

REMSBERG IS SPEAKER HERE

He Addresses Co-operative Marketing Meeting

GARRETT ALSO TALKS

Many Farmers of Guilford County Attend Big Conference Here and Make Plans For Tobacco Marketing Season

Stepping into the gap in the program due to the unaccountable absence of George W. Norwood, of Greensboro, O. Z. Remsburg, of Frederick, Md., national organizer of the American Farm Bureau federation, on Saturday afternoon at the courthouse here talked to Guilford county farmers, two hundred strong, about co-operative marketing, firing about with greater enthusiasm for the system, which, as he pointed out, is liberating them from the economic bondage from which they have suffered many years.

Mr. Norwood, who is president of the Tri-State Tobacco Growers' association, was scheduled to address the meeting, but failed to appear. President John W. King, of the Central Carolina Warehousing corporation, and who also is a director of the Tri-State association, drafted Mr. Remsburg, who made a speech that held the earnest attention of the crowd from the opening to the final syllable.

John W. King presided at the meeting of the growers of the county which had been called to perfect plans for the marketing season which is to begin in Greensboro at an early date. He expressed his regret because of the absence of Mr. Norwood and stated that he was un-informed as to the reasons for the inability of the latter to appear.

It was announced that the date of opening of the Greensboro market had not yet been determined by the head department of the Tri-State association, but it was believed that the market would probably open on October 2 or 3.

Farm Demonstrator E. B. Garrett spoke briefly, emphasizing the importance of the membership campaign to be conducted in the interest of the Guilford County Farm Bureau. He called special attention to the educational meetings scheduled for this week and urged representative attendance at such gatherings.

Mr. Garrett referred to the American Farm Bureau federation as "the daddy rabbit" of co-operative marketing and he told of other valuable work accomplished by the bureau.

Mr. King alluded enthusiastically to the splendid results already attained in co-operative tobacco marketing and he predicted increasingly successful operations. He had visited the auction market in Winston-Salem at the opening last Tuesday and the experience convinced him more clearly than ever that the auction system is doomed. The head of the big warehousing corporation told him of seeing a pin-hooker buy a pile of tobacco at 20 cents a pound, after which he (the pin-hooker) sold it at 35 cents. Properly, that 15-cent profit secured by the speculator belonged to the farmer, he pointed out. Mr. King also reported much dissatisfaction among

FIVE COMMUNITY FAIRS IN OCTOBER

Will Be Held At Mount Pleasant, Whitsett, Jamestown, Monticello and Deep River

Next month will see five community fairs in Guilford county, at Mount Pleasant, Whitsett, Jamestown, Monticello and Deep River. Indications are that the fairs will be very successful. Programs and premium lists have been issued.

An educational address will start the program at each fair, at 8:30 in the morning. Judging will follow at 10 o'clock. Another address will be made in the afternoon at 1 o'clock and athletic contests will begin at 2:30.

The people of the various communities and the county commissioners have provided the prizes, money for the prizes in the educational department having been provided by the county board of education.

Mrs. Dorothy Hayden, county health nurse, will weigh babies and children under school age and give short talks on nutrition.

Following are the dates for the fairs:

Mount Pleasant, October 4.

Whitsett, October 4.

Jamestown, October 5.

Monticello, October 6.

Deep River, October 7.

Most Profitable Melon Patch In Whole County

Lenoir, Sept. 25.—A money making scheme, originating in the brain of a farmer living near here, is said to have brought fine results. He planted a watermelon patch near the road and built a blind near it, to day, when the melons became ripe, with a shotgun. Tourists and travelers passing who could not resist the temptation to stop and pick a melon would be suddenly confronted by the farmer, with his gun, and asked to make reparation. The melon patch is said to be the best paying one in Caldwell county.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Lockhart Criticizes President Charlotte, Sept. 22.—Criticism of President Harding for vetoing the soldiers' bonus bill was voiced in a published statement here today by James A. Lockhart, recently elected state commander of the North Carolina department of the American Legion. The bonus, Mr. Lockhart declared, was designed to aid the American soldier who went to war at a financial sacrifice and to see him on his feet again in order that he might have an equal chance with those who did not go.

To Organize Juvenile Branch Detroit, Mich., Sept. 22.—Organization of a juvenile branch of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows to be known as the Loyal Sons, was approved Thursday at the annual business meeting of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the order here. Reports submitted showed 49,490 charitable homes for Odd Fellows now are maintained in the United States and Canada.

Appointments Announced Raleigh, Sept. 22.—The re-appointment of J. S. Spurgeon, of Hillsboro, and Dr. J. H. Wheeler, of Greensboro, as members of the State Board of Dental Examiners is announced by the governor. The re-appointment of W. H. Lord, of Asheville, and W. C. Northup, of Winston-Salem, and the appointment of James B. Lynch, of Wilmington, as members of the Board of Agricultural Examiners, was also announced.

Barrett Case Postponed Salisbury, Sept. 22.—The cases against J. F. Barrett, of Charlotte, former president of the State Federation of Labor, growing out of his visit here during the shopmen's strike, were postponed today in county court until October 3. A letter from Dr. Glenn, of Asheville, was presented, stating the defendant was in a sanatorium and unable to come to Salisbury today. Barrett was charged with carrying conceal weapons.

Doctor Bound Over Charlotte, Sept. 22.—Dr. J. W. Summers, charged with having performed an illegal operation upon a young woman here last Tuesday, was bound over under $5,000 bond for trial in criminal court today. The woman testified against him and the defense offered no evidence. He made bond and was released.

Officers Are Appointed Shelby, Sept. 22.—Three officers, Perley Hoyle, J. A. Wesson and Carl Short, charged with the shooting of Mrs. L. B. Miller, surrendered to Sheriff Logan late yesterday and were released under bond of $5,000 each. Prohibition Agent Houser was arrested in Gastonia and gave bond there on Wednesday. The case of these four officers will come up in Cleveland court on October 1.

Rockingham Cottage Completed Reidsville, Sept. 22.—A delegation of 18 citizens from this county went to the Jackson Training school, near Concord, to see the officials turn over to the institution the newly completed Rockingham county cottage.

Sentenced To 40 Years Asheville, Sept. 22.—Walter Brooks, special deputy sheriff employed by the Biltmore estate, found guilty in Superior court of second degree murder for killing Laurens West and Emory Lance July 15, was sentenced by Judge George H. Brown Thursday to serve 40 years at hard labor in the state penitentiary.

Sales At Winston-Salem Winston-Salem, Sept. 22.—Sales during the first week of the local tobacco market ending today aggregated 1,714,803 pounds, for which the growers received $386,121.16, an average of $22.50 per hundred pounds.

Ask For Pardon Richmond, Va., Sept. 25.—Petitions which it was claimed carried 60,000 signatures have been presented to Governor E. Lee Trinkle here by a delegation of prominent men and women from many parts of the state who are seeking pardons for Sidna and Friel Allen, and Wesley and Sidna Edwards, now serving sentence in the state penitentiary here for participation in the Hillside courthouse shooting, March 14, 1917, when Judge T. L. Massey, Commonwealth's Attorney W. M. Foster and three other persons were killed.

Request Growers To Await Opening Date

R. O. Gamble, warehouse manager for the Greensboro market of the Tri-State Tobacco Growers' Cooperative association, requests that farmers await official word regarding the opening of the market here before bringing their tobacco to the city. Mr. Gamble and his assistants have the two big, modern warehouses here, the Guilford and the Planters, ready, but the market cannot open until official word is received from the head department of the Tri-State association. It now appears probable that the Greensboro co-operative market will open either on Monday, October 2, or Tuesday, October 3. Announcement of the opening date will be made as soon as the time of opening is determined.

MONSTROSITY AROUSES COX

Should Elect Congress To Undo Tariff Act

COLLAPSE IS FEARED

Former Candidate For President Talks Of "Base Betrayal By America Of Her Allies" and Discusses Incompetent Congress

Cleveland, Sept. 23.—Asked what the issues will be in 1922, former Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio, and Democratic nominee for President in 1920, declared here today in his first address since his return from an extensive tour of Europe, made before the City club, that "the people this year will be asked to elect a Congress that will undo the present tariff monstrosity."

"But we will not lose sight of another great question—the international one," Mr. Cox added. "It will be more pertinent for discussion, however, in the great national forum of 1924."

"When a surgeon finds an injured man suffering from a severed artery and a bad leg, he saws up the artery first. In the present instance, bad as the international wound is, the domestic injury inflicted by the most incompetent Congress in all history is even worse," said he.

"Mr. Cox's address was on 'Impressions of Europe.' Touching on the general European situation, Mr. Cox said in part:

"It is scarcely believable that European powers have agreed to the return of the Turks into the affairs of the continent. There may be a reason which is not apparent from the surface of things. It is barely possible that the whole Mohammedan world has been stirred to its base and that the urge upon England is from India.

"There is a very sensitive nerve center stretching from Europe to southern Asia. What we regard as a fanaticism stirs the millions of Mohammedans into concerted action almost by magic. This theory of the situation is of course speculative. There is one phase, however, that is perfectly clear. Europe is in from war, suffering from an economic breakdown, and divided by the deadlock of reparations, she seems to lack the vitality and resiliency to hold back the Turk.

"All of this is proof of what has been urged upon the administration at Washington for months. Europe has been slowly drifting toward a state of utter collapse. The first thing that started her upon the way was the base betrayal by America of her allies. She not only abandoned them in the peace but she has permitted the vanquished countries to be subjected to a bitterness that must be forgotten if the world is to be rebuilt.

"The chicks are certainly coming home to roost."

BRING MORE CHARGES AFTER MINE KILLINGS

Special Grand Jury Probing Herrin Mine Massacres Returns 214 Indictments. Features Of Report

Marion Ill., Sept. 23.—The special grand jury investigating the Herrin mine killings made a final report today with additional indictments, bringing the total to 214. The jury returned 58 more indictments for conspiracy to commit murder and 54 for assault to commit murder. The jury previously had returned 38 murder indictments and 53 for conspiracy and rioting.

Today's return included six murder indictments and an arraignment of certain authorities, charging them with "failure to protect life and property" in not sending for troops when the mine trouble seemed imminent.

The report describes the action of the Southern Illinois Coal company in opening its mine during the strike and says that the principal owner, J. W. Lester, "either was fully ignorant of the danger or blindly determined to risk strife and conflict if profit could be made."

The report denies the statement of Adjutant General Carlos Black, made shortly after the mine killings, that he had no authority to call out troops unless asked to by the sheriff, and said that there was no law which forbade the adjutant general to call troops.

Sheriff Thaxton is accused of failing in his duty. On this point the jury said:

"Sheriff Melvin Thaxton is a member of the miners' union and also is a candidate for county treasurer and he failed to take adequate measures to preserve the peace because of his sympathy for the union or for fear that it would hurt his candidacy.

SPECIAL TERM COURT STARTS

Over 50 Cases Set For Trial In Three Days

TRY CASHIER LATER

Unlikely That Basil H. Hedgecock Will Be Tried Until October. Trial Of S. L. Jenkins Is Scheduled Here

With Judge W. F. Harding, of Charlotte, presiding, Guilford Superior court for the trial of criminal cases convened here this morning, this being a special one-week term.

The docket is particularly heavy and includes a number of cases to which keen popular interest attaches. More than 50 cases are scheduled for trial the first three days of this week.

While the case against Basil H. Hedgecock, former cashier of the Home Banking company, of High Point, charged with embezzlement, is set for trial next Thursday, it is highly probable that the case will not be tried until the term of court, which will begin Monday, October 2, Postponement of the trial of Will Switzer and Arnold Huff, of High Point, who are charged with aiding and abetting Hedgecock in the abstraction of funds, until next week also is considered virtually certain.

One of the most interesting cases scheduled for hearing this week is the one against S. L. Jenkins, of Winston-Salem, who is charged with a statutory offense. Jenkins is alleged to have been living with Margaret Smith, his arrest having followed the recent alleged hold-up at Taylorsville. The defendant is in the county jail, having failed to furnish the required $10,000 bond. In Municipal court he was sentenced to two years on the Guilford county roads and from that sentence Jenkins appealed to Superior court.

