Charged With Running Lotteries.

The grand jury last Friday returned true bills against a number of druggist and cigar sellers for conducting what have been recently defined as lottery schemes, and while the cases may not be pressed they will serve to fix the law and prevent future violations.

Under a recent ruling of the attorney general the wheels so often seen in drug stores, in which money is dropped and the buyer always gets one drink or cigar for his nickel and some times more, are lotteries. All candy schemes and prize offers, where a man does not know definitely what he is getting for his money are under the ban. Solicitor Gattis is one of the first solicitors to cause indictments to be found against such schemes.

HANES GOES TO THE ROADS.

Convicted of Simple Assault Upon Maggie Faust—Other Sentences.

Caleb Hanes, whose real name is said to be John Joyce, was convicted in Guilford Superior court Saturday afternoon of simple assault upon Miss Maggie Faust, of Madison township, and sentenced to two years on the county roads. Recently the legislature amended the law so that in cases of this kind, where a man was indicted for criminal assault, the judge might give the prisoner a longer sentence than is usually permissible in cases of simple assault. Hanes will begin his sentence at once. There are cases against him for carrying concealed weapons and seduction, but these were not tried.

A circumstance that weighed strongly with the jury was the discovery that the defendant is a married man, having a wife and child in Stokes county, where he is known as John Joyce. He is wanted in that county also for assault with a deadly weapon, and no doubt it was on account of this charge that he came to Guilford and posed under another name.

The trial was commenced on Friday, and consumed a little more than a day. Solicitor Gattis was assisted in the prosecution by County Attorney Wilson, while the defendant was represented by Col. J. A. Barringer and Mr. Glenn Hudson, of the local bar. The principal witness for the state was Miss Faust, who detailed the circumstances of Hanes' coming to the community to work at a saw mill, her meeting him at the home of Mr. Shaw, where he boarded, the courtship and their engagement to marry. On Tuesday night, June 18, they planned to go to Danville and get married. After her people had retired, she stole out of the house and met the defendant and they started toward the Revere Summit depot, a mile away, to take the midnight train for Danville. When about half way to the station the defendant assaulted her and required her to remain with him all night. In the morning they returned to Mr. Shaw's and told them they were married, and the girl told her parents the same story. They lived together for a few days until the truth leaked out. The girl's story was strengthened by the fact that after she found that Hanes would not marry her she told everyone the same thing. She testified that Hanes had a pistol with him and this was corroborated by his having a pistol when arrested. Other witnesses were put on the stand to tell of conversation with Hanes. The defendant did not testify.

The jury that sat in the case was composed of W. C. Deboe, R. L. Pentress, J. K. Ozment, John P. Calhoun, A. E. Davis, E. O. Peggam, W. P. Lemons, James Dennis, R. L. Ramsey, John A. Wyrick, J. F. Allison and E. A. McAdoo. Judge Danville allowed no spectators in the court room during the taking of the testimony.

A number of other cases were disposed of before the adjournment of the court late Saturday afternoon. Jim Surin, who had been convicted at a previous term of the court of running an illicit distillery, was in court again charged with retailing. He was found not guilty. The solicitor prayed judgment in two cases in which he had been found guilty. He was fined $50 and costs in one case and placed under a $250 bond for his good behavior in the other.

John Hart, who on Friday was called out, could not be found so his sentence could be imposed and a capias was ordered to issue and his bond fixed at $1,000 if he is caught. There are two cases charging retailing against Hart.

When the case of David P. Green, which was set for trial, was called the defendant failed to answer and a bond of $300 was declared forfeited. Green was charged with seduction under promise of marriage. A capias was ordered to issue and if the defendant is caught it will go harder with him.

The cases against Charles Robertson, John Ray, and J. W. Rainey, the charge being assaulting a detective with a deadly weapon, was continued on account of the illness of one of the defendants.

W. F. Stinnette, who was sentenced to eighteen months by the municipal court on three charges of retailing, appealing to Superior court, was sent to the roads for six months each in two cases and judgment was suspended in the other cases.

Roella Siler was sent to the workhouse for 12 months on the charge of highway robbery. Frank Pennington was given six months in jail for abandonment, with privilege to be hired out. Alex Chaffin, Jr., was sentenced to the roads for one year on the charge of larceny. Alex Chaffin, Sr., was given four months on the charge of receiving stolen goods.

Troy Fitzgerald was sentenced to serve six months in the workhouse on the charge of larceny, the sentence to begin at the expiration of a former sentence.

THE FINANCIAL PROBLEM.

Savings Banks—Investment Items and Suggestions.

A Dollar a Week.

This from the Christian Herald is worth passing along: "It is mighty bad," said an unfortunate workman some time ago to the writer, "to save up a thousand dollars by laying aside a dollar a week and then take it out of the savings bank and lose it to a get-rich-quick swindler, as I have just done." This poor fellow could work and save, but he had not had even a kindergarten education in finance, else his story would have been different. He had never given a thought to interest, and so was absolutely ignorant of growth through compound interest, and of course, had never heard of that wonderful process of accumulation known as "progressive compound interest."

One dollar deposited in a savings bank that pays 4 per cent. interest will amount to $2.19 in 20 years. This is simple compound interest. Now if you deposit one dollar every year for twenty years, or $20 in all, the sum to your credit will have grown to $30.97. Any wage earner can put by one dollar a week. That money deposited in a savings bank for twenty years will have increased to $1,612. A deposit of $5 a week will have grown to $8,000, and this at 4 per cent. will be $320 a year. There is no secret, no mystery about this. It is clear as the cloudless sun and the method is just as clean and honest.

What a Reporter Saw in New York.

A reporter sat in the office of the president of one of the big New York savings banks, talking about the bond market. A young man came in, whispered a few words to the president, and was answered briefly: "Show her in." The reporter rose to go.

"Wait," said the president, "I want you to see a savings bank at work." An old woman slipped through the door, which swung behind her. She bowed profoundly. The reporter noted at a glance the woolen shawl, the old battered bonnet, the big, rough shoes, the broad, red hands.

"A scrubwoman," he thought. "Good morning," said the president. "Is there anything you would like to ask me?" "It's about me money, sir," she said, glancing nervously at the reporter.

"What is it?" "I have about a thousand dollars in the bank, and I want the half of it," she said, "for an investment. He wud' n' gimme it unless ye says so."

"What kind of an investment is it that you want to make?" asked the president. She named a new mining company, floored by Philadelphia men to reopen an alleged Aztec mine.

"A man wint down our strata, an' told us all about it. I wants t' put foive hundred dollars in. He sez, sez he, as 't will be tin thousand in a year, an' mebbe fifty thousand in tin years."

