed on dry roughage, but also make it possible to utilize crops grown primarily in a rotation for restoring the fertility of worn-out lands.

The comparative value of a number of different silage crops for steer feeding was recently worked out by the department in co-operation with the Louisiana experiment station. In one instance similar lots of cattle were fed a ration of cottonseed meal and backstrap molasses in combination with corn silage, corn and Biloxi soy-bean silage, sorghum silage, sorghum and Biloxi soy-bean silage, and Japanese cane and Biloxi soy-bean silage.

The best gain was made by the steers fed the straight corn silage, but it was shown that the capacity of a farm for fattening or wintering cattle may be greatly increased by the use of heavy-yielding silage crops such as sorghum and Japanese cane. Immature Biloxi soy beans mixed with corn or sorghum were not so satisfactory, but with late-maturing crops like Japanese cane these silage gave very good results. Sorghum silage and Japanese cane and Biloxi soy-bean silage are practically equal in feeding value for steers when supplemented by cottonseed meal and molasses.

LAND BANK READY TO SERVE FARMERS

Has Eight Million Dollars To Lend To Farmers On Farm Collateral

Raleigh, June 25.—With eight million dollars to lend to farmers or those who have farm collateral, the Atlantic Joint bank has already begun business with the mailing out of application blanks for loans. A force of young women has been employed and temporary quarters on the seventh floor of the Commercial National bank building occupied.

As soon as the applications for loans are received appraisal will be made and the loans passed on as quickly as possible. The first loans, Wade Marr, secretary-treasurer of the organization says, will take a little more time than will be needed after the machinery is well oiled and running smoothly.

A. W. McLean, of Lumberton, is president and Wade Marr, of Raleigh, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Marr's connection with the firm of Durfee and Marr will continue without any change on account of his connection with the new organization.

The Joint Stock Land bank though similar to the Federal Farm Loan bank in a number of ways has the advantages of freedom from federal red tape. Borrowers do not have to be actual farmers as is the case with the Federal Farm Loan bank, but they must be able to furnish farm collateral. There is also no legal limit on the amount of money that may be borrowed, though every bank is supposed to fix its individual limit. In the case of the Federal Farm Loan bank the limit is $10,000. There are other outstanding points of difference that gives the Joint Stock Land bank freedom of operation and will widely recommend it. Both have the amortization plan.

CUT WORMS DESTROY ENORMOUS CROPS

Million Dollars Worth of Crops Destroyed In United States Controlled By Poisoned Bait

Cutworms can readily be controlled by the use of poisoned bait, the United States Department of Agriculture has demonstrated. This is the way to prepare and apply the poison:

To 1 bushel of dry bran add 1 pound of white arsenic or Paris green and mix thoroughly into a mash with 4 gallons of water, in which has been stirred one-half gallon of sorghum or other cheap molasses. This amount will be sufficient to treat 4 or 5 acres of cultivated crops. After the mash has stood for several hours scatter it in lumps of about the size of a marble over the fields where the injury is beginning to appear. Put it about the bases of the plants which have been set out. Apply the mash late in the day, so as to have the poison in place around the plants before night, when the cutworms are active. Apply a second time if necessary.

Cutworms destroy hundreds of thousands, even millions, of dollars' worth of crops every year throughout the United States. They especially attack tomatoes, cabbage, lettuce, and other vegetables that have been started under glass and transplanted. Cutworms sometimes appear in great numbers in the spring and early summer, and frequently do severe injury before their ravages are noticed.

Their method of attack is to cut off the young plants near the ground. They are of large size and are voracious feeders, capable of destroying many plants in a single night. Often they cut down more than they can devour.

WEBWORMS IN CORN CAN BE PREVENTED

Webworms Are Natives of America. They Can Be Prevented By Cultural Methods

Outbreaks of webworms in corn in the middle eastern states can be prevented only by cultural methods, according to the bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture. Unlike most destructive pests, the various species of webworms are all natives of America and have not been introduced from foreign lands.

Summer or very early fall plowing should be practiced. Plowing in late October or November has little effect because the worms are already in their winter webs under the surface of the ground. Land that has been in sod or pasture, or lain fallow and grown up to weeds and grass should be plowed in July or August, if it is intended to plant it to corn the following spring.