Following next week's term of court a two-week term of court for the disposition of civil cases will begin on Monday, October 9.

Tried To Poison Family

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 22.—An effort to poison the family of P. J. Taylor, a farmer, living near Congaree, today was under investigation by local police and Richland county officials. The poison, a preparation used to kill rats, was found in a well from which the Taylors draw their drinking water. It was discovered before any water had been drawn from the well today.

TRIBUTE OF JACKSON TO FORTY-SIX MINERS

Bodies Recovered From Argonaut Mine Laid To Rest, While Search For William Fessel Continues

Jackson, Calif., Sept. 22.—The 46 bodies recovered from the Argonaut mine were buried today. All other business and domestic activity of Jackson ceased. Even down in the depth of the mountain where a rescue crew searching for the 17th victim, stopped its labors.

Twenty-seven bodies were borne to the Catholic church, eight to the Protestant, and eleven to the Greek Catholic, in three separate corteges. The services in each church were an hour apart to permit the mourners to pay final tribute to all. A temple band, playing dirges, headed each cortege.

Over each grave was placed a wreath, the final tribute of Jackson. The graves were in long rows and in front of them were provided benches for the mourners. The relatives were taken to the churches and cemeteries in special conveyances.

The fate of the missing victim, William Fessel, remained as great a puzzle today as it was when it was announced that his body could not be found in the 4,350 foot drift and cross-cut, where the other bodies lay. Fessel, whose laconic message that the gas was getting bad, was the only record left by the entombed men, may have sought safety somewhere in the ventilator raise that extends from the 4,500 to the 3,900 foot level. This will be explored thoroughly.

The search for Fessel will be continued until he has been found or until it is determined that he has been lost beyond recovery. It was announced today by E. A. Stent, vice-president of the Argonaut mine. Mine officials believe it would have been impossible for Fessel to have broken through the two bulkheads erected in the death drift by the entombed men. There is no doubt, they said today, that Fessel is dead.

Deadly Train Collision

Los Angeles, Sept. 22.—One engineer was killed, another so badly hurt he was expected to die, two firemen seriously crushed and burned and 23 passengers injured when Southern Pacific southbound train 78, the Shore Line limited, collided with train number 38, known as the Santa Paula local, near Montalvo, five miles south of Ventura, at 8:50 o'clock last night.

NEWS OF THE NATION

Murder Mystery Unsolved

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 24.—The authorities of two counties tonight admitted that every clue concerning the double murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall, rector of the church of St. John the Evangelist, and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, the wife of the church sexton, whose bodies were found under an apple tree a week ago Saturday, has carried them into nothing more than a labyrinth of theories, leading nowhere.

Dry Chief Wants $9,125,000

Washington, Sept. 24.—Prohibition Commissioner Haynes will seek an appropriation of $9,125,000 for the enforcement of the federal dry laws during the next fiscal year, 1924, it was said tonight at the treasury.

Five Workmen Killed

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 24.—Five workmen, employed by the Glenn Rogers Coal company at Glenn Rogers, Wyoming county, were killed today when a hoisting bucket loaded with stone fell down a 700-foot shaft crushing them to death. Glenn Rogers is an isolated mining town.

May Close Many Mills

Columbus, Ga., Sept. 22.—Unless there is rain or the transformers of the Georgia Railway & Power company, recently damaged by lightning are repaired within the next week, large manufacturing plants at Columbus, including the cotton mills, most of which are run by electric energy, will have to suspend operation, according to a statement issued by Engineer George W. Cox, of the local utilities company.

Seminary's Offer Accepted

Richmond, Va., Sept. 22.—The synod of Virginia, Southern Presbyterian church, tonight accepted the offer of Mary Baldwin seminary, Staunton, Va., to become the synod's class "A" college for women.

Blow From Golf Stick Fatal

Racine, Wis., Sept. 21.—A golf stick swung back by a devotee of the game demonstrating to several young women on the lawn of a residence last night resulted in the death of Miss Evelyn Calnan, school teacher. She stepped up behind Alvin Simpson, assistant district attorney, while he was showing a driver strike and the head of the club struck Miss Calnan behind the ear. She lived only 15 minutes.

New Tariff Rates Apply

Washington, Sept. 22.—The new rates of the tariff act of 1922 were applying today on the flow of American imports. The law, marking a new phase in the history of American tariff making in its delegation of the President of broad powers under the elastic rate provisions, went into effect at midnight, with all collectors of customs previously instructed as to its provisions which became operative at once.

Bishop Gallor Re-elected

Portland, Ore., Sept. 22.—Bishop T. F. Gallor, of Tennessee, was re-elected by the house of bishops Thursday as president of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States. He has held the place since the national council was created three years ago. He received 66 votes on the seventh ballot. Three ballots were in secret session.

Responsibility With States

Washington, Sept. 23.—The major responsibility for the price at which coal is sold to consumers by the wholesalers or retailers within the states must rest with the state authorities, Federal Fuel Distributor Spencer declared in a telegram to the governors of the various states.

Demand Sawyer's Removal

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Demand for the removal of Brig.-Gen. Charles E. Sawyer from the post of chief co-ordinator of the federal hospitalization board, was made today in a resolution unanimously adopted by the convention of the New York state department of the American legion. The resolution charged Dr. Sawyer "has shown himself by speech and action to be temperamentally unfitted for the position."

Two Aviators Killed

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 23.—Lieutenants Patton and Hansen, both of the United States Marine corps, Quantico, Va., were instantly killed this afternoon at Logan field, when their machine went into a tall spin and dropped about 500 feet to the ground.

GO FORWARD IN CAMPAIGN

Hold 16 Meetings In County This Week

FARM BUREAU PLANS

Leaders Express Confidence That Membership Campaign In Guilford County Will Be Accompanied By Fine Results

With a enthusiasm which appears to transcend unqualified success, leaders of the membership campaign in the Guilford County Farm Bureau this week are entering upon the phase of the big enterprise of activities of the next few days, centering largely around the educational meetings.

Sixteen of these meetings are being held in the county this week. All of the meetings will begin at 8 p. m., together with the speakers' names, and dates, follow:

Monday: Oak Ridge, J. M. Gray; Stokesdale, O. Z. Remsburg; Sumnerfield, E. S. Millsaps; Sealsville, I. N. Payne.

Tuesday: Colfax, I. N. Payne; Jamestown, J. M. Gray; Springfield, O. Z. Remsburg; Guilford College, E. S. Millsaps.

Wednesday: Monticello, J. M. Gray; Busick, O. Z. Remsburg; Glenwood, I. N. Payne; McLeansville, E. S. Millsaps.

Thursday: Whitsett, J. M. Gray; Pleasant Union, E. S. Millsaps; Alamance, I. N. Payne; Pleasant Garden, O. Z. Remsburg.

Brumstick stew will be served at the Monticello meeting, H. W. Lambeth announces.

All of the speakers have been very active in the work of the bureau and their talks are expected to be heard with earnest attention. Mr. Remsburg, who farms in Frederick county, Maryland, is national organizer of the American Farm Bureau federation. Mr. Millsaps is district farm demonstration agent, with headquarters at Statesville. Mr. Payne, whose chief operating base also is Statesville, is secretary of the North Carolina Farm Bureau. Mr. Gray has long been connected with the State Department of Agriculture.

National Organizer Remsburg and County Farm Demonstrator E. B. Garrett, who have been busily engaged for some days in the execution of plans for the campaign, are gratified with the outlook. They hope to add 600 members to this progressive organization in Guilford county.

The membership campaign proper will begin on Monday, October 2. Final plans for the campaign will be perfected at a county-wide meeting to be held at the county courthouse at 11 o'clock next Saturday. R. C. Pollock, of Chicago, head of the organization department of the American Farm Bureau federation, will deliver the principal address at that meeting, which will be attended by farmers from every section of the county. All farmers are invited to be present at that gathering.

It is expected that the membership campaign will be in progress about 10 days. It will be continued until brought to a successful close, it is stated.

SCHOOL PROBLEMS UP FOR DISCUSSION

Principals Of Schools From 23 Counties Here For Two-Day Conference

High school principals from 23 counties in the central part of North Carolina met here for a two-day conference beginning Friday and ending Saturday afternoon. About 125 attended.

The meeting was for the discussion of various problems of school work. J. Henry Highsmith, of the state department of education, was in charge of the meeting, in the absence of Dr. E. C. Brooks, state superintendent of public instruction, who was unable to attend because of illness.

Athletics came in for action. The principals took the stand, by means of resolutions, that in some instances, school athletics are getting beyond the control of the school authorities. They adopted resolutions discouraging the employment of a coach, other than a whole time member of the faculty; prohibiting summer training camps for football and voted that the control of athletics be vested in the superintendents and principals.

Other subjects discussed were vocational training, training schools, junior high schools, courses of study, the inter-relationships of high schools and faculties, and kindred subjects.

Mrs. Ballard Starts Suit Against Mills

Mrs. Daner Lee Ballard started suit Saturday against the Pomona mills, asking for $10,000 damages. In the complaint filed in the office of Mason W. Gant, clerk of Guilford Superior court, the plaintiff alleges that she sustained injuries of a severe nature as a result of negligence upon the part of the defendant.

While in the employ of the mills on September 8, the plaintiff declares, a shuttle broke from a part of the machinery and struck her with great force, inflicting injuries which she fears may prove permanent.

EVENTS 80 YEARS AGO

It is the purpose of this paper to publish at frequent intervals comparatively brief references to events chronicled in The Greensboro (as it was then) Patriot of 80 years ago. In this enterprise valuable assistance is rendered by members of the staff of the Greensboro Public Library.

(September 24, 1842)

NEW JERSEY.—A convention of eight thousand Whigs was held in Trenton on the 14th, where Henry Clay was nominated for next President. No nomination for vice-president was made, though a majority of the members of the convention expressed their preference for "Hon. John Davis," of Massachusetts.

NEW COTTON.—About 300 bales of the new cotton crop have been received in market previous to the 1st inst., 1,734 of which were received at New Orleans. Three bales of new North Carolina cotton were sold in Petersburg on the 19th at 9 1-2 cents.

COMMON SCHOOLS.—The president and directors of the Literary Fund have published a tabular statement, showing the amount of the income of the Literary Fund accruing since the passage of the Common School Act of last session, to the first of September, 1842, the federal population of each county, the sum each county has received under the act of 1838, the amounts ordered to be distributed in September, 1841 and March, 1842. We subjoin the particulars of the table so far as concerns the counties where our paper principally circulates. Guilford county is as follows: Guilford county—Federal population, 18117. The whole sum to which each county is entitled $3,752.90; sum received by each under district in September 184, 786.69; sum ordered to be paid under distribution March, 1842, $1,239.40; sum ordered to be paid September 1, 1842, $952.81.

Life of Dr. Caldwell for sale at the stores of J. and R. Sloan, Rankin and McLean, G. Albright and Son.

DIED.—At Albright's Hotel, in this town, on the night of the 16th G. K. Favor, of the state of Maine. The deceased came into this state some year or two ago to deliver books which had been subscribed for, and has probably remained ever since, trading from place to place. While passing through this place two or three weeks since he was taken with a fever, and breathed his last on the evening above named, far away from "friends and sacred home." On his pocketbook is written "G. K. Favor, Portland, Maine."

Suing Lassiter Firm For $25,000 Damages

Complaint was filed in Guilford Superior court Friday by John S. Michaux, administrator of the estate of Joseph Miller, deceased, in the civil action in which the plaintiff is suing R. G. Lassiter and company for $25,000. This sum is asked as a result of the fatal injuries of Miller in Greensboro last May 26. Death came to the man 10 minutes after he was crushed under a concrete mixer. Miller, the complaint alleges, had been ordered to make some repairs under the mixer and while he was under the machine the scoop was released, striking him and causing his death. Negligence upon the part of the Lassiter company is alleged.

