REMEMBER ME.

When you wander forth alone. And the shades of evening fall With their fitful, shadow gloom, O'er creation like a pall. When the stars are seen above,

And the fire-fly on the lea, Like the meteor flame of love, Oh, then remember me!

When joy is breathing near thee, A light and dulcet strain, When sorrow doth not spare thee Its deep-felt thrill of pain. In thy hours of social gladness,

In thy lonely hours of sadness, Oh, then remember me! I shall think of thee at even, When the memories of the past Like the pilgrim's dreams of heaven

When the soul is full of glee.

Come thronging wild and fast; I shall watch thy favorite planet In its pure unclouded flight, And shall fancy thou art gazing On the splendor of its light.

Sam. Houston.

His Early Life a Sad One.

In the year 1829, Arkansas Territory was visited by a nobler refugee than commonly came to its seclusion. A voluntary exile from the Executive Mansion of Tennessee, followed by the fury of a political press, and that public, full of uncharitable interpretations which believed the worst, Sam Houston had resolved that the sun should forever shine upon his back, and the East be forgotten in the misery of his spirit. A Governor, elected at the age of thirty-four by 12,000 majority,he had proved the reverse of the couplet:

Art hath no charity for him Whom love hath satisfied.

He had married a young lady, and, after three months of living together, they separated. The reasons neither ever gave. All rushed forward with a reason, and that the basest; but none guessed the shortimplored by the preacher, in public, to tell the name of her betrayer, Honston: "He would not speak! Won-

Spirit." For a little space Sam Houston relapsed into the Indian's own drunken and maudlin sorrow. His strong nature revived again, and he became the Indian champion at Washington, and the scourge of the swindling agents and traders who imposed upon them. They re-vived at this capital all the slanders of Tennessee, but his scars had healed, and would not bleed anew. At last, an Ohio Congressman slandered Andrew Jackson in his name, whom Houston revered .-Then there was an affray on the avenue, and nearly simultaneously breaches of the Congressman's head and of the "privileges of the House." For this offense they tied the man of misfortune on the floor, in Police Court, and wherever he could be dragged; but he compelled a verdict of character at the hands of the very cock-sparrow who had defamed him. Then, shaking the dust of Washington from his feet, he returned to the wilds of Arkansas and read Horace were open again, and, with a fresher spirit, he saw his opportunity in Texas. To that great new State he became deliverer and President, and, with a magnanimous patriotism, he led the conquest to the caphim off.

Arrival of Convicts .- Wm. R. Asheworth, Esq., Sheriff of Raudolph county, brought to the city yesterday three recruits for the penitentiary, convicted at the last term of Randolph county Superior Court for robbing the safe of the Clerk of the Court, B. B. Bulla, and sentenced as follows: Calvin Robbins and his wife for seven years, and Sallie Smith for five years -They were all colored.

The rewards which be obtains for the killing of the outlaw will amount to quite a small fortune. It was a brave act and the people rejoice to see it so well rewarded.

Suspicion of Foul Play.—We understand that Mr. Robert S. Hughes, the telegraph operator who was found dead near the W. C. & R. R. R. about two miles this till the beauty of life and career side of Mars' Bluff, on last Thursday morning, an account of which has been published in the Journal, is supposed to have met with foul play. Those who are best posted in regard to the matter think it hardly probable that he was killed ital and the nation which had cast in jumping from the train. It is known that he had a difficulty with another party a short time previous to the event, and it is said that a stick of wood was found near the body, the end of which fitted exactly to a contusion on the head.

WEDNESDAY. JAN. 8, 1872.

Happy New Year. After a week's rest we greet our readers again and wish every one of them a happy and prosperous new year.

A Word on Business.

The beginning of the new year is perhaps as good a time as any to say a word to our merchants and business men. We would like to see a more enterprising and public spirit manifested by some of them than we have heretofore seen .-While a few have shown a disposition to cultivate the acquaintance of the public, and have freely advertised their business, the majority seem to look upon money spent in this way as so much wasted and live in the hope that people coming to town will occasionally find their business places and deal with them. They paint signs over their doors and yet they seem to think that a sign in a sheet that reaches thousands of people fifty-one times every year is useless. A little reflection would convince them that there was neither business nor wisdom in this cross roads view of things.

If it will pay to do business without advertising it will pay better with it, provided it is done right and with system. Aside from this there should be a certain amount of State and local pride which would take an interest in State and local papers and help to build them up and make them powerful and useful, as they should be.

