

JOHN W. KING NEW DIRECTOR

Chosen to Succeed Late John M. Galloway

WIDELY EXPERIENCED

Greensboro Man, Large Tobacco Grower, Named As Director of Tri-State Co-operative Association—Loan Secured

John W. King, of Greensboro, was elected director of the Tri-State Tobacco Growers' association by the board of directors of that organization at a meeting at headquarters in Raleigh yesterday, succeeding the late John M. Galloway, of Greensboro. The choice of Mr. King for this tremendously important place was made by the unanimous vote of the directors.

From the very inception of the co-operative marketing movement John W. King has been a staunch supporter of the plan. He had long been an intimate friend of Mr. Galloway. Recently at a meeting in Greensboro, Mr. King was elected president of the Central Carolina Warehousing corporation, one of the subsidiaries of the Tri-State organization. He has very extensive tobacco plantations in Guilford county, and has had valuable experience both as a buyer and a seller of leaf tobacco. The directors feel that he is splendidly qualified for the duties of his new office in the association.

Assurance of loans in the aggregate sum of $4,000,000 to be obtained by the Tobacco Growers' Co-operative association from the banks of North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia is an encouraging recent development which was commented upon at yesterday's meeting of the directors in Raleigh. Oliver J. Sands, of Richmond, president of the association, brought news of that tangible evidence of co-operation upon the part of the bankers of the three states. From James H. Craig, of Anderson, S. C., treasurer of the Tri-State association, came telegraphic advice to the effect that a million dollars had been raised from the banks of South Carolina in conjunction with plans for opening of the co-operative markets in that state. Delivery of tobacco on the association markets in the Palmetto state will begin within the next few days, it is announced.

Resolutions of respect to the memory of Mr. Galloway were adopted by the association directors.

Accepts Dover's Resignation
Washington, July 25.—President Harding has accepted the resignation of Elmer Dover, Tacoma, Wash., as assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of internal revenue and customs. It was announced today at the White House.

GOVERNOR CONDEMNS DAMNABLE TEACHING

Tells Instructors He Will Strive To Crush Teachers of Doctrine That Drenched Europe in Blood

Raleigh, July 26.—"Men are teaching in North Carolina today that damnable Russian doctrine that the law is a heartless and a cruel thing," Governor Cameron Morrison told the teachers of vocational agriculture, gathered in annual conference, at A. and E. college yesterday as he turned aside a moment from his message on the home production of foodstuffs. He promised that as long as he may be governor he will do everything in his power to "crush the teachers of the doctrine that has drenched Europe in blood."

The governor took a whack at those who opposed his stand on the strike situation in North Carolina and the United States. Speaking of his letter in reply to President Harding's appeal for troops to help open the coal mines, he declared "If Harding and the folks at Washington will let me run North Carolina, I will be perfectly willing to let them run the United States—if they can."

Governor Morrison voiced his unalterable stand against "any group of citizens who erect a standard of insubordination in North Carolina and insist upon their rights to mob a man for no other reason than he has a job and wants to work it."

"The future greatness of North Carolina depends a great deal more on raising chickens and hogs than on raising politicians and statesmen," he told the conference.

The governor was in complete accord with the work being done by the vocational teachers. "I know nothing," he said, "that will do more for the strengthening and upbuilding of the state than the teaching of real scientific agriculture. It ought to be tremendously augmented in North Carolina for it is a science that can be easily and inexpensively taught."

Governor Morrison said that he hoped to be able to present a definite plan for an enlargement of the scope of agricultural teaching before the next general assembly.

Killed By Live Wire

High Point, July 25.—Arthur Paschal, aged 35, was killed almost instantly shortly after 11 o'clock Monday night when he came in contact with a live electric wire in the rear of his home on West Green street here.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Mrs. Cressy Injured
Mount Airy, July 25.—Mrs. Edith Cressy, widow of the late Rev. W. S. Cressy, D. D., of the Western North Carolina Methodist conference, met with a painful accident in the kitchen of her home Sunday. Mrs. Cressy caught her foot under the edge of a rug on the floor and fell against the kitchen sink, cutting a gash in her head and bruising her face and eye, as well as painfully hurting her knee on the cement floor.

Wreck Victim Dies
Winston-Salem, July 25.—R. C. Allred, of this city, who was seriously hurt Sunday afternoon when the car in which he was riding on the Reynolds road overturned in a deep ditch, died in a local hospital Monday as the result of internal injuries received in the wreck.

Biggest of All Peach Shows
Hamlet, July 26.—The biggest peach show ever held in the United States began here Tuesday. Every phase of orchard development is being presented by experts, the program being arranged so as to be of value to peach growers.

Beaten By Masked Men
Lumberton, July 25.—C. R. McLeod, who lives in St. Paul's township, Robeson county, was taken from his home by eight masked men last night and given a severe whipping. Two men, T. N. Sibbett and John Pittman, both of the St. Paul's cotton mill village, were arrested and are in jail here charged with having a hand in the affair.

Successful Furniture Show
High Point, July 24.—Saturday was the last day of the July furniture show—the best in every respect that has been held in the mammoth Southern Furniture exposition building. Manufacturers, salesmen and buyers have commented upon unqualified success of this big event.

Black Chosen Manager
Raleigh, July 26.—U. B. Blaylock, of Wadesboro, has been secured as general manager of the North Carolina Cotton Growers' Co-operative association. As president of the state farmers' convention, which meets in Raleigh next week, Mr. Blaylock has already become well known to many North Carolinians.

Deadly Lightning Bolt
Hickory, July 25.—R. L. Mize, well known citizen of Highland, brings to Hickory news of a peculiar freak of lightning in C. C. Rost's pasture there recently. A bolt splintered a poplar tree, near which Mr. Mize's cow was grazing, killed the animal and at the same time killed a jay-bird and thrush which had taken refuge in the tree.

Call To Durham Pastorate
Durham, July 26.—Rev. Trela D. Collins, general secretary of the Wake Forest College Alumni association, has been extended a call to the pastorate of the Temple Baptist church in this city, it was announced today.

Get 1,000 Converts, $4,000
Goldsboro, July 25.—The Ham-Ramsey revival, in progress during the past seven weeks, was concluded Sunday night with a total of 1,000 converts and a contribution of $4,000 to the evangelist and the music leader, W. J. Ramsey, and the unanimous vote of the audience for several thousand for their return next year.

Imperial Wizard Says Klan Is Yet Unmasked

Atlanta, July 25.—Edward Young Clarke, Imperial wizard pro-tem of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, late Monday issued a statement denying that he had unmasked the Ku Klux Klan in Georgia, or any other part of the country.

The only thing he did, Mr. Clarke said, was to issue an executive order, applying only to Georgia, "stopping for the time being all parades and the use of the mask and costume for any purpose in Georgia, by the klansmen except in the klavern or lodge room of the Klan."

Guardsmen Return From Camp Glenn

Following a stay of 17 days at Camp Glenn, Morehead City, Greensboro's national guard unit, known as Headquarters company, 120th North Carolina regiment, returned to the city Monday night at 9 o'clock. The 40 members of the company, under the command of Lieut. DeWitt Reynolds, marched to the armory on Washington street and shortly afterward the men went to their various homes. Major Ralph R. Fairless, machine gun officer of the regiment, who also has been at Camp Glenn, returned Monday.

Improvement shown by the company in drill and special training work was very gratifying, according to Lieutenant Reynolds, who said that "before the men had been at Camp Glenn long they were moving across the drill field like veterans."