Grasslands of all kinds—meadows, pastures, or lawns—furnish the normal food of webworms, but they also gnaw young corn plants below the surface and deform them so as to prevent the production of grain. After the corn is once planted and the field is found to be infested there is no practicable method of getting rid of the worms; the only thing that can be done is to produce conditions that will permit the corn to grow in spite of them.

Diking in the spring, the application of fertilizer, and the sowing of sound seed are the chief preventive measures that will have any effect. Neither poisoning nor trapping has met with any success. Injury to grasslands is difficult to control and little can be done except to plow up the sod and plant it to some immune crop.

PATRIDGE AND WOODPECKER ENEMY OF CORN ROOTWORM

The bob-white eats the adults or beetles of the corn rootworm which lay the eggs that later become larvae or worms and infest the corn. As many as 12 of the beetles, according to the Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture, have been found in the stomach of one bob-white. The red-headed woodpecker, nighthawk, cardinal, kingbird, and phoebe also eat the beetles and reduce the damage done by the Southern corn rootworm.

BOY AND GIRL CLUB WORK CONDUCTED IN DENMARK

Although agricultural extension methods are older in Denmark than in the United States, work with boys and girls as conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operation with state agricultural colleges has not been organized there. A plan, however, is being considered for forming similar clubs, says S. Sorensen, agricultural advisor attached to the Danish legation at Washington. At present the work in Denmark is for people from 18 to 70 years.

DIES REFUSING TO NAME GUILTY MAN

J. B. Hayworth, of Lexington, Keeps Lips Sealed As To Man Who Shot Him

High Point, June 24.—J. B. Hayworth, 46, merchant of the Nokomis mill community, near Lexington, died in a local hospital at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning, death resulting from a bullet wound in the back of his head. Hayworth took the secret of his wound to the grave with him, dying without divulging the name of his assailant.

He was found in the rear of his store late Wednesday afternoon with a pistol bullet wound in the back of his head and was immediately rushed to a High Point hospital, where he died this morning in spite of all that surgeons could do to save his life.

In a moment of consciousness Thursday morning he declared that he did not shoot himself but said that unless he got well he would not tell the name of the person who attacked him. "If I die," he is reported as having said, "it will make no difference, but if I get well I will tell who shot me."

Hospital attendants said that although he regained consciousness and asked for members of his family shortly before the end came his lips were sealed when he was asked as to the identity of the person who shot him.

Woodmen Will Hold Big Meets At Hendersonville

Hendersonville, June 23.—Hendersonville during the greater part of July will virtually be the national headquarters of the Woodmen of the World. For three weeks beginning July 3, the sovereign executive council will be in session here, and during this time the site for a national home for ill and disabled Woodmen will be selected. Hendersonville is making a strenuous bid for this institution on which will be spent several millions of dollars. Other cities in the "land of the sky" are likewise bidding for the home.

Sovereign Commander W. A. Fraser, the supreme official of the order, will preside over the council's sessions. The North Carolina head camp will hold its annual meeting in Hendersonville, beginning Friday, June 30, in order that it may formally welcome the distinguished visitors.

On July 4, a gigantic celebration is to be engaged in by the citizens of Hendersonville.

Governors Morrison and Harvey, of South Carolina, and United States Senators Overman and Shepperd, of Texas, will, with Mr. Fraser, be the speakers.

This section is about eight miles long and is at present in very bad condition.

Mr. Cox also announces that arrangements have been made for the construction of a concrete bridge over the Yadkin river near Salisbury. This will take the place of the wooden toll bridge now in use there. Work on the bridge will probably begin in July or August but it will take a year or longer to finish it. The cost will be approximately $150,000 and it will be one of the best bridges in North Carolina.

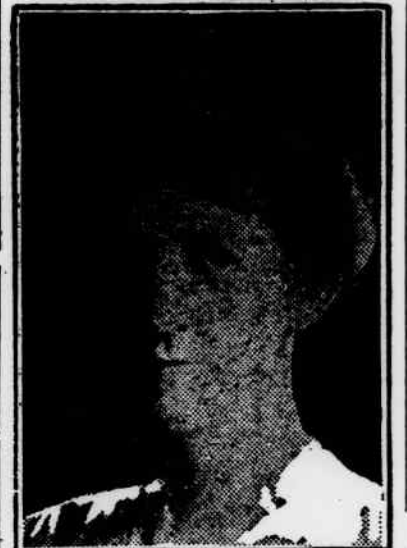

Again Change Site For City's New Incinerator

The city council, Friday, purchased 10 acres of land two miles east of the city, about 500 yards south of the North Carolina railroad, and far removed from any human habitation, as the site of the city incinerator. The land was bought from a negro, Walter Huffman, for $3,500. Under the plan garbage from South Greensboro will pass out Gorrell and East Washington streets, and from the northern part of the city out East Market and when Percy street is opened by that route.

