A Poet's Independence.

Joaquin Miller's Prelude to his latest Volume.
Well! who shall lay hand on my harp but me, Or shall chide my song from the sounding trees?The passionate sun and the resolute sea, These were my masters, and only these.These were my masters, and only these,
And these from the first I obey'd and theyShall command me now, and I shall obey As a dutiful child that is proud to please.There never were measures as true as the sun,The sea hath a song that is passingly sweet,
And yet they repeat, and repeat, and repeat,The same old tunes through the new years run.Yea, men may deride, and the thing it is well; Turn well aside from the one wild tuneTo the song of the bird with the taunt, sweet throat;
But the sea sings in his cave and shell.
Let the white mounds ride, let the red stars fall,O great, sweet sea! O fearful and sweet!
Thy songs they repeat, and repeat, and repeat:

And these, I say, shall revive us all.

I but sing for love of song, and the few Who loved me first and shall love me last;And the storm shall pass as the storms have passed, For never were clouds but the sun came through.Address Delivered by Wm. P.
McLean, before Gibsonville Grange.

[PUBLISHED BY REQUEST.]

Brother Patrons, Ladies, and Gentlemen—Being lecturer of a Grange, I am aware that it is not only expected of me, but that it is my duty to respond to a call like this. Yet it is with some very serious misgivings that I stand before you in the capacity of a speaker, as it is the first time that I have ever attempted anything of the kind. Therefore if I do not prove to be quite as eloquent as Cicero, I feel assured that you are all generous enough to "pass my imperfections by."Long since all trades and professions of men, except farmers, have learned the truth of the old maxim that in union there is strength. Hence, merchants have their boards of trade; mechanics their trades unions; lawyers and physicians their bar and medical associations, all united and acting together for mutual protection and benefit. Heretofore the farmers only have stood aloof from all associations of the kind, and alone and single handed, have attempted to battle with all the elements that have been arrayed against them.As a natural consequence their rights and interests, instead of being held up and maintained, have been cast down and trampled upon.
They have been made the very serfs of certain classes of men, whose only thought of them is about how they can use them to the best advantage. Their occupation has been looked down upon as one too mean and servile for a gentleman to engage in. All of these ills combined have worked the worst of consequences. Many of our best young men have been enriched away from the farms to seek employment, in what men told them were higher stations. This state of affairs has all resulted from the want of organized effort on the part of the farmers themselves. They have now begun to realize the necessity of a farmers' association, and hence the order of the Patrons of Husbandry. Against it a great cry has been raised by some classes of men. Nothing is ever said against the organizations of other trades or professions, and I cannot see why there should be against ours. I am aware that it has been said by some designing men, that the farmers intend to build up their own interests by pulling down all others. This is a mere absurdity, as the greatest foe knows that when the farming interest of our country is built up, instead of pulling down, it builds up the interests of all other useful lines of business. Our order is simply a farmers' union—it was not organized to make war upon any class, but by its means we propose to protect ourselves.In the grange all discussions of a religious or political nature are excluded. Men of different creeds and different political views can meet together in friendly intercourse, Catholics and Protestants can meet together, and in one fraternal band, discuss those questions upon which all can agree. And the necessity of keeping politics out of our order cannot be too strongly urged, for that is a subject upon which men will disagree, and if it once gets into our order, the order itself must soon cease to exist. I believe, if rightly managed, there is nothing which will sooner wipe out all the old animosity, which heretofore has existed between the different sections of our country, than the grange. There all old feuds are forgotten, and if we obey its teachings, I believe the time will soon come when North, South, East and West, will all spur the influence of sectional prejudice, and embrace the whole of this great union as their common country.Our order is secret, the better to secure among its members, in its internal workings, confidence, harmony, and security. Woman is admitted to full membership, because

The Humorous Speech of Hon.

