"AND THEN NO MOORE."
I saw her once, one little while, and then no more!
'Twas Eden's light on earth awhile, and then no more!
Amid the throng she passed along the meadow floor;
Spring seemed to smile on earth awhile and then no more;
But whence she came, which way she went, what garb she wore,
I noted not, I gazed awhile, and then no more.
I saw her once, one little while, and then no more!
'Twas Paradise on earth awhile, and then no more!
Ah! what avail my vigils pale, my magic lore;
She shone before my eyes awhile, and then no more;
The shallop of my peace was wrecked on beauty's shore;
Near hope's fair isle it rode awhile, and then no more.

I saw her once, one little while, and then no more!
Earth looked like Heaven a little while, and then no more;
Her presence thrilled and lighted to its inner core
My desert breast a little while, and then no more;
So may, perchance, a meteor glance at midnight o'er,
Some ruined pile, a little while, and then no more.
I saw her once, one little while, and then no more!
The earth was Paradise a little while, and then no more!
Oh! might I see but once again as once before,
Through chance or will, that form awhile, and then no more!
Death even would heal my grief, this heart now sad and sore
Would beat anew, a little while, and then no more.

A Comparison
Between the Conservative and Radical Legislatures.

MR. EDITOR: Already the Radicals through their stump speakers and newspapers, have commenced abusing and denouncing the late General Assembly for having betrayed the confidence and trust reposed in them by the people of North Carolina, for not fulfilling their promises of reform and retrenchment, and for not realizing the expectations of the people for a more economical and honest administration of the public affairs of the State. And because of certain criticisms upon this Legislature by some of the Conservative press, it is urged upon and argued to the people, that even their own party papers have denounced the Legislature as being as corrupt and extravagant as its infamous predecessor. Therefore the object of this article is simply to draw a fair, correct and impartial comparison between the late Conservative Legislature and the preceding Radical Legislature, and all the facts stated and figures given are taken from the public official documents, the correctness and accuracy of which cannot be questioned, and then let the people of North Carolina themselves decide between the two, and answer which truly represented them.

So much has been said about the length of the sessions of the late Legislature, it may be well to first compare the number of days during which the two Legislatures were in session and see if the Conservative one was not a decided improvement in this respect.—The Radical Legislature first assembled on the first day of July, 1868, and adjourned on the 24th day of August, having been in session fifty-five days. It again met on the 16th day of November and, with the exception of a recess from December 21st to January 4th, was in session until the 12th day of April, 1869, being just one hundred and thirty-five days. The same body assembled once more (and thank God for the last time) on the 25th day of November, 1869, adjourned for a recess from December 20th to January 10th, and adjourned sic die on the 28th day of March, 1870, making a session of one hundred and fourteen days, so that the total number of days which the Radical Legislature was in session, and for which the members drew the per diem, was exactly three hundred and four, or over ten months!

Now compare with this the session of the Conservative Legislature. This body convened on the 21st day of November, 1870, took a recess from December 24th to January 16th, and adjourned on the 6th day of April, having been in session one hundred and fifteen days of which time fifty days were occupied by the impeachment of Holden. It met again November 20th, adjourned for a recess from December 22nd to January 2nd, and adjourned sic die on the 12th day of February, 1872, being in session seventy-five days, so that the total number of days which this Legislature was in session, and including the fifty days of the impeachment trial, was just one hundred and ninety, or a little over six months. The time consumed by the impeachment court should not properly be included in the length of the sessions because it was not in the usual and ordinary proceedings of the Legislature, but entirely extra, and surely Republicans dare not complain of and denounce the Legislature for impeaching Holden when more than one third of the Republican Senators Messrs. Barrett, Hawkins, Lehman, Moore and McCotter, themselves, voted for his conviction. But even including the impeachment trial of fifty days, the Conservative Legislature was in session one hundred and ninety days, while the Radical Legislature was in session three hundred and four, a difference of nearly four months. In consequence of the disfranchisement of our old and experienced Legislators by a vindictive Radical Congress, the members of the Legislature were all young and inexperienced men, not accustomed to the duties of the Legislator, and, of course, the machinery of Legislation did not at first move very rapidly. Again, it must be remembered that the executive and judiciary and Legislative departments of the State government were all in accord and acting in unison during the term of the radical Legislature, and there was nothing to delay or protract legislation, so that it was plain sailing over a smooth sea; but with the Conservative Legislature it was very different, for the Executive and Judiciary both did all within their power, resorting even to unconstitutional measures, to hinder, delay, embarrass and counteract the Legislation of this body, and thus greatly protracting the length of its session.