Phoenix New Head of Orphanage Association

Raleigh, Sept. 23.—J. J. Phoenix, superintendent of the Children's Home society, of Greensboro, was elected president of the North Carolina orphanage association at the closing session of its annual convention this afternoon. He succeeds C. O. Baird, superintendent of the Odd Fellows home at Goldsboro.

Dr. L. B. McBrayer, of the state sanatorium at Kinston, was elected first vice-president and G. H. Garrett, superintendent of the Methodist Protestant home of High Point, second vice-president. State Labor Commissioner M. L. Shipman, was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Dr. Archibald Johnson, of the Thomasville Baptist orphanage, and editor of Charity and Children, was elected a member of the executive committee.

ONE NEGRO IS KILLED AND TWO ARE INJURED

Jess Albright Victim of Three Pistol Wounds Inflicted in Quarrel Over His Wife, Esther Albright.

In a pitched battle with pistols which occurred on East Gaston street about 11 o'clock Saturday morning Jess Albright was killed almost instantly, and two other negroes, Arthur Clapp and Pearly Green, suffered serious wounds. The condition of Clapp, who was taken to St. Leo's hospital, appears to be critical.

Esther Albright, Jess' wife, who, according to a theory of the police, is the cause of the shooting affray, is being held in the city jail for investigation. Green, a patient in St. Leo's, is expected to recover.

It is said that several months ago Albright beat his wife and then left Greensboro. It is also stated that upon his return to the city last Thursday night he found that Clapp was living with his (Albright's) wife. Green told policemen that Saturday morning he met Albright, who asked him if he wanted a drink. The two went into a room behind the house—the Albright home—and while they were there, drinking and conversing, Clapp opened the door and invited Albright to step outside.

"My God!" Albright exclaimed, according to Green, "After stealing my wife are you going to kill me?" The next instant, Green said, a shot was fired and Green was hit in the back of the head. The first shot was quickly followed by several others in rapid succession, the fatal bullet piercing Albright in the abdomen, while a wound also was inflicted in each of his hands. Clapp sustained one wound in the head and four in the arm. When officers arrived the bodies of the three negro men were lying on the ground and Albright's hand was clenched on a .38 caliber revolver. While no gun was found on Clapp, it was stated that he had one.

No arrests have yet been made.

TEN UNMASKED MEN FLOG TURNER PULLEY

Franklin County Man Called From His Home, Taken to Church Yard and Whipped Unmercifully

Raleigh, Sept. 22.—Ten white men, none of them masked, Thursday night took Joe Turner Pulley from his home near Mitchell's Mill, six miles to Harris Cross Roads in Franklin county, and there, in a church yard, whipped him unmercifully, according to reports made to Solicitor Herbert E. Norris, yesterday. Pulley, it is said, stated that while he knew one of the men, in his opinion they were not members of the Ku Klux Klan.

The only reason given for the whipping, it is said, was that he had interferred with the Beulah church, a nearby institution. The kidnappers told him if he would give them ten dollars apiece they would not whip him.

From his waist to his feet, the man's body was a mass of raw, bruised flesh, from lashes laid on with switches cut from the Harris chapel grove.

According to report of the affair made to Solicitor Norris Pulley, who is thirty-three years old, and has a wife and two children, was called from his bed to the yard Thursday night about 9 o'clock. He was seized by ten men, who were unknown to him, but who were unmasked. They carried him in an automobile six miles to the Harris Cross Roads. After the thrashing he was left barefooted to walk home. His injuries were treated by Dr. Young at Rolesville.

FARM DEMONSTRATION

Outdoor Wintering of Bees

This article and the others to follow on the same subject in early issues of The Patriot were prepared by E. F. Phillips and George S. DeWitt.

The beekeepers of the United States lose at least one-tenth of their colonies of bees every winter. This is a minimum loss, which is frequently increased to one-half and sometimes more in certain sections. This decrease is largely due to carelessness or to lack of knowledge, and it is entirely practical to reduce it to less than 1 per cent. The small loss covering various accidents which can not be foreseen. An industry which can survive in the face of such a decrease must have great possibilities for commercial advancement when the loss is properly reduced.

An important reason for the unnecessary death of colonies in winter is the belief of many beekeepers that, since unprotected colonies of bees live over winter, no protection is needed. When, for example, heavy insulation of bees is advocated at a beekeepers' convention, some beekeeper usually replies that he has never protected his colonies and never loses any. His reported success is often unintentionally exaggerated, and he indicates by such statements that he may not know what constitutes moderately successful wintering. Although probably nothing on a farm gives a better return on the investment than do bees, it is well cared for, the majority of beekeepers neglect them. It need scarcely be stated that the best beekeepers do not follow such a parsimonious and unwise policy.

It is usually believed that winter loss is confined to the northern portions of the country, but this is far from true. The beekeepers of the South lose many colonies during this season, and, peculiarly enough, the decrease in all parts of the United States is due to the same causes in varying degree.

Beekeepers usually report the results of wintering by giving the percentage of colonies in which all the bees die, just as was done in the first paragraph of this bulletin. This is a convenient method but misleading. If every individual bee that goes into winter quarters remained alive in the spring with no loss of vitality, we should have perfect wintering, but such success is impossible. If out of 100 colonies only two die and the remainder are only half as strong in numbers as they were in the fall, most beekeepers would consider this rather good wintering, while in fact it is poor. The criterion of success is to have the greatest possible number of individual bees and to have them capable of prolonged activity in the spring. Beekeepers sorely need a new point of view as to success with the vital problem.

Frequently in beekeeping literature mention is made of the "winter sleep" of bees. Bees can not hibernate as do most insects. While the bees on the outside of the winter cluster are usually quiet, there is incessant movement in the center during cold weather; in fact, the greater the activity of the colony, the better it is. The phrase "winter sleep" is therefore erroneous, and should be dropped from the literature, as it misleads beekeepers.

CONVERS AND FORDHAM GIVE GREAT BARBECUE

C. M. Fordham and Roger McGinnis, comprising the local drug store, were genial hosts Thursday afternoon at a big barbecue at the Greenwood Springs, near Guilford. The guests had as good a time as 100 doctors could have at the city. Barbecue, steaks, pickles, cake and lemonade in quantities were served. The occasion was greatly enjoyed by the crowd.

HOME DEMONSTRATION

Call Your Flocks

Repeated tests show that the hens that begin to molt before August 1 are usually drones, for they take a long time to molt and do not often begin to lay again for four or five months. Then hens that are so busy laying eggs that they have to put off molting until after the middle of September can be safely kept, as again as soon as they are through molting. One hen at the University of Wisconsin with a two-year record of 464 eggs laid every month for 24 consecutive months, beginning in November, 1917.

All hens nearly naked in October and November and those that still have their old feathers are the hens that have been profitable layers during the year, and they should be kept for breeding. This is a good test for selecting the heavy layers. Good hens fed an insufficient ration that does not let them lay eggs may molt during the summer. This shows that while early molting is a sure sign of poor production, it may not always be a sign of poor-producing hens.

Laying Hens Have Wide-Sprung Pelvic Bones

One good way to tell the laying hen from the non-layer is to examine the position of the pelvic bones situated on each side and slightly curved bones, similar to the pin bones in the cow. The pelvic bones of the non-layer are close together. It is impossible for a man to put more than one finger between the points, and they seem to be very closely bound to each other by cartilage-like bands.

When the pullet or hen is about to begin laying, her pelvic bones spread further apart and the abdomen between the two points becomes very soft and pliable. The heavier the distance between these pelvic eggs she lays, the greater will be the distance between these pelvic bones. In a very heavy laying hen three or more fingers can be placed between the tips of the bones. The hen that is laying not quite so heavily will have pelvic bones about two fingers apart. Such hens, however, can be told by their solid abdomens and the large amount of gristle and meat at the end of the pelvic bones.

COMMUNITY FAIR AT WHITSETT OCTOBER 4

Ambitious Plans Discussed At Meeting Wednesday and Most Successful Exposition Is Expected

Ambitious plans for the Whitsett Community fair, to be held at Whitsett on October 4, were perfected at a meeting of the fair directors in the Whitsett school building on Wednesday.

The exhibits will be on display throughout the day, it was agreed. Music and numerous games are scheduled and a notable feature will be the "Old Fiddlers' Convention." Two prizes will be awarded to the best fiddlers and a prize also will be given to the best banjoist.

It is announced that the directors are offering a prize valued at $27.50 "to any couple marrying on the grounds publicly" on the day of the fair. This prize is to be donated by the Boone Furniture company, of Greensboro. It is of interest to note that an inner tube will be presented to the McGlamery Auto company to the "person bringing largest family to fair." Many other prizes are to be awarded.

The officers of the fair and the people of the community are extending to the public a cordial invitation to attend the fair, which, they say, will be "bigger and better" than any previously staged.

Boy Sues For $5,000 Because of Injuries

As a result of injuries sustained while in the employ of the Carolina Engraving company last June, suit for $5,000 has been started against that concern by Robert Duke, through his next friend, Mary Duke, the complaint having been filed in the office of Mason W. Gant, clerk of Guilford Superior court.

The boy's foot was mangled, it is alleged, while he was cleaning a die press in accordance with instructions from an official of the company. Without warning, the plaintiff alleges, the operator started the machine, painful injuries resulting. It is contended by the young fellow that the accident was due to negligence upon the part of the defendant company.

Representative Pou Attacks Republicans

Washington, Sept. 22.—Attack upon the Republican leadership of Congress for failure to pass the bill for reapportionment of house members among the states was made in the house here by Representative Pou, Democrat, North Carolina, who declared the session about to end had not been characterized "by courageous action upon the part of the majority party."

Referring to North Carolina, under the reapportionment required by the constitution after each census would gain one seat in the house, Mr. Pou said that through failure to pass the measure "Congress is withholding that to which we are rightfully entitled to."

Representative Barbour, Republican, California, said that while he agreed action should be taken, Democratic members of the census committee had voted against reporting the bill, to which Mr. Pou replied responsibility rested with the Republicans.

Mr. Pou charged that notwithstanding the plea of the President for early passage of the ship subsidy bill the Republicans "were afraid to call it up."

ACCOMPLISHMENT

"What is the platform of the party in the state?" was the question that Governor Morrison asked in his speech at Charlotte when he opened the state Democratic campaign. Here is his answer:

"It points with pride to the great administration of Woodrow Wilson; it endorses the administration of the state's affairs; it pledges a continued interest in education, health, improved agriculture, the fish and oyster industry, and looks to a greater constructive program for the state."

Of course what gives his words force is the administration of the state's affairs, which has been notable. There has been great improvement in the state's business, but it has been accomplished with economy, without waste. There is no property tax, real or personal, levied upon the people of the state for the conduct of the state's business. Yet it has spent money where it was needed, for the benefit of the people of the state.

North Carolina can ask any state to match its program, accomplished and under accomplishment. Roads, schools, the higher institutions of learning, those for the care of the unfortunate—it has been a work well-nigh marvelous. Yet its sources of revenue are so well balanced that collection of the money needed for those things does not burden the people of the state.

It is a business-like administration, with the difference that there has been a vision accompanying it that is not supposed to go with business as some people understand the word.

A Democratic administration, remember. Do not be misled by promises to improve upon it that may be made by the other party. Put your trust in the party that has accomplished, that has something more than mere promises back of it.

BECOMING MORE OF A MANUFACTURER

Similarities and differences, so far as North Carolina and California are concerned, were described at a lecture given by H. L. Fries, at Winston-Salem, on his return there from the west. The two are alike in the wide variety of soil, but he gives the edge to California because of the fact that Californians have transformed wide areas of unproductive into very fertile land.

Out there, he declares, the farmer specializes. He is really not so much a farmer as he is a manufacturer, producing by intensive methods, selling the same way.

We believe that the farmer in North Carolina is becoming a sort of manufacturer. He produces yields that a decade ago would not have been thought possible, except in a few cases. He tends more and more to make farming more than mere cultivation of the soil. He makes use of the agencies that help him to become a specialist. He has tremendous advantages over his father. He does not farm so much by guess work or by groping in the dark. He knows more what he wants and how to get it.