PRESIDENT PLACES BLAME ON STRIKERS

In Reply to Charges of Efforts to "Put American Labor Under Gun," Outlines Position

Washington, July 26.—In the event of further interference with transportation and with production of vitally needed coal the responsibility for such a distressing situation will attach to the striking railway employees and miners. President Harding declared today in a telegram which he sent to Elmer Dean, chairman of the Railroad Employees' Publicity association, at Chattanooga, Tenn. The wire was in response to one sent Mr. Harding by Mr. Dean in which the latter charged that the President was "attempting to put American labor under the gun."

"I can only treat your political partisan references with that contempt which is felt by every good American citizen in the hour of deep public concern," President Harding wired Mr. Dean. He declared that the "same unchallenged freedom which permits you and your associates to decline to work is no less the heritage of the free American who chooses to accept employment under the terms proposed. The difference between the two positions is that the striking railroad workers exercise their rights of freedom in seeking to hinder the necessary transportation of the country, notwithstanding the provision made by law for the consideration of any just grievance; and the striking miners seek to prevent the production of coal necessary to common welfare; notwithstanding the offer of an agency to make an impartial settlement; while the men who choose to work in response to the call of the country are exercising their like rights, and at the same time are making their contribution to our common American welfare."

Guernsey Breeders To Meet
Salisbury, July 24.—The second annual mid-summer meeting and Guernsey sale of the North Carolina Guernsey Breeders' association will be held at the Beallmont farms at Linwood, Davidson county, on Thursday, August 17.

WHOLE-TIME HEALTH DEPARTMENT SOUGHT

District Nurse Body and Three West City Health Department With Full-Time Physician

Establishment and maintenance of a city health department to be directed by a physician devoting his entire time to the work was sought by the city council by the District Nurse and Relief committee and the City Federation of Women's Clubs, through their representatives, Mrs. Julius W. Cone and Miss Harriet Elliott, Monday afternoon.

While no definite action was taken by the council, Mayor Claude Kiser evidently voiced the sentiment of that body when he expressed the conviction that more extensive organized health activity upon the part of the city was much to be desired. The mayor indicated that further information regarding the proposition would probably be obtained in the early future. Spokesmen for the committee are hopeful that early favorable action will be taken.

Mrs. Cone said that the city should have a health survey made here by an expert from the United States Public Health service with a view to learning the exact health organization needs. She pointed out that a great deal of health work through its home and tuberculosis patients and otherwise had been done and is being done here by the District Nurse and Relief committee, but members of that organization feel that the responsibility for organized health activity should necessarily devolve largely upon the city government, although the District Nurse workers would be glad to continue to assist in every practicable manner.

Speaking for 10 organizations, women's clubs of the city, Miss Elliott declared the time for definite action had arrived. "The women of the city," she said, "feel that the time has come for the city to do the work that has been done hitherto by a group of women."

Hold Two Men For Assaulting Young Girl

Spray, July 26.—O. J. Norton and Clarence Ware, two young white men, are in jail at Wentworth on a charge of having criminally assaulted 13-year-old May Roswell, daughter of J. W. Roswell, of this city, charged with luring the girl into a lonely spot where the alleged attack was made, is held here.

The scene of the assault was a point near the canal on the river bank, where it is said the two men and the woman took the unsuspecting girl.

The two men made their appearance Tuesday morning in Spray and were marked as strangers by W. L. Vernon, chief of police. One of them knew the Spencer woman, it is said, and induced her to get the Roswell girl to accompany them in an automobile. Reaching the place, Ware and the woman went ahead and then Norton attacked the girl, it is charged.

Miss Roswell put up a terrific fight, the appearance of the place indicates. Her face, arms and body were badly bruised.

OVER THREE MILLION IN HIGHWAY PROJECTS

Low Bids On 20 Road Projects In North Carolina Beach Large Total—One Guilford Project

Raleigh, July 26.—Providing for aggregate mileage of 179.66 of both gravel and hard surface construction, low bids received on 20 highway projects here yesterday by the State Highway commission totaled $3,370,339.

The new mileage under contract will bring North Carolina's total for the past three years past the 2,500 mark, leaving the 1920 goal of 1,000 miles less than 100 miles to be attained.

One highly important project upon which bids were received yesterday is No. 236, which extends from the Wake county line to Smithfield, on the Central highway. Following its completion one may ride from a point 30 miles east of Raleigh to Statesville entirely over a paved highway. This stretch embraces 14.83 miles of hard surface road. The low bidder on this project was E. G. Lassiter and company, of Oxford, the figure being $419,934.

The commission awarded no contracts yesterday, more time being needed for study of various bids. As a rule the lowest bids are accepted.

Following is the list of low bidders for the Guilford county project, No. 535:

Project 35, Guilford—Section of Route No. 80 between Greensboro and Reedy Fork, 7.78 miles hard surface: Roadway, Leaksville Lumber company, Leaksville $235,779.10; structures, Hagerdorn Construction Co., Thomasville, $16,907.45.

General Robertson Dead
Raleigh, July 26.—General Thomas R. Robertson, former adjutant general of North Carolina, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, and several years ago superintendent of public buildings and grounds, died in Morganton Monday at midnight and will be buried at Charlotte today. Mrs. Robertson, who lives here, left Tuesday for Charlotte, accompanied by W. J. Andrews.

THREE ACRES YIELD 275 BUSHELS OATS

Phenomenal Crop Reported From Scotland County—Thirty-eight Pounds to Bushel, Too

Laurinburg, July 26.—A phenomenal yield of oats at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. B. I. Nicholson is reported by C. L. Newman, Scotland county demonstration agent. On three acres Mr. Nicholson harvested 275 bushels of oats, which were carefully measured when threshed. These oats, says Mr. Newman, weighed 38 pounds to the bushel. The standard weight of a bushel of oats is 32 pounds showing these to be of superior value. The straw was very heavy and the value of the straw crop is of considerable measure. Mr. Newman secured from Mr. Nicholson the secret of the splendid yield, or the things to which he attributes the high production. These are lime for the soil, the use of regumes, pedigreed seed and plenty of seed. Mr. Nicholson sowed 10 bushels of pedigreed strain Fulham oats on the three acres late in October of last year. The oats followed cowpeas. No fertilizer was used with the oats, but the cowpeas and a corn crop before them were fertilized lightly with acid and kainit mixture. The average per acre yield was 91 2-3 bushels. Mr. Nicholson plans to sow another three acres to oats this fall and will sow 12 bushels of seed to three acres.

Thinning Official Personnel

Washington, July 25.—Elimination or demotion of approximately 2,500 army officers is the task facing the board of general officers appointed for this special enterprise and which today began such activities here. Maj.-Gen. Joseph T. Dickman, retired, is president of the board. It is the biggest job of the kind ever undertaken among regular army officers and is made necessary because of Congress' sharp reduction of army strength.

Officers Elected At Firemen's Convention

Morehead City, July 26.—The following officers were elected for the new year at this afternoon's session of the North Carolina State Firemen's association: J. D. McNeill, Fayetteville, president emeritus; J. H. Wood, Asheville, president; J. L. Milford, Chapel Hill, first vice-president; C. D. Farmer, Raleigh, second vice-president; E. E. Bain, Greenville, third vice-president; J. L. Milford, Concord; Charles Schnibben, Wilmington, treasurer and R. E. Currie, Black Mountain, statistician. Durham was chosen as the place of next year's convention. Five hundred firemen from the various sections of the state are attending the 35th annual convention here, which will continue until Saturday. Greensboro is well represented.

Burlington Warehousemen Arrive
Burlington, July 26.—W. M. Miles, an experienced tobacco warehouseman of Mebane, and J. E. Yarbrough, have arrived in the city and will assist in the operation of the two co-operative tobacco warehouses in Burlington during the coming season.