We have known instances where men who would consider themselves insulted if you intimated they were not public spirited citizens, deferred having a few handbills printed till they went North for goods where they had an idea they could get it done for fifty cents less, and vet they expect papers to work to build up a town and build them up with it. This thing has been too common, not only here but throughout the South, and the consequence is Northern institutions have been built up with Southern money and our own, which should have been cherished, left to struggle on thro' a precarious existence for want of proper home support. And we have reaped the benefit of our suicidal course in ashes and in tears,

Year after year thousands of dollars go from the South to support the press of the North, and if onehalf this sum was spent at home we would have a press second to none, and one that every Southerner might be proud of.

A community is judged in a great measure by its papers, and its business capacity passed upon by those who read the papers by its advertising columns, and this being so very citizen of a town should feel an interest in his town papers, should regard them as public institutions and be glad to see them prosper.

Papers don't ask charity, they don't want it, a decent paper would not have it, but they do want and have a right to expect that recognition from the public which industry and time devoted to the public good entitle them to, and every public spirited man, who will reflect for a moment, will agree with us.

We have a growing town, whose prospects in the future are bright. and to her business men we should look for that spirit of enterprise which will facilitate rather than retard her growth. She should certainly hold her own with he sister towns and support her press as well. Charlotte, not much larger, has five well supported papers, and one them daily, and Charlotte is profiting by it.

We have dotted these remarks simply for the purpose of getting our merchants to thinking, and when that is done we are satisfied some of them will pursue a different course in the present from that pursued in the past year.

ENLARGED.—That staunch paper the Wilmington Journal comes to us now enlarged to eight columns, dressed in new type, and presenting every indication of a flourishing and healthy vigor, in which we much rejoice and multiplied years of which we cordially wish it.

Rail Roads.

We see by our Virginia exchanges and leading papers in this State, that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad proposes to extend the Lynchburg and Danville Road from the latter place via Pea Ridge, Prospect Hill, Hillsboro and Pittsno objection to this road, nor any other proposed to be constructed in we have, if well and prudently managed, the better it will be for our people. But while we are encouraging the speedy construction wish the Richmond and Danville subscribed for a controlling majoring from this place to Cheraw, S. C. It was hoped that this company, when they secured the charter of this road to be amended to allow the track to be laid of such width as they choose, and had the route be introduced in the Legislature, surveyed, would have continued the work until the road was completed and thoroughly equipped. But, for some reason unknown to us, they suddenly stopped operations after leasing the North Carolina Railroad and have not since would desire. made a forward move.

We hope the parties interested have been and still are acting in good faith in this matter, and that it will not be long before work will again be commenced and continued until the road is completed. When this is done it will open up a direct line to Charleston and a region of country that will furnish freight for the road for generations to comeeven if there was nothing else to be transported but the inexhaustible quantity of lumber that is now growing in such great abundance along the greater portion of the line of the proposed road.

As to the extension of the Fay etteville road we have heretofore said enough in all conscience. We will only add, if it could be extend ed to this place, thence to Danbury and Mt. Airy, it would be the best paying road in the State by a great deal. But it seems hard to get it started this way.

And then he adds

"It is with a strange sensation that one looks upon living creatures who were the contemporaries of Hector and Andromache, though they be only toads."

Some people may doubt the truth of the above, but older living toads than these have been found.

Some years ago, in the mines of England, a toad was taken from a rock, which rock, according to geology, must have been 18,000 years old. The toad lived for twenty minutes after its release from its stone cell.

In 1864 miners at work near Dubuque, Iowa, at a depth of 100 reet found a toad solidly embedded in the center of a large piece of ore .-What its age was we can't exactly tell, but it was certainly older than those venerable Trojans. It lived about an hour after being brought to the surface.

Pomeroy's Democrat.

After an interval of some length we are again in receipt of Pomeroy's from borrowers. This is well known Democrat, a paper which we read to the Credit Mobilier men, who with a great deal of pleasure.-Pomeroy refused to support Greeley, but in this he was consistent as it will be curious to watch the votes he was opposed in the start to any coalition of the Democratic party with any wing of the Republicans. He never was an advocate of the thing called policy and is among those who prefer a straight defeat to success won by stooping. He has a versatility of talent, and a have given his paper, started in a little town in Wisconsin, a national reputation. There is no bolder, more vigorous, or more entertaining writer in American journalism than "BRICK" POMEROY.

The following complimentary no tices of our Senator we clip from the Raleigh Era, the organ of the Radical narty .