There is no doubt but that California is a wonderful place, but there is no reason why a man on a bit of North Carolina soil should not prosper as a Californian. He does not have to irrigate. He has climate that is favorable, a winter that is open and permits work to be done throughout the year.

It rests with him whether he prospers as the Californian. The latter has had the advantage in marketing, having become a convert to co-operation before his North Carolina brother, but no one can look at the great wave of co-operation sweeping over the country and doubt that there is in sight for the North Carolinian the same prosperity, based upon proper principles of marketing, well applied, that the farmer-manufacturer of California has won.

He can prosper if he wishes, if he pulls with others, if he keeps his head, if he persists. He does not have to go to California to prosper.

ONE RESULT OF ISOLATION

The Turk is living up to his reputation. Wherever he goes he leaves a trail of blood, thousands of murdered people, a smoking country. He has swept through Asia Minor, Christians here falling in thousands before his sword.

It is an old story. Weak although Turkey is—and this particular collection of Turks is an army of rebels, insurgents from the authority of the regular Turkish government—the jealousy the nations of Europe feel toward each other makes him strong. He plays one against the other, knowing that no matter what his conduct some of the nations of Europe will not allow another to punish him.

What is the United States doing in regard to the massacres of thousands of people by the Turk? The answer is nothing. The United States has begged by the allied nations to take the mandate over Armenia. They could not trust each other but they could trust the United States. The Armenians asked that America take the mandate. It would have cured that sore spot. But the United States had reacted from the war ideals. The policy of isolation preached by the Republican leaders had borne its fruit, and the United States stood hands off.

Had America been in charge in that country there would have been no massacre. The Turk would have been unable to ravage a whole country. Had America had that mandate what is now a ruined territory, a great city in ashes, strewn with corpses, would have been a prosperous, peaceful country.

WHY NOT PROSPERITY FOR ALL?

We heard a man say the other day that he didn't see how a farmer could afford an automobile, that the farmers were too poor to own them. It seemed to shock him to see farmers passing in cars.

It was a further shock to him to hear that the reason why there are more automobiles in Guilford than in any other county in North Carolina is because of the farmer owned automobiles. Greensboro does not lead the cities of the state in cars, but the county does lead the counties.

Why shouldn't they buy them? An automobile is to the farmer an investment, in most cases a necessity. But even if it were not an investment, a good one, and a necessity, why should not the farmer have a car as well as anybody? Isn't he human and entitled to the pleasures anybody is entitled to, provided he can pay for them?

"High" living is not good for anybody, in the rural sections, the cities or anywhere else, but certainly if there is one place where there should be good living it is in the rural sections. We like to see the evidences of prosperity in the rural sections, as anybody should like to see them. When the rural sections are prosperous everybody is. Anybody who has it in his head that the way for general prosperity is to keep some men or some classes of men poor needs his head examined.

CO-OPS DO NOT "SCARE" EASILY

The opening of the Co-operative tobacco season in the central belt of the state was a great day for the Co-operatives, with a satisfied crowd of producers bringing in about 750,000 pounds of tobacco to the 18 markets.

Yet last winter and spring some people said that the plan wouldn't work. That three quarters of a million pounds is an answer to that. Something is working, anyway.

Many a farmer was represented in that 750,000 pounds; stout-hearted men who believe that their organization will work. They were not frightened by the mutterings and the "warnings" of others last winter and spring and they are not frightened now. They do not scare easily after a thing has been laid before them, in all its workings and they have decided to back it. Whoever thought those men would scare did not know much about the North Carolina farmer.

MOSTLY NONSENSE

By Gee Gee Dee.

POLITICAL PROGNOSTICATORS who are strongly inclined to the opinion that President Harding will not be re-nominated by the Republicans in 1924 are increasingly numerous. Many of them declare that Mr. Harding does not wish another term and if that be true it is a most remarkable condition, a condition which has not obtained for two generations, according to political historians. The one-term idea for Mr. Harding probably is to be found entering more into the calculations of other Republican leaders than into the ruminations of the President himself, for there is impressive evidence that leaders of the party are beginning to realize the failure of the national administration in a number of highly important respects.

But if Mr. Harding is to step aside, upon whom will Republican politicians center as their best bet for the nomination? Certainly some of the apostles of mossbackism are deeply concerned because of the activities of the progressives. Senator Borah has consistently shied at the third party talk and he appears to have strengthened his following in the Republican ranks to a material degree. Senator Johnson does not display the badge of progressivism so conspicuously as in the old days, but he doubtless causes many anxious moments for the old guard. Even LaFollette may rise up to plague the standpattingest of the standpats in his party around nomination time.

Nothing could be more certain, however, than the fact that the high priests of conservatism will be prepared to make a whale of a fight to prevent the nomination of a real progressive. In the first place, they will give pathetically earnest consideration to the proverbial sources of large campaign contributions. The financial captains can hardly be expected to whoop 'em up with might and main for a fellow of the LaFollette stamp, for example. It is highly probable that when real slate-making begins the duly accredited leaders of the Republican party will be willing to give almost anything for a conservative candidate who might in some inexplicable way be labeled a progressive. Hiram Johnson would perhaps be traceable enough, but he appears to have more enemies than any of the others who have been mentioned with a degree of insistence.

It may, therefore, be in order to name Albert Lasker, chairman of the United States Shipping board. Mr. Lasker could qualify as a progressive because he was in favor of interpreting the prohibition laws in such a manner as he saw fit and without special regard for the wishes of the majority of the American people; in other words, he might pose as an exponent of advanced thought—advanced far beyond the 2.75 per cent. of alcoholic content stage. On the other hand, he might qualify as a conservative, for he failed to resign in spite of the storm of protest occasioned by his anti-prohibition activity. Of course he wouldn't have a ghost of a chance of election, but then who would—on the Republican ticket in 1924?

Kipling didn't like the latest Sheridan's ride.

It must be admitted that the bonus doesn't pay.

Many coal bins are now hasbins, as Mr. Dooley would probably have expressed it.

CONGRESS ADJOURNS AND CAMPAIGN OPENS

Call For Special Session November 15 Generally Expected—Few Political Speeches

Washington, Sept. 22.—Congress adjourned sine die today, with leaders generally expecting a call from President Harding for a special session November 15, preceding the regular December session.

The President was in attendance today for a few minutes before the final gavel dropped, to sign the usual sheaf of eleventh hour bills. The only important measure to get through on the last day was the deficiency appropriation bill, the administration bill, and the Dyer anti-lynching measure going over until the next session.

Lacking in the adjournment today were many of the popular features often attending the death of a congressional session. The gallery crowds were small and undemonstrative and there were few floor wrangles. After disposing of the deficiency appropriation bill the senate passed a number of minor measures and listened to a few set speeches, while house members made one-minute addresses mostly for publication during the next few days in the Congressional Record, and heard Representative Blanton, Democrat, Texas, defend Attorney General Daugherty and criticize Republicans for alleged neglect in that respect.

Speaker Gillett, after a brief speech wishing all members God-speed and good luck, banged the adjournment gavel promptly at 2:00 o'clock. The senate adjourned two or three minutes later, having to stop the clerk briefly while necessary bills were signed for submission to President Harding, waiting in his room of the same chamber.

A few political speeches marked the closing hours of the session—the second of the 67th Congress. Representative Mondell, Republican leader in the house, and Senator Smoot, in the senate, praised the dominant party's record, which was attacked in brief speeches by Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, and McKellar, of Tennessee, Democrat.

Leaders and rank and file now "go to the country" on the record, entering a fall campaign. Trains and automobiles leaving Washington tonight carried scores of congressmen released for the campaign.

Officers Find Wine And Miniature Still

Deputy Sheriff's Caffey, Phipps and Apple journeyed into Summer township Friday afternoon and seized in the name of the law a small blockade still with 75 gallons of tomato wine. The little factory was located near the source of raw material, officers said, pointing out that nearby was a fairly productive tomato patch. The operators of the plant were not to be found.

POMONA NOW LEADING FOR LEAGUE PENNANT

By Winning Over Buffalo In Saturday's Contest In Post-Season Series Pomona Has Advantage

As a result of its victory over Buffalo on Saturday afternoon Pomona took the lead in the post-season series for the Guilford County League championship. The first game, played on Wednesday, was copped by Pomona, while Buffalo took the second of the series, staged Thursday. Pomona, therefore, staged won two games to one triumph for Buffalo. Another game was scheduled for this afternoon.

In the first inning Saturday the lads from Pomona acquired two runs and they added four in the sixth, piling up a lead which the Bisons could not overcome. Pomona players pounded the pellet with a will, securing eight hits from Ferrell's delivery, while only six safeties were allowed by L. Crutchfield, Pomona slaban.

Score:
Pomona ... 200 004 000—6 R. H. E.
Buffalo ... 000 020 020—5 R. H. E.
Batteries: L. Crutchfield and Clemons; Ferrell and F. Clarke.

Bisons Biff Ball

Thirteen was not an unlucky number for Buffalo in the Thursday battle, for the Bisons slammed out that number of hits, driving Price from the mound in the sixth. Purgason was then sent to the hillock for Pomona, but he was unable to stop the hard-hitting hopefuls and the final tabulation of runs showed an 8-to-1 victory. Taylor, twirling for Buffalo, allowed eight hits and they were well scattered, as evidenced by the fact that they netted only one marker. The Bisons simply had on their hitting breeches, every player of the organization, with the exception of F. Clarke and D. Groom, securing not less than one safety.

Score:
Buffalo ... 100 102 23x—8 R. H. E.
Pomona ... 000 100 000—1 R. H. E.
Batteries: Taylor and F. Clarke; Price, Purgason and Clemons.

Six Men Are Killed When Plane Crashes

Mineola, Sept. 23.—First Lieutenant Raymond E. Davis, United States army air service, and five enlisted men were killed when a huge Martin bombing plane crashed to earth at Mitchell field late tonight. The enlisted men killed were: First Sergeant Thomas Benfield, Corporal David Stiven and Privates Edward H. Kane, Henry Ray Nichols and Irving M. Whitney, all stationed at Mitchell field.

A report of the accident as given out several hours later by the adjutant's office at the field said that the plane had been inspected shortly before leaving the field and that the cause of fatal accident "probably never would be known."

ROUTE 1, GREENSBORO
Miss Myrtle Parrish spent last Wednesday night at the home of E. L. Johnson.
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nichols have been visiting at the latter's grand- father's home, J. W. Weatherly, and other relatives here, returned to their home in Durham.
Mrs. W. K. Guthrie, Mrs. W. S. Hudson, Miss Mary Sue Guthrie, and Clyde Howe, of Gaffney, S. C., visited Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Causey Saturday and Sunday, September 16 and 17. They made the trip through the country.
K. N. Kirkman and family spent Sunday, September 17, in High Point.
A chicken stew and watermelon feast was given at M. D. Taylor's tobacco barn recently.
D. W. Ramsey has completed another silo.
A number of people from this route attended the funeral of Mrs. Charles Dorsett at Centenary church, Greensboro, Saturday, Sep- tember 16.

TRUE TURKEY TALE

Last night I was the welcome guest of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Shel- ley on Deep River above the Col- lins mill.
They showed me a large gang of the young turkeys. The mother tur- key sat on one dozen eggs and hatched twelve of them. Later the mother hen was found at a nest with eight under a shock of wheat. Not wanting her to sit they broke up the nest. Later still the hen stole off and was found with a nest of nine eggs in a clover field. It was so late in the season they broke up this nest. Then the first of Septem- ber she appeared with eight fine young turkeys which she is leading about over the fields and forests, providing abundant food and drink for her growing brood.
This is Mrs. Turkey's first year's family experience. She is declared to be a wonderfully motherly moth- er. Shows shrewd skill and excel- lent executive ability. . . . .