"Can you afford to lose that money? How'd you get so much?" "Sure, I'ard it, sir, all iv it, wid me hands, an' on me knees. It tuk me twenty years. I can't afford t' lose none of it."

"This mine, let me tell you, is a gambling concern. The men who are trying to sell stock to you have no reputations to lose. They merely want your money. They will promise you anything. You will never get it. I know all about them and what they are doing. Now, if a stranger came along to you and wanted half of your money to bet on the races, in the saloons, would you lend it to him?"

"I wud not!" That, at least, was positive. "But you want to give your money to this stranger to take to Mexico, where you can't reach him, and sink it in a hole in the ground, where it will almost surely be lost forever, to you at least. Do you think that is w'se?"

"Sure, I don't," she said. "An' it's much obliged I am t' ye f' y'r advice. I guess the likes iv me shud n't have any money!" She came over to the big desk, forgetting her first shyness, and impulsively wrung the president's hand. Then she turned and went out with a hasty "Beg y'r pardon, sir."

"You will see," said the president to the reporter, "that a savings bank is a sort of nurse to these financial babies. The people who have a few hundred dollars in the bank are the natural prey of the sharpers. One has to be all eyes. The mining sharps are pretty bad, but the real estate sharps, who want to sell a poor woman two or three beautiful lots on the edge of some Long Island swamp, are the worst. We have more of them on the East Side than of any other vermin."

From that day to this the reporter, who is the writer of this article, has looked at savings banks through different eyes. Formerly they appeared to be merely business institutions, gathering together the funds of the people, investing them wisely within the leash of the savings bank law, but straining constantly at that leash. They seemed to be wise, keen, eager collectors of the people's money. They seemed to grow rich and powerful.

The Benefits of a Savings Account

The benefits accruing from a savings account are manifold. The interest received is the smallest benefit produced. To lay aside a "saug little sum for a rainy day" is a commendable undertaking, and certainly worth all the effort any savings account ever required, when the "rainy day" comes. But satisfying as these benefits are, they have not the merit that comes of the training acquired in successfully conducting a savings account. To have learned the principles of economy is to have your independence and happiness assured. Such are some of the great values of a savings account. This bank encourages such accounts by paying 4 per cent. interest on them, compounded four times a year.

Checking accounts in any amount cordially invited.

Please call at the bank when you are in town.

strong, rich, influential savings banks, officered by men keen enough to avoid all traps, who give the best of their brains and energy to just the kind of work that the reporter saw on the East Side. A savings bank has come to be considered not so much a business institution as a philanthropy. It is a safe haven. Its president, to fill his position well, must be the never-failing light-house on the reefs outside.—C. M. Keys in Worlds Work.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY.

Body Found Offices and Institutions of County in Splendid Shape.

Following is the report of the grand jury submitted to the court just before it was discharged last week:

"We, the grand jury, this day visited the county jail and found everything in a good sanitary condition. The prisoners report they are well fed and kindly treated. We recommend that the prisoners who have tuberculosis or other contagious diseases be kept separate from the other prisoners and that a place be prepared for the same.

"We have examined the various county officers and from what we have seen we believe everything is now kept correctly and in such shape that quick reference can be made and information secured in a short time that heretofore has required days. We especially commend the records as kept by the auditor of receipts and disbursements and believe that it is a great step towards systematizing county accounts and putting the county on business principles. We find the sinking fund of $32,000 invested in first mortgage real estate on property that is worth three times the amount of the mortgages. We are informed that the ex-clerk has arranged to pay over all indebtedness due by virtue of his office. We find that the ex-clerk has not made final settlement as yet, but the present clerk we think has complied with his duties.

"We, your committee, this day visited the county home in which we found 43 inmates, 25 white and 18 colored. They seem well cared for and nearly all are in good health. The sanitary conditions about the premises were fairly good and the attendants assured us that disinfectants were used regularly every day. Your committee would recommend that fly screens be provided for the windows and other places in which they would be beneficial, that a ventilator be provided for the kitchen roof, that some of the floors be stained and that oilcloth be provided for the beds of some of these unfortunate people. The farm was well tilled and the crops looked well. There were 42 acres of small grain and 35 acres in corn and vegetables.

"Your committee went over the house of correction in which we found the same conditions prevailing in regard to the inmates, that is, they were well fed and cared for. We found here 11 colored women, 14 colored men and two white men. All were busy at work as far as they were physically able. Here, too, we found the farm well handled, large crops of vegetables were found growing clean and well tilled. We found here as well as at the home that the rooms had recently been given added very much to the neat appearance of the same. The superintendent's house had been painted outside and in, and we understand that all this work had been done by one of the inmates of the institution.

"Your committee next visited the convict camps, of which we found three. The first visited was Superintendent Wyrick's camp, situated on the McConnell road, in which we found 11 convicts and 24 mules. Next we visited Superintendent Tyson's camp, situated a short distance north of the city, in which we found 34 convicts and 17 mules. We went to Superintendent Hiett's camp, situated near Pleasant Garden, in which we found nine convicts and 20 mules. At each camp we found the men well fed, and when questioned they said they were well treated. We found no cruelty was practiced in any case except what was consistent with safe keeping. Your committee was especially pleased with the fine condition of the mules in all camps; also the splendid work that was being done on the roads.

"We wish to call attention to the fact that the courthouse is located in the noisiest part of the city and that especially in summer when the windows are kept open, it is very difficult for jurors to hear what is said by the witness on account of the noise made by street cars. It would be well, if possible, to change the arrangement of the courtroom so as to have the witnesses nearer the jury.

"We have found 39 true bills and three not a true bill.
Respectfully submitted,

Mrs. R. T. Jackson Dead.

MRS. Maggie Moier Jackson, wife of R. T. Jackson, died Friday afternoon on Magnolia street in a tenement that had been provided for her there. Tuberculosis was the cause of her death. A brief service was conducted Saturday morning at 8 o'clock at the home of Mr. A. M. Stanton by Rev. J. Clyde Turner, pastor of the First Baptist church. The body, accompanied by a number of relatives, was carried to Hurt, Va., where the funeral services and burial took place. Rev. T. J. Ogburn, pastor of Grace M. P. church, conducted the funeral and burial services at Hurt.

Mrs. Jackson was born in Clifton, Kansas, October 5, 1883, and came with her parents to North Carolina in 1895 and to Greensboro in 1900. She was married to Mr. Jackson in June, 1904. Her husband and one small child survive.

Lightning Kills Few.

In 1906 lightning killed only 169 people in this whole country. One's chances of death by lightning are less than two in a million. The chance of death from liver, kidney or stomach trouble is vastly greater, but not if Electric Bitters be used, as Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Ia., proved. Four doctors gave him up after eight months of suffering from virulent liver trouble and yellow jaundice. He was then completely cured by Electric Bitters. They're the best stomach, liver, nerve and kidney remedy and blood purifier on earth. Only 50c at Fariss-Klutz Drug Company.