S. S. Cox of New York—A Disquisition on Moths.The following extracts from the verbal report of the speech of Hon. S. S. Cox, of New York, in the House of Representatives last Thursday, pending the consideration of the "Army Appropriation bill," are in the happiest vein of that gentleman's wit and humor:The question before the House was on striking out an appropriation of 50,000 "for the preservation of clothing and equipage from moth and mildew." Mr. Cox proposed to reduce the amount to $25,000. He said I would prefer, rather than be fighting moths at such an immense expense, to give these uniforms a way. Observe those eminent colored patriots in the gallery! They sit with us so regularly! [Great laughter.] They toil not, [laughter] neither do they spin. They are the lilies of the valley! Yet Solomon in all his glory would not be arrayed like them if they were clothed with those "sky blue" uniforms! [Renewed laughter.] They sit yonder, uniformly, day after day; and why not in uniform? Let them appear in the gallery properly arrayed in the colors of the Republic—heavenly blue! [Laughter.]Why, Mr. Chairman, any man who does business, instead of paying at the rate of three or four hundred thousand dollars in two or three years to prevent moths from getting into clothing, would sell the whole concern out. Moths are the evidence of laziness and negligence.But I am growing personal. It takes more to keep out the moths than the clothing and cloths are worth according to our system of finance.Now, sir, what, or rather who, are these moths? It is a matter of much concern to our families. Our women ought to know. Science ought to tell us. Scripture—ah! I see my friend from Massachusetts is impatient. He is about to arise. I am afraid he will make a Scriptural illustration. He is thinking of that place where "moth and rust do not corrupt." [Laughter.]Several voices: "Where thieves break through and steal."Mr. Cox: I did not know the House was so accomplished in the Scriptures. [Laughter.]I think the gentleman (Mr. Dawes) was about to apply it to the Democratic side of the House. I have anticipated him by a more appropriate application. The whole house, including the lilies of the gallery, know just where the quotation fits.What is the moth, Mr. Chairman?
I have looked him up [laughter], and (holding up an illustration in Chamber's Encyclopedia, vol. 6, there he is. [Great laughter.] There are several kinds.The moth is a burglar, a nocturnal rascal. There are many families of them. It is worth while, since it costs us nearly half a million to watch this enemy, to know his power. Do not think it insignificant, because it is of the butterfly species.
It bristles with an antennae! From base to apex these hairs, [laughter]; and they are formidable either to the larva or chrysalis state. I speak not of their beauty of color; I refer to another it is the Hawk moth; but the Lackey is the one I have here pictorially illustrated [holding up the volume]. The Lackey moth is represented in politics; first by the belt of eggs, second as the ectophilar, third as the pupa in the cocoon, and then the full fledged insect for which we pay so much in this army bill. [Laughter.]Now, after this analysis of this insect, I would like to know from the distinguished gentleman from New York, my colleague (Mr. Wheeler), whether the moth, to protect our army clothing from which he would give this $50,000, is the Phaetia moth of Linnaeus or the Lepidoptera of other scientists. [Laughter.] Let there be no shirking that question. [Renewed laughter.]Mr. Wheeler: I desire to ask my colleague a question. Has he studied the history of the party moth? It has fed on his party and no chemical process has yet been invented, I believe, to stay its ravages. [Laughter.]Mr. Cox: I omitted, as the House will see, out of difference to the majority and their feelings, to draw any partisan or political lesson out of these moths and their predatory habits. [Laughter.] I have materials, however, for a speech of an hour and a quarter on that point.If the gentleman will allow me, I will say it is mostly in connection with the Administration. [Laughter.]And sir, since I am challenged to it by my friend—not provoked, for he never provokes any one, except to admire him and love him, the more one knows him—I will endeavor to read in the live and character of the moth some of those attributes which are making the people regard the Administration so carefully.The real moth that we have to deal with, in a political way, is a combination of the lackey-moth, which generally haunts the White House and hovers about the parlors of power, and the hawk-moth, which is sometimes in the army, or educated there. All these moths, you will find have a political and destructive significance. If you note how they are hatched; how they hide in cocoons; how they creep into dark places through crannies; how they go into closets where goods are stored; how they lie all summer quietly. [Laughter, they lie all

THE PATRIOT.

GREENSBORO, N. C.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 18, 1874.

NOTICE.—We are in receipt of communications urging the claims of certain gentlemen for nomination next summer. If we began to insert them our columns would be filled with them, and we have found it necessary to decline to publish any. We will not depart from this rule unless they are paid for as advertisements.

More Executive Mulishness.

As the first step to the revival of the University the Legislature, acting under the amended constitution ratified by the people last summer, appointed a board of trustees consisting of some of the ablest and most distinguished men in the State. They assembled in Raleigh on the 18th, notified the Governor of their presence and invited him to preside at their meeting. To which he sent the following reply:

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA, Raleigh, 18th Feb., 1874.

To Hon. W. A. Graham and others, GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of a resolution passed by a body purporting to be Trustees of the University of North Carolina, inviting me, as Governor and ex-officio President of the Board of Trustees, to preside over the body now in session.

It would, I assure you, afford me pleasure to comply with your wishes and accept your invitation, were it not that I entertain a decided opinion that your body have not been constitutionally elected to the offices you claim to hold and exercise. I am of opinion that the Legislature had no right, under the Constitution, to elect Trustees for the University, but that it is an Executive function to nominate Trustees and submit his nominations to the Senate for confirmation. Entertaining these views, and with great respect for you collectively and individually, I feel it my duty to decline your invitation and refuse to take any part in your deliberations.

I have the honor to be, Very respectfully, Your old serv't, TOD R. CALDWELL.

Under the Constitution of 1868 the Board of Education appointed the Trustees, but under the Amendments adopted last summer, this State Board ceased to exist and the whole matter goes into the hands of the Legislature.