Engagement Announced

The engagement of Miss Margaret Albright Stroud, of this city, to J. Clarence Powell, of Raleigh, was announced Saturday at a luncheon given by Mrs. E. D. Broadhurst, on South Mendall street. The marriage will be celebrated at the First Baptist church here on the evening of October 24. The bride-elect is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Stroud, of this city, and is a niece of Mrs. Broadhurst. After her graduation at the Greensboro high school she was for two years a stu- dent at Meredith college, Raleigh, and subsequently she graduated at North Carolina College for Women. Mr. Powell is a native of Lake Wac- caw, but for some years has lived in Raleigh. He is an overseas vet- eran of the Great war. He is pre- sident of the Walk-Over Shoe com- pany, of Raleigh.

Injured Men Improving

Gratifying improvement in the condition of William Farr, of Ashe- ville, who sustained serious injuries on the night of September 16 in an automobile accident, is reported. He is said to be out of danger. The other two young men who were hurt in the accident, Ralph Justice, this city, and R. L. Thompson, Jr., of New York, appear to have recovered from their injuries.

GUILFORD HOLDS LEAD IN AUTOMOBILES

Guilford county continues to lead the other counties in North Carolina in the number of automobiles, re- cently compiled statistics show. For every 9.3 persons in Guilford county there is one automobile. This coun- ty's average is practically equal to the average for the United States, which is one car every two families. At the foot of the list are Mitchell and Graham counties, with one car for every 70 families.

The statistics of automobile own- ership as of March, 1922, compiled by the department of rural econ- omics of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, follow:

MAKE BIG PLANS FOR FAIR IN GREENSBORO

Officials Are Confident That Events On October 10, 11, 12 and 13, Will Be Greatest Witnessed Here

Elaborate plans for the Central Carolina fair to be held in Green- sboro on October 10, 11, 12 and 13 are being developed and officials of the fair association express confi- dence that the 1922 exposition will be the greatest ever witnessed here. Entries for the races are being noted daily. For three of the races, horses from the following states al- ready have been entered: North Carolina, Georgia, District of Col- umbia, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Delaware. Seven other notable state races are scheduled, each for a purse of $1,000.
The fireworks displays this year entail an expenditure 50 per cent greater than that of any previous season. It is announced. For pre- miums in agricultural and other lines a vastly increased sum of money is being expended. The build- ings and other physical facilities at the fair grounds have been greatly improved. The decorations will be especially brilliant. One notable fea- ture this year will be the Greensboro Pure Food Show.
Many free attractions have been obtained, association officials state, emphasizing the idea that the pro- gram will be clean, instructive and entertaining in every respect.
Close co-operation between the community fairs and the Greensboro fair is expected. The best exhibits at the community fairs in Guilford county will be shown on a competi- tive basis at the Central Carolina fair here. Much friendly rivalry along this line is expected between the Mount Pleasant, Whitsett, Jamestown, Monticello and Deep River county fairs.

GRAHAM WAREHOUSE TO OPEN DOORS TOMORROW

The Graham warehouse, owned and operated by Thomas S. Graham, will open tomorrow with the first tobacco sales of the season in Greensboro, according to announce- ment. Mr. Graham states that he has made a number of improve- ments in the warehouse, which is now ready for the reception of to- bacco. The warehouse will be con- ducted on the auction system. A number of buyers will be on hand, Mr. Graham declares.

Big Fire in Atlanta

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 24.—City fire- men still were on duty tonight guarding the smoldering flames of a fire in the heart of Atlanta's busi- ness section which early today caused damage variously estimated at $700,000 to $1,500,000. The Kress M. Department store was almost completely gutted, while Eiseman's clothing store and Child's hotel were damaged badly. Other adjacent buildings sustained heavy damage from smoke and water.

Pastor Accepts Call

Henderson, Sept. 22.—Rev. R. L. Williamson, who has been the pas- tor of the Christian church here for four years, having been called to this church from Raleigh, has ac- cepted a call to the Christian church at Sanford and the group of churches associated with it. He will take up his new work November 1.

RECENT DEATHS

Mrs. Mary A. Cummings
Mrs. Mary A. Cummings, 77 years old, died at 3 o'clock Thursday af- ternoon at her home at Guilford Col- lege after a long illness. Mrs. Cum- mings was a native of Randolph county, but for half a century she had been a resident of Guilford county. She was a member of the Friends church. Her husband, W. E. Cummings, died four years ago. Mrs. Cummings leaves three daugh- ters, Mrs. S. E. Cyde, of Winston- Salem; Mrs. S. E. Dillon and Mrs. E. N. Hodgin, of Guilford College; two sons, C. C. Cummings and J. W. Cummings, of Guilford College; two sisters, Mrs. J. H. Benson and Mrs. E. P. Anderson, both of Greensboro; two brothers, James L. Irvin, of Oregon, and John L. Irvin, of Arizona.
The funeral service was conducted at 11 o'clock Saturday morning at the Friends church at Guilford Col- lege by Rev. R. D. Sherrill and Mrs. Annie E. Williams, and the body was laid to rest in the church ceme- tery.

Mrs. Ina Marley Dorsett
Following a rather brief illness Mrs. Ina Marley Dorsett, 39 years of age, died Friday afternoon at the home of her sister, Mrs. S. A. Cav- ness, 466 West Washington street. She had lived in Greensboro 18 years and had many friends in the city. Mrs. Dorsett was the widow of C. C. Dorsett. She leaves two daughters, Lois Dorsett and Irene Dorsett, all of this city; her mother, Mrs. M. H. Marley, of Ramsey; three brothers, U. C. Marley and W. E. Marley, of Ramsey, and E. H. Marley, of Columbia, S. C., and a sister, Mrs. S. A. Cavness, of Greensboro.

The funeral was held at Centen- ary Methodist church at 3:30 Sat- urday afternoon, the pastor, Rev. H. C. Sprinkle, officiating, and the re- mains were interred in Green Hill cemetery.

Stephen A. Jordan

Stephen A. Jordan, 20 years old, died Saturday morning at the Dis- trict Nurse and Relief home, Glen- wood, where for two months he had been a tuberculosis patient. Before he became ill Mr. Jordan was in te employ of the Revolution Cotton mills. He leaves his father, W. S. Jordan, of Moore county; four brothers, A. W. Jordan, of Green- sboro; J. T. Jordan, of McAdoo Heights; P. S. Jordan, of White Oak, and E. C. Jordan, of Jackson Springs; also two sisters, Mrs. John H. Jordan and Mrs. J. H. McNeill, of Moore county.

The funeral was held this after- noon at Brown's Chapel, Moore county, interment following in the church cemetery.

Jesse Clarkson Wilson

Jesse Clarkson Wilson, who for half a century had taught in various schools in this state, died at 6:45 Friday morning at his residence, 410 East McCulloch street. Death was attributed to cerebral hemor- rhage and followed an illness of three years. Mr. Wilson, who was 63 years of age, began his teaching career at the age of 20, having spent most of the time since then as an instructor in the public schools, attaining an enviable reputation. He was a native of Randolph county and an alumnus of Guilford college. For some years he taught at that insti- tution. He was a member of Ashe- boro Street Friends church, a life- long friend, and he had a wide circle of devoted friends. He leaves his wife; two sons, Floyd Wilson, of High Point, and O. D. Wilson, of Hamlet, and two daughters, Miss Ruth Wilson and Miss Lois Wilson, both of Greensboro.

Rev. Kirby V. Bowen, pastor of Asheboro Street Friends church, conducted the funeral at that church at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, interment following in Green Hill cemetery.

Officers Take Still And Quantity Sugar

Acting upon information which they had received regarding the lo- cation of a liquor manufacturing en- terprise, Deputy Sheriffs Mike Car- fery and Joe Phillips on Saturday af- ternoon motored to a point in Sum- ner township, about 10 miles south of Greensboro, and there they found verification of the report in the shape of a copper still of 80-gallon capacity, together with 1,000 pounds of sugar.
The still and sugar were confis- cated by the officers, who failed to find any operators or prospective op- erators. It was evident that the raiders arrived just before distill- ing operations were to have been started.

Miss Upchurch Shot To Death By Uncle

Raleigh, Sept. 24.—Miss Essie Upchurch, formerly Mrs. Joris R. Bell, and a daughter of W. A. Up- church, a well known citizen of the Zebulon section, was shot and in- stantly killed by her uncle, C. L. Cotton at the home of her sister three miles from Eagle Rock, about midnight Saturday night. Cotton was released under a bond of $1,000 at the direction of Solicitor Norris yesterday.

FILE THE WILL OF MISS ANNIE FOUST

She Left An Estate Estimated To Be Worth $25,000 or More. Many Requests

The will of the late Miss Annie L. Foust, whose home was about four miles south of Graham, was filed for probate with the clerk of the court of Alamance county on September 7. Miss Foust was a grand-daughter of the late Daniel Foust, one of the prominent citizens of western Guil- ford, and had a wide family connec- tion. She is survived by only one member of her family, a sister, Miss Robene Foust. Miss Foust was the owner of several hundred acres of land in Guilford and Alamance counties which she inherited from her parents and to which she gave her personal supervision almost to the time of her death. Her mother was Katharine Foust, a younger daughter of Daniel Foust, and a sister of the late Daniel P. Foust; her father was the late Dr. George Kivett Foust.
Her will is dated September 4, 1922 and is divided into something like 18 or 20 items, and the chief points of interest in it are as fol- lows: To her sister, Robene B. Foust, $3,000; a monument to be placed at her grave in Graham cem- etery to cost $1,000, and another monument to cost the same to be placed for her father's and mother's graves at Steiner's graveyard, near Belmont. To Mrs. Lottie Rich, $100 and certain household arti- cles; to Mrs. Linney Bailey, $100 and certain household articles. To Ruby, Pearl and Pauline Bailey, certain household articles. To Frank Rich, her gold watch. To Eunice Rich, two quilts. To Ethel Rich, coverlet and silver spoons. To Prettie Steele, coverlet. To Mrs. Carrie Steele, $25 and two quilts. To Bob Rich, $300. To Frank Rich, $100.
To Mrs. Rosa Davis and Mrs. Kate Albright, $200 each. To Mary Louise Tinnin, $200. To Mrs. Dora Rogers, mahogany bed, and bed clothing. To Sara Palmer Rogers, cameo pin and dishes. To Mrs. Lot- tie Rich, pitcher and dishes. To Carrie Steele, dishes and pitcher.
All lands in Guilford and Ala- mance counties to be sold as soon as convenient.
To her faithful servant, Gibbs, clothing, bed, and $200 to be paid him monthly, $10 per month until paid.
To George Carraway Rogers, $100. To Ed Steele, $100. To Ben M. Rodgers, his choice of certain bureaus. To the upkeep of Steiner's graveyard, near Belmont, $300. To the German Reformed church of Burlington, $200. To Ethel Rich certain table furnishings; also same to Eunice Rich; also same to Sara Palmer Rogers.
To Ben M. Rogers $3,600. To her sister, Robene, a second amount of $3,600.
To A. D. Bailey and O. T. Bailey, $100 each. To Annie Lucille Bailey, $50.00.
The residue of the estate to be apportioned.
Ben M. Rogers is named as ex- ecutor of the will. The three wit- nesses to it are B. Nichols, T. P. Apple, and Inez Patterson.
For several weeks Miss Foust had been in St. Leo's hospital, in Greensboro, where she died Septem- ber 6. She had not been well for several months previous to going to the hospital.
The entire estate is supposed to be worth something like $25,000 perhaps more.

Republicans Confer Regarding Campaign

Members of the executive com- mittee of the Republicans in Guilford county met at the county courthouse last Saturday afternoon and dis- cussed plans for the campaign. The agreed that they would wage an intensive campaign in an effort to secure votes for the party's nominees.
Committee headquarters will be established in Greensboro, it was decided, and there was some discus- sion of ways and means of raising money for the campaign. Consider- able attention was given to the ques- tion of women's votes, members of the committee declaring their inten- tion to engage in some earnest work along that line. Some speech-mak- ing on the part of the Republicans is planned, it is said.