Judge Boyd Imposes Prison Sentences in 26 Cases.

An adjourned term of United States District court was held at Wilkesboro last week, being in session five days. During that time over 30 convictions were secured for violations of the United States laws, nearly all of them being for illicit distilling. In 26 cases Judge Boyd imposed penitentiary and reformatory sentences. The prisoners were brought to Greensboro Saturday and after spending the night in Guilford's jail were carried to prison Sunday by deputy marshals. The prisoners and their sentences are as follows:

Everett Harris, convicted of illicit distilling; imprisoned for eighteen months and $100 fine.

Houston Day, illicit distilling; one year and a day and $100 fine.

Henry Brooks, illicit distilling; twenty months and $100 fine.

Ronce Parker, illicit distilling; twenty months and $100 fine.

Andy Osborn, illicit distilling; fifteen months and $100 fine.

Relus Curry, illicit distilling; twenty-four months and $100 fine.

Ed Johnson, illicit distilling; twenty-four months and $100 fine.

John Wagoner, illicit distilling; twenty-four months and $100 fine.

Mark Pruitt, illicit distilling; fifteen months and $100 fine.

Meredith Eilings, illicit distilling; twenty-four months and $100 fine.

Jasper Eilings, illicit distilling; one year and a day and $100 fine.

Jim Wyatt, illicit distilling; fifteen months and $100 fine.

Joe Billings, illicit distilling; twenty-four months and $100 fine.

Bruce Combs, illicit distilling; eighteen months and $100 fine.

James Haynes, illicit distilling; one year and a day and $100 fine.

John Welborn, illicit distilling; fifteen months and $100 fine.

Tom Brooks, illicit distilling; twenty-four months and $100 fine.

W. R. Welborn, illicit distilling; one year and a day and $100 fine.

Rom Billings was convicted of illicit distilling and sentenced to twenty-four months imprisonment, as was Haywood Wagoner for illicit distilling, twenty-four months, and Tom Wagoner for illicit distilling, eighteen months. These three youths were under seventeen years of age, and were sent to the National Training School at Washington, D. C.

In addition to these, F. A. Absher was convicted of embezzlement of post-office funds and paid a fine of $300.

Samuel Watson and Callie Eilings, for resisting officers, were given respectively twenty and twenty-four months in Atlanta.

Hamp Parks, convicted of using the mails to defraud, was given two years at Atlanta.

Larken Coffey and Robert L. Hayes, convicted of retailing, were sentenced to eighteen months and $100 fine each, at the Atlanta prison.

Convict's Given Big Dinner.

The force of convicts under Capt. J. W. Tyson, engaged in grading a road to connect North Elm street extended with the Battle Ground road, were given a picnic dinner Thursday by Messrs. Pat Cunningham, Dave Kirkpatrick, H. P. Wray, Clyde Clapp, Bruce Morgan and J. A. Hegwood and their families. A number of gentlemen and ladies went out to the vicinity of the convict camp and partook of the dinner which had been prepared and enjoyed seeing the pleasure afforded the convicts by their share of the spread. There are 31 negroes and three white men in Capt. Tyson's gang and the dinner given them was probably the finest meal any of them ever had the privilege of eating. They showed clearly their appreciation of the kindness of the good people who remembered them in this way.

Defendant Surprised When Acquitted.

An incident that partook both of the ludicrous and pathetic occurred in Superior court last week, when Jim Graves, a negro youth, was on trial for highway robbery. Just as he closed his statement to the jury and the jury had retired, he broke down and wept copiously. A little while later the jury came in and returned a verdict of not guilty. This was apparently a surprise to Jim, and when he was told that he could go he hesitated to leave. Judge Daniels told him there was nothing more against him and to leave; then he took to his heels and made a bee-line for the street. Some of his remarks on the witness stand were amusing in the extreme.

AMERICAN LIBERTY.

(Written For The Patriot.)
I've seen the flowers bloom sweetly
In this the perian clime;
The sound of bells ring softly
With music in their chime;
And hills and mountains echo
To their soft melody;
To love the land 'neath heaven
Above the western sky!"

I've seen the golden sunset
From mount in, hill and plain;
The silver moon a rising
Above the ocean main;
And beauties of the landscape—
Some from nature's door;
Now, all of these impress me
To love my country more!

I've seen the finest sculpture
Ever carved by mortal hand;
The greatest art productions
Are in my native land;
The bright lines of progress
Extend from coast to coast;
For which my pride impels me
To love my country most!

No scene is quite so pleasing,
No thought or word inspiring,
As that of liberty;

And yet, there is a symbol
By which the story's taught;
The patriot's the subject,
"Old Glory" is the thought.

VICTOR P. HAMMER,

Fourth of July
and Its Meaning.

A group of grave, worried men gathered in a hall at Philadelphia years ago July 4. They were grave because they were called upon to decide the whole future destiny of a nation. They were worried because the penalty for such work as they had in hand was death.

They were the council called to gather from all over the country to decide whether America was to remain a dependent, unjustly persecuted British province or should become a free, independent nation. On that decision hang our country's fate.

During the years since America's independence England had little by little won from France and other powers the lion's share of control of the continent. The thirteen English colonies scattered along the Atlantic coast had grown strong and proud. To these colonists rather than to the mother country itself was due England's supremacy on the western hemisphere, for they had fought her battles, explored and settled her wilderness and swelled
her revenues.

As years passed on England
had done less and less for her American colonists. She had reduced to the rank of subsidiary provinces
the land their lifeblood and life were bound to her. She had sent harsh and oppressive governors to rule them. She had tried to crush them with taxes. She allowed them no share in their own government.

When whose heroism had carved a new and an embryonic nation out of a vast, hostile forest land were to be the sort to submit forever to such tyranny. For a long time they tried to appeal to England's justice.
When these appeals were vain they tried to bring the mother country to reason by armed resistance.

But, however, nothing remained but the choice between slavery and independence. Delegates from all the thirteen colonies met in Philadelphia in the early summer of 1776 to make that choice.

Without one dissenting vote
they declared for liberty.
Thomas Jefferson, a young lawyer
from Virginia, drew up a paper
embodying the colonies' defiance of oppression and their intention to form a nation for themselves, independent of every foreign power.

This paper was called the Declaration of Independence. It was adopted on July 4, 1776.

That was the birthday of the United States of America. In memory of that first Fourth of July—the day when we ceased to be subordinate colonies and became a free nation—we have ever since celebrated the anniversary.

When one remembers all the date
of this means and all that it commemorates there should surely be as much room in every American heart for gratitude and patriotism as for pride and fun.

Were Chinese Women Went to War.

