PATENT PLOVER CLEVIS.

This Clevis was introduced about two years ago, and has given general satisfaction. It is cheaper and better than the old-fashioned clevis, as the following Certificate from well known gentlemen of the state will go to prove:

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 14th 1870.
This is to certify, that we, the undersigned, have used J. H. Tarpley's Patent Clevis, and have no hesitancy in pronouncing it the best thing of the kind we have ever seen, and cordially recommend it to the farming public as a cheap and substantial clevis for Plows, Cultivators, Harrows, &c. It is undoubtedly the best clevis in use. Signed:

PATENT HAY & COTTON PRESS! PATENTED MAY 18th, 1869.

This press will bale more hay or cotton than any other press in use, and does one thing that no other press in the United States does do, it packs the bales, clamps the bale and removes it out of the press, all by horse-power, it being supplied with two sets of clamps, one set of clamps remain on the bale until it is hooped, the other set of clamps are fit in the press ready for the next bale. 3 hands and one horse will pack one hundred bales of hay in 10 hours, at the same time 3 hands can load it into a wagon and 1 horse can haul it, 3 hands can put it down ready for packing in 10 minutes. This press is different from the most of the presses, as it is horizontal, and when open, ready for filling is similar to a large box, making it much easier to fill, as the hay or cotton does not have to be elevated.

For packing cotton it is far superior to any press in use, as it can be used in the gin house, and can be worked by the same power that drives the gin. This press has all the power that is required to pack cotton in small bales of large weight.

This press will be sold with full guarantee to do just what we say it will do.
This press is being manufactured in Greensboro, N. C., by Messrs. Sergeant & McCauley.
Any person wishing to purchase please will do well to see this press before purchasing.
Persons wishing to buy rights will address.

BURGLARIES.—Last Friday night some one entered Post Master White's residence, and succeeded in carrying off a silver watch and some articles of clothing.

The same night, some one, supposed to be the same party, entered Mr. M. C. Dixon's residence and laid in his winter's supply of clothing. Mr. D. estimates his loss at about $100.

Suspicion rests on a negro, who professes to hail from Danville, and goes by the name of Henry Johnson, as some of the goods stolen have been seen in his possession.

The officer's are on his track, but up to this writing have not been able to catch up with him.

We endeavored to get the full particulars, description, &c., but if any body in the city knows anything they won't tell us, and afterwards will blame us for not publishing all the facts. One citizen was perfectly horrified the morning after the burglary, at the idea of our not knowing all about it. We informed him that we were certainly not at the place taking notes at the time of the occurrence, and were really unable, as much as we regretted to admit it, that we could not inform him who was.

We again ask our friends to give us the points on all items of interest, and we will be under many obligations to them, and endeavor to furnish good local column each week.

WHY WILL YE DIE?—Death, or what is worse, is the inevitable result of continued suspension of the menstrual flow. It is a condition which should not be trifled with. Immediate relief is the only safeguard against constitutional ruin. In all cases of suppression, suspension or irregularity of the "courses," Dr. J. Bradford's Female Regulator is the only sure remedy. It acts by giving tone to the nervous centres, improving the blood and determined directly to the organs of menstruation. It is a legitimate prescription, and the most intelligent Doctors use it. Prepared by L. H. Bradford, Druggist, Atlanta, Georgia, at $1.50 per bottle, and sold by respectable Druggists everywhere.

Sept. 15-1m.

IMPROVEMENTS.—We noticed with pleasure the many improvements now going on in our little city. We have not been around to count for ourselves, but from a correspondent of the Fayetteville Eagle, writing from this place, we learn that there are at least thirty-five new buildings being erected. This speaks well for Greensboro, when we remember that a few months since Raleigh and Newbern, both larger cities than ours, were bawling at thirteen and twenties. We beat them then by having 43 new buildings in course of erection,—more than both of them combined.

We have no doubt of the correctness of the Eagle's correspondent, and think that the number, if he had examined closely might have been increased some four or five, at least.

Some of the private residences now being built, are, or rather will be, when completed, as pretty as one would wish to see any where, and the Greensboro Female College, will be second to no institution of the kind in the State, and we think we could safely say, in the South.