NEWS OF THE NATION

Oil Price Reduced

San Francisco, July 25.—The Standard Oil company of California today announced a reduction in price for all grades of crude oil, at the well, of 25 cents a barrel. The company also announced a temporary discontinuance of its practice of contracting for the purchase of crude oil.

Ban On Liquor Imports

Washington, July 26.—Imports of wine and liquors were banned last night by Commissioner Blair of the Internal Revenue department until supplies already in the country for non-beverage uses are insufficient to meet the national requirements.

Derides "Fantastic Schemes"

New York, July 26.—Declaring that the government's "fantastic schemes" to re-open the coal mines were a complete failure, and that the delay they had occasioned contributed to pending fuel famine, John L. Lewis, president of the international union, last night renewed his invitation to operators to settle the strike by joint conference.

Finds Evidence Insufficient

Moultrie, Ga., July 26.—The Colquitt county grand jury which was called into special session today to investigate the lynching near here of William Anderson, negro, charged with an attempted attack on a white girl, adjourned late today because of inability to get evidence sufficient to warrant indictments, it was announced.

Propose New Commission

Washington, July 26.—Creation of a federal coal commission of three members appointed by the President to investigate the coal industry and recommend legislation to Congress was proposed in a resolution introduced Tuesday by Chairman Borah, of the senate labor committee.

Alleged Slayer Acquitted

Moultrie, Ga., July 26.—Mrs. Sarah Creech, tried here today on a charge of murdering in connection with the fatal stabbing of Dolly Waldrop, was acquitted by a jury in Colquitt county Superior court tonight. The jury was out 10 minutes.

Star Witness Arrested

Danville, July 25.—W. M. Kincaid, of Charlotte, N. C., who was the star witness against C. A. Frasier, convicted of automobile larceny and sentenced to six years in the state prison, was arrested here yesterday on charges of violating the state liquor law and driving his car while intoxicated. At Kincaid's trial yesterday afternoon he was fined $98 for the two offenses.

Lenroot Attacks Tariff

Washington, July 25.—Following his failure to secure action by the senate finance committee majority Senator Lenroot, Republican, Wisconsin, yesterday projected in the senate a fight to limit the 60 per cent ad valorem levy prescribed in the pending tariff bill as a duty on wools in the raw and manufactured state.

Second Primary In Texas

Dallas, Tex., July 26.—The second primary for the Democratic nomination for United States senator will be waged between Earle B. Mayfield, who led in Saturday's primary, and former Governor James E. Ferguson, available figures indicate. Ferguson has forged ahead of Senator Charles A. Culberson, virtually eliminating the latter as a possibility for the second primary.

D. J. Whichard Dies At Greenville Home

Greenville, July 25.—D. J. Whichard, Sr., died today at 11 a. m. at his home, after several weeks' illness. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 5 p. m. He was 59 years old and leaves a widow and four children.

Mr. Whichard was one of the most widely known newspaper men in the state. He was editor of the Daily Reflector from 1885 until nominated as local postmaster. He was taken ill later and was succeeded by Postmaster Munford. He was a member of the Memorial Baptist church, being the oldest deacon in the church, having served 40 years.

Candidates May Go Before Voters Again

Henderson, July 24.—Called upon to rule on the respective merits of Mrs. George Buchan and P. E. Rowland, incumbent for the Democratic nomination for register of deeds of Vance county, Superior Court Judge John H. Kerr today proposed that both waive their claims and permit the electorate to pass on the question again at the general election in November.

The novel proposal was accepted by both candidates, through their attorneys, but Thomas M. Pittman, chairman of the Board of Elections and the only member of the board in the absence of a majority of the membership and the hearing was continued until August 24, in order to permit the Board of Elections to consider the proposal.

COAL RATION. LATEST PLAN

State of Emergency Is Now Resolved

MUST PROTECT PUBLIC

Threat of Famine and Transportation Closes Government Issue Number of Sharp Orders

Washington, July 25.—Support of the railroad labor board as the only agency created by law for handling the transportation tieup, acceleration of coal production under federal protection, and control of fuel distribution were given by administration spokesmen today as the three fundamentals of the government's policy toward the industrial crisis involved in the coal and railroad strikes.

Restatement of the government's position followed the regular Tuesday meeting of the cabinet which, for nearly three hours, devoted its attention to the double threat against the country's economic fabric—famine in fuel and disruption of interstate commerce.

The first step toward control of depleted transportation facilities and coal supply came shortly afterwards in a statement from the Interstate Commerce commission declaring that an emergency existed in the territory east of the Mississippi which required the commission to direct the routing of all essential commodities and to fix preference and priority status to control movement of food and fuel.

The priority order was followed by a "general service order" from the commission notifying "all common carriers" that an emergency existed, which required them to disregard usual routing practice, freight rate divisions and traffic arrangements so as to obtain the most expeditious movement of essential freights.

Becoming effective tomorrow the commission's mandates give railroads first priority on fuel requirements with electric power, light, gas, water and other necessities plants serving the public and refrigeration plants engaged in preservation of food following in the order named.

In outlining the government position in the railroad strike, administration spokesmen said it had been decided that the railroad labor board's statutory authority to determine wages and working conditions for railroad employees must be recognized and upheld, and that the attempts to operate mines in spite of the miners' union strike must be continued until it is demonstrated that not enough men are willing to work under state and federal protection to bring out an adequate tonnage.

CO-OPERATIVE DAY AT FARM MEETING

August 3 Will Be Featured By Address On New System of Marketing Farm Products

Co-operative marketing is to be featured on Thursday, August 3, the third day of the farm convention at Raleigh. Among the speakers who will tell how co-operative marketing is working in North Carolina are: B. W. Kilgore, representing the North Carolina Cotton Growers' association; G. A. Norwood, president of the Tri-State Tobacco Growers' Co-operative association; Robert M. Page, representing the sandhill peach growers; and C. D. Matthews, state horticulturist, who will speak for the organized fruit and truck growers of the state.

The completed program which has just been issued includes names of men from other states who have made reputations in the field of agriculture, while the leaders of North Carolina are also on the program for a series of talks and demonstrations that will be of practical value to every farmer who attends. Among the many subjects to be covered are: Cotton dusting; for the control of the boll weevil; grass and pastures for Eastern North Carolina; better seed; control of plant diseases and insects; soil fertility and soybeans. Poultry equipment is to be on display along with many other exhibits of practical value.

Postmaster General Work has tendered the use of the postoffice radio station at Washington, D. C., over which some of the national officials will speak to the convention. State college has made arrangements to receive these messages over its own apparatus so that all can hear. Special rates on the railroads are expected to help make this year's convention a record-breaker in attendance, but arrangements are made to take care of all farmers and their families who attend. The program assures all of three full days of entertainment and instruction.

Some Money For Depositors

Fairmont, July 26.—Depositors of the defunct Bank of Fairmont will be paid within the next 10 days 15 per cent of the balance of their deposits, according to a statement of A. E. Bullock, receiver. The assets of the bank were increased by the compromise settlement with H. L. Blue, former cashier, who paid the bank something over $150,000.

A KINGDOM RESTORED

The International Sunday School Lesson,

By REV. E. P. BILLUPS,

Assistant Pastor West Market Street Methodist Church.