That 1850 a Chinaman at Nanking, Hunan, founded a secret society which he called "God-Emperor" in opposition to Confucius and the state religion. It soon came into collision with the imperial authorities, and the uprising became known as the Taiping rebellion. The rebels killed about 10 million people.
The only thing about it was that the women were as active as the men in the military operations. It was that a large army of women were raised and formed into brigades of 100 women each, with female officers. Of each brigade 10-15 picked women and drilled in military duty. The rest were employed in doing the drudgery, as digging trenches, digging trenches, digging trenches, etc. The rebellion ended in 1864. The Chinese emperor, called the "Heavenly King," was finally suppressed by the imperial authorities, and it had a "heavenly king" who had been his own hands, and he died in 1864.

EXPORTS OF FARM PRODUCTS.

Will Aggregate a Billion Dollars For the Fiscal Year.

Exports of farm products from the United States will aggregate a billion dollars in the fiscal year which ends with the month of June. The government's fiscal year has for many years ended at the middle of the calendar year, the purpose being to give opportunity to classify and arrange the year's figures in time for consideration by the Congress, whose regular date of meeting is the first Monday in December. Thus the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor presents its detailed yearly report of commerce for the year ending June 30. Figures for 11 of the 12 months of the fiscal year 1911 are now available, and show exports of cotton 574 million dollars, foodstuffs 354 million dollars, and tobacco 35 million, a total for the 11 months ending with May of 963 million dollars, making it quite apparent that the sum added for the month of June will bring the total exports of farm products during the fiscal year 1911 above the billion-dollar line.

Cotton is by far the largest single item, 574 million dollars worth being exported in the 11 months ending with May, indicating that the total for the full fiscal year will approximate 600 million, against 450 million in the fiscal year 1910, and 481 million in the former high record year, 1907. This very large increase in the value of cotton exports in the fiscal year 1911 over that of any earlier year is due chiefly to the high prices, the quantity of cotton exported in 1911 being materially less than in 1909 or 1907, while the value will exceed by more than 100 million dollars that of the years in which the quantity was greater than in 1911. The average export price of domestic cotton in May, 1911, was 15.1 cents per pound, and for the nine months ending with May, 14.5 cents per pound;
against 14.2 cents in the cotton year 1910; 12 cents in 1909; 11.4 cents in 1908; and less than 6 cents per pound in 1898 and 1899.

Meat and dairy products also show
a marked increase in value of exports in the fiscal year 1911, when compared with the immediately preceding year, being for the 11 months ending with May, 135 1/2 million dollars, against 120 million in the same months of last year; and for the single month of May, 15 1/2 million dollars, against nine million for the corresponding month of last year. This increase is due in nearly all cases to larger quantities, the prices being in most cases lower than last year. For example, the average export price of bacon in the month of May, 1911, is 12.8 cents per pound, against 15.3 cents per pound in May of last year; hams, 11.8 cents per pound, against 14.6
cents in May a year ago; lard, 9.2 cents per pound, against 12.7 cents
in the corresponding month last year;
butter, 20.7 cents per pound, against 25.5 cents in May a year ago; and cheese, 11.5 cents per pound, against 15.5 cents in May last year.

Other articles showing an increase in value of exports in the fiscal year 1911 over that of the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal year are fruits, 23 million dollars, against 17 1/2 million a year ago; corn, 33 million, against 24 millions in the corresponding period of 1910; while cotton seed oil, oil cake and meal,
and flour also show slight advances in the total value of exports when compared with the corresponding period of last year, though wheat shows a marked decline in the 11 months ending with May, 1911, being but 21 1/2 million dollars in value, against 47 1/2 million in the corresponding months of 1910.

Europe is, of course, the chief purchaser of these exports of farm products. Most of the cotton goes to Europe, comparatively small quantities, however, going to Canada and Japan, and Europe is also the chief customer for wheat, cotton seed oil, oil cake, live cattle and tobacco. Of meat and dairy products, the South and Central American countries, Mexico and the West Indian Islands take considerable quantities, though more than half of the meats go to Europe.

Senator Simmons' Bill.

Senator Simmons' idea in swelling
the fund for building good roads by levying a tax on automobile owners, may not set well with the aforesaid owners, but it is what is coming. The stock objection by the farmers on being taxed to build good roads is that the roads are being built for the automobile people.
This is, of course, only partly true,
for, while the good roads benefit the fleeting automobilist on occasional tours, they benefit the permanent farmer every day in the year. It would tend to the better disposition of the farmer were he to feel that the automobile is paying tax as well as the farm wagon. We think the senator sets his figures on the automobile a little too high. The tax should be about $2.50. That would be in about the proportion of 25 cents to the farm wagon. The automobile is the greatest factor of the times in good roads development and even untaxed has been of inestimable benefit to the country. The prejudice against it is being rapidly removed for the farmers, themselves, are becoming gasoline cranks. But as we have intimated, something in the shape of a small tax simply as a visible asset, would tend to create a better feeling all along the line.
Senator Simmons is right also in his contention for government aid for good roads building, but we have only to repeat our advice for no state to wait on such aid, for the state that does will be a long time
in getting good roads.

FOR GOVERNMENT AID.

Senator Simmons Introduces Bill For Public Road Improvement.

Washington, June 23.—Senator Simmons made a really notable speech today in support of his bill for federal co-operation and aid in building of highway improvements.
He held the close attention of the senate while he spoke and was frequently interrupted by senators who by their questions showed their keen interest in the subject. Among those who thus contributed to the discussion of the desirability and feasibility of a comprehensive scheme of international improvements looking to the building of good roads, were Senators Gallinger, of New Hampshire, Lodge, of Massachusetts, and Works, of California. Each discussed what his particular section was doing, and proved that enthusiasm for good roads is nation-wide.

Estimating that one out of five of the five hundred thousand automobiles in use in the country is employed in interstate travel, Senator Simmons expressed the opinion that a million dollars annually can be raised for the improvement of wagon roads by imposing a license fee of $10 each on such machines. He also prophesied that the improvement of the roads would have the effect of greatly increasing automobile travel and therefore enhancing the fund.

The proposition for an interstate tax on automobiles is embraced in a bill of which the North Carolina senator is the author and which proposes the appropriation of $1,000,000 annually for the benefit of the roads
on which the rural mails are carried. He contended for the equity of the general scheme by the use of the roads by the government and also because of the benefit that would accrue to the farmers of the country.

The argument was advanced that the national government was under as great an obligation to aid the farmers as to aid other classes and manufacturers. The western railroads and rivers and harbors were mentioned as instances of the benefit of government.

"We have," the senator said, "the finest railroads in the world and the poorest highways. The government has helped to build these railroads and develop this splendid system of long distance transportation. Why should it not build the equally important system of short distance transportation—the country highways over which the product of the farm must be hauled before it reaches these national highways?"