Commissioners Talk About Highway Work

Discussion of road construction with special references to the finan- cial situation featured the meeting of the county commissioners here Saturday morning. Considerable attention also was given to the question of the "underpass" on the Greensboro-Gibsonville highway.
It is expected that a definite de- cision in regard to the route to be followed by the Pleasant Garden road will be reached at the next regular meeting of the commis- sioners, which will be held on Oc- tober 2 and 3. It also appears strongly probable that arrangements for a hard surface road from Green- sboro to Pleasant Garden will be made at that time.

RAINBOW'S END

By REX BEACH

Synopsis

The wife of Don Esteban Varona, rich Spanish planter in Cuba, dies giving birth to twins, Esteban, Jr., and Rosa. Shortly after Varona's second marriage the secret hiding place in an old well of his great store of gold, jewels and deeds to land passes when he is killed by his favorite slave, Sebastian, crazed by cruel treatment after Varona lost Evangelina, Sebastian's daughter, the twins' nurse, at cards, Sebastian is shot. Varona's second wife, hunting the treasure, is killed by falling in the well. Pancho Cueto, plantation overseer, informs the authorities young Varona is involved in the Cuban insurrection. The twins, now grown, flee to the hut in the hills of Evangelina and her husband, Asensio, now freed. Johnnie O'Reilly, American, Rosa's fiancé, is called back to New York by his company and for some time can hear nothing from her.

O'Reilly, back in Cuba to try to find Rosa, arrested with another American, Leslie Branch, is sent to New York. Cobo, brutal Spanish chieftain, burns Asensio's hut. Esteban returns just in time to rescue Rosa from Cobo. Esteban, Rosa, Asensio and Evangelina seek refuge in the hills. Esteban and his band attack Cueto's place, killing Cueto. Esteban, terribly wounded in a skirmish followed with Cobo's troops, at Cueto's, is lost in the jungle. Asensio, Evangelina and Rosa, starving, go into Matanzas. O'Reilly, Branch and Norine Evans, rich American nurse, evading detectives, plan to sail for Cuba.

They sail for Cuba. They arrive in Cuba. O'Reilly, at the camp of the Cuban chieftain, is told that Esteban and Rosa are thought dead.

Rosa, Evangelina and Asensio live in misery at Matanzas.

Lopez decides to raid a village held by the Spaniards.

In a raid made by Cuban troops, O'Reilly finds Esteban in a Spanish dungeon.

O'Reilly asks his commander for permission to go find something of Rosa's whereabouts.

He hears Rosa is in Matanzas and decides to go there.

With three companions he crosses the fateful trench surrounding the Spanish area.

Into the City of Death

O'Reilly's adventures on his swift ride through Las Villas have no part in this story. It is only necessary to say that they were numerous and varied, that O'Reilly experienced excitement aplenty, and that upon more than one occasion he was forced to think and to act quickly in order to avoid a clash with some roving guerrilla band. He had found it imperative at all times to avoid the larger towns, for they, and in fact most of the hamlets, were unsafe; hence the little party was forced to follow back roads and obscure bridge trails. But the two guides were never at a loss; they were resourceful, courageous, and at no time did the American have reason to doubt their faithfulness.

Evidences of the war increased as the journey lengthened. The potteries were lush with grass, but no herds grazed upon them; villages were deserted and guano huts were falling into decay; charred fields growing up to weeds and the ruins of vast centrales showing where the insurgents had been at work. This was the sugar country, the heart of Cuba, whence Spain had long drawn her life blood, and from the first it had been the policy of the rebel leaders to destroy the large estates, leaving undamaged only the holdings of those little farmers whose loyalty to the cause of freedom was unquestioned.

The party made good time. They crossed into Matanzas, pushed on over the rolling hills, through sweeping savannas, past empty clearings and deserted villages, to their journey's end. A fortunate encounter with a rebel partida from General Betancourt's army enabled them to reach headquarters without loss of time, and one afternoon, worn, ragged and hungry, they dismounted in front of that gallant officer's hut.

General Betancourt read the letter which O'Reilly handed him, then looked up with a smile.

"So! You are Gomez's Americans, eh? Well, I would never have known it, to look at you; the sun and the wind have made you into a very good Cuban. And your clothes— one might almost mistake you for a Cuban cabinet officer."

The general continued: "I am directed in this letter to help you in some enterprise. Command me, sir."

As briefly as possible Johnnie made known the object of his journey. The officer nodded his comprehension, but as he did so a puzzled expression crossed his face.

"Yes, I reported that Miss Varona had gone into the city—I took some pains to find out. Do you have reason to doubt—"

"Not the least, sir."

"Then—why have you come all this way?"

"I came to find her and to fetch her to her brother."

"But—you don't understand. She is actually inside the lines, in Matanzas—a prisoner."

"Exactly. I intend to go into Matanzas and bring her out."

General Betancourt drew back, astonished. "My dear man!" he exclaimed. "Are you mad?"

O'Reilly smiled faintly. "Quite probably. All lovers are mildly mad, I believe."

"Ah! Lovers! I begin to see. But—how do you mean to go about this—this—impossible undertaking?"

"You told me just now that I could pass for a Cuban. Well, I am going to put it to the test. If I once get into the city I shall manage somehow to get out again, and bring her with me."

"Um—m!" The general appraised O'Reilly speculatively. No doubt you can get in—it is not so difficult to enter, I believe, and especially to one who speaks the language like a native. But the return—I fear you will find that another matter. Matanzas is a place of pestilence, hunger, despair. No one goes there from choice any more, and no one ever comes out."

O'Reilly did not allow this well-meant warning to influence him, nor did he listen to the admonitions of those other Cubans who tried to argue him out of his purpose, once it became generally known. On the contrary, he proceeded with his preparations and spent that afternoon in satisfying himself that Rosa had indeed left the Pan de Matanzas before Colonel Cobo's raid.

Crossing a rocky ridge, O'Reilly and his guide at last emerged upon an open slope, knee-high in grass and grown up to bottle-palms, those queer, distorted trees whose trunks are swollen into the likeness of earthen water-jars. Scattered here and there over the meadow were the dead or fallen trunks of another variety, the cabbage-palm, the green heart of which had long formed a staple article of diet for the Insurrectos. Spanish axes had been at work here and not a single tree remained alive. The green floor of the valley farther down was dotted with the other, the royal kind, that monarch of tropic vegetation which lends to the Cuban landscape its peculiar and distinctive beauty.

"Yonder is the camino," said the countryman, pointing into the valley; "it will lead you to the main road; and there"—he turned to the northward—"is Matanzas. Go with God, and don't drink the well water, which is polluted from the rains." With a smile and a wave of the hand the man turned back and plunged into the jungle.

Toward noon the breeze lessened and it became insufferably hot. A bank of clouds in the east promised a cooling shower, so Johnnie sought the nearest shade to wait for it, and took advantage of the delay to eat his slender lunch. He was meditatively munching a sweet potato when a sound at his back caused him to leap to his feet in alarm. He whirled, then uttered an exclamation of amazement. Seated not 50 feet away was a barelegged boy, similarly engaged in eating a sweet potato. It was Jacket. His brown cheeks were distended, his bright, inquisitive eyes were fixed upon O'Reilly from beneath a defiant scowl.

"Jacket!" cried the man. "What the devil are you doing here?"

"You goin' to let me come along?" challenged the intruder.

"So! You followed me, after I said I didn't want you?" O'Reilly spoke reproachfully; but reproaches had no effect upon the lad. With a mild expletive, Jacket signified his contempt for such a weak persuasion.

The two parleyed briefly; then, when satisfied that no violence was intended to him, the boy sat down to listen. But, as before, neither argument nor appeal had the slightest effect upon him. He denied that he had followed his benefactor; he declared that he was a free agent and at liberty to go where he willed. If it so changed that his fancy took him to the city of Matanzas at the same time O'Reilly happened to be traveling thither, the circumstance might be put down to the long arm of coincidence. If his company were distasteful to the elder man, O'Reilly was free to wait and follow later; it was a matter of complete indifference to Jacket. He had business in Matanzas and he proposed to attend to it. The boy lied gravely, unblushingly. Nevertheless, he kept a watchful eye upon his hearer.

"Very well," O'Reilly told him, finally. "I give in."

Jacket's face instantly lit up. He radiated good humor; he hitched his body closer.

"By—! I get my own way."

don't I?" he laughed.

"Indeed you do," O'Reilly laid a hand fondly upon his loyal follower. "And I don't mind telling you that I'm more than half glad of it. I—I was getting lonesome. I didn't know how much I could miss you. But now we must make some plans, we must have an understanding and decide who we are. Let me see—your real name is Narciso—"

"Narciso Villar."

"Well, then, I shall be Juan Villar, your brother. Henceforth we shall speak nothing but Spanish. Tell me now, what was our father's name, where was our home, and what are we doing together?"

During the breathless interval before the shower the two sat with their heads together, talking earnestly. As the wind came and the cooling rain began to rattle on the leaves overhead they took up their bundles and set out. The big drops drenched them quickly. Their thin garments clung to them and water streamed down their bodies; overhead the sky was black and rent by vivid streaks of fire, but they plodded onward cheerfully.

The downpour lasted but a short time, then the sun came out and dried the men's clothes; on the whole, it had been refreshing. When the evening came the Villar brothers sought refuge in an old sugar mill, or rather in a part of it still standing. They were on the main calzada now, the paved road which links the two main cities of the island, and by the following noon their destination was in sight.

O'Reilly felt a sudden excitement when Matanzas came into view. From this distance the city looked quite as it did when he had left it, except that the blue harbor was almost empty of shipping, while the familiar range of hills that hid the Yumuri—that valley of delight so closely linked in his thoughts with Rosa Varona—seemed to smile at him like an old friend. For the thousandth time he asked himself if he had come in time to find her, or if fate's maddening delays had proved his own and the girl's undoing.

O'Reilly knew that although Matanzas was a prison and a pesthole, a girl like Rosa would suffer therein perils infinitely worse than imprisonment or disease. It was a thought he could not bear to dwell upon.

Signs of life began to appear now, the travelers passed small garden patches and occasional cultivated fields; they encountered loaded carts bound into the city, and once they hid themselves while a column of mounted troops went by.

O'Reilly stopped to pass the time of day with a wrinkled cartman whose dejected oxen were resting.

"Going into the city, are you?" the fellow inquired. "Starved out, I suppose. Well, it's as pleasant to starve one place as another."

Jacket helped himself to a stalk of can from the load and began to strip it with his teeth.

"Will the soldiers allow us to enter?" Johnnie inquired.

"Of course. Why not?" The old man laughed mirthlessly; then his voice changed. "Go back," he said. "Go back and die in the fields. Matanzas stinks of rotting corpses. Go back where the air is clean." He swung his long lash over the oxen, they leaned against the load, and the cart creaked dimly on its way. It is never difficult to enter a trap, and Matanzas was precisely that. There were soldiers everywhere, but beyond an indifferent challenge at the outer blockhouse, a perfunctory question or two, Narciso and Juan Villar experienced no trouble whatever in passing the lines. Discipline, never strict at best, was extremely lax at the brick fortinas along the roads, and since these two refugees were too poor to warrant search, sentries. They obeyed silently; in aimless bewilderment they shuffled along toward the heart of the city. Almost before they realized it they had run the gauntlet and had joined that army of misery, fifteen thousand strong. The hand of Spain had closed over them.

Railroad Tax Cases Will Be Heard Soon

The civil proceedings recently instituted by the Southern railway and the Atlantic and Yadkin railroad against A. D. Watts, state commissioner of internal revenue, with a view to securing a reduction in the tax assessment against those roads, will be aired here on October 2, it is announced. The issues will be argued by representatives of the railways and counsel for the state before Judge James E. Boyd, of this city; Judge Edmund Waddill, Jr., of Richmond, and Judge H. G. Connor, of Wilson, federal jurists.

Largely similar issues were raised by the roads as to the 1921 taxes and these cases are now pending before the United States Supreme court. It is highly probable that the recently raised questions pertaining to the 1922 assessments also will go to the chief legal tribunal as expeditiously as possible.