(Jer. 29:10.. Ezra 1: 1-11)

God's Great Promise.—In the fourth year of Jehoiaikim Jeremiah prophesied concerning Judah and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem that "this whole land shall be a desolation, and an astonishment; and these nations shall serve the king of Babylon 70 years." To bring the "chosen people" to such a fate seems stern and cruel; yet it was not undeserved, for in forsaking the Sanctuary, in forgetting God, in their idol worship, and in their unrestrained wickedness they had brought upon themselves this calamity. And although God brings upon them "an everlasting reproach, and a perpetual shame, which shall not be forgotten," He does not leave His people without hope. In bold contrast to these prophecies of dire calamities are these words which give hope, not only to the Jews, but to the peoples of all ages: "Ye shall seek me, and find me, when ye shall search for me with your whole heart." This is the climax of all prophecy, that all nations and all individuals who seek God shall be rewarded. After living in a strange land among strange people who worshiped strange gods, the Jews were cured of their idolatry; and by bitter hardships and an almost unbearable persecution there was inculcated in their lives a spirit of devotion and fidelity to God that was to remain forever unshaken. Political hopes were for the first time abandoned, life became a stern reality, God became real, the house of the Lord became an object of their devotion, and fostered by the promise that "After seventy years are accomplished for Babylon, I will visit you, and perform my good work toward you, in causing you to return to this place," they were ready to begin their pilgrimage to their beloved Zion. And those who were not able to go gave freely of their means to help restore the sacred city.

The Proclamation.—At this time, Cyrus was king. Cyrus was a wise and good king, in character one of the noblest of ancient times. Plutarch said that "in wisdom and virtue and greatness of soul he excelled all other kings." While he never embraced the Hebrew religion, he was not actuated by the spirit of intolerance; he was wise enough to know that religious freedom to the Jews meant peace and prosperity for his kingdom. But that was not the only motive. "Jehovah stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia." If we could only have today men, or more men, rulers included, with "stirred spirits." Having within him that divine impulse, the king issued a proclamation and put it in writing that "Who is there among you of all his people? his God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judah, and build the house of the Lord God of Israel. (he is the God) which is in Jerusalem." This was the emancipation proclamation of a people long in political and spiritual bondage.

And it is another instance of where God uses a heathen king, as he since used Grecian culture and Roman Empire, for furthering his cause and aiding in the bringing about the final consummation of His eternal purpose.

God's Great Purpose Fulfilled.—It was not the freedom of the Jews that was set forth in this return, but the restoration of the house of the Lord. Through all their trials and hardships the Jews could not see God's great aim. While they were thinking that God had forgotten them, God was leading them in a way that they did not understand. Slowly, but surely, God was leading them from bogs of materialism and idolatry to the heights of great spiritual ideals. They were to carry the sacred vessels across burning desert sands and rebuild in Jerusalem the temple of God. It was thence sacred trust because it looked to the establishment of the kingdom of Christ in the hearts of men.

Today our devotion to God cannot be expressed perhaps by the carrying of the sacred vessels or by the building of temples of stone. But more sacred vessels are given into our hands, to carry across a more dangerous desert. As Alexander Maclaren said, "let us bear the charge" and "Be ye clean, that bear the vessels of the Lord, and see that ye carry them, untarnished and unlost to the house of the Lord which is in Jerusalem." And let us also remember that there is committed to our trust the "plan that was given us on the mount," may we build them eternal in the heavens.

God's Presence in History.—As the Jews were not always able to see God's providence, we today are not always confident that God is working in the affairs of men. One of the hardest things for us to see is that God is just as interested in the affairs of men today as he was in olden times. We do not see God's presence because in all his plans are included two worlds; we are usually too engrossed in the affairs of this one to think much about the other one. We usually dismiss our thoughts of the other world by saying that "God is in His heaven;" we need also to know that God is in His world. God's presence in the world is as real as eternity and as hopeful as the shining of the sun. Throughout history God has been present directing, guiding, restraining. No one can study history with a reverent attitude without recognizing God's providential leading in human affairs.

"In the great world there are no accidents;
Enthroned above the ages ebb and flow,
Unseen, misunderstood,
God rules, who in all seasons and events,
Through fiery evil and overwhelming woe
Forever works the good."

CO-OPERATIVE MASS MEETINGS ARE HELD

Approximately 15,000 Tobacco Growers Hear Addresses and Much Enthusiasm Is Evidenced

Some 15,000 farmers celebrated the progress of co-operative marketing in a series of successful mass meetings which swept hundreds of new contracts into the Tobacco Growers' Co-operative association from Western North Carolina last week.

Col. C. E. Marvin, of the Kentucky Burley Pool, who came directly from his successful campaign with the Wisconsin tobacco growers and aided in the 75 per cent. sign-up of the Wisconsin crop, addressed large crowds of farmers at Danbury Monday; Keyville, Tuesday; Turnersville, Wednesday; Statesville, Thursday; Greensboro, Friday, and Reidsville last Saturday.

The old belt with 75 per cent. of its tobacco in the Tri-State pool is now on fire with enthusiasm for co-operative marketing. Colonel Marvin prophesied success like that which the organized Kentucky growers are enjoying.

At Reidsville, where the citizens built and turned over a warehouse to the organized growers, the banks of the town agreed to lend their legal limit to the association after a conference with Oliver J. Sands, general manager of the association, following his address to a record-breaking crowd of farmers.

A prominent banker of Pittsboro, Pa., who came south for conference with Mr. Sands and attended the Reidsville meeting, was so impressed with the demonstration of the Western Carolina growers in favor of co-operation and the action of the Reidsville banks in backing the association to the limit that he offered a loan of half a million dollars to the association in behalf of his bank.

Opposition to the organized growers withered throughout South Carolina last week as merchants, bankers and committees of citizens joined the campaigners from four states in the meetings and house to house campaigning which have brought in more than a thousand contracts from the Palmetto state.

A great mobilization of tobacco growers from Nash and Edgecombe counties is predicted for next Saturday, July 29, when Oliver J. Sands, general manager of the association, and Dr. J. Y. Joyner, of La-Grange, are scheduled to address the Eastern Carolina growers in the co-operative warehouse at Rocky Mount.

State Offers Cultures And Limestone At Cost

Raleigh, July 26.—The following from Maj. W. A. Graham, North Carolina commissioner of agriculture, refers to the state furnishing nitrocultures and pulverized limestone at cost to farmers.

"We want to call your attention to the fact that the season for sowing fall clovers and other legumes is rapidly approaching. You will remember that this department is offering the farmers of the state nitrocultures for their legume crops and pulverized limestone for agricultural purposes at cost of production.

"At present the price of nitrocultures is 50 cents per acre, and the price of limestone is $2.00 per ton, bulk, f. o. b. the plant, Bridgeport, Tenn.

"Yours very truly,
W. A. Graham,
Commissioner."

FARM DEMONSTRATION

Selecting Seed Corn (Continued)

Fully matured ears with sound shanks from upright, sturdy stalks have shown, on the average, greater vigor and considerably more resistance to these rot diseases than similar appearing ears from stalks either slightly or badly diseased. Moreover, ears from leaning and broken stalks and ears with slightly rotted shanks from erect stalks are likely to be diseased. Stalks that are wilted and prematurely dead commonly bear diseased ears which are frequently mistaken for early maturing ones by those not suspecting their diseased condition. Many apparently diseased ears droop because of weak, rotten or broken shanks. Such ears are often diseased. Ears from stalks and shanks showing these symptoms have given greatly reduced yields when planted in experimental plots.

Select Ears from Best Normal Stalks
As susceptibility to one disease often means susceptibility to other diseases, it is well to avoid ears from smutted or badly rotted stalks. Furthermore, ears from stalks with either rolled, crinkled, or spotted leaves, or from plants with many dried leaves, also yield less and should not be selected for seed.