Here is the amendment under which the Legislature appointed the Trustees:

The General Assembly of North Carolina do enact, two-thirds of the whole representation in each House of the General Assembly concurring, That the Constitution of this State be altered as follows, to-wit: Strike out the fifth section of the ninth article, and in lieu thereof, insert the following: "The General Assembly shall have power to provide for the election of Trustees of the University of North Carolina, in whom, when chosen, shall be vested all the privileges, rights, franchises and endowments thereof, in any wise granted to or conferred upon the Trustees of said University; and the General Assembly may make such provisions, laws and regulations from time to time, as may be necessary and expedient for the maintenance and management of said University."

And notwithstanding the fact that this was adopted by the tremendous majority of 10,000 or more, and is now a part of the Constitution of North Carolina, Tod R. Caldwell has the brazen effrontery to say to the people that this power is vested in him and in him it shall remain if the University go the devil in the meantime, where it has been going since Tod R. Caldwell and his friends clapped their paws on it.—What does the University amount to in comparison with his official dignity?

We don't pin much faith in State Universities, and would prefer a hundred times to see a good system of common schools, where the children of all could be educated, but when we see this puffed up man putting on such pompous airs it becomes disgusting in its very absurdity.

It is simply folly to try to keep up State Universities in Southern States with their mixed races and peculiar surroundings, and the sooner they are regarded as dead institutions the better.

Let Tod sleep in the happy consciousness that he is mighty and sole boss of Chapel Hill.

A Vindication.

We publish elsewhere an article from the pen of Mr. Glenn, of Yadkin, which we clip from the Raleigh Examiner. We publish it in justice to the people of Yadkin, and for the additional reason that portions of the article to which it refers have been copied by several papers in the State. Mr. Ball probably wrote just fresh from the occurrences related, when he was probably laboring under a little excitement, and didn't mean all he said. It is so easy to drop into a hyperbolic way of expressing one's self, especially under circumstances like these.

Richmond as a Wholesale Market.

We have on more than one occasion called the attention of our people to the inducements offered by Richmond as a wholesale market, and now that spring is approaching and our merchants will soon be putting in their supplies we want to call their attention to the subject again. We do so because we believe our merchants ought to patronize our own cities, and because we believe it is both policy and wisdom to do so. It is both discouraging and humiliating to see our merchants year after year pass right through the cities they ought to trade with, and go and pour out their money in the lap of Philadelphia, New York and Boston, and other places, all of which have grown rich in consequence. There is neither good sense nor patriotism in this—not sense, because it is making strong and powerful the arms that are crushing you—not patriotism, because you do it at the expense of your own cities and seaports, which it is your duty, and ought to be your pride, to build up. How can the South ever expect to have great commercial centres if her merchants will continue to pursue this unpatriotic, suicidal course year after year? Never.

And yet we claim to love the South and be proud of her, while we are doing everything in our power to keep her down and build up her oppressors. It may not seem so to some, but this it is in effect. Suppose our Southern merchants made the resolve to buy their stocks in Southern markets, how soon would its effect be felt in all our cities, and how soon would many of them begin to compete with the great wholesale markets of the North? It would lead, we say, to the building up of our cities, the growth of Southern commerce, the establishment of Southern manufactures, and general prosperity.

The trade of Richmond has expanded much in this section within the last few years, and her business men have evinced a commendable energy in making known the inducements she offers. The consequence is many of our merchants purchase a part of if not their entire stocks there, and are satisfied that, taking all things into consideration, traveling expenses, hotel bills, and time, freight and other items saved, their stocks cost them less than they do in Baltimore, Philadelphia or New York.

There are good reasons why Richmond merchants can sell as low if not lower than New York. Their rents are not so high, gas bills not so high, taxes not so high, all of which added up and taken from the price of goods leaves considerable margin in favor of the Richmond market.

But if all this were not so, we still hold it is the duty of our people to help to build up our own cities, that in time we may have those that can rival in power and magnificence the great marts of which the North is so proud, and which the South has done so much to build up.

It is about time we stopped this thing and begin to look to home. We ask our merchants when buying this spring to give Richmond a fair trial, and not go through with their eyes shut, as they have been in the habit of doing.

Too BAD.—Under this head the Oxford Herald treats of the failure of the legislature to make appropriation for the orphan asylum.

The Herald and the Greensboro Patriot treat the matter very gingerly, whereas the conduct of the democrats who opposed this appropriation deserves the severest condemnation.—Raleigh Examiner.

As this notice is calculated to place the PATRIOT in a false position on this subject, which we do not wish to believe the Examiner intended, we respectfully ask it to publish what we did say on the defeat of the Oxford appropriation.