Now let us compare the cost and expenses of the two Legislatures as stated by the Auditor's reports. The cost of the Radical Legislature was as follows, viz: for the special session of 1868, $78,424.80; for the session of 1868-69, $191,102.10 and for the session of 1869-70, $171,431.70; making a grand total of four hundred and thirty thousand nine hundred and fifty-eight dollars and sixty cents ($430,958.60), or in other words the Radical Legislature was paid by the impoverished people of North Carolina nearly a half million of dollars. The cost of the Conservative Legislature is as follows, viz: for the session of 1870-71, including fifty thousand dollars for impeachment, $117,919.17; and for the session of 1871-72, the exact amount cannot be stated until the Auditor makes his next report; but it cannot possibly exceed $75,000; making a total of less than two hundred thousand dollars, so that the difference in the expenses of the two Legislatures was $238,000.43, or nearly a quarter of a million of dollars! Did not the late General Assembly then redeem their promises of retrenchment and reform? To draw a more striking comparison between the expenses of the two Legislatures, take the amount paid to, say for instance, their Enrolling Clerks. At the session 1869-70, Mr. John A. McDonald, the Enrolling Clerk, and his assistants were paid the sum of two thousand three hundred and seventeen dollars ($2,317.17), while at the session of 1870-71, Mr. W. J. Wilson, the Enrolling Clerk of the Conservative Legislature and his assistants were paid the sum of seven hundred and forty-one dollars ($741), so that the Radicals paid more than three times as much as did the Conservatives for doing exactly the same work. This comparison in detail might be drawn ad infinitum greatly to the astonishment of every one who has not examined the Auditor's reports, but let us pass by the smaller items and compare the public expenditures as reported by the State Treasurer. During the last year of Radical misrule, the year 1870, the expenses of the State government are reported as one million one hundred and twenty seven thousand two hundred and fourteen dollars and ten cents, ($1,127,214.10) while during the very first year of Conservative rule, the year 1871, the expenses were only six hundred and forty-five thousand five hundred and seventy-nine dollars and ninety-seven cents, ($645,579.97), a reduction and saving to the tax-burdened people of nearly half a million of dollars in one year! With these facts and figures, who will have the audacity and mendacity to say that this General Assembly has not fulfilled its pledges of retrenchment and reform? The only instance of fraud ever charged, and the charge has been fully refuted, against the Conservatives was in connection with the public printing. But even granting that the State was defrauded in the printing matter, which has been proven to the contrary, yet the public printing for the Radical Legislature of 1869-70 cost twice as much as the Conservative Legislature of 1870-71, the cost of the former being $34,503.43, while that of the latter only about $17,000, excluding the three large volumes containing the impeachment trial.

To institute a comparison between the character of the members of the two Legislatures would be wasteful and ridiculous excess. How refreshing indeed to compare such men as Warren, Gilmer, Worth, Graham, Jarvis, Welch, Warren, Ashe and others with such rare jewels as Ladin, Estes, Parson Sinclair, Coffee Mayo et al omnia genus! Against the character of the former the venom tongue of Radical hate and slander cannot breathe the slightest suspicion of fraud and corruption, while the names of the latter have become household words in every corner of the State. No member of the Conservative Legislature has ever been charged with receiving a bribe, whereas the sworn evidence, as reported by the Shipp Committee, proves that hundreds of thousands of dollars have been paid as bribes to the Radical Legislature.—The two bodies may therefore well be said the proper representatives of their respective parties, and to apply illustrate the difference between the Conservatives and the Radicals. In the Early Career of Senator Wilson.

In a recent speech at Great Falls, N. H., Senator Henry Wilson, referring to some experiences in his early life, said:

I feel that I have the right to speak for toiling men and to toiling me. I was born here in your county of Stafford. I was born in poverty; want sat by my cradle. I know what it is to ask a mother for bread when she has none to give. I left my home at ten years of age and served an apprenticeship of 11 years, receiving a month's schooling each year, and at the end of eleven years' hard work, a yoke of oxen and six sheep, which brought me eighty-four dollars.