Mr. Simmons said that of the 2, 150,000 miles of dirt road the country was using one million in carrying the mails and contended that it was under obligation to the farmers to aid in maintaining them. The saving made by a general improvement of the highways was placed at $10,000,000 to $15,000,000. He estimated that the proper improvement of the wagon roads would save the farmers $500,000,000 to $1,000,000, 000 in the cost of transporting their crops.

Concluding, Mr. Simmons said:
"Shall the government, having so auspiciously started upon the work of reclaiming the great and honorable calling of agriculture from the drudgery to which conditions have condemned it, now halt and hesitate to do the one thing needful to restore it to its rightful position of primacy among the great industries of the nation? I hope not, I think not,
and I had almost said I know it will not."

WHERE LUNGS ARE FROZEN.

Precaution Necessary During Winter in Alaska.

Washington Herald.

"I asked an Alaskan pioneer what happened when the thermometer goes down to 60 and 80 degrees below zero," Marshall J. Taylor, of Seattle, said. "At 60 degrees below," he said, "the exposed ears, hands or nose will freeze in going a quarter of a mile under ordinary circumstances; but the children go and come from school as usual without suffering from the cold, provided their faces and hands are protected."

"They soon get used to it. But caution must be used to avoid drawing the cold air into the lungs, and it is dangerous to breathe through the mouth. More died of pneumonia brought on by freezing the lungs in that way than from any other form of exposure. Horses are protected by breathing bags, which extend down from the nose of the animal about 18 inches and are open at the bottom. The breath which is exhaled warms the air in the bag before it is inhaled and drawn into the lungs. And men wear a 'parky' or headdress which extends over the face and affords similar protection."

"In the Canadian districts the Northwest mounted police regulate the treatment of horses on the freight wagons and stage lines in a most humane manner, so as to prevent them from suffering in this way."

THE CUTWORM PEST.

While cutworms do more damage during the month of May than later, a suggestion or two now relative to preventing damage by them will not be out of place. In no season that the writer can remember has the damage in the north central states been so heavy as that which has been inflicted on farmers and gardeners within the past few weeks. Not only has corn and sod ground been badly riddled and had to be replanted, but even worse havoc has been wrought in the town and country garden patch. One gardener in speaking of the matter the other day said that of 1,000 cabbage plants which he had set out the cutworms got all but two. So voracious are they that they have even attacked potato vines. Two things may be done to prevent damage. The stalks of transplanted stuff like cabbages and tomatoes may be protected by wrapping them with a couple of thicknesses of newspaper, allowing the paper to extend an inch below and an inch and a half above the surface of the ground. To poison the worms moisten bran with a solution made by adding one ounce of paris green to four or five gallons of water and thinly scatter while moist close to the stems or stalks of the plants to be protected. The worms are also very fond of green clover or alfalfa, and if this is wet in the poison solution and similarly placed it makes an excellent exterminator. A garden that is thoroughly hoed or cultivated will not suffer as much damage as one that is not, while a further advantage is that the worms may be killed as they are thrown to the surface.

A PURE BRED SIRE LEAGUE.

The department of animal husbandry of the University of Wisconsin has lately set afoot a campaign that is deserving of publicity. It aims at the organization of a nation wide pure bred sire league, a voluntary, non-incorporated association, of which any person may become a member by owning and using a pure bred sire in the production of any of the several kinds of farm animals. The purpose of the organization, as suggested, is the improvement of the live stock of the country by the use of pure bred, registered sires in place of those of grade, scrub or mongrel breeding. Those who join the league pledge themselves so far as is possible to use pure bred sires, to advocate the general use of such sires, to work for the improvement of pure bred sires along the line of breed character and individual excellence and, lastly, to discourage the use of grade, mongrel or scrub sires or sires and dams of whatever breeding that are diseased or unsound in any way. The improvement in the breeding and character of all kinds of farm animals has been marked in the past few years, and there is reason to believe that an organization such as the above will do much toward helping the good work along.

COST OF PRODUCTION HAZY.

The chief lack in the system of accounts kept on the average farm is the uncertainty relative to the cost of production. It's an easy matter to figure out the receipts from a crop of small grain, corn, potatoes or hay at so much per bushel or ton or of live stock at a given price per hundred weight, but not so simple a matter to figure exact cost of production, including the items of preparation and cultivation of soil, the cost of harvesting, storage, interest on investment, deterioration in equipment, etc. Yet it is only by keeping tab on these and a good many other items that makes it possible for the farm owner to know whether his season's operations have been really profitable or not. It will take some time and attention to keep a set of farm books simply, yet it is well worth while that one may know just where he stands—what operations have been profitable and what followed at a loss.

SHOULD LIVE WITH THE WORMS.

It is hard to have patience with the man who, though entirely dependent upon the kindness of nature for fertile soil, productive fruit tree, bush and vine, sunshine and rain, is so narrow and selfish that he will ruthlessly kill the finest and most useful of our song birds because, knowing a good thing when they see it, they take a bit of soil from him in the shape of ripe and luscious berries. Folks of this type ought to be herded by themselves in a territory bug and worm cursed because never visited by our feathered friends and compelled to subsist on what worms and insects leave. They would soon have enough of the business and would return to dwell with civilized folks, thankful for bird life and having a better conception of reciprocity, the square deal and the eternal fitness of things.

A York state orchardist reports a lot of time saved in clearing brush from his orchard using a two horse rake. It took one-fourth the time to do it that it would by hand.

Not the least of the good points that can be urged in favor of the silo is that it can be used to provide a succulent ration during the summer dry spell, when flies are bad and when the milk cows often fall considerably in their milk supply.

It is a pretty good rule to follow to cut out the trees about the house or trim the limbs up until the blue grass will get a foothold. Blue grass needs about so much sunshine to do well, and the folks in the house are the better for about the same amount.

Many are the drivers of horses who strangely seem to overlook the fact that harness repairs are cheaper than the services of a veterinarian or the labor involved in equine funerals. Added to this is the possibility that the driver may get his neck broken in the scrape and need the services of an undertaker.

The putting of the lawn mower away when through using it and the rubbing of the hose and wheel cultivators bright when through using them are largely matters of habit. It is well to remember that it is just about as easy to form the right habit along this line as to fall into the bad one of leaving the tools wherever one happens to get through using them.

There is good reason to believe that the codling worm injury to apples this year in those sections where the crop was wiped out by frost last year will be greatly reduced owing to the fact that there were mighty few apples left on which the eggs could be laid and in which the worms could find a harbor. It is another illustration of the old saw "It's an ill wind that blows no good."