In order to have enough seed from which to get the best seed, it is advisable to gather about five times as many as will be required for next year's planting. This will allow for shrinkage, discarded ears, butt-and-tip shelling, grading, etc.

It is best to take only matured ears of medium size from upright plants whose stalks and portions of the leaves are still green and whose ears are supported at a convenient height on strong, sound shanks.

Curing and Storage

The seed ears, after being selected in the field, should be so handled and stored that they will dry uniformly and thoroughly. If the moisture content of the ears remains high, harmful organisms may grow into the ears, and infect them. Because of this it is of the utmost importance that the ears be kept in a dry, well ventilated place.

After the seed ears have been selected, cured and stored they should be very carefully sorted during the winter or early spring. Only the very best ears should be retained for seed.

MORRISON DECLINES TO DEBATE QUESTION

Governor Morrison Tells Barrett Question of Troops in Strike Zones Not Debatable

Raleigh, July 25.—Governor Morrison yesterday wired James F. Barrett, president of the State Federation of Labor, that the question of sending troops to points affected by the strike of the railway shopmen "is not a debatable position." Mr. Barrett had telegraphed the governor inquiring his readiness to debate the question with the chief executive.

"If the troops are denying you or those you represent the right to do anything you want to do please let me know at once what it is and if it is not against the law, I will see that they are required to let you do it," the governor informed the head of the labor federation.

That the troops now on duty at Rocky Mount and Aberdeen should furnish the same protection to the strikers as that afforded strikebreakers was emphasized by the governor.

Following the receipt of telegrams from members of railroad labor organizations at Hamlet in which protection for E. G. Smith, striking carman, was asked, Governor Morrison ordered that the commanding officer of the detachment at Aberdeen furnish Mr. Smith such protection as might be needed. In their telegram representatives of the labor unions declared that on July 1 the man Smith was threatened by Henry Page, mayor of Aberdeen; Chris Page, J. J. Heckart and Billie Page, who warned him that if he went to Hamlet again he "had better not return to his home in Aberdeen."

HOME DEMONSTRATION

Drying Fruits and Vegetables

It is extremely important that all fruits and vegetables be saved for future consumption. In almost every garden and every home orchard there occur at different times and in varying amounts surplus products above those that can be used. This surplus can best be saved through the agencies of canning and drying.

Drying or evaporating is the simplest and cheapest method of preserving fruits and vegetables for future use. It may be used successfully with many different fruits and vegetables.

The preservation of fresh material by drying or evaporating is dependent upon the reduction of the moisture content to such a degree that the activity of destruction enzymes is stopped. Because of the preservative action of the sugar which they contain, fruits do not need to have their moisture content reduced to such a degree as do vegetables.

The ideal to be attained in drying consists in the preservation of the material with the smallest possible change from the fresh state as regards quality, flavor, aroma, food value and attractiveness.

Late Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, and root crops such as beets, onions, parsnips, carrots, together with the better keeping varieties of apples, should be stored rather than dried if they mature at a time when they may be safely kept in this way. The more perishable fruit and vegetable crops should be dried.

Conservation of surplus fruits and vegetables by drying is highly practical and may be used in every home at slight expense.

Drying is so simple and so inexpensive that quantities of fruits and vegetables which are too small to can conveniently may be dried.

Dried fruit and vegetable products require a minimum expenditure for containers, and if properly stored may be kept for a long period of time. They are not bulky and occupy a relatively small space. When properly dried, fruits and vegetables lose very little or nothing of their natural flavor and retain their entire food value. These dried products can be cooked into very attractive and appetizing dishes.

City School Tax Cut From 50 Cents To 45

Reduction of the school tax in this city from 50 to 45 cents was ordered last night by the City Board of Education. Under the provisions of the city charter the City Council is required to ratify this action by the school board, so it is regarded as certain that the 45-cent rate will be included in the city budget for the year.

It is announced that 35 cents of the 45 will be used for general school purposes, while 10 cents will be applied to reduction of outstanding indebtedness, the latter figure being the same amount as last year. The amount devoted to general school purposes last year totaled 40 cents. Reduction of the outstanding debt to the extent of $99,134.74 was effected during the past year. The debt now being $112,383.16. It is considered probable that the debt will be practically liquidated within another year.

The financial resolution adopted by the board sets forth the fact that the school board "moved within its budget last year by $15,647."

Offers $400 Reward For Billings' Capture

Raleigh, July 26.—Governor Morrison offers a reward of $400 for the capture of Talmadge Billings, of Wilkes county who, following the commutation of his sentence from death to life imprisonment, escaped from Boone Ford in April, of this year. He was convicted of the murder of Will Chatham, which occurred in June, 1919, and his case was finally affirmed on appeal in 1921.

Word comes that Billings has taken refuge in the mountains, that he is engaged in the illicit liquor business and that none will dare run him down for fear of personal violence from him.

PUBLIC HEALTH

By Wm. M. Jones, M. D.

Repeated instances when rashes on children were considered to be trivial affairs instead of scarlet fever are coming to the attention of the State Board of Health. It is not always easy for a physician to diagnose scarlet fever, so it is more difficult for a layman. Quite often the symptoms are so mild that they pass unnoticed. After a while the skin begins to peel and the hands and feet swell as a result of kidney complications which might have been avoided had proper care been taken.

For the above reason the State Board of Health is suggesting to people that they consider more seriously rashes occurring in children and that they make sure to request the physician to observe the child's tongue to see if it is like a strawberry because this is one of the main points in diagnosis. Proper care will prevent many deaths from scarlet fever.

ASKS PRESIDENT'S MAN SAWYER TO STAND ASIDE

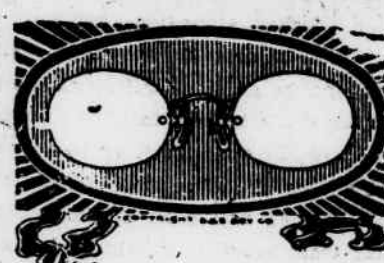

Chicago, July 25.—Colonel A. A. Sprague, chairman of the American Legion's national rehabilitation commission, in a letter to Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer, personal physician to President Harding, and chief co-ordinator of the Federal Board of Hospitalization, made public today, charges that General Sawyer is standing in the way of proper care for wounded and shell-shocked veterans and holding up hospital plans voted by Congress.

Appealing to General Sawyer to "stand aside" Colonel Sprague said more than 4,500 mental cases still are confined in contract institutions and that of the remaining 4,715 victims of mental disorders only 3,500 are in government institutions devoted entirely to their care.

MUSCLE SHOALS MIX-UP
Until Henry Ford made a proposal to take over Muscle Shoals everybody, including war department officials, was just about reconciled to the idea of abandoning it. Millions upon millions of dollars had been poured into the place, but "that was war," people said and were ready to charge it off to that. The place was a white elephant. But just as soon as Ford put in his offer others rushed in. They thought that if Ford could make something out of it they could. They put in all sorts of offers. They wanted it. Of course the government would have to assist them. The project was no longer dead. It became very much alive.

The Ford offer has been defeated in the senate finance committee. The Democrats on the committee, assisted by three Republicans on the farm bloc group, lost. Republicans on the committee were too numerous. All plans were rejected by the committee, including the Norris plan, a government project. The matter goes to the floor of the senate for final disposition. The chances are that the Ford plan will be defeated there, too, for the senate has a strong Republican majority. Politics played a part in the matter, of course. Henry Ford ran as a Democrat for senator from Michigan once. He did not get in. That was the year Newberry won and everybody knows the scandal attaching to Newberry's "election."