Mary Costigan was murdered by her husband in Somers, Conn., last fall. Her throat was cut, and just before dying she charged Frank Powers, a negro, with the act, to save her brutal husband from punishment. The guilty husband was brought to trial, however, and convicted of manslaughter. The strange part of the whole proceeding is why the woman when dying should falsely charge the negro to shield the brute who cut her throat.

We publish elsewhere an article from the Newbern Republic Courier, a Republican paper, from which we judge that all Republicans don't think alike on the governorship.—We take it, from the indications, that the Republic Courier is a Settle paper, which will account for the vigorous manner in which it goes for Smith.

The Raleigh Sentinel announces that it will discontinue sending its daily in exchange to weeklies.

The "brevity" man in Richmond Enquirer pronounces Zeb Vance the "greatest Jewsharper in the world."

A Shocking Murder.

From the Statesville papers we gather the particulars of the atrocious murder of Charles T. Neal, a young man of 21, son of Mr. T. D. Neal, of Richmond, and brother of T. Neal, who was engaged in the tobacco business here last fall. It seems there was some misunderstanding between him and a young man named Elliot, whose father kept the hotel at which Mr. Neal boarded, and while engaged in conversation last Wednesday with Elliot, sr., the younger Elliot deliberately walked up and putting a pistol to his body, fired, the ball entering the heart and causing death in about fifteen minutes. It was as cold-blooded and unpardonable an act as we ever heard of.

The young man surrendered himself, and was committed to jail by the magistrate, but his counsel, R. F. Armfield, got him out on a writ of habeas corpus before Judge Mitchell, and had him bailed in the sum of $4,000, which he was unable to furnish, and consequently remained in jail. On the application of Mr. Jas. Neal, of Danville, who went to take charge of the body of his brother, Judge Mitchell consented to a rehearing of the habeas corpus, which was fixed for yesterday, but the result we have not heard.

The people of Statesville deplore this tragic event, and many of them evinced their respect for the deceased by accompanying the body, which was conveyed to Richmond for interment, as far as Salisbury.

State Grange.

The State Grange met in Raleigh on the 18th, and had an agreeable session, adjourning on Friday.—One hundred and thirty-four granges were represented, out of 237 in the State.

Committees were appointed on manufactures, banking, shipping, direct to Europe, and on other subjects in which the farmers of North Carolina are interested.

Public Printing.

The Supreme Court has decided against his Obstinacy Tod R. in the matter of public printer, and sustained the appointment of the Legislature. This takes the pin feathers out of the pompous Tod, and gives the printing to the Sentinel, which was selected by the Legislature.

Steve Lowery, the last of the Lowery gang, has been shot. He was tuning his banjo to play for some wagons, when Messrs. Holcomb, Sutton and Patterson, who were in pursuit of him, drew a bead and fired and lodged fifteen bullet shot in him, one bullet going through his head. And that is the last of the "swamp angel."—His slayers are entitled to $6,200 reward.

We are indebted to some unknown friend for copies of the New Orleans Picayune and Republican containing full accounts of the great Mardi Gras.

As an evidence of the beautiful rule to which the people of that State are subjected, the Republican publishes five columns closely printed notices of Sheriff's sales for taxes. How's that?

Gov. Kemper, of Va., has pardoned McCarthy from the imprisonment he was sentenced to. The only reason why he pardoned him is, he says, that imprisonment would endanger his life in his feeble condition.

The Gov. gives notice that he will carry out strictly the laws against duelling.

We are indebted to Hon. W. M. Robbins, the able representative from the 6th district, for a copy of the Congressional Record, containing the speech of Mr. Dawes on finances, and other favors.

The State Grange of Patrons of Husbandry in Kansas, passed a resolution asking the Legislature to enact a prohibitory liquor law, and also a resolution prohibiting persons who retail liquor from becoming members.

Col. McClure, the Democratic candidate for Mayor of Philadelphia, was beaten by 10,000 majority. The successful man was Stokely.

Miss Taylor, of South Carolina, was elected Pomona, and Mrs. Moon, of Florida, by the National Grange.

The Senate of Illinois has passed a resolution asking Congress to pass an act to control railways running through different States, and charges for transportation.

There are 70,000 girls, and 30,000 widows in New York dependent on their daily labor for their daily bread.

Gov. Vance's lecture in Baltimore, on the Jews is pronounced one of the finest ever delivered in that city, and was listened to by eleven hundred people.

A big tournament takes place at LaGrange, Lenoir county, on the 26th inst.

Where's Jesse Holmes? Ohio has six hundred granges.

"The Kingdom of Yadkin."