Townpeople whose places are bordered with shade trees can do a real favor to the drivers perched on the tops of loads of hay or straw or other high loads by keeping the limbs which droop into the roadway trimmed up. It does not sweeten a fellow's temper to have a part of his cargo pulled off into the highway or to get a scratch or welt across the face from these overhanging limbs.

A new interest has been shown in irrigation in this country within the past few years, and in particular since the passage of the reclamation act by congress, yet irrigation as a practice of agriculture is as old as that of scratching the surface of the soil with a stick, the forerunner of the modern chilled steel plow. Mesopotamia, Egypt and sections of our own southwest show the remains of irrigation systems hourly with age that hundreds of years ago lapsed into ruin and disuse.

While the sweet potatoes grown in the north do not develop the sweetness and quality of the New Jersey or more southern product, one can still raise a pretty fair article. The soil in which they are planted should be rich, light and mellow and should be as possible to receive as much warmth as possible from the sun, a slope to the south, with shelter of some kind to the north being preferable. While the practice is often followed of planting them on ridges, this is not imperative if the soil is well drained and is kept thoroughly cultivated.

We watched a groceryman counting eggs into a shipping case the other day and called his attention to a number of apparently fresh white eggs that were badly smeared with mud or manure, due to the hens having inadequate nesting places. His reply was: "Yes; there's really no excuse for it. Those eggs are just as fresh and good as any that have been brought in, but the folks were careless. When they reach the commission houses they will go in as 'dirts,' which means that about 3 cents per dozen will be knocked off the price."

A stirring of the surface soil every few days, and particularly after a rain, will put a blanket of mellow earth on the surface that will tend to keep the subsoil moist and loose in a condition the most favorable possible for the development of the growing plants. It is well to remember in this connection that the circulation of soil air is as essential to the growth of the root system as soil moisture and that both are secured by keeping the surface soil properly stirred. It matters little relatively how rich soil is if the surface is allowed to bake. This locks both moisture and fertility up, and the growing crop suffers as a result.

The Iowa experiment station has been gathering data recently relative to the damage done by the wheat head arm worm in several counties of the state. Two broods of the worm hatch, the first feeding from late in May until well into July and the second from the middle of August until frost. Measures which have been tried to reduce the pest show that early cutting of badly infested fields is a help; also keeping the grasses cut on the roadsides and in the fence corners and early fall plowing. Most effective of all as a preventive measure was found to be the pasturing of infested fields during the early fall. The damage done by the worm is largely in the seed head, its habit being to eat the seeds and drop the chaff. In some fields examined as high as 49 per cent of the timothy seed heads were found damaged.

The damp cellar may not be primarily due to too much shade about the house, but there is no getting around the fact that the situation is aggravated by such shade. The germ destroying sunshine and fresh air ought to enter the cellar windows during a part of every day.

Not a little pleasure and real satisfaction can be got out of placing a shallow dish on the lawn and supplying it with fresh water every day or two. The birds will discover it very quickly and will come to the dish to drink and bathe, where their performances will prove very interesting to the members of the household.

There are all too many chaps who haven't time to "monkey or fuss" testing seed corn who stupidly spend hours and even days later in the season cultivating bare ground in fields which have half or a third of a stand because the seed used wasn't any good. And it is often these same fellows who blame the weather or the party in power or their bad luck because they don't get ahead in the world.

The present day practice of building dairy barns so that they will be provided with abundance of fresh air and sunlight is no longer viewed as a fad by men who think. These conditions mean health to the cows, which means increased milk yield, and this means more money in the bank; hence it resolves itself down to a practical dollars and cents proposition, a language that ought to be understood by the most dull of understanding.

Regrettable as the fact is, truth compels the statement that up to date the most skilled specialists in the medical world have not been able to discover a medicine that will kill the germs that cause cancer and tuberculosis. Other measures sometimes effect a cure in individual cases, but seldom medicine taken internally. Medicines claimed to have this power are on the market, but primarily for the purpose of separating sick folks of their money.

The old world has mighty little to offer boys who start out in life at ten years old sucking cigarettes, except quarters in insane asylums, penitentiaries or jobs holding down dry goods boxes, rubbing the sand off depot walls at train time or touring the country on broke beams. None of these occupations, by the way, yields a very handsome salary. It is well for the boy to look into the future far enough to make up his mind whether he wants to hang out with this kind of company. If he doesn't he would better cut the cigarettes out.

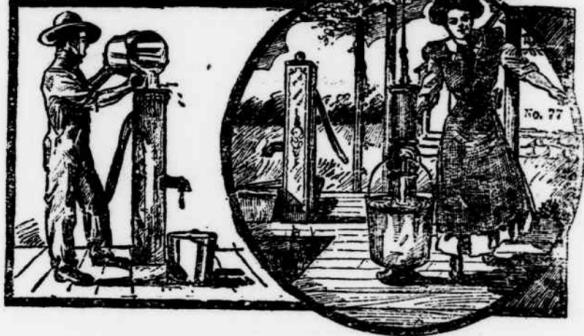

Figures gathered by investigators in the federal department of agriculture show that those engaged in the poultry business in the United States suffer a loss of $15,000,000, or 15 per cent of the annual value of the egg output, $300,000,000, through the careless handling of the product. This loss is traced to failure to provide adequate and clean nesting places, irregularity in gathering, keeping in warm instead of cool places and infrequency of marketing. It is safe to say, in addition, that the bulk of this loss is sustained by farm poultry raisers rather than those who make of poultry raising a primary business. The leak is one that should be stopped.

We heard the other day of a tactful fellow who got the better of a balky horse by hopping out of the rig and pretending to adjust something about the harness. By the time he had tied and unried the rump-strap or monkey-aid with the tug or bridle and got back into his seat the horse was ready to start on. The writer has had equally good results while cultivating with horses inclined to balk by backing them up a few steps and then starting ahead. But all schemes fail at times, and, like others, we have set for a good half hour, with the thermometer registering 110 degrees F. in the shade in the vicinity of our rear collar button, waiting for Tom to get over a balky streak. It takes a stack of patience, much philosophy and all or more religion than a fellow can muster to keep sweet tempered when he has one of the omney critters on his hands.

Time was when cows needed their horns for self protection, but under modern domestic conditions they are useless and often dangerous appendages. The best and easiest method of dehorning is by the application of some caustic potash to the germ of the horns when the calf is a few days old. After the horn has got a good start the job must be done by saw or clippers. Many a dairyman hesitates to dehorn his cows because of the harmful effect he thinks it will have in reducing their milk flow. However, this is likely to be overestimated. A test made at the Kansas Agricultural college in a herd of twelve cows with a view to determining the shrinkage as a result of dehorning showed that in the five days prior to the operation it gave 1,125 pounds of milk, while in the five days following it gave 1,100.7 pounds, or a total shrinkage for the twelve cows of 40.3 pounds. This amounts to sixty-nine one-hundredths of a pound of milk per cow each day, or about half a pint. On the fifth day after dehorning all except two of the cows were giving as much milk, and a few more than they did the day before their horns were removed.