The Sanitary Privy

The legislature of 1919 passed a law entitled, "An act to prevent the spread of disease from insanitary privies."

What is an insanitary privy? It is the common privy made use of in North Carolina, the one with the open back, where the excreta is deposited upon the ground. Of course it is easily accessible not only to flies and all insects, but to chickens and animals. This privy is often so located that heavy rains wash the excreta and spread it over the ground sometimes infecting the well or spring.

It is no wonder that we have typhoid fever, diarrhea, dysentery and summer complaints, when we think how very easy it is for flies to swarm over this excreta, then at meal time to come into the house and help themselves to the food that was prepared for the family. Some will say that flies are a necessity. But say that flies are a necessity or in they are unable to say how or in what way. Flies only breed in filth, they live and thrive upon filth. The Bible says, "Cleanliness is next to Godliness." Therefore if you are clean and your place is clean you are obeying a supreme command and you will have no flies, and less sickness. So the common insanitary privy must go.

We have made great advances in farm implements, in the way of tractor, plows, cultivators, binders, etc., but what have we done to improve the living conditions of the farm people?

HAND OF COLLECTOR OF TAXES IS STAYED

Federal Judge Rules Franchise Tax Can Not Be Collected From Railroads Now

The state of North Carolina is stayed from collecting the corporation franchise tax for 1921 from the Southern, Seaboard Air Line, Atlantic Coast Line, Norfolk Southern and Atlantic and Yadkin railroads until the Supreme court of the United States passes upon the constitutionality of the tax. Decision to that effect was made by Judge James E. Boyd, of Western North Carolina Federal District court, here Friday. The matter is scheduled to come up before the Supreme court on the first Monday in November. About $210,000 is involved.

The decision of Judge Boyd breaks a tie between Judge H. G. Connor, of the Eastern North Carolina Federal district, and Judge Edmund Waddill, of Richmond, or the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. On June 10 in Raleigh Judge Waddill held that a stay should be granted, Judge Connor that it should not be. Therefore the decision of Judge Boyd was necessary.

The latter held that the methods by which taxes held illegal may be recovered from the state are doubtful and that a suit for an injunction to restrain the collection of taxes, if the taxes were already paid, might be dismissed by the Supreme court without a hearing, as a moot matter.

Inception of the railroad tax cases was had last autumn. Then the five railroads asked for an injunction restraining the state, counties, municipalities and school districts of North Carolina from collecting taxes which in the case of the ad valorem taxes they held to be discriminatory and excessive and in the case of the franchise and corporation income taxes unconstitutional. The hearing was postponed until the last week in last January when it came up before a special tribunal, made up of Judges Waddill, Connor and Boyd, sitting here. They handed down an opinion at Raleigh on March 13 denying the injunction. The roads appealed. A stay of 60 days was granted. On June 10 in Raleigh Judges Connor and Waddill granted a stay in the matter of the ad valorem assessment until the matter is decided by the Supreme court, dividing on the question of the franchise tax. The income tax cases are docketed for hearing in the Eastern North Carolina Federal District court. All the taxes paid so far are those agreed upon by the roads and state, at a valuation the roads say is fair, about two-thirds that of the state assessment.

William Rockefeller, Very Wealthy, Is Dead

Mr. Rockefeller, who contracted a heavy cold during the rains of the last week-end, had just completed building a $250,000 mausoleum in the Sleepy Hollow cemetery. The mausoleum was constructed according to his own plans and under his personal direction.

Mr. Rockefeller, who was 81 years old, had not recently been active in business, although he was active head of the Standard Oil company of New York from its establishment in 1865 until 1911. Although somewhat overshadowed by his elder brother, John D. Rockefeller, William was one of the richest men in America.

None of his Wall street associates has ventured an estimate of his fortune, but it had been generally believed that he had between $100,000,000 and $250,000,000, concentrated in various Standard Oil companies, Anaconda Copper, Consolidated Gas, Brooklyn Union Gas, St. Paul and Northern City bank.