I desire to vindicate the character of my county, and an unwillingness to see articles in the public press assailing indiscriminately a whole people, are my only motives for asking the favor of a small space in your columns to notice an article that appeared in the New-North State of February 4th, with the above heading. The article referred to, in a paper so widely circulated as the North State, is calculated to work an irreparable injury and injustice, not only to the reputation of the people, but also to their material interests. One would suppose from reading the article, that crime, depravity, and every species of outrage, were the ruling elements in this county. Indeed, Mr. Ball states that "the young men are brutalized, and all classes made beastly." I deny that this is the condition of affairs here. I have lived in this county all my life, and during the last two years have resided at the court house, and am as well qualified to know the condition of the public morals, as Mr. Ball after his stay of only one week, more especially as he did not go out of Yadkinville while here, unaccompanied by his wife. I do not charge Mr. Ball with having wilfully misrepresented our county, but I do say that in the general application of his remarks he has acted with a degree of haste that is neither commendable nor just. As I stated above, my only motive in writing this is to vindicate the reputation of my native county. I do not desire a controversy with Mr. Ball, neither do I wish to say anything derogatory of him or the marshals who accompanied him into the county. They conducted themselves in a courteous manner toward all with whom they came in contact, as he states. He could also have stated with equal truth that they were treated fully as gentlemen by the citizens of the village and country, and I confess I was surprised when I read in his paper that "all classes are made beastly."

It is hardly probable that the intelligent public will condemn a whole county for the acts of a few irresponsible and riotous boys. In regard to the riot which he states occurred on Friday, the 23d, he must be mistaken. No such disturbance could have occurred without my knowledge, for my office is in the centre of the village, within thirty yards of the court house, where the people congregate on public days, and I did not see or hear anything of the kind. Mr. Ball had quarters two hundred and fifty yards from the court house, and consequently could not see what occurred in the village. I desire to give a brief account of what I saw and heard of the firing at Mackie's house where the officers were staying.—About half past nine in the evening, I heard the report of what I took to be a navy pistol, in the direction of Mackie's house. In a moment it was followed by another, and then there was a rapid discharge of about thirty shots as nearly as I can estimate. Not knowing what it meant, I started as soon as I could prepare, to see what was the matter. Mr. Ball has already stated that when they fired they retreated in the direction of the court house. I had hardly passed the door before I saw them coming. I take it that they were the same persons who did the firing. They passed in a few feet of me and I counted them. Instead of fifty, there were only fourteen. I could see very plainly, as the moon shined very brightly, and I am confident that nearly all of them were boys. Their size and voices convinced me of this fact. Now, sir, I have no apology to offer for such conduct on the part of these persons. It was wrong and disgraceful to them, but not to the whole county, as Mr. Ball believes. I am satisfied that the citizens of the county condemn it. I have conversed with numbers of them and every one condemns it in the severest terms and regrets its occurrence, and it is unjust to denounce the innocent with the guilty. I remember well that during the Fall term of the United States court, in 1872, in his own little village, Greensboro, where Mr. Lusk, Major Erwin and other Republicans were addressing a political meeting, a crowd of "whisky heads" raised quite a disgraceful disturbance, and according to Mr. Ball, not only the little village of Greensboro but the whole county of Guilford was utterly disgraced. I hardly think a discriminating public will sustain such a charge of reasoning. And again, Mr. Ball asserts that the whole county is ruled entirely by "King Alcohol," and that "the chief employment of the inhabitants is making corn whisky and apple brandy, and their chief amusement the drinking of these exhilarating beverages." As to the first part of the assertion I will state that a gentleman who knows whereof he speaks, informs me that by far the greater quantity of liquor made in this county finds a ready sale in the county of Guilford. Whether or not any of it finds its way into the little village of Greensboro, I of course do not pretend to know. Such sweeping assertions as Mr. Ball makes are rarely correct. The inhabitants of Yadkin are industrious, orderly and honest. Of course there are exceptions. Of course there are idle and dissipated persons, and we do not believe there is an honest native-born Republican of North Carolina who does not look upon Bill Smith's reflections upon this family with the contempt they deserve. There is something in the breast of true manhood which impels us to do honor to a noble and worthy foe. It is known that we were on the Union side in the late unhappy war; Turner Morehead was on the other, and acquitted himself as a brave and honorable soldier should. In the memorable battle of Culpeper, Turner Morehead, of Rockingham (whom the fourth-mouthed Bill Smith seeks to defame) was riding at the head of his men in pursuit of our forces in Mead's re-many outside of it. Most of the cases on our criminal docket are for assaults and batteries, affrays and fights. There has been but one capital offence in the county since the war. There are fewer cases of larceny on our docket than of any county in the district. According to population and wealth we have as many churches as the generality of counties, and I am informed of a very worthy minister of the M. E. Church that in contributions last year for benevolent purposes, Yadkin county stood first in the district, including some counties far wealthier. It is true many of our people are poor and that many of them have been denied the advantages of education, but they are honest, and are governed by a high religious morality and virtue. In regard to the "thrift and prosperity," which Mr. Ball says is lacking in the county, that is to be ascribed to a cause other than whisky and brandy. The people here, as all over the South, have been made poor by the results of the war.—They have not the means to develop the hidden wealth of the county, abounding as it does, in minerals of almost every description. And then, we need railroads to transport all our products to the markets; and if newspaper editors would lead their ink to the building of railroads and internal improvements, instead of dealing in sweeping charges of moral depravity, crime, &c., against a whole county, they would be engaged in a far more laudable undertaking. As I stated above, such articles are calculated to injure the county in the end to pay to the utmost farthing. Think well of what we say. Awaiting with Bill Smith and his reputation. We warn our party in time. A man who would hunt his fellow-beings—be they black or white—with BLOODHOUNDS, is not fit to be trusted in any way, shape or manner whatever. Down with the Ringle! Away with Bloodhounds, Corruptionists, Bribe Takers and False Prophets. Let the Republican party heed what we say.