GOOD PUMPS.

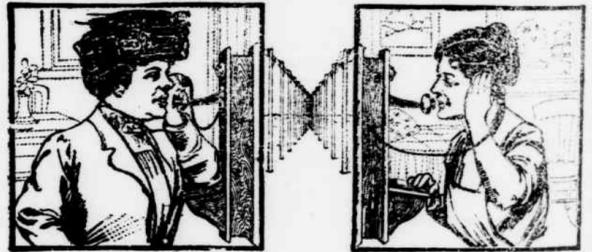

Nothing will add so much to the convenience of the farm as a MYERS FORCE PUMP. Not only will it give you a supply of water fresh from the well, but it can be forced into the kitchen and barnyard. By installing a tank, you can have a supply of running water, which will give you all the convenience of a city water supply at a very moderate expense.

This can be arranged to furnish protection in case of fire, and will be worth far more than it costs in convenience and security. The price is surprisingly low.

Ascertain the depth of your well and call in and let us show you at how small a cost the whole outfit can be supplied.

CHAPTER XI.

Fifteen minutes later Count von Fitz cautiously crept beneath the window and whispered Mrs. Blazes did not answer. He waited longer. Still no answer.

"If you are gone, I'm glad," he said. "Cheer up, my dear, I'll be back in ten minutes. I went to another place. Her name is Terese."

"But they won't know the model," Mrs. Blazes feared.

"I explain him perfectly. I tell her a shape like a smashed balloon, yellow on the outside with a garden of red poppies."

"Poppies or popples—day look chust to me from now on."

"You do test go right back and stay there until it is finished," Mrs. Blazes suggested.

"No, I told dem to sent it here, so I make sure I get it."

"That's good," she said, with a tone of relief.

"Now you come right out und ven der hat comes I gift it to you, und away you go."

"Come out?" she asked sarcastically. "Listen. Make a rope yet, und I pull you out."

"An idea," she exclaimed with delight. "I'll tear up the sheets and things in here, tie them together in a rope and let myself down."

"Splendid. I go und watch for der messenger mit der hat."

sort. By this time she was afraid enough to turn her eyes toward him.

"I'm silly, am I?" Pigeon asked, sulkily.

"I didn't say that," she answered.

"You did!" she replied, pouting, for she was angry because of the ripping, and naturally wanted to vent her wrath on the nearest object, which in this instance happened to be the poor youth.

"Boarding school wit!" Pigeon retorted. "Oh, well, there are plenty of other girls!"

"And don't you forget, Mister Williams," she snapped, with a heavy accent on the "Mister," "that there are plenty of other men!"

She brought out the word "men" with all the emphasis and meaning necessary to convey to him the idea that she regarded him as a boy.

Then she arose, utterly ignoring a terrific ripping noise, and strode into the house with the cold, heartless tread of a princess.

And in that room Mrs. Blazes was feverishly tearing and tying strips of sheets, and towels, and table covers, together, all unconscious that in her strenuous efforts to effect her escape she was creating the first bump upon the pathway of a young love—but then love as Mr. Shakespeare observed long long ago, never did run smooth.

Pigeon got up with an air of gloom, and grasped his belt in a tight clutch and marched off, his steps being timed by staccato rips, which he did not locate as coming from the room wherein was Mrs. Blazes.

CHAPTER XII.

Mrs. Blazes opened her window silently, and lowered to the ground a rope that was fearfully and wonderfully made.

anything to capture a girl with money."

"It is not so!" Count von Fitz sputtered, rubbing his neck.

"Verily, thee has a suspicious look," Medders said to him.

"It's a gam dood thing I happened along," Blazes observed.

"A what, friend?" Medders inquired curiously.

"A gam dood thing—doesn't count, you know when you cuss backwards."

"Verily," Medders said, "there be times when a man could cuss sideways."

"Well," Blazes said, turning again to Count von Fitz. "It's a lucky thing for you there was nothing in the report that you were with my wife today. I'm a jealous man. I'm desperate when I'm roused."

"Don't rouse!" the Count begged.

"Once," the General said, "I caught a man flirting with her. What did I do?"

"Vat did you do?" the Count asked, weakly.

"They buried his hat," the General said. "Just his hat! Just—his—hat!"

"Chust his hat!" the Count echoed. Mentally he wondered if it had been a yellow hat with red poppies.

"Thou art a man of wrath, General," Medders said. "Once I grew angry at a man—in my youthful days."

"See last?" Medders asked. "What is it, Socrates?"

"A hat," Primmer announced. Harry leaped to a conclusion. Instantly he coupled Primmer with the mysterious man who had bought the duplicate hat at Mlle. Daphne's.

"Let's see it," he said.

He opened Primmer's hat box, and one glance was enough to confirm his suspicion. He dropped the lid quickly, took the box from Primmer's unresisting hold, and said:

"I'll take your hat to Lucy. She'll be—"

"No. I shall present it to her myself," Primmer declared, taking the box from Harry.

"All right," Harry said. "Don't let any one profane that hat by seeing it until it gets to the one for whom it is intended. And neither will I with mine. You won't let any one see it?"

"Surely not," Primmer agreed.

"All right. That's a sacred compact. Let's all go in now."

And as he ushered them into the house Harry said things to himself because of his foolishness in paying seventy-five dollars for a hat when the duplicate was in the house all the time.

"And," he growled, "I've still got one coming from Daphne!"

"What did thee say?" Medders asked, as they went into the reception room.

"I was saying that I hoped no one was coming this evening to break up our quiet little party."

NORTH CAROLINA MAN CURED OF AN OLD SORE OF LONG STANDING BY THE USE OF THIS GREAT REMEDY

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Jan. 29, 1911
SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

DEAR SIRS: In the fall of 1904 I had an attack of Typhoid Fever which lasted five months, and when I got well of the fever a bad sore had formed on my leg. I went to a doctor and he healed it up for me but it was not long before it broke out again, this time much worse than before. I tried salves and other external applications, but nothing did it any good until a friend recommended S. S. S. to me. I decided to give it a trial and commenced its use at once. I took it regularly and according to directions for a while, and to my delight this great medicine made a perfect and permanent cure of the old sore.

Before taking S. S. S. I would have to quit work, and so painful did the place become at one time that I was compelled to stop work for seven weeks, and even when I returned to my business could do little more than hobble about. All my friends and acquaintances have noticed not only the fact that I am well of this old ulcer, but my general health is better in every way, all of which was brought about by the use of S. S. S., which I consider the greatest of all blood purifiers. I am now 56 years old, and although it has been a number of years since S. S. S. cured me, there has never been the slightest symptom of a return of the sore. I gladly recommend S. S. S. 716 Mulberry St.