RETTIEST GIRL IN UNITED STATES

Mary Katherine Campbell, of Columbus, Ohio, was crowned National Beauty Queen for 1922 in the Annual Pageant at Atlantic City. She is 16 years old, 5 feet 5 inches in height, and weighs 133 pounds. She swims, rides, dances—and goes to school. She triumphed over 170 other American beauty winners from as many different towns and cities in the U. S.

AUTOCATER

AMERICAN BEAUTY QUEEN

FAMILIAR WITH KITCHEN

By Robert Fuller

(Autocaster Service)

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 23.—

Being beautiful does not take all of one's time. One can be beautiful and still be quite intimate with kitchen utensils. Mary Katherine Campbell, of Columbus, Ohio, says so—and Mary ought to know.

Miss Campbell is a 16-year-old school girl and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman R. Campbell. She has just been crowned Queen of American beauty for 1922. She prides herself that she can cook a well-seasoned dish of ham and cabbage.

Miss Campbell was picked as America's most beautiful girl from a group of 170 prize winners representing as many different towns and cities in the United States.

The competition was the annual Beauty Pageant at Atlantic City. She was entered as Miss Columbus.

Her Ideal Man

Miss Campbell is a wholesome, mid-western miss just out of high school. She swims, rides, dances and helps mother cook. She is 5 ft. 5 in. in height and weighs 133 pounds.

Marriage, she blushing admits, is at least four years away—although she confessed seven proposals already.

The man of her dreams—well, he should be tall, slightly interested in athletics, good-humored, and not too handsome. He can be either rich or poor—if she loves him.

New American Type

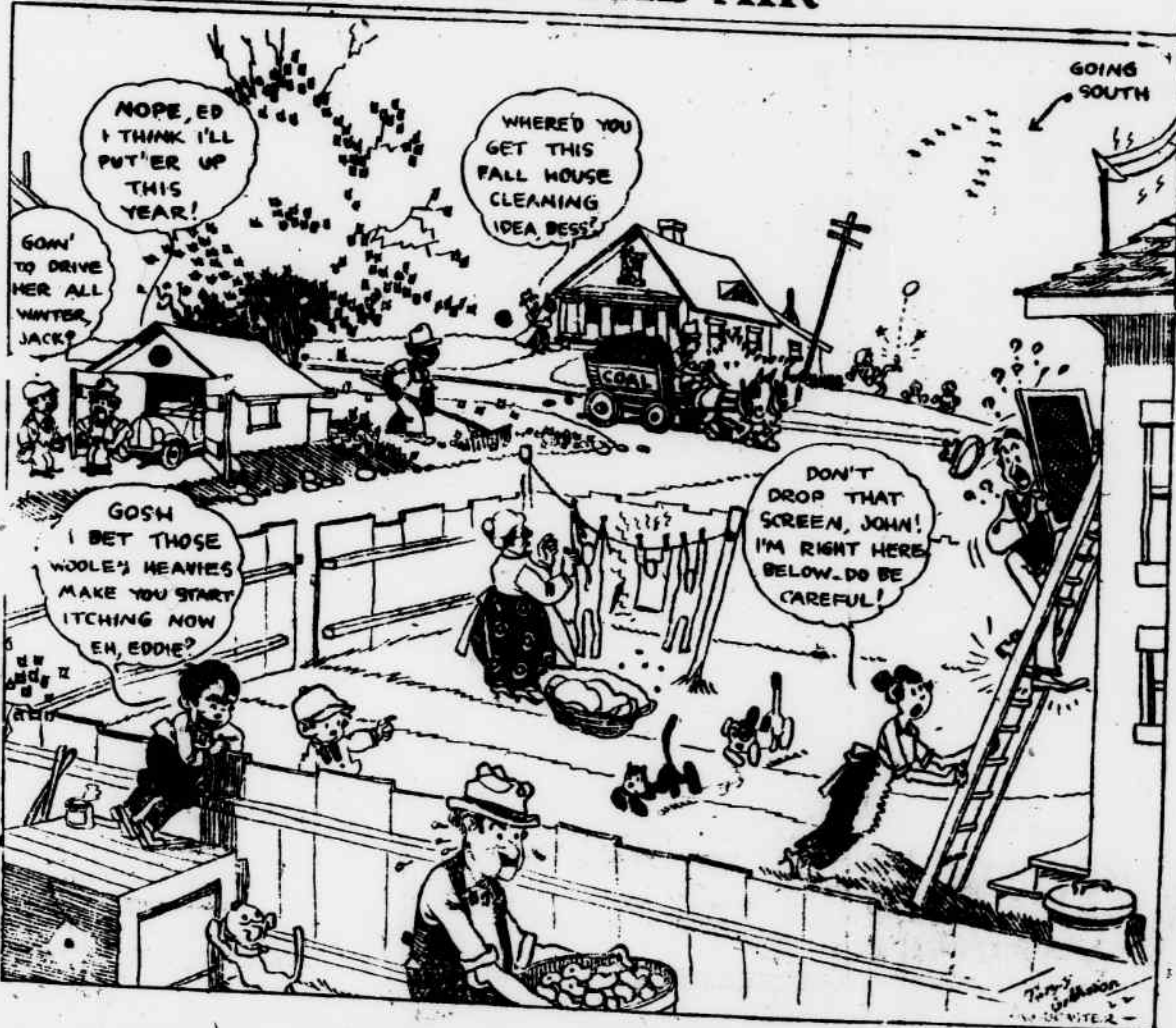

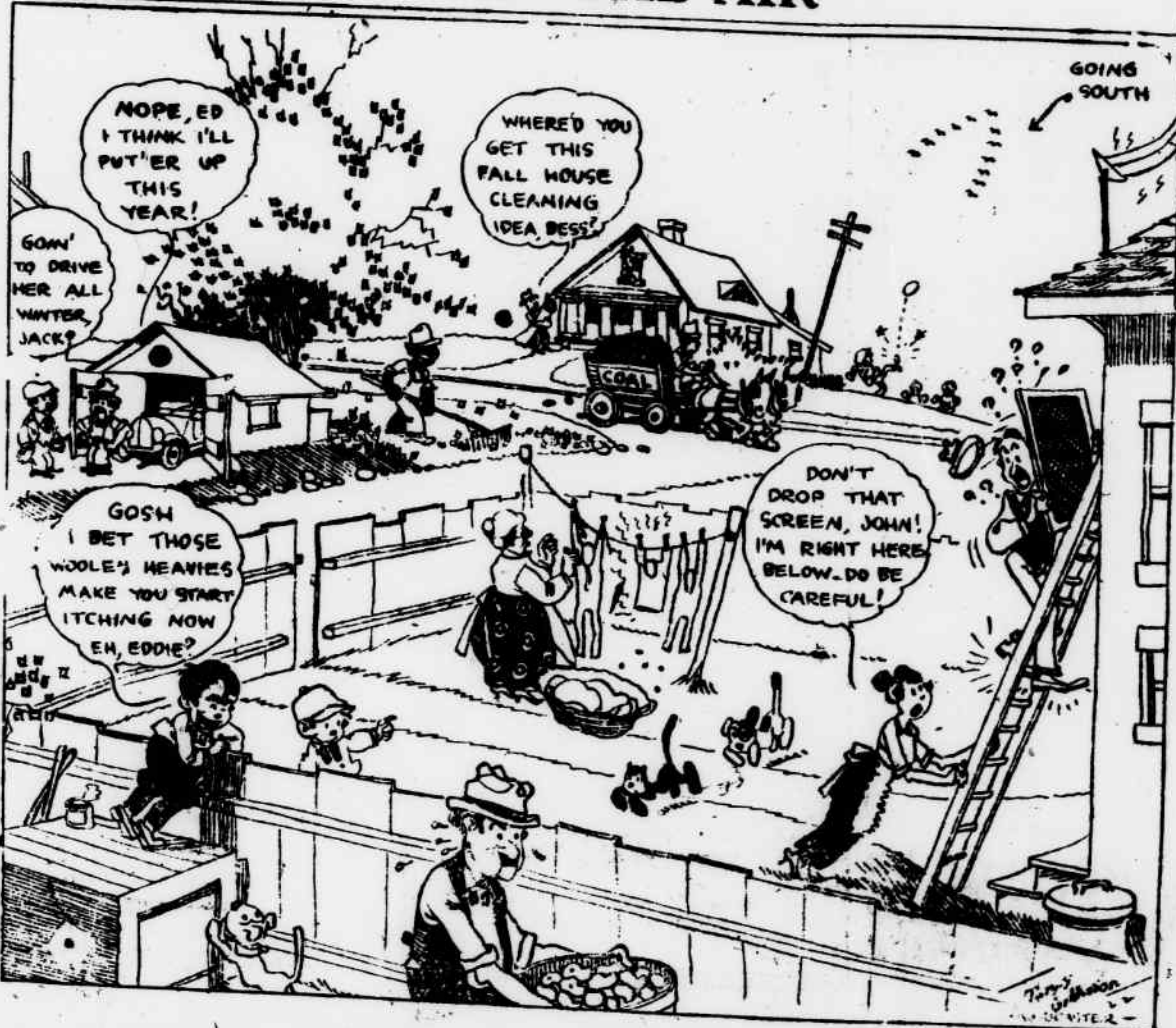

Coles Phillips, famous American illustrator and artist, and one of the judges in the contest, said of Miss Campbell:

"Years ago the nation was thrilled by the so-called Gibson Girl. In the last few years two types of beauty have usurped her place. These are the type that Flo Ziegfeld has exploited, and the Mary Pickford type.

"Neither of these girls in my opinion really typifies the American girl. Instead, I should say the more nearly approximates Miss Campbell's appearance. The type I mean is rather tall, with straight lines, broad shoulders, a free swing to her body, and a clear intelligent face. She is rather athletic.

"As a matter of fact, measurements mean really nothing. Proportion is much more important. Any rate, the type I have described is seen to the highest degree in Miss Campbell. Artists, by the way, say that the type is produced most generally in the middle west. The beauties were judged from three points—in evening gown, bathing suit and general appearance.

IT'S IN THE AIR

PUBLIC HEALTH

By Wm. M. Jones, M. D.

Diphtheria

Before saying anything about the treatment, let us consider for a few minutes something of the nature of the poison that we have to fight. When the germs grow, we have seen how they produce a membrane and how they throw out a poison or toxin. This poison seems to exert its principal action upon the heart, blood vessels, nerves and kidneys. It is this poison that causes the symptoms of a fat heart, which is out of proportion to the temperature, or proportion to the action of the heart. The action of the poison on the heart is direct and also its action on the nerves that control the heart beats.

Then we have inflammation of the kidneys, due to the action of the poison upon the small blood vessels of the kidneys, and when acting on the nerves it produces paralysis. These are not imaginary conditions, for the germs can easily be grown in a laboratory, the poison extracted and very small amounts injected into the skin of animals will produce death in a very short time. So to treat this disease we want something that will combine with the toxin or poison so that the system will not take it up, or to so change it that it is no longer capable of doing injury to the body. Fortunately we do have a substance that we call anti-toxin, which means against poison. When this is given in sufficient doses and early enough it will always cure the case. Now, anti-toxin is not like a drug in its action, for it acts only on the diphtheria toxin, and the dose is measured by what we call units. This, however, has no reference to the volume of the solution, for 1,000 units of the manufacturer may measure as much as 5,000 units of another.

Small Fellow's Chance To See Large Circus

(By Press Agent)

"Hearts and flowers" if you please, professor! Another tradition has been smashed—completely ruined in fact. And there is cause to grieve, for that tradition that is one of those which has lasted since long before we were boys, or girls, or that matter. Remember in the old days when the circus came to town and you sneaked out of the back door, all gossiped up for the night? And remember how you came home in the afternoon sloppy and muddy and dirty and panting, but happy, happier than you had ever been in your life, simply because you held in one grimy paw a ticket to the circus? Yes, you had earned it, for the elephant. You had earned it with your hands, and you had obtained that ticket.