HON, JAS. T. MOREHEAD, JR .-This gentleman, the temporary president, on the adjournment of the Senate this morning, retired to the shades of Senatorial life, so to speak; Lieutenant-Governor Brogden assuming the Chair on the first of January to hereafter preside over the sessions of the Senate. We like Mr. President Morehead much. He has presided with ability, impartiality and judicial fair-ness. Filling for a few weeks the position of Lieutenant-Governor, as a compliment from his party, he has discharged the duties imposed upon him with honor to himself and creditably to the Senate and State.

Morehead is a name long known and highly honored in North Carolina. We are proud to record that the name and ancestry is nobly sus tained in the person of the retiring Lieutenant Governor Morehead.

The Senate passed complimenta ry resolutions to President Morehead; and he retires from the position he has filled, so honorably and acceptably, carrying with him the respect and confidence of the Re publican party to an extent seldom ecorded by one political party to a leader of another.

A New Departure in the Credit Mobilier Scandal.

Washington Correspondent New York Herald, Dec. 30: Letters have been received here to-day announcing a complete change in the Credit Mobilier investigation. Instead of endeavoring to prevent a disclosure of the damaging facts which are sure to be made known, the parties implicated will change front and demand an opportunity to tell their little stories, which have meanwhile been carefully concocted and made to tally with each other. The letters which Dawes, Garfield and other recipients of the enriching stock wrote last summer denving all acknowledge of it will be kept out of sight, and there will be a feast. When this has gone abroad the committee will begin short sessions with open doors, and witness es will be examined, who will each occupy a day or two, but who will know nothing, or, rather, tell nothnot already told and known. All this time the end of the session will drawing nearer and nearer, and the whole thing will fizzle out ingloriously. The next Congress cannot investigate the conduct of Ames, as he will not be a member thereof; indeed, he has in reserve the plea that he has done nothing during the present Congress that is wrong, and that the transaction of himself and other members of past Con gresses cannot now be overhauled Not only will the Credit Mobilies stock owners come back into the House in an aggressive spirit, "pride in their port, defiance in their eye," but they will say to those Representatives who own stock in national banks, "Stand by us, or we will aid in destroying you." ODELL, RAGAN & Co - We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of this firm in another column .-They propose to keep a stock of goods second to no house in the State, and devote all their attention to their business. We have before alluded to their splendid building which is now stocked in part with goods, and we invite our readers to call and see them.

WHAT ABOUT THAT ENGINE .- Some time ago our citizens took considerable interest in the formation of fire companies, as they usually do after a big fire has reminded them of the necessity of some thing of the sort. Companies were formed. officers chosen, committees appointed, etc., etc., and there it seems to end. We understand an offer of an engine has been made for a comparatively trifling sum of money. The proposition and past two months all the chambers have terms were submitted to most of our property-holders who gave their assent to be taxed for the purchase money, and that's where the matter stands now and prob ably will stand until another fire sweeps away a block of houses, when we will have some more spasmodic ebulitions on the necessity of organizing a fire departshould be-The HOTEL of the Capital.

The next was at Benbow's, Christmas night, when our ladies and their fair visitors and beaux that looked their best tripped the toe to the light fantastic .-The music was splendid, the ladies were dressed superbly and looked beautiful (as they always do), the supper good and the boys in their best mood, and every one enjoyed what is pronounced the most successful ball of the many good ones we have had in Greensboro.

Monday night following they "stormed Mr. T. B. Keogh, who received them in a style that ought to make storms very popular, especially with the stormers. Here about twenty-five couples met and had a princely time 'till morning and were sorry when morning came.

And then they "stormed" Benboy Thursday night, and had another good time, following it up Monday night by a pened a marble yard on the lot between similar demonstration on "Blandwood," which they captured and made themselves perfectly at home. Here the halls of the mansion were thrown open to them matter prepared for this issue is crowded and every one had that jolly good time they might expect from the well-known hospitality of the host, and accomplished ladies who preside there.

The case is of much interest and will be tried at the Spring term of Rockingham Court. The young man charged with the murder is of respectable connection and has borne a good character. NARROW ESCAPE.-We learn that or last Saturday night, about twelve o'clock, the roof of the residence of Mr. John Pierson, an estimable citizen, living on Reedy Fork, in this county, took fire, it is sup posed, from the chimney. The family were sleeping in the lower part of the house and the first intimation they FF Dr. Benbow is erecting another had of the disaster was caused by the fallframe building a few doors above our ing in of the upper portion of the building, the noise of which awoke them just in time to make them escape from the also building a house for a restaurant and flames. Raising Tobacco.