Real estate is steadily advancing in Raleigh. Property that five years ago brought $8,000, now sells for $15,000. The population, too, is steadily increasing. There are two hundred houses in course of erection. Ratherford has raised $14,000 towards establishing a sewing machine manufactory in that county, saith the Record. Salisbury Watchman: Mr. Edwin Shaver's safe was robbed last Saturday of $120. The thief was a little white boy about ten years old. Capt. Salisbury Watchman: It is reported here that a white lady, a Miss Lingle, was raped in the neighborhood of Organ church, Rowan, last Friday, by some fiend yet unknown. THE LIQUOR BILL.—One of the most important bills passed by the Legislature was a bill requiring an election to be held in any township when one-fourth of the voters petition to that effect, to submit the question to the qualified voters as to whether there shall be a spirituous liquor license in the township. It is believed that this bill will work great good in many communities.—Sentinel. Judge Henry has granted a bench warrant for the arrest of Mahala Watkins, of Buncombe county, the unmarried mother of an infant she is supposed to have murdered. A serious stabbing affray took place in a Fayetteville saloon on Tuesday night, between two men by the name of Pettiford and Jones.—Jones received a severe stab in the abdomen, and Pettiford was arrested and held to await the result. In the case of John E. Powell, Sampson county, who killed his father, the coroner's jury returned a verdict of guilty of felonious, willful and malicious murder. The evidence drawn out by the jury shows that young Powell met his father, Davis Powell, at the house of a Mr. Cain, in Lisbon township. Old Mr. Powell began to remonstrate with his son about deserting his wife and becoming too intimate with another, whereupon young Powell cursed his father, and finally threw the old man out of the door and upon the piazza floor with such violence as to fracture his skull, from the effects of which he died in a few days. Young Powell fled, but was overtaken by the officers of the law, and is now in jail at Clinton to await his trial, at the next term of the Superior Court.

Profits of Cotton Factories.

As considerable interest has already been manifested in our city in regard to the establishment of a cotton factory, we clip the following item (in regard to the great profit that is made in that city from the manufacture of that staple) from the Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer: The Columbus Enquirer says that since August 31, the Columbus factories have taken 3,902 bales of cotton, against 2,646 last season during the same time, showing an increase of 1,256. If these 3,902 bales had been sold in this market at present prices, they would have brought $70 per bale, or a total of $273,140. They, however, were passed through our factories, converted into yarns and cloths, and their value trebled, making them worth $210 per bale, or a net gain to Columbus of $455,256. All this money is retained in that section. The manufacturers consume yearly a little over 7,000 bales.—Ex.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 21, 1874. THE FINANCIAL Muddle. That our Solons in both Houses—are long-turkey on the financial question has been patent to the least observing, but I hardly expected such a confession made by Senator Morehead, of Maine, when in a paroxysm of despair he said: "He had sat and patiently listened until his head was in a perfect muddle on the subject of finance, and he was like a majority of members—there probably not being one who can present a well digested practical plan to meet the public wants. The debate in the Senate during the week on equating the National bank circulation has been very earnest and interesting. Yesterday the excitement culminated in the vote to instruct the Finance committee to report a bill increasing the National bank circulation to the amount of $46,000,000—when the inflationists gained a victory by carrying the proposition by a majority of 12. This is the second victory the inflationists have won on this subject. The vote to recommit the bill will be taken next week. The Senate does not seem to have any two Senators north of the Potomac who voted aye. The Democratic Senators who opposed inflation are Bayard, Tamm, Blair, and McKim. The Republican Senators who voted aye are Harzer, Thurston, Cooper and Stevenson—Judge Stockton being absent.—Should the motion to recommit the bill be carried, it will give the Finance committee the right to report a bill which either get a good sleep in committee or be reported in such a shape as to not soil the inflationists as the Finance committee is not friendly to an increase of paper currency.

THE INDIAN QUESTION.