And last we would call especial attention the New Hotel of Dr. D. W. C. Benbow now being pushed forward with that rapidity as only an energetic man like the Dr. can do.

It will have two fronts,—the main entrance being on South Elm, the other on Sycamore. They will front 100 feet each way; will be five stories high, with basement. It will be furnished in magnificent style, with glass front, &c., and as the correspondent above alluded to truthfully says, when completed will be an ornament to the city.

We also learn that the Dr. intends running a line of street cars.

A few such energetic, go-ahead men as Benbow, will build up any place, even if it had not the local attractions that Greensboro presents to every visitor.

THE OLDEST MAN YET.—Among the census returns for the Burkeville Precinct, Cumberland county, Ky., is the name of Jack Cornet, a white man, a native of Virginia, represented to be one hundred and sixteen years old.—Ez.

We can beat that,—while in Richmond last month, we saw an old colored man who was put down at the first registration after the surrender, at 122; but the only way they got at it was by going back to his earliest recollection.

His mind is perfectly clear, talks fluently and sensibly and is strictly religious in his way. He quotes Scripture almost correctly in every instance and will not allow himself to be shamed, for fear, that he, like Sampson, might lose his strength by being shorn.

He also positively denies being a free man, as at one time during an election in the city he was forced by a colored party, Ben Wood, we believe was at the head of it, to go to the polls and vote against his wishes. He says his master is still his master, and he intends sticking to him to the last, as he is, and always has been his best friend.

CORRECTION.—Mr. J. P. Critz, of Penn's Store, Va., in a card to the Richmond Whig, contradicts the statement that he killed a negro, as was published in that paper of 26th ult.

Thanks to friend L. D. Aydielt for a nice lot of snap beans.

GEORGE W. KIRK VENTILATED.
EDITOR SENTINEL:—As illustrative of the history of the times, permit me to give you readers an unvarnished statement of what I know of the life and character of the commander of one of the regiments of Governor Holden's State Troops—Col. George W. Kirk.

The facts now made known were purposely withheld till after the election, lest their publication might unduly excite the public mind and thereby defeat the patriotic efforts of yourself, Mr. Editor, and the hundreds of good men who co-operated with you, to preserve the peace and good order of the State. But now that the election is over, and secured, I think it eminently proper that the people of North Carolina should know the character of the man, whom Governor Holden selected to carry out his policy of overthrowing the old government and setting up a new one, pulling down the temple of liberty in our own good Old North State.

I hasten, therefore, to begin this statement with

EARLY LIFE OF GEO. W. KIRK.

As to his birth place, reports differ. Some say he was born in East Tennessee; while others say he was certainly born in North Carolina. Suffice it to say this, however, that he was unfortunately born somewhere, and that, from his childhood, he gave promise of being a man with which he has since covered himself.—Destitute of early culture and training, he advanced steadily to manhood in the same land and course that he pursued from the time he first set out on the journey of life. Arriving at that period, he began to look about for the first time, for some employment by which to make a living. He was a shoemaker, and that, and the honorable trade of a shoemaker. In that business, it is said, he succeeded very well until he was suspected of fraudulently appropriating a large sum of money from the store of a customer. He was discharged from the employ of a Mr. Broyles, of Green county, Tennessee, and came to the beginning of the war, when the deep malignity of his appointment by Holden, may be clearly seen. I will, however, leave unsaid great knowledge of the war, when the unnatural and inhuman traits of his character seem to have attained their full development. During the first year of the war, Kirk stalked in the woods, not identifying himself with either side of the belligerents. On account of his frequent raids on the defenceless women and children of the mountain districts of his State—Tennessee—he was known as "Indian Creek" in Washington county, and as "the Lawless" in the Mountains of Madison county in North Carolina. Finding there quite a number of desperate men like himself he organized a marauding band, and with it began to make himself the terror and patriot; that the Standard says he is, making

A RAID ON MARSHALL.

The county seat of Madison. This raid is known in this part of the country as "Kirk's Raid." The chief damage done having been the carrying off of a large quantity of property deposited there for the use of the wives and children of Confederate and Federal soldiers. Many trunks and drawers, however, were broken open and their contents looted. Suffice it to add to this raid, that Kirk was immediately present taking an active part in all that was done.