About the Selection and Prelimina-Preparation of the Land. The fresh lands, or on old fields recent ly cleared. Gray, sand, lodiny soils, resting on a porous subsoil, dry and To the Sheriff of Cancell Co.—Greeting: ly cleared. Gray, sand, idamy soils, resting on a porous subsoil, dry and rolling, are the best suited to grow fine yellow tobaccos. North Carelina contains much of such land New lands should be cleared in the winter, and thoroughly conlined and dragged in the spring to clear off roots and put the soil in fine tilth. The same course applies to clearings of old field pines. All old lands should be ploughed in the fall, or late summer, previous to being put in tobacco. A green fallow is always better than a dry one, as vegetation turned under decays much scoper, and furnishes more much sooner, and furnishes more and better plant food. Early fallowing causes the earth to become mellow by repeated freezings and thawings, dissolving the clods and disintegrating the harder subsoil particles thrown to the surface by the plough. Instead of suffer-ing stable and farm manures to each or fire, I recommend that they be applied as they accumlate, and on the surface, to be ploughed under when the land is in proper order. A favorable time to apply manure is when the ground is frozen, and when the land will not be njured by driving upon it, which should never be done when wet .-Lands fallowed in the fall should be again fallowed or reploughed with turning ploughs in the spring, which is a suitable time to turn under the manures of the farm. The preparation of the land for Tobac-lect a spot with southern or south-eastern exposure, sloping from hill side down and over a flat on a branch, so that your bed may afford early plants on the hill side and good ones later in the season on the bottom. Then proceed to burn and prepare the bed as fol-Lay down a bed of wood the entire length of the plat to be burnt, little, then with hooks or old hoes or long poles pull forward the fire six feet, fill up with wood and burn as before, and continue till the whole plat is burned over. Another mode is to rake off the plat and cover with brush and wood, set the whole on fire and burn the patch at once. Any mode that will secure proper burning will suffice, altho' I like that first named the best. To prepare the bed for sowing, take off the brands and coals, but not the ashes, as these act as a manure, then with coulters run across the bed each way, crossing the ploughing, then with grub hoes chop fine the soil, removing the roots but not reversing the soil, and make fine by repeated choppings and rakings. Sow seed mixed with ashes, a tablespoonful to every one hundred square vards, whip over the patch then with coulters run across the square yards, whip over the patch with brush, or rake over lightly with rakes, and then cover with brush and enclose. The "Yellow Oronoko" and "Silky Pryor" are the kinds of seed best adapted to coal curing, and produce the finest yellow tobacco. Burning and seed-ing may be done any time from November till the first of March, but the sooner the better, as the drier the land the less burning is Seeding Down Grasses .- Mr. Chas. L. Flint, the well known writer on grass, advocates their seeding aone, and generally late in summer or fall, and asserts: 1. That early fall seeding without grain should be adopted in practice to spring seeding. 2. That as a general rule it is poor economy to take any ately preeeding the grass being the ultimate and paying crop it is bad practice to reduce the land by the draft which a grain crop makes upou it. 3. That whenever, from any local reason, it is more economical to sow the grain alone in the spring, and to plow up the stubble and sow the grass seed alone in the early fall. 4. That in cases where it seems desireable to sow grass in the spring it is best to sow it alone, and let it take its chances, without compelling it to struggle for existence under the disadvanvtages of a grain or any other crop. 5. That in seeding down in August or early in August or in September, we are ollowing nature as to time, and that unless the ground is already rich and in high condition, it is necessary to give the seed the benefit of an application of manure on or near the surface to which the seed is applied. 6. That in the selection of seeds for mowing lots and hay, we should choose varieties to mix that blossom at or near the same time, and not mix very early and very late varieties together.

Cements—Cement for China, &c., which Stands Fire and Water.— With a small camel's-hair brush, rub the broken edges with a little carriage oil-varnish.

If neatly put together, the frac tion will hardly be perceptible, and when thoroughly dry, will stand both fire and water.

Well-posted judges estimate the tobacco crop of Missouri this year at 30,000 hogsheads. Last year it reached 18,000 hogsheads. The liberal premiums offered by the tobacco association have done much to stimulate planters to increase their acreage of tobacco, as well as to induce new men to engage in its pro duction.

Commission Merchants, 1017 and 1019 Main St., Corner of Eleventh, Is the largest Dry Goods Establishment in the State. They have increased their force, stock, and facilities for purchasing, so that they offer greater inducements to purchasers of Dry Goods than ever before. Selling such immense quantities of goods places them in a position to purchase their goods by the package of manufacturers, importers, and commission merchants, also largely in the auction-room, which enables them to retail their goods at jobber's prices.