The proposed legislation looking to the transfer of the Indian Bureau to the War Department does not seem to have the approval of the Indian Commissioners, nor the Indian "ring." The former have been in session at the Arlington Hotel for the past two days—these Commissioners are two Senators north of the Potomac who voted aye. The Democratic Senators who opposed inflation are Bayard, Tamm, Blair, and McKim. The Republican Senators who voted aye are Harzer, Thurston, Cooper and Stevenson—Judge Stockton being absent.—Should the motion to recommit the bill be carried, it will give the Finance committee the right to report a bill which either get a good sleep in committee or be reported in such a shape as to not soil the inflationists as the Finance committee is not friendly to an increase of paper currency.

THE DISTRICT. The District of Columbia committee on the subject of the Washington City and Potomac railroad act. It was intimated that Tom Scott's friends opposed it in his interest which they—the Pennsylvania—do not seem to have any objection to do anything for the District pending the investigation. Party discipline gained a striking but damaging victory in the House yesterday. Congressional District is between Gunter (Democrat) and Wilshire (Republican), and the case turns on alleged fraud in throwing out votes polled for Gunter. The evidence presented is all in favor of Gunter; Messrs. Dawes, Hoar, Woodford, McCrary, and Kasson were among the Republicans who voted to give him his seat. But the party whip was keen enough to bring up the rank and file, and Wilshire was given the seat with the distinct understanding that he was not entitled to it, but would like the money.

Resolutions.

The following resolutions on the death of Luther M. Purvis were adopted by Greensboro Lodge, No. 7, of Good Templars, February 23, 1874.

WHEREAS, we have learned with sincere sadness of the death of our brother Luther M. Purvis, Therefore, Resolved, 1. That while we bow with Christian resignation to the will of Him who doth all things well, yet we deplore most truly and deeply his loss as a member of our Order.

Resolved, 2. That we extend to the bereaved family our tenderest and warmest sympathy; and pray Him who has afflicted to sustain and comfort them by His Spirit's presence and power.

Resolved, 3. That we will wear the usual badge of mourning for twenty days.

Resolved, 4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, and also to the Patriot, New North State, and Spirit of the Age for publication.

J. A. CUNNINGHAM, W. S. MOORE, J. W. WOODARD, J. M. SHELLEY, J. L. LINDSEY, Committee.

PREMATURE DEATH.—With the deepest regret we announce the premature death of Luther M. Purvis, in the 15th year of his age. Fanciful the printing business he had come from his home in eastern Virginia and entered this office about six weeks ago to learn the business under the instruction of his brother-in-law, Mr. Jas. W. Albright. About two weeks ago he manifested indications of illness, and in a day or two a violent type of typhoid fever developed itself, from which he died a Sunday at six o'clock.

He was physically well developed, and a man in stature though a boy in years. Of a quiet, amiable disposition, he made many friends in his brief sojourn here who now sincerely mourn his premature death. Such is the uncertainty of life—here to-day, gone to-morrow.

"Tropic."—Read the advertisement of Sergeant & McCauley's "Tropic" Cooking Stove, in another column. The success of these gentlemen has not with a moment's gratifying, and as a local enterprise we congratulate them on it. There are over 1000 of these stoves now in use giving entire satisfaction.

"We call attention of our readers to the prospectus of that able church paper, the Christian Advocate, which will be found in our advertising columns."

Andy Johnson announces himself a candidate for Congress in Tennessee.

"BRADLEY'S PATENT ESAMEL PAINT."—It is but little more than a quarter of a century since the art of mixing paint was confined almost exclusively to a few comparatively speaking. Now, however, through the ingenuity of Bradley, we are not only enabled to apply the Paint if we desire, but can use the shades in our Sample Cards being furnished, without the least shades of tint numbered. Not having used the "Emamel Paint" we can't say of our own experience, but we have no doubt it is all that is claimed for it, and most evidently supersedes the old "Style Paint." As an evidence of the great worth of the Emamel Paint, we most respectfully request all of our readers to carefully read the excellent testimonials from Mr. C. P. Knight, in another column of our paper.

MARRIED.

At the residence of Maj. W. D. Bethell, in Rockingham county, N. C., on the 12th of Feb., by Rev. W. C. Norman, Mr. Geo. W. C. Knight, of Danville, Va., to Miss Josephine McCain, of Rockingham county, N. C.

On the 19th of February, at the bride's house, by Rev. E. O. Parker, Mr. Henry P. May and Mrs. Barbara C. Patterson, both of Alamance county, N. C.

LIST OF LETTERS Remaining in the Post Office at Greensboro, N. C., Feb. 24th, 1874:

C. Ellis Clark, Mrs. Annie Crawford, D. Miss Julia Davis, E. Miss Elizabeth Evans, F. Miss Dora Fore, G. Miss M. J. Gray, H. Mrs. Geo. W. Kettler, I. Mrs. Rietta Lindsay, J. D. Moffitt, J. M. Miller, John McGall, K. Mrs. E. J. Nelson, L. Alfonso Pettiford, M. Mrs. Millie Skyes, Mrs. Sarah F. Smothers, N. Zack Turner, colored.