A dollar would cover every penny I spent from the time I was born until I was 21 years of age. I know what it is to travel weary miles and ask my fellow-men to give me leave to toil. I remember that in September, 1833, I walked into your village from my native town, and went through mills, seeking employment. If anybody had offered me $8 or $9 a month, I should have accepted it gladly. I went down to Salmon Falls, I went to Dover, I went to Newmarket and tried to get work, without success, and I returned home weary but not discouraged, and I put my pack on my back and walked to the town where I now live and learned a mechanic's trade. I know the hard lot that toiling men have to endure in the world, and every pulsation of my heart, every conviction of my judgment, puts me on the side of the toiling men of my country—aye, of all countries.

HORSES' SORE SHOULDERS.—A correspondent of the Canada Farmer writes relative to sore or galled shoulders of horses: "Wash them well every night and morning with a strong solution of oak bark made by boiling the bark in water; then rub them well with linseed oil. Anoint them every night and morning with a salve made of three parts of linseed oil and one part of quick-lime. To make horses' shoulders tough, wash the shoulders well twice a day for a week before working with the oak bark solution."

coming campaign these two parties will be arrayed against each other, and will each call upon the people of North Carolina for their support. Which party, then will the honest yeomanry, the oppressed tax payers and the true men of the good old North State sustain and endorse by their votes?—"Choose ye between them." Each party has been in power and it remains for the people to decide which has truly represented them, for "by their fruits ye shall know them."
HAL.
PITTSBORO', N. C., March 5th, 1872.

The Conservatives of Person county hold their Convention on the 3rd Monday in April.

Horace Greeley on the two Conventions.

In commenting upon the despatch of the Washington correspondent of the New York Times, that the friends of the Cincinnati movement had discovered, and were moving in a certain manner to defeat a scheme concocted by the Grant Radicals to "go to Cincinnati in force, take possession of the Convention and endorse the Administration," the New York Tribune says: "The Federal office-holders have called their convention to meet at Philadelphia in June. No one proposes to interfere with or disturb them. They have even complained that the editor of this journal did not sign their call, insisting that this would have been only a formal or ministerial act; though had he signed, they would have at once argued that his signature bound him to abide by the result of that convention. We trust no one will attend that gathering who has not fully made up his mind to let the present incumbents have another four years' lease of office and power."

But the Cincinnati Convention is none of their affair. They did not call it; they are not invited; their presence is not desired. Let them mind their own business and run their own machine. Yet it is plain, from the foregoing extract, that they had formed a plot to surprise and capture the Cincinnati Convention, and are chagrined that the opportunity is not afforded them. They may do as they will at Philadelphia; but they cannot have their way at Cincinnati. Are they not entitled to compensation?

- From which we gather the following points:
1. That Mr. Greeley considers the convention to be held in Philadelphia in June the "Federal office-holders" convention.
 2. That he thinks men have no business there who have not "fully made up their minds" to sustain the "office-holders" candidates.
 3. That the Cincinnati Convention, to be held on the 1st of May, is not the "office-holders" convention, and that, therefore, the office-holders and Grant supporters should keep away from it, and "mind their own business."
 4. That the "office-holders" and "henchmen" of the Administration, and all who "cling to the skirts of power," may do as they please at Philadelphia, but they must stand back from Cincinnati.—Washington Patriot.

Spring Work.—To the ordinary farmer the winter days may be comparatively idle—not so with the horticulturist, there is always something to do, grating, pruning, trenching, when the ground is not frozen, or hauling and composting manure. With the advent of March work commences in earnest. The market garden has already his lettuce, radish, rhubarb, etc., ready for sale from their hotbeds, and the various plants well under way for transplanting, as soon as the season will admit. The owner of the simple kitchen garden, however, will find that March is early enough for him to have his hotbed under way, and to novices we may say, do not put in your manure too green, turn it at least once, and if the heat is strong, twice, before putting it into the bed. Many persons do not start with the manure moist enough. If dry, it should be thoroughly moistened in the heap before the first fermentation takes place, and it should be thereafter protected from the effects of frost and rain.

If it has not been attended to before, lose no time in securing bean poles and pea brush, for success can never be attained with running beans, nor garden peas, without good support for them to cling to.—Whatever leaf mould, muck, sods, etc., you may have drawn for compost, should be kept compactly together, turning it occasionally to induce decomposition.

If you have neglected to cut scions of such fruit as you want to propagate from, lose no time in doing so before the sap starts. When cut, bury them in moist sand until wanted. Cuttings of currants, gooseberries, etc., should be planted as soon as the soil is in condition, and this will apply to the cuttings and takes of willow and other trees that grow from sections of the wood. During pleasant days in March, the lawn may be cleared up, and everything rendered tidy about the place.—In fact March is the month for gathering together the forces that go to make up the economies of the subsequent processes in horticultural art.—Western Rural.