And herein comes the grief. For the circus is coming to the town for a one day's stay, Wednesday, September 27, and when it comes—when it comes—there will be no gossiped up for the night. What's the use?" asks Charles Sparks of the circus. "There are elephants near the lot, so why break the backs of all the small boys in town?" Logical, but sad. For to go back to the old days, it would seem these small boys were quite willing to have their backs broken. However, there is hope for the small boys who haven't the money to see the circus. There are always innumerable bills and heralds to be distributed in advance of the show and there are always departments with any well regulated circus that can find work for the small boy on circus day—but trust the small boy for methods of getting into the show—he knows.

Divergent Action As To Two Injunctions

Divergent action in regard to the two temporary injunctions secured some weeks ago by the Southern Railway and the Seaboard Air Line railway was taken here Thursday by Federal Judge James E. Boyd, of this city, who made permanent the injunction order in regard to the Southern and dissolved the one pertaining to the Seaboard. The injunctions were directed against employees of the two companies, having been designated to prevent interference with the operation of trains, etc.

Murray Allen, of Raleigh, attorney for the Seaboard, asked for dissolution of the injunction which had been granted that road. The request was based upon recognition of the fact that the railway executives and shopmen had settled their differences.

Contract For Vaults In New Home of Bank

Contract for the vaults to be installed in the new home of the Atlantic Bank and Trust company in this city has been awarded to the Mosler Safe company. Many bids were received. The total cost of the vaults, together with the installation, will be approximately $50,000. They will be modern in every respect, it is announced. The bank will occupy the basement and part of the ground floor of the $2,000,000 Jefferson Standard Life Insurance company building now in process of construction.

Pave Southern Part Of Elm Street Soon

The paving of South Elm street between the railway passenger station and West Lee street is an important project which has been entered upon the city's book of things to be done in the very early future. The present brick pavement will be conserved and covered with asphalt. Previously it had been planned to eliminate the brick pavement and to substitute a heavy concrete base with asphalt top, but the plan of utilizing the brick appears to find most favor among property owners in that section. The work is to begin immediately following the receipt of material, City Manager Painter announces.

Gradual resumption of paving work, necessarily discontinued recently on a number of streets in the city because of inability to procure materials, is being witnessed. Some improvement in the transportation situation is noted, although there is yet much room for better conditions along that line.

"Built Me Up"

"I USED Cardui for years and it did me more good than any medicine I ever used," writes Mrs. M. C. Ragsdale, of Fort Towson, Okla. "I used to suffer with womanly trouble that weakened me until I was a mere shadow, nervous, and could not sleep. I did not feel like I could live.

"It seemed that nothing helped me till I heard of Cardui and began to use it. It strengthened me and, as 'twas recommended to do, it regulated and built me up till I was like another woman."

If you are weak, run-down and feel that you need a tonic, take Cardui, the woman's tonic, the tonic about which you have always heard, the tonic that helps weak women regain their strength.

Cardui acts on the womanly system and helps relieve pain and discomfort due to female ailments.

Try Cardui, today, for your trouble.

Wheat Fertilizer

Mt. Airy, N. C., June 15, 1921.

The American Agricultural Chemical Co., Greensboro, N. C.

Gentlemen: We used Basic Lime Phosphate on wheat last fall and are well pleased with the result. We like it far better than 8-2-2 fertilizer for wheat. Our wheat crop this year is better than it was last year even though the weather conditions were not as favorable.

In Conference Here

Democratic nominees for county offices conferred with O. C. Cox, chairman of the Guilford County Democratic Executive committee, at the county courthouse last Saturday afternoon. Plans for the campaign were discussed.

General confidence that impressive majorities would be obtained in all of the contests in Guilford on Tuesday, November 7, was expressed. Democrats voice the conviction that the issues are squarely against the Republicans.

Former Kaiser's Wedding Plans

Berlin, Sept. 23.—The wedding of former Kaiser William to Princess Hermine of Reuss has been tentatively fixed for November 5, according to announcement in well informed quarters today. The ceremony will follow the procedure, prescribed by the Dutch civil law, since the Weimar constitution nullified the laws of the house of Hohenzollerns.

Rensberg Talks To Farmers Here About
Co-operative Plan

growers as to the prices paid at Winston-Salem.

"D—d if I ain't goin' to join the co-operative before night, and I've heard 200 others here say the same thing," Mr. King heard on the warehouse floor at Winston-Salem last Tuesday. The speaker was dissatisfied with the prices offered for his tobacco and did not hesitate to proclaim his conversion to the co-operative cause.

S. E. Coltrane, of Route 2, Guilford College, asked for information regarding the financial arrangements of the co-operatives, and Mr. King pointed out that the association has more money than it needs. The bankers generally have shown a fine spirit of co-operation, he said.

Discussing the co-operative marketing situation with a familiarity engendered by long experience in such activity, Mr. Rensberg talked of some of the earlier efforts along that line, referring particularly to the organization of a body of dairymen in Minnesota some years ago. Those dairymen, selling their milk in St. Paul and Minneapolis, had been forced to accept the low prices paid by the distributors. However, after overcoming seemingly insuperable obstacles, they finally perfected an organization which in one year saved them $190,000, Mr. Rensberg said.

Mr. Rensberg also told of co-operative organization of pork producers and their highly beneficial results. He was enthusiastic regarding the possibilities of the co-operative marketing of tobacco. The speaker pointed out that the American Farm Bureau federation had made possible the formation of such organizations, which in the old days could not be formed because of certain laws.

Conceived as a movement to assist in the prosecution of farm demonstration work in various counties, the Farm Bureau had rapidly grown from infancy to man's estate, the national organizer pointed out. Now the federation is a live, helpful factor in the agricultural life of 37 states and has a paid membership in excess of 2,000,000. The plan of organization is democratic, extending from the township units to the county, state and nation, with representation from every section.

Four efficient departments are maintained by the federation, Mr. Rensberg said, naming them as the transportation, taxation, co-operative marketing and legislative departments. He praised the work of Gray Silver, special legislative representative, and other leaders of the organization. Special emphasis was placed upon the fine work of the bureau in procuring the enactment of legislation designed to prevent exploitation of the public by the big packing concerns.

For every dollar put into the Farm Bureau, the farmer has secured a return of $80, Mr. Rensberg declared, urging whole-hearted support of the big membership campaign in this county. He said that the farmers must have long-term financial assistance; provision, he thinks, should be made for financing the farmer over periods ranging from one to three years. And always, he declared, the farmer must have adequate representation in governmental affairs.

Before adjournment of the meeting President King advised the farmers to attach no credence to the numberless lies being told by enemies of co-operative marketing. He was convinced that the auction system's Annapolis club is increasing membership with amazing rapidity.

Injunction Against Railroaders Granted

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 23.—Judge James H. Wilkerson today granted Attorney General Daugherty's petition for a nation-wide temporary injunction against the railway shop crafts.

Judge Wilkerson, in a lengthy review of the case, said the defendants could not deny knowledge and responsibility for the widespread violence which has marked the strike. Partial settlement of the strike, he held, has not affected the right of the government to obtain a nation-wide injunction.

The order will affect about 270 officers and 400,000 members of the six crafts belonging to the railway employees' department, American Federation of Labor.

The government has not decided whether to follow up the present hearing with a request for a permanent injunction, it was said today. It is considered probable that the strikers will appeal to Judge Wilkerson's decision and carry the case to the Supreme court, because of its importance.

G. P. Apple and Charlie Waynick, proprietors of this business establishment, have had much experience in the automobile business and their friends predict that they will attain a marked degree of success in the enterprise.

German Nation With Peace's Restoration

Written For The Patriot By Edward Percy Howard

Autocaster—New York Bureau

We have just passed the eighth anniversary of the outbreak of the World war.

And what results? A few new nations in place of older nations, new nations destined to bloodshed and suffering to maintain and develop their entity, old nations embittered to battle for their reincarnation.

Of Germany a review indicates a bankrupt nation, but one getting back on its feet. Financial ruin has little meaning. So long as the world will accept German paper money at some price, so long will the printing presses turn it out.

It is difficult to get a proper perspective of Germany. Henri Lichtenberger, professor of the University of Paris, in a 12-day visit to Berlin a few weeks ago, dug out some very interesting facts.

Lichtenberger points out that the German national party has succeeded the old conservative party. This includes the aristocrats, the proprietors of large estates and high officials of the old regime. The officials who have lost their positions and who are living from hand to mouth supply the party with force, are always ready for action, are energetic, eager for battle and even anxious for a fight.

The university people, both faculty and students, fed on the tradition of a policy of force, feel keenly the humiliation of defeat, and have ranged themselves solidly behind the military power. The peasants form the mass of the party.

The leaders have capitalized certain elemental mental conditions for the purpose of building strength, and organization. They exploit the bitterness of the former privileged classes, they play upon the resentment of the disbanded army, they wave the flag of bolshevism, and excite the anti-Semite passion and the profound misery caused by the attitude of France toward the conquered. Hence they have linked to a common cause the fanatics, the discontented, and the lovers of militarism.

The German newspapers, particularly the Deutsche Tageszeitung, aid in driving the masses to despair. They infuse them with the conviction that they have nothing more to lose, no matter what happens.

Even before the blood has coagulated in the German wounds, there has been established an almost universal determination to reconquer the lost provinces, particularly upper Silesia and even Alsace-Lorraine. The old German Imperialism is far from dead.

As against this attitude of the national party there battle the democratic socialists and idealists who want to purge the country of revenge, and who dream of a lasting peace in which the nations shall lie down together, the lions becoming the lambs. Plus this is found the People's party, composed of many captains of industry, bold and resolute men who have financed Germany in the war and since the war men who are making huge profits from the revival of industry and who are doing the best they can to conceal every dollar they make. While the nationalists would be happy with revenge, the people's group would be content with revenue.

Briefly the public mind is kept in a responsive condition by wise German economists, ready to be excited in whatever direction may be most useful. It must and will be moulded to suit the emergency of the hour, and that it will respond there can be no doubt. The lion and the lamb may lay down together, but sooner or later there can be only one answer—more graves, more suffering, more treachery, and more sacrifice, thinks Lichtenberger.

There is no hurry about this thing, of course. A renewal of physical war is not probable in some time. The first phase of a struggle usually is political and economic.

Theater Floor Falls With Fifty Children

Pittsburgh, Sept. 23.—Fifty chattering school children, most of them less than 12 years old, were massed in the lobby of the Strand, a new motion picture theater in the East Liberty district Friday, awaiting admission to a free show when the concrete floor cracked from end to end and dropped the little ones into the basement.

The body of eight-year-old Madeline Kunkle, dressed in holiday garb, was removed from the debris. The injured, 35 children and the theater proprietor, were placed on cots in a nearby hospital at approximately the minute the performance should have started.

Sol Selznick, theater owner, who fell with his guests and four of the children were in a serious condition tonight. A dozen boys and girls were unconscious when they were dug from the powdery mass of stone and cement. Some were bleeding profusely. Others vaguely realizing what had happened, whimpered and cried for their parents.

Confederate Vets To Meet

Asheville, Sept. 24.—General W. A. Smith, of Ansonville, N. C., commander of the North Carolina division, United Confederate Veterans, will arrive in Asheville tomorrow with members of his staff, to be here for the reunion of more than 600 Confederate Veterans from scattered points in North Carolina, which will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Southern Restores
Trains To Service

Southern trains No. 45 and No. 46, between Danville, Va., and Charlotte, N. C., and No. 15 and 16, between Asheville and Salisbury, which were taken off two or three weeks ago in order that more engines might be available for more important trains, were restored to service Sunday. Improvement in the situation, due to the return to work of the shopmen who had been on strike, allowed the return of the trains to service.

Farm Buildings of All Kinds

Farm buildings are a most important part of farm equipment. They should be well planned, well-built, in order to be of the greatest service to the owner. Poor buildings waste your time and your money. Well-built, well-arranged buildings add far more to the value of farms than such buildings cost.

We are well equipped to supply the demand for better farm buildings. The increased cost of building calls for economical construction. Permanency and convenience in farm buildings are important. The sacrifice of either material or labor is avoided by building with the help of our blue prints.

We can help you plan and construct farm buildings—such buildings as will best answer your purpose, and that are within your means.