Persons calling for any of the above letters will please say they are advertised and give date of list.

AGRICULTURAL.

Prune Orchards.

Trees that are hardy may be planted in midwinter, provided no large wounds are made. An orchard properly and timely attended to will rarely require the removal of large limbs. We often see recommendations to prune early in summer, because the wounds heal rapidly at that time. That season may answer, provided the cutting is very sparingly performed, or provided the trees stand in a very rich soil and grow with great vigor. But early summer pruning always tends to check the fruitfulness of trees, and if vigor of growth is desired, always prune before the buds begin to swell—either in winter or very early in spring; and if trouble is likely to occur from the flow of sap, cover the wounds with paint, grafting wax, shellac varnish, or a mixture of tar and brick dust or road dust. If the wounds are made by winter pruning, the cut surface will become so dry in a few weeks that either of these applications will adhere well and serve as a perfect protection.

It often happens that the owner of large orchards cannot find time to do the work himself, and is unwilling to leave it to a hired man who may have no experience or judgment in cutting away the right limbs. To obviate this difficulty, and to have the work done to his satisfaction, let him take a piece of chalk in his hand, and going along the rows, draw a chalk line at the base of every crooked or crossing, or needless branch, and let his man follow with the saw and remove them. In this way he can mark in an hour all that a man will saw off in a day, and thus save his own valuable time. Use the chalk sold for school blackboards; and if the trees are tall, insert it in a hole bored in the end of a rod or stick several feet long.

Dairying in the United States.

The following statistics are from the Live Stock Journal: "But a few persons realize the magnitude of the dairying interest of the country at the present time. The present production of cheese is supposed to be 300,000,000 pounds, which, at fifteen cents a pound, amounts to $4,500,000; and of butter, 575,000,000 pounds, which, at twenty-five cents a pound, amounts to $14,375,000; with 100,000,000 gallons of milk sold in the cities and towns, and 60,000,000 gallons consumed in families where produced, worth $25,000,000; making together, a dairy product of $23,875,000, besides the pork made from the refuse of butter and cheese factories. The number of cows is probably not less than 9,000,000; the number in 1850 was 8,228,862.

If we allow 5,000,000 cows for making the butter, it will give one hundred and fifteen pounds to a cow, and 1,500,000 cows employed in producing cheese, which will be two hundred pounds to a cow; 700,000 cows for the production of milk consumed in cities and families of producers, 1,800,000 cows in the Southern and Western States devoted to raising stock. From these facts it will appear that the average product of butter and cheese is very far below what it might be with the intelligence and attention to breeding, feeding and general management which the magnitude of the subject demands. The first Collins cheese factory, of Erie county, N. Y., for 1869 reports the average from seven hundred and thirty cows at four hundred and twenty pounds of cheese to a cow, while two hundred pounds and over is a common yield to a cow in butter, from good well-fed cows."

Harness Reform.

There seems to be a general desire to put down all unnecessary cruelty to animals. Taking advantage of this commendable feeling, I should like to appeal to the public on behalf of the abolition of blinkers and cruppers—two useless pieces of harness—which I think can be easily shown to be both painful and inconvenient to horses. The Midland railway company, probably one of the largest employers of horses in the kingdom, has for some time entirely dispensed with the use of blinkers and cruppers. I am glad to see, are gradually going out of fashion, particularly with draft horses. The crupper frets and irritates an animal, and harness-makers tell me there would be no mechanical difficulty in contriving a substitute for it. A horse's eye is the most beautiful feature, full of tenderness, fidelity and intelligence. With the free use of his eyes the animal can readily interpret the wish of his driver, and make frequent use of the whip unnecessary. Blinkers often tease and distress an animal for a long time before it gets habituated to their use; for the eye looks sideways rather than forward, and the effect of the blinker is to force the eye out of its natural position.—Canada Paper.

Small Farms.

Small farms make near neighbors; they make good roads; there is more money made in proportion to labor; less labor is wanted; acre, because it is tilled better; there is no watching of hired men; the mind is not kept in a worry, a stew, a fret all the time. There is not so much fear of a drought, of wet weather, of a frost, of small prices. There is not so much money to be paid out for agricultural implements. Our wives and children have time to read, to improve their minds. A small horse is more curried—and the work on a small farm is always pushed in season. Give us small farms for comfort; give us small farms for profit.—Exchange.

The best liniment for cuts, galls, sprain, poll evil, fistula, or any other of the external diseases that animals are liable to, is made by dissolving one ounce of pulverized corrosive sublimate, and one ounce of gum turpentine in one pint of spirits of turpentine, put in a strong bottle.—Apply with a swab.