Returning to their mountain dens, Kirk and his band made frequent raids on the settlements in Tennessee and North Carolina contiguous to the Laurel county. That part of Tennessee known as Indian Creek in Washington county, and as "the Lawless" in the Mountains of Madison county in North Carolina. Finding there quite a number of desperate men like himself he organized a marauding band, and with it began to make himself the terror and patriot; that the Standard says he is, making

Women and children were robbed of not only their property, but of their peace and meat, but of their beds and wearing clothes! The feathers were in many cases, poured out from the beds on the floor, and the "ticks" filled with the clothing of the women and children and carried off. Helpless, old men and aged men were robbed of their shoes in many instances and left bare-foot! Well do I remember how the helpless but their lips were frozen with cold, and they were driven from the feet of old Uncle John Brown, of Indian Creek, a man of 85 years of age. Nor have I forgotten that Kirk, in person, met George Brown in the road, and with threats of instant death, compelled him to give up his shoes from his feet and give them to him, who placed them on his own unshod feet. But I will not trouble the readers with further details of these robberies and outrages, but will turn to the more recent history of civilization.

It is proper, however, to add that if any one doubts the correctness of what I have said in this connection, I can produce the facts of Kirk's life, and the creditable and gentlemanly, showing that I have not told the half of what is chargeable to Kirk and his marauders.

Having shown that Kirk, before he belonged to any army, carried on the business of robbing and plundering women and children, I will now proceed to show that he at one time

MURDERED SEVEN MEN.

This is a grave charge, I know, but it is nevertheless true. I knew all the men, their names were Presley Blankinship, La Fayette Blankinship, Daniel Justice, Jackson Southard, John Franks, Benbow Woodward, and Marion Ramsey. The facts are these: The outrages perpetrated on the citizens of Indian Creek, by Kirk and his band, were so great that the former determined to remove to North Carolina. Fearing they would be murdered in the attempt to do so, they appealed to Col. Palmer, then commanding the Western Division of North Carolina, for aid. That officer accordingly sent a detachment of his troops under Lieut. Dargyle, to Indian Creek. A small squad of these soldiers, encamped near Mr. Presley Blankinship's, were surprised by the band, and were overpowered by superior numbers, they indicated a willingness to surrender. But the squad was fired into, nevertheless, John Franks and Jackson Southard, being killed outright, and Benbow Woodward so badly wounded that he could not get away. The two Blankinships and Marion Ramsey attempted to make their escape but were overtaken and murdered without showing them any mercy. The two former were citizens and had never been guilty of any offence, except to sympathize with the Confederate cause.

They next went to a field near by, where they found Daniel Justice chopping firewood. They demanded his name, and on being told that it was Justice they ordered him to go down the hill and deliver his arms. He expressed fears, but was assured by them that he should not be hurt. He then started towards them but had not proceeded far when they halted him and demanded his arms. He told him he had no arms, but they ordered him to go down the hill and deliver his arms. He expressed fears, but was assured by them that he should not be hurt. He then started towards them but had not proceeded far when they halted him and demanded his arms. He told him he had no arms, but they ordered him to go down the hill and deliver his arms.

"The counsel," said a learned Judge, "will dwell to pluck some of the feathers out of the wings of his imagination, and stick them into the tail of his judgment."

against the head of his wounded son, fired, literally blowing off the top of his head! These seven men were inhumanly butchered by order of George W. Kirk, now a Colonel of Holden's State Troops. What excuse Kirk pretended to have for the murders, I do not know; he certainly had no sufficient or even plausible excuse. Of course he cannot deny that he killed the men. I can prove that he was killed and that they entered the house of Mrs. B. and actually took therefrom the last article of wearing apparel! I will also prove that Kirk notified Mrs. B. that it would not be safe for any one but herself to undertake to bury the dead! Let Holden put me to the test, and I will show that these facts are not only true, but that he knew full well they were true when he appointed Kirk Colonel of his State troops! By the way, did not the Standard publish these facts during the war, when they were first known? I ask Joe Holden.