THE SNOWS OF THIS WINTER.—As a matter for reference and to gratify the curiosity of our readers, we give the number of snows which fell during the winter. The old saying, that the date of the first snow fixes the number to occur during the winter, has proven false so far, and there is but little hope for its verification unless the Clerk of the weather is pretty lively. A young friend furnishes the following: 1st snow, Nov. 30; 2nd, Dec. 15; 3rd, Jan. 13; 4th Feb. 2; 5th, Feb. 29; 6th, March 2, the heaviest of the season, about 18 inches; 7th, March 11; 8th, March 17; 9th, March 22nd.

Steels.—1st, Dec. 23; 2nd, Jan. 8; 3d, Feb. 8th, very heavy.—Salem Press.

Counting Twenty-Five.

I found the cherished face of Maria Ann wreathed in smiles the other evening, when I returned from my arduous daily toil. I am engaged as standing man at a saloon. So many candidates are treating, that the saloon keeper hires six of us to be treated. We all drink with every candidate who comes in, and it makes business tolerable brisk.

Said my chosen one, "Joshua, I am afraid you do not always find me an angel in disposition?"
Said I, "That's so—hic—my dear, I don't seldom find you 'nangel in—in anything!"
"And," she added, "you are not always the most pleasant man in this wide world!"
I did not feel called upon to reply to her just then.
Said she, "Read that!"
She had cut an item from the columns of some paper, wherein a denoted writer told about some woman who, being troubled with a bad temper, counted twenty-five every time she was provoked, and thus became a sweet, amiable, and dearly loved ornament of the house of her delighted husband. I read the article about as well as the condition of my head would allow, and remarked, "Bosh!"

Maria Ann paid no attention to me, but unfolded her plan.
She said that every time I got mad I should count twenty-five, and every time she got mad she would count twenty-five. I asked her who she thought would pay our rent while we sat and counted twenty-five over and over all day.
She said I was always raising objections to her plans for our mutual improvement, and I said I was not, and she said I was enough to try the patience of a saint, and I said she was too, and she came for me, and I did see to count twenty-five; but she talked one in my left eye.

Then I was going to remonstrate with the poker, and she told me to count twenty-five and I said I would not; but I did before she had pulled more than half my hair out.
Then she made me count twenty-five over and over, until I was out of breath and felt real pleasant and good-natured. So we went to supper. Now, the cat was coiled up in my chair, but I did not see it until I sat down; but I did see it then, and I was pretty sure it was there, in fact I knew it was as well as I wanted to, and more too. I felt inclined to rise up suddenly, but as I gathered to spring, she brandished the coffee pot and murmured:
"Joshua, your temper is rising; count twenty-five or I'll break your head, and the cat was drawing a map of the Tenth Ward with his claws, behind me, with the streets and boundaries marked in my blood."

I rose to explain, and said, "My dear—I, but she came down on my head with a well shot tea cup, and sprinkled my face with a quart of hot tea, and I sat down and counted twenty-five; but it killed the cat. The old fellow died hard. I could feel him settle as his nine lives went out one by one."
A few days' practice of this rule, under the loving instruction of Maria Ann has enabled me to conquer my temper completely. Nobody can get me mad now. I am in a state of perpetual calm, and I want to see the man that wrote that story. I want to fit him for the hands of some undertaker, and make a demand for some mourning goods among his friends. Then I can die happy—counting twenty-five.

BARKS, ROOTS AND HERBS.—Persons interested in gathering these articles will find it to their interest to observe the following rules:

All roots should be gathered in the Fall of the year, when the tops are dying, or in Spring, when the tops are beginning to sprout. They should be well washed and dried in the sun or a dry room.
Barks should be taken when the sap is running, either in the Spring or Fall. They should be dried in the shade.
Herbs should be gathered when the blossoms are beginning to come out and should be dried in the shade.
All of these articles should be thoroughly dried before packing and thus prevent the danger of moulding.—They may be shipped in barrels or bags, but the latter are preferable, as there is a saving of freight.

"I am satisfied that Grant is a dishonest man. That is sufficient to justify me in saying most positively that I cannot and shall not support him." For other reasons he is unfit to be President of the United States. He does not possess the necessary capacity. He is ignorant of the details of civil government, and does not manifest the disposition to learn them. He is venal, ambitious, vulgar in his habits, and possesses a cunning which is low and dogged. He had a strong will, but it is never controlled by reason—hence becomes perverse, and the man when he should be most yielding and gentlemanly, is most obstinate and unmanly. Such a man is unfit to be President of the United States, and most unfit to be the candidate of the republican party. He ought not to be nominated by that party, and shall not be if I can help it. I cannot honorably support a party that will sustain such a man."—Charles Sumner.