On a business proposition people know that few persons can touch Henry Ford. He has demonstrated what he can do. He does not need any recommendation. The only other plan for Muscle Shoals that received enough votes in the senate committee to count was the Norris government plan. Senator Norris describes his brain child as the "most wonderful" plan. He grew actually frantic in talking about how wonderful his plan is. But what has he ever done in business? Who ever heard of Senator Norris doing anything?

The government does not do so well in a business matter of this kind. It has developed a good postal system, but where it has taken over private business the results have not always been happy ones. There is so much red tape in business; so many "bureaus," so many chances to play politics. There is opportunity where the government is in business for the payment of political debts and that hurts efficiency. Wherever private concerns can operate alone the government, as a general rule, is better off to let them.

Very few people know all about the offers made for the Shoals. They do know that Ford has got away with what he has attempted in the past. They do know that he is not a hog. They do know that he has no waste motion, no politics about him. For that reason most of the people of the country were anxious that his offer be accepted.

As it is, the matter is far from settlement, with the prospect of hanging fire a considerable time.

WATCHING RATES
The people of the state find in A. J. Maxwell, of the State Corporation commission, a strong defender against aggressions on the part of the carriers to increase railroad rates. It is necessary that there be some one who will be eternally on the watch and that is exactly what Mr. Maxwell is. At recent hearings on rate issues in Atlanta, affecting North Carolina, he has fought determinedly against adjustments or shifting in rates that would make the state's burden heavier.

Railroad rates come out the pockets of people. When they get too high they are business killers. Everybody's business they have been in the past, too much nobody's business. Mr. Maxwell seems to understand his duty in the matter and makes it his business to endeavor to prevent increasing costs of everything by increasing transportation costs.

SIMPLY WAITING FOR THE WORST

The coal mine strike and the railroad strike have gone beyond the experimental stage, past the "feeling out" process, and the combatants have settled down to what appears will be long drawn out warfare. The matter is more serious than it first appeared; it is really more serious than it now appears on the surface.

Transportation is one of the most vital elements of life itself. The whole country stagnates when transportation is not efficient and it can not long be efficient unless railroad rolling stock is kept in good repair. The engineers and the train crews are not striking, but the condition of the engines will soon become such that train service, freight and passenger, will be curtailed, in fact, is already being curtailed.

Coal is life blood, too. Industry must slacken when the coal supply slackens, stop when it stops. The figures are alarming. Of the 770,000 coal miners in the country 610,000 are on strike. They have been on strike since April 1. The supply of coal has dwindled to such an extent that Secretary Hoover is going ahead with plans to ration it. Rationing of coal seems almost unthinkable but it is a fact.

The question of the solution of strikes seems as vague as ever. The public, upon whom railroads and coal mine owners, rail employees and coal miners, depend for their bread and butter, seems like some helpless giant, unable to lift its hand for itself.

When the matter becomes so acute that wholesale suffering results something will be done; necessity will demand it. Until then, though, the country must, it seems, simply wait, like waiting for some great storm to burst and pass over.

GOING GOOD

Reports from Kentucky where co-operative marketing of tobacco is an established fact, standing the test, continue to be encouraging. The speech of Colonel Marvin here last week was such as to bring cheer to the hearts of the co-operative tobacco farmers of Guilford.

Some persons pretend to wonder why the farmers embark upon co-operation, which calls for courage of the highest order. They really had no choice. They had nothing else to do. The auction system was getting them nowhere. It was necessary in self-defense to organize.

The theory of co-operative marketing is sound. It has stood up in Kentucky. There is no reason why it should not stand up in North Carolina. The organization has the necessary finances and capable leadership, men experienced in the tobacco business, and all necessary to that the farmers keep their courage. There is no indication that they are faltering; rather they seem more determined as the season approaches.

Those who are the pioneers in the movement are building for all of the growers, for their children and their grandchildren. They have written a financial declaration of independence. It is something worth fighting for.

The railroad strike has not yet been settled and the outcome is not certain, but you may be sure that whatever the result, Old Man Cogswater Jones will pay the freight as usual.

Golden Jubilee Meet of Tar Heel Editors

Shelby, July 27.—With approximately 100 members of the newspaper profession present the opening session of the "Golden Jubilee" convention of the North Carolina Press association was opened here yesterday morning. President J. B. Sherrill, of Concord, presiding.

Three sessions were held—morning, afternoon and night—and the program was crowded with interesting features.

Remarkable developments witnessed during the half century that has passed since the association was formed featured the addresses. Former Congressman Clyde R. Hoey, of Shelby, welcomed the editors, and the response was by Sanford Martin, of the Winston-Salem Journal.

President Sherrill's address was a comprehensive survey of the accomplishments of the past. Other speeches were those of J. A. Robinson, of Durham, member of the association since 1874; T. B. Parker, of Raleigh, of the State Department of Agriculture; Dr. E. W. Knight, of the faculty of the University of North Carolina; M. L. Shipman, association historian and state commissioner of labor and printing; Josephus Daniels, of the Raleigh News and Observer, who delivered the annual oration.

An interesting program is being presented today.

RAINBOW'S END

By REX BEACH

Synopsis

The wife of Don Esteban Varona, rich Spanish planter in Cuba, dies giving birth to twins, Esteban, Jr., and Rosa. Shortly after Varona's second marriage the secret hiding place in an old well of his great store of gold, jewels and deeds to land passes when he is killed by his favorite slave, Sebastian, crazed by cruel treatment after Varona lost Evangelina, Sebastian's daughter, the twins' nurse, at cards, Sebastian is shot. Varona's second wife, hunting the treasure, is killed by the falling in the well. Pancho Cueta, plantation overseer, informs the authorities young Varona is involved in the Cuban insurrection. The twins, now grown, flee to the hut in the hills of Evangelina and her husband, Asensio, now freed. Johnnie O'Reilly, American, Rosa's fiancé, is called back to New York by his company and for some time can hear nothing from her.

O'Reilly finally receives a letter from Rosa relating her wretched life as a refugee.

The Quest Begins

When O'Reilly had finished his second reading of the letter there were fresh blots upon the pitifully untidy pages. "I write nicely, only the ink is poor—" "There is little of anything here at Asensio's house—" "It is cold before the dawn—" "Poor little Rosa! He had always thought of her as so proud, so high-spirited, so playful, but another Rosa had written this letter. Her appeal stirred every chord of tenderness, every impulse of chivalry in his impressionable Irish nature. She doubted him; she feared he would not come to her. Well, he would set her doubts at rest. "O God! Come quick! If you love me," He leaped to his feet; he dashed the tears from his eyes.

Mr. Slack looked up, astonished at the apparition which burst in upon him.

"I want my salary, quick," Johnnie began.

Mr. Slack resented emotion. "My dear man," he said, "I'd advise you—"

"I don't want advice; I want money," snapped the other. "I've quit, resigned, skipped, fled."

There was a queer, wild light in O'Reilly's eye and for once Mr. Slack took orders from an underling. He humped himself.

Johnnie's other preparations were conducted with equal vigor and promptitude; within two hours his belongings were packed. He hastened down town to the office of the Cuban Junta.

At this time the newspapers of the United States were devoting much space to the insular uprising; the first stories of Spanish atrocities later, alas! destined to become all too familiar, were gaining public attention, and there were few readers who did not know something about the activities of that body of patriots who made their headquarters at 56 New street. It was from this place that the revolution was largely financed, so the papers said. It was there that the filibustering expeditions supplying arms and ammunition originated. To 56 New street O'Reilly went. He gained admittance to the presence of Mr. Enriquez, a distinguished, scholarly Cuban of middle age.