But I have not yet finished. Passing from Madison county to Tennessee, by the "Allen Stand," on Laurel, the traveler may see near the Tennessee line, quite a number of human bones yet bleaching on the ground. For a long time their presence where they are was inexplicable. No one could fathom the mystery. But "murder will out," and I can now tell you how those bones were placed there. They are the bones of some eight or ten boys who were captured at "Camp Vance." After getting them into Tennessee, it is said, Kirk allowed a few to escape. Having stopped on their return to North Carolina to get their arms, they were overtaken by a detachment of Kirk's men and deliberately marched out from the house and shot! Messrs. Benjamin Human and Wm. Shelt Ray, of Madison county, were present begging for their lives, at least they were stated, and I do not doubt, will repeat the statement, if requested so to do. No body in this country who knows the facts, doubts that Kirk was on his knees at the flag of truce in his hands, for some inscrutable reason, the Good Being has terminated the earthly existence of every man who participated in it—amen! May that one live to be lashed with a guilty conscience for a hundred years to come! May that one never cease to hear the wails of Lieut. Hal Smith and Lieut. Morgan, "I surrender, I surrender," and yet still before his knees, Col. Kirk, ask you whether you did not, with your own hands, shoot Lieut. Smith on Reems Creek, after he distastefully and repeatedly told you he would surrender, and whether you did not shoot Lieut. Morgan, near Asheville, when he was begging for mercy with flag of truce in his hands, begging for mercy? Did you not reply to Morgan, "don't you, it is too late!" Deny it if you will and I will prove it.

Third, I repeat, this story is already too long. As much as I regretted to see the bloody scenes through which we passed during the late war, I have felt bound to lay the foregoing facts before the public. With our knowledge of them it is impossible for the people of the State to form a just estimate of the malignity of Gov. Holden's military movement.

CICERO.

UNITED STATES SENATOR.

The Sentinel says: In addition to the names of Gov. Vance, Gov. Bragg, Col. Cowan, Judge Merrimon, A. J. Dargyle and Col. Robert Strange, as reliable persons for the U. S. Senate, already named in the Sentinel, we observe that of Gov. Graham, Judge Gilliam, Josiah Turner, Jr., Gen. M. W. Ransom, Col. W. A. Allen, E. F. Shober, and perhaps others have been added.

In addition to the names of the above, we would respectfully present that of the distinguished citizen of Caswell, Hon. John Kerr.

He is eminently qualified for the position. In all the attributes that render estimable the man or the citizen, he has no inferior in North Carolina.

Whilst we are proud to know that our State has many men who would fill such a position well, we yet feel that Judge Kerr by his talents, ability and devotion to his State, would reflect, not only credit on himself but on the people who selected him as their representative.

In a long and brilliant career at the bar, and a part of the time on the bench, and all the time, more or less, in public life, marked for his dignity, lofty bearing, and unblemished character, no man in central North Carolina, has a greater number of admirers, nor more devoted friends; as an orator and a debater, his talents is of the first order, as a jurist his ability is known and acknowledged, whilst his familiarity with the political history of our country is such as few men have attained.

All and all, we can think of no one that it would afford us greater pleasure to see elected, because we feel that he would be the "right man in the right place."

We have not alluded to his arbitrary arrest and incarceration by Holden, Kirk & Co., and his heroic conduct while held in durance, but that has only added to his former popularity and rendered him still more dear to the people whose representative he was and for whom he suffered.

An advocate having lately gained a suit for a poor young lady, who was unjustly remarked: "I have nothing to pay you but my heart." "Hand it over to my clerk, if you please: I wish no fee for myself," he replied.

Why are sheep the most dissipated animals? Because they gambler in their youth, spend most of their days on the turf, the best of them are black-legs, and they are sure to be fleeced at last.

Nearly twelve hundred colored persons from North Carolina are looked for Liberia, in a ship that is to sail in November.

An old gentleman who resides near Boston never has green peas for dinner without remembering the poor by sending the pods to the orphan asylum.

A correspondent of the New England Farmer, says half a pint of salt dissolved in a pailful of soap suds and applied with a sprinkler several mornings in succession, will effectually destroy the cabbage worm, whose ravages have been so disastrous this season. It is easily tried.

It is better to carve your name on hearts than marble.