Men born blind can't be carpenters, because they never saw.

THE FACES WE MEET.
Oh, the faces we meet
In the crowded street,
With their smiling lips and their weary eye;
And the clouds of care
Which they often wear
As they hurry swiftly by.
There are faces as gay
As the waves that play
On the sunny sand of an islet green;
There are eyes as bright
As the Jewell's light
That falls on the brow of a queen.

There are tresses of hair
Like a golden snare,
And they catch many hearts in their meshes
strong;
There are locks like the night
On a mountain height,
Ere the day star heralds the dawn.

There are lips whose smile,
Without malice or guile,
Light up the face as the sun lights the sea;
And lips where a sinner
Childs the blood as with fear,
At its dark malignity.

Religious Mania.
Three Children Murdered by Crazy Parents—The Mother afterwards Killed by the Father—Two Children Escape by hiding—A Shocking Story told by the Survivors.

DAYTON, Ohio, March 10.—A horrible murder was committed six miles Northeast of this city last night. A woman named Mary Marquardt, aged thirty-five, and her three children, aged respectively six and eight years and six months, are supposed to have been killed by her husband, L. Marquardt, who is now in jail. The woman was found in bed naked, apparently strangled. The children were found on the bank of a creek some distance from the house. The two elder had been drowned, and the infant's head was terribly mutilated.

CINCINNATI, March 11.—Further particulars in regard to the murder near Dayton on Saturday, indicate that the murder was committed by the father, Leonard Marquardt, who is evidently insane from a spiritual cause. The story of the affair, which the man himself tells is that a few days ago, he read a chapter to his family from the Bible, and then rising, accused his wife of being a witch and using witchcraft, and that his eldest daughter confirmed him in his accusation.

He says Saturday night he told his wife he wanted the children to leave; that he and his wife stripped naked and knelt down and prayed for fifteen minutes; then stripped the children, took them out and drowned them, and laid them side by side on the bank of the stream; they then dashed out the brains of the infant and left it lying in the woods, after which they returned home and went to bed. After lying there about fifteen minutes, he told his wife he wanted to send her to Heaven, and immediately strangled her to death. After that he rose and prayed until 3 o'clock in the morning, when he went to his nearest neighbor and told him the whole story.

Marquardt is a German farmer, and has been in this country about eighteen years. The murdered woman was his second wife.

DAYTON, Ohio, March 11.—At the inquest over the bodies of the Marquardt family to-day, two children, aged respectively six and seven, testified that their father and mother "shouted" the children but that they hid themselves. Their was a light burning and they saw their father and mother kill the other three children.

The father killed the baby and the mother killed the two little boys, Leach and Sammy.
Both father and mother were naked when the deed was done, and they immediately afterwards went into the house and commenced praying to God. The two surviving children were hunted for after the others were killed, but they managed to escape. The examination before the coroner is still progressing.

A Terrible Earthquake.—A City of 25,000 Inhabitants Destroyed.—On January 15 an earthquake destroyed the City Schemacha, in Russia. According to the official report, 118 persons were killed and 4,000 wounded, but all the inhabitants were left without shelter. Schemacha is, or rather was a city of 25,000 inhabitants, and lies on the coast between Tiflis and Baku, at the foot of the Caucasus Mountains, about 75 miles distant from the latter city. Schemacha is 2,316 feet above the Caspian and 2,230 above the Black Sea, and was formerly the seat of government of the province which, however, on account of the frequent earthquakes in that region, was transferred about ten years ago, to Baku, on the Caspian Sea. The inhabitants of Schemacha are nearly all Armenians.

An Eagle Captured by a Lady.—We understand that a Mrs. Sims, living near Galesville, in Cherokee co., Ala., while attending to her domestic duties saw a large eagle alight in her yard and immediately attempted to carry off her watch-dog. She once rushed to the scene of conflict, and with a large stick attacked his eagleship, who was grappling fearfully with the dog. After punning the intruder for some time, she so far disabled him as to enable her to tie him securely with a rope where he was attached to a gate post, where he was held in durance vile, until her husband returned home and dispatched him. The eagle measured over eight feet from tip to tip.—Chatanooga Advertiser.
