

AND NOTIONS.

J. D. CAMPBELL.

Error of the Past—In your last issue you announced a death which had pained more hearts than those which were bound to the death of the deceased. This dispensation of a righteous Providence seems a sad bereavement to me, and it is due to my estimate of the character of my departed friend to offer a public tribute to his memory.

Our personal acquaintance began at a meeting to which he was drawn by his public spirit, and I needed no account of his previous history to discover in him one of those persons whose character would be relied on in the prosecution of important enterprises, promising usefulness in the State without the hope of time or promotion to those engaged. It has been said that the world is full of men, but I think it is full of men who are not.

He was a man to be loved, a citizen to be trusted, and a Christian to be imitated. Like BENT and SAYRE, illustrious in the annals of the State Educational Association, he was taken in the flower of manhood from his earthly labors; but in contemplating the apparently unfinished work of such men, we should recur to those reflections which consoled inspired men of old when impressed with the brevity of human life, and the vanity of mortal hopes—"Art thou not from everlasting? O Lord my God, my Holy one? We shall not die." At such times let us think of the eternity and unchangeableness of God, and we will be assured that he has wrought his works in no good man in vain. He has been the dwelling place of his people in all generations; and however the things of earth may perish and pass away, the works of the righteous follow and shine with them in a home as eternal as God.

Richmond Correspondence.

Richmond, Sep. 7th, 1865.

EDITOR OF THE PATRIOT:—The most interesting item of the week is the acceptance of Gen. Robert E. Lee, of the Presidency of Washington College, Lexington, Va. In his letter of acceptance he uses the following language: "It is the duty of every citizen, in the present condition of the country, to do all in his power to aid in the restoration of peace and harmony, and in no way to oppose the policy of the State or General Government directed to that object; and that it is particularly incumbent upon those charged with the instruction of the young, to set an example of submission to authority."

The Rector of the College, in speaking of Gen. Lee's acceptance, says, that "in dedicating his future life to the holy work of educating the youth of his country, he presents a new and interesting phase of his grand and heroic character, a character than which no more perfect model exists among men."

It is a remarkable fact, and should be a matter of pride to the Southern people, that the great mass of those that lately composed the Confederate armies, have settled down in the pursuit of the useful avocations of life, and have thus spared our grief-stricken land the consequences that history teaches us have almost invariably followed all great wars. Many and horrible were the scenes of vice and immorality that followed the wars of the revolution and of 1812; and some of us remember with painful feelings, the atrocities enacted and the crimes committed, in many of the cities, after the conclusion of the war with Mexico. From the vicious state of society that produced these excesses we have been spared by the innate virtue that pervaded the ranks of the Southern army.

A strong effort is being made to revive the temperance cause in different parts of this State, and several Divisions of the order of Sons of Temperance are reported to be in a flourishing condition in this city. Success to the motto of "Less, Less, and Less."

The Richmond Dispatch will reappear in the course of a few weeks, under the management of Messrs. Ellyson and Cowardin. This and The Enquirer, which will also appear about the same time, will give our city six daily papers.

The Tredolgan Locomotive and Iron Works, the largest establishment of its kind in the South, is again at work, turning out all kinds of Railroad machinery. Gen. Jas. R. Anderson, of the late C. S. Army is one of the proprietors of these works, and has associated with him some of the most experienced mechanics in the country. During the existence of the Confederacy these works were employed almost exclusively in the manufacture of implements of war. At present there are about two hundred and fifty operatives employed.

The Old Dominion Iron and Nail Works, located on the celebrated Bear Island, near this city are in full blast. These works were established in 1820, and have been in successful operation ever since, with the exception of a slight curtailment of business during the war. They produced in 1860, seventy-five thousand pounds of nails and spikes, of one hundred pounds each. The annual consumption of iron is about five thousand tons, and of coal two hundred thousand bushels. There are about four hundred operatives employed in the works. The manufactures of this establishment are exceeded by none.

Jackson's Law Office.—The Salisbury, N. C. correspondent of The Gazette, writes: "Near the centre of Salisbury, on the grounds of Judge Boyden, stands an office where Andrew Jackson once studied law. It is a little frame building about ten feet square, standing on a line with the pavement with its gable end to the street. A small board shutter covers the only window, and the lower door opens to the yard at the rear. It is pointed roof, but looks very dingy now. The soldiers have torn half one side off as mementoes. It is a strange object, and well calculated to arrest the attention of the stranger, standing as it does almost a ruin directly in front of a large mansion surrounded with extensive grounds, both well shaded and filled with choice shrubbery."

DIED.

Mrs. AGNES ROBINSON, consort of Dr. R. Robinson and daughter of Capt. James and Mrs. Lucy Dillard, departed this life, at the residence of her husband, in Leaksville, N. C. after a short illness, on Saturday evening 19th inst., aged thirty-three years and four days.

She had been a professor of religion, and a member of the Methodist church about eight years. She leaves behind a devoted husband, and two small children, an aged mother, two brothers, and two sisters, to wait the morn of the resurrection. Could the love of dear relations, the regards of numerous friends, or the high respect of an intelligent community, have been her consolation, she would have long remained, but the ways of the Almighty, are not as our ways, nor his thoughts as our thoughts. Happy soul—she has left the cares, sorrows, afflictions and ways of earth, to enjoy the bliss, the joys and glories of Heaven.

Her memory as a devoted wife, a tender mother, a dutiful child, an affectionate sister, a kind mistress, a pious Christian, and useful member of the community will be long cherished by those she leaves behind.

"Precious in the sight of the Lord, is the death of his saints."

POLITICAL.

At a meeting of the Democratic Convention at Harrisburg, Penn., on the 24th of August, the following resolutions were adopted:

The preamble asserts the betrayal of their trust by the party in power since 1861. The resolutions affirm the fidelity of Pennsylvania democrats to the Union, and declare that the slaughter, debt and disgrace of the civil war was a consequence of their constitution being disregarded; that the constitution ought to be obeyed at all times, under all circumstances and in every part of the country—the oath to support it being universally binding, and it is only by a rigid enforcement of its provisions that we can hope for liberty or peace. The palladium of all our constitutional rights consists of trial by jury, the habeas corpus, a free speech, immunity from punishment except upon legal conviction by an impartial jury, and the right of white citizens to vote at the State elections, according to State laws. The Convention concurs with President Johnson in the opinion that State ordinances of secession are nullities, and the States therefore are all as much in the Union as ever, the people owning the same duties and being clothed with the same rights as before. The reclamation of their old position shall not be impeded by that portion which already opposed the Union, which now declares it legally dissolved, and is malignantly laboring to prevent its restoration. The resolutions are strongly against negro suffrage as a high crime against the constitution and a deliberate and wicked attempt to degrade the white race to the low level of the black, express willingness to support President Johnson in restoring the States, giving them a representation in Congress, and saving them from the curse of negro equality; but can only give full approval to the administration if he adheres to the constitution and laws, punishes kidnapping and robbery when committed by his own officers, and suffers no person to be murdered by military commission.