"You say you have important business with me?" the latter inquired.

O'Reilly plunged boldly into the heart of the matter which had brought him thither. When he had finished his tale Mr. Enriquez inquired:

"But how do you expect me to help you?"

"I want your advice more than your help, although you might tell me where I can find Colonel Lopez."

Enriquez eyed his caller keenly. "That information would be very well worth having," said he. "But, you understand, we know little about what is going on in Cuba—far less than the Spaniards themselves. I'm afraid I can't help you."

"You don't take me for a spy, do you?" Johnnie asked, with his friendly grin.

"Ah! You don't look like one, but we never know whom to trust. This young lady in whom you are interested, who is she?"

"Her name is Varona; Miss Rosa Varona."

"So?" Enriquez raised his brows. "Not by any chance the heiress to that famous Varona treasure?"

"Exactly!—if there is such a thing." There ensued a pause while the Cuban drummed softly upon his desk with his finger-tips. "Her brother Esteban told me that he was working for your cause. I warned him to be careful, but—" O'Reilly's voice grew suddenly husky. "Here! Read this. I want you to believe me." Reverently he laid Rosa's letter before her countryman. "I'm not in the habit of showing my letters to strangers, but—I guess that'll convince you I'm not a spy."

He sat silently while the letter was being read; nor was he disappointed in the result. Mr. Enriquez raised dark, compassionate eyes to his, saying:

"This is a touching letter, sir. I thank you for allowing me to see it. No, I don't doubt you now."

Dr. Alvarado, a high type of the Cuban professional man, was expecting O'Reilly. He listened patiently to his caller's somewhat breathless recital.

"You do well to avoid the cities where you are known," he agreed. "It would be madness, under the circumstances, even to be seen in Matanzas: those enemies of—your friend—would have you deported. But just how to reach the Insurrectos—"

"If you'd merely give me a letter saying I'm a friend—"

The doctor promptly negatived this suggestion. "Surely you don't think it can be done so easily as that?" he inquired. "In the first place, wherever you land, you will be watched and probably searched. Such a letter, if discovered, would not only end your chances, but it would bring certain disaster upon those to whom it was written. I have no right to jeopardize the lives of those I hold dear. These are perilous times for all good Cubans, Mr. O'Reilly. Enriquez told me about that poor girl. She bears a famous name and—I want to help her." He removed his glasses and wiped them, absent-mindedly. "There are three Albarados living," he resumed. "My two brothers, Tomas and Ignacio, reside in Cuba, and we all work for the cause of independence in our own ways. I am fortunately situated, but they are surrounded by dangers, and I must ask you to be extremely careful in communicating with them, for I am placing their lives in your hands and—I love them dearly."

"I shall do exactly as you say," "Very well, then! Go to Neuquitas, where Tomas lives—there is a steamer leaving in three or four days, and you can arrange passage on her. He is a dentist. Meet him, somehow, and make yourself known by repeating this sentence: 'I come from Felipe. He told me how you whipped him to keep him from going to the Ten Years' War!' That will be enough; he will ask you who you are and what you want."

"I see. It's a sort of password." "No. I've never had reason to communicate with him in this way." Noting the bewilderment in O'Reilly's face, Alvarado smiled. "You won't need to say anything more. No living soul except Tomas and I, knows that he thrashed me, but it is true. I was young, I wanted to go to the war, but he took it out of me with a bamboo. But tell me, when you have found Miss Varona, what then?"

"Why, I'll bring her out."

"How? Do you think you can walk into any seaport and take ship? You will be tagged and numbered by the authorities. Once you disappear into the mangia, you will be a marked man."

"Well, then, I'll marry her right there. I'm an American citizen—"

"Don't build too much on that fact, either," the doctor warned. "Spanish jails are strong, and your country has never compelled that respect for its nationals which other countries insist upon."

"Perhaps! But the first thing is to find Miss Varona and learn that she's safe. I don't much care what happens after that."

O'Reilly had no difficulty in securing passage direct to Neuquitas on the English steamer Dunham Castle, and a few days later he saw the Atlantic Highlands dissolve into the mists of a winter afternoon as the ship headed outward into a nasty running sea.

It proved to be a wretched trip. Cuba, when it came fairly into sight, lay bathed in golden sunshine, all warmth and welcome, like a bride upon an azure couch.

Neuquitas was scorching under a midday sun when Johnnie came on deck. Although there were but few passengers on the Dunham Castle, they were subjected to a long delay during which suspicious customs men searched their baggage and questioned them. Finally, however, O'Reilly found himself free to go ashore. He had passed the ordeal handsily, and now he was eager to reach some lodging place where he could remove a revolver which concealed, knocked against his leg so awkwardly at every step. Once on the dock, he gave his bag to a negro and led the way toward the street. At the last moment, however, just as he was about to plant his feet upon solid earth, he was halted by two men who rose from a bench where they had been idling. They carried the tasseled canes of the Secret Service, and O'Reilly felt his heart jump.

With a murmured apology one of them relieved the negro of the valise while the other began to search at Johnnie's shoulders and patted one pocket after another, "fanning" him in the fashion approved of policemen. When the officer had slapped every pocket, ending at the hips, he nodded; his companion snapped shut the valise, and handed it back to the porter.

O'Reilly paused a moment or two later to wipe the abundant perspiration from his face; even yet his pulse was pounding erratically.

He was a globular, unctuous little man, this Carbajal; he reminded O'Reilly of a drop of oil. He evinced an unusual interest in the affairs of his American guest, and soon developed a habit of popping into the latter's room at unexpected moments, ostensibly to see that all was as it should be. Now there was very little in the room to need attention—only a bed with a cheese-cloth mosquito-net, a wash-stand, and a towering, smelly clothes-press of Spanish architecture, which looked as if it might have a dark and sinister history. When, for the third time, he appeared without knocking, O'Reilly suspected something.

"You have everything, eh?" Mr. Carbajal tattered upon the balls of his feet while his small black eyes roved inquisitively.

"Everything in abundance."

"There is water, eh?" The proprietor peered dutifully into the pitcher, incidentally taking stock of O'Reilly's toilet articles.

"A veritable ocean of it."

"One never knows. These servants are so lazy. But—your other baggage, your trunk?"

"I have no trunk."

"So? I took you to be a great traveler."

"I am."

"Selling goods, eh?"

"No."

"Indeed? Then you are a pleasure traveler? You see the sights, is that it? Well Cuba is beautiful."

"Most beautiful, judging from what I have seen."

Mr. Carbajal wagged a pudgy forefinger at his guest. "Tut! Tut! You know Cuba. You speak the language better than a native. You can't fool me, sly one!" He wrinkled his face and winked both eyes.

It was an invitation to further confidence, and he was disappointed when it passed unnoticed. "Well, you Americans are a brave people," he continued, with an obvious effort to keep the conversation going.

"You like to be where the fighting is."

"Not I. I'm a timid man."

"Ho! Ha! Ha!" the proprietor cackled. Then he became pensive. "There is nothing here at Neuquitas to interest a tourist—except the war."

"I'm not a tourist."

"Indeed? Now that is interesting." Mr. Carbajal seated himself on the edge of the bed, where he could look into O'Reilly's traveling-bag. "Not a tourist, not a traveling man. Now what could possibly bring you to Cuba?"

O'Reilly eyed his inquisitor gravely.

"I travel for my health," said he.

"You—Health!" Carbajal's frame began to heave; his bulging abdomen oscillated as if shaken by some hidden hand. "Good! Ha! There's another joke for you."

"I'm a sick man," O'Reilly insisted, hollowly.

"From what malady do you suffer?" inquired the hotel-keeper.

"Rheumatism."

"You don't look sick," mumbled Carbajal. "Not like the other American."

"What other American?"

"A peculiar fellow. He went on to Puerto Principe. What a cough! And he was as thin as a wire. He died at the mouth, too, all the time, when he was not reviling my hotel. You'll see him if you go there, provided he hasn't come apart with his coughing. I believe he writes for newspapers. Well, it is my pleasure to serve you. Command me at any hour."

Mr. Carbajal rose reluctantly and went wheezing downstairs.

O'Reilly was not in the least deceived; it was plain to him that the hotel man was in close touch with the Spanish authorities.

ANNOUNCEMENT

THE AMERICAN EXCHANGE NATIONAL BANK is pleased to announce to its patrons and friends that it has purchased the business of the FARMERS AND MECHANICS BANK AND TRUST COMPANY : : : : :

AS a result of this purchase our old friends may have the advantage of an office in South Greensboro, together with all the accommodations afforded by the American Exchange National Bank : : : : :

WITH three offices on Elm street, American Exchange Service should always be within easy reach of the people of this section. It is believed that the opening of an office in the old quarters of the South Greensboro Branch of the American Exchange National at 524 South Elm Street will be especially welcome news to our farmer friends living south of this city : :

AT the South Greensboro office our friends will find us glad to extend every service---the same satisfactory service rendered there by the American Exchange for 20 years, in addition to the improvements made possible by the healthy development of the Bank's resources through that period of years : : : :

MR. W. P. HUTTON is Cashier of the South Greensboro office and is now in charge, assisted by the present courteous and efficient force of the Farmers and Mechanics Bank and Trust Company : : : : :

Greensboro, was a business visitor in the city this morning.W. S. Friddle, of Route 2, Green-boro, spent some time in the city on business Tuesday.David T. Stack, of Route 1, Greensboro, was an interesting visitor here Tuesday. Mr. Stack thinks the Harding administration is becoming more unpopular every day, and voices the conviction that the nation should always have a "strong" man as chief executive.Mrs. Stella Watson, of Climax, visited in Greensboro yesterday.P. T. Highhill, of Route 1, Summerfield, was a visitor in the city this morning.D. W. Young, of Route 6, spent some time here today on business.RECENT DEATHS*Mrs. Louise PattersonFollowing an illness of one week, Mrs. Louise Patterson died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs.
G. F. Davis, 1237 Dairy street, at the age of 73. Death was ascribed to paralysis. Mrs. Patterson was the widow of A. L. Patterson. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. G. F.
Davis, of Greensboro, and Mrs. J. A.
Harvey, of Jamestown; four sons, C.
O. and E. L. Patterson, of this city, and W. H. and T. O. Patterson, of Jamestown; also 16 grandchildren.At the Dairy street residence at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon a short service was held. The remains were then taken to Deep Creek church, 14 miles northwest of Greensboro, for the funeral and interment. Rev. J. Clyde Turner, D.
D., pastor of the First Baptist church, this city, of which Mrs. Patterson for many years had been a member, officiated.Ben Lloyd, Jr.Ben Lloyd, Jr., 15 years of age, died Monday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Lloyd, 213
East Lee street, after a long illness.
Besides his parents he leaves a brother, Harry, and a sister, Emma.
His grandfather, W. M. Stroud, lives at University station, Orange county.
Ben was a member of the First Baptist Sunday school here and he also was actively identified with the Boy Scouts. Last June he had completed the grammar school course at Asheboro Street school.The funeral service was conducted at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the First Baptist church by the pastor, Rev. J. Clyde Turner, D. D., and the remains were interred in Green Hill cemetery.Mrs. Alice HoneycuttTyphoid fever caused the death of Mrs. Alice Honeycutt at her home on West Lee street extension Monday, fatally following an illness of two weeks. Mrs. Honeycutt, who was 24 years of age, leaves a son, Hayworth Honeycutt. Her husband died last December, and last October one of their children died. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Townsend; a sister, Miss Ida Townsend, and two brothers, Gurney and Henry Townsend, live at Overhills. Mrs.
Honeycutt was a member of the Church By the Side of the Road.The funeral was held at the home at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, burial following in Green Hill cemetery.APPLICATION FOR PARDON OF*OSCAR CALDWELLApplication will be made to the Governor of North Carolina for the pardon of Oscar Caldwell, convicted

fred Brown, deceased.WILL OF GALLOWAY
FILED FOR PROBATEMost of Estate of Leading Tobacco Grower Bequeathed to Widow and Two DaughtersThe major portion of the estate of John M. Galloway, whose death occurred in this city on July 16, goes to his widow and two daughters, Margaret Haviland Galloway and Gwendolyn Greeson Galloway, under the provisions of his will, which was filed for probate Tuesday in the office of Mason W. Gant, clerk of Guilford Superior court.The estate embraces approximately 10,000 acres of farmland in Stokes and Rockingham counties, highly valuable real estate in Greensboro and Madison, also personal property of the estimated value of $100, 000. It is indicated that the entire estate represents a value of more than a quarter of a million dollars.The will was filed for probate by J. O. Ragsdale, of Madison, who was named as executor. Because of his inability to serve, Mr. Ragsdale filed his renunciation. Upon petition of Mrs. Margaret G. Galloway, widow of the testator, J. H. Moore, of Madison, was appointed administrator with the will annexed. Mr.
Moore furnished $200,000 bond.Under the instrument Mrs. Galloway and the two children receive equal portions of the estate, being vested in fee simple, share and share alike. The bequests to the widow and the children include the handsome Galloway home at 1115 North Elm street, this city.In fee simple a house and lot on Academy street in Madison was bequeathed to Chalmers Searcy and wife, Dollie Searcy, faithful servants.
Mr. Galloway willed to Bettie Shafer, who lives in the Mebane house, between Madison and Mayodan, a lifetime interest in his seven-tenths interest in a lot containing 12 1-2acres, known as the Mebane home place and which is located between Madison and Mayodan; also a life interest in all other lands adjoining that tract and containing 140 acres, located between Madison and Mayo-dan; lifetime interest in a certain tract of land lying between thosetwo towns, the tract embracing 30 acres. It was stipulated that Bettie Shafer have all debt due the testator by J. B. Corum and sons or any other tenants who might be cultivating the lands at the time of his death. To Bettie Shafer Mr. Galloway also bequeathed $20,000 in cash. At Bettie Shafer's death the lands devised to her revert to Mrs.
Galloway and the two children.All the residue of the estate, both real and personal, was willed to Mrs.
Galloway and her two daughters.The residue of the estate, both
real and personal, was willed to Mrs.
Galloway and her two daughters.NOTICE OF SALE OF AUTOMOBILEBy virtue of authority in the un-

Goodbye Boils!S. S. S. Will Rid You of Boils, Pimples, Blackheads and Skin Eruptions.A boil is a volcano—your blood is so chuck full of poisons that these "boils" out into a boil. They keep "boiling" until you destroy them completely by the use of S. S. S., one of the most powerful blood-purifiers known to science. S. S. S. has stood the test of time. The power of its ingredients is acknowledged by authorities. Its medicinal ingredients are guaranteed to be purely vegetable, light on the stomach, it drives out and does it thoroughly. It drives out of the blood impurities which cause boils, pimples, blackheads, acne, eczema, rash and other skin eruptions, and builds up lost flesh. It helps to manufacture new blood cells—there's one of its secrets. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The larger size is the more economical.Are you "up to the neck" in blood impurity? S. S. S. is one of the greatest blood-purifiers known. Try it.