R. H. CHURCH

The above letter came to us unsolicited. Mr. Church is just one of the many thousands who have used S. S. S. successfully in the cure of an old sore. Like a host of other sufferers he used this medicine without our knowledge, tested it thoroughly, and when he found it to be a remedy of real value he voluntarily endorsed it in this public manner, in order that he might help others to find relief from the suffering he endured for so long.

Every old sore is caused by some kind of impurity or poison in the blood. This infection of the circulation may come as the result of a generally disturbed condition of the system, or it may be brought about by the absorption into the circulation of germs bred by a spell of fever or other debilitating sickness, or the blood may be harboring an inherited taint. But whatever the cause of bad blood the sore cannot heal until the circulation has been entirely cleansed and purified.

S. S. S. cures old sores because it is the greatest of all blood purifiers; it goes into the blood and removes every trace of the cause. When the blood has been purified there is no longer any inflammatory matter or infectious impurity to irritate the place; then nature causes a quick and natural healing of the ulcer. This is a simple way to cure an old sore, but it is the only way because in this manner the fibres and tissues of the infected flesh are strengthened and made healthy, and when they are knitted and joined together there is no further irritation, and the place fills in with firm, healthy flesh.

Under the purifying and tonic effects of S. S. S. the system is built up, and those whose constitutions have been weakened by the drain of an old ulcer will experience a general betterment of health. We have a special book on Sores and Ulcers which we will be glad to send to any who wish it. Our physicians will also furnish any medical advice desired. No charge for either the book or advice. S. S. S. is for sale at drug stores. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

ATTEMPTED INCINERATION.

Horrible Assault Made Upon Rockingham Men.

William Cheshire and William Johnson are in jail at Westworth, Rockingham county, charged with a most brutal and cowardly assault upon Will Davis, also of Rockingham. The affair occurred near Spray last Saturday. The two men, after a difficulty with Davis, attempted to end his life by a most horrible and dreadful means—that of burning him alive. As a result Davis is in a state of collapse.

It seems that Will Davis, Bill Cheshire, William Johnson (and Davis says three other men) contributed to purchase a gallon of mean corn whiskey and after securing the same the parties gathered at a selected spot, near the head gate of the Spray canal, at which to drink.

It was not long before a dispute arose as to Cheshire drinking more than his rightful share of the contents of the jug—Will Davis struck one of the party, whereupon the crowd seized Davis and putting him in a watchman's house, which stood on the bank of the canal, they barricaded the door and proceeded to set fire to the house.

Davis screamed and cried and begged for life, piteously imploring them not to burn him alive, but the inhuman and cowardly wretches, it is alleged turned deaf ears to the cries of the suffering man until the house was nearly consumed by the fire; then they released Davis and pitched him in the canal, evidently expecting him to drown, but there was a pipe line in the canal and Davis threw his arms around the pipe thus saving himself from a watery grave. The drunken party immediately left the scene, thinking Davis had been effectually disposed of; but not so, Davis crawled out of the canal's bank and quickly raised the alarm, secured the necessary assistance to reach his home and sent for physicians, who found him in a horrible condition. The flesh on his back was burned to the thickness of half an inch; his limbs almost burned to a crisp and his sufferings were terrible in their intensity of pain.

Warrants were issued at once by Justices Auburn and Manly, and Bill Cheshire and William Johnson were arrested and carried before Davis in a crowd of other men and Davis unhesitatingly pointed out and completely identified Cheshire and Johnson as being two of the five who committed the horrible crime.

In default of a two thousand dollar bond required by the trial justices for each defendant they were committed to jail at Westworth to await a hearing at the next term of the criminal court of Rockingham county.

In the meantime there is no hope held out as to the recovery of Davis, who is indeed in a bad condition. His testimony was taken by the justices and reduced to writing, after which he was sworn to the same.

The three men whom Davis says assisted Cheshire and Johnson have not as yet been apprehended by the alert Spray office.

To Spend Summer Abroad.

Miss Janie Clark, teacher of history in the Greensboro Female College, left yesterday for New York City, from which port she will sail for Europe Saturday. Miss Clark will be joined in Washington by Miss Hettie Rochelle, of Durham, and Miss Sammie Gullidge, of Wadesboro, both of whom were students in Greensboro Female College last year. Miss Bessie Lawrence, of Greenville, S. C., left with Miss Clark yesterday. The party will be joined in Paris by Prof. David Clark, of the English department.

Miss Elizabeth Potter, of the art department of the same institution, left with Miss Clark. She will continue on to Boston, where she will be joined by Miss Hazel Neff, of the music department, and several other friends, who will also spend the summer abroad.

Miss Fan F. Armfield, also of the E. F. faculty, left for Boston to spend the summer with friends in that city and other Massachusetts towns.

Army Commissioners Await Young Men

Political influence is no longer necessary for a young man to obtain an appointment as second lieutenant in the army. Announcement has been made by Secretary of War Stimson, upon the recommendation of Gen. Wood, chief of staff, that any young man with a complete or partial college education, in good moral standing, and who can produce letters of reference, will be designated for the competitive examination.

This unusual procedure is being taken in order to fill up the vacancies in the grade of second lieutenant, which have been created by the recent increase, by authority of Congress, of the official personnel of all the fighting lines of the army. At present there are 286 vacancies, and only eighty-two of these will be filled by the graduating class at West Point. Only a few, perhaps not more than a dozen, will be filled from the ranks this year, so there will be left approximately 200 vacancies to be filled from civil life.

Guilford County Congratulated.

The Raleigh News and Observer gave Guilford county the following complimentary editorial reference a few days ago: "Guilford county people are to be congratulated upon securing Mr. Kenneth H. McIntyre as director of their new department of agricultural education, which has been established in that county. Robeson and Guilford counties have established a commission of agriculture for their counties. Guilford is fortunate in securing Mr. McIntyre, who, for several years, was head of the Wake county high school at Holly Springs, a school that, in the matter of farming and domestic science, has been so progressive as to be singled out for praise in the national educational gatherings."

Salt will keep meat, but it requires "sand" to keep a good reputation.

CHARGED WITH CONTEMPT.

Reidsville Minister Criticises Judge and is Hailed into Court.

Because he criticised a decision of Recorder Humphrys, of the Reidsville Municipal court, Elder L. H. Hardy, a well known minister of the Primitive Baptist church at Reidsville, was attached for contempt on an order issued by the recorder, and was tried for the alleged contempt Tuesday of this week. After hearing the case, Recorder Humphrys reserved his decision in the case until July 24. The defendant is represented by Mr. A. L. Brooks, of this city.

Last week the recorder tried a case in which a Reidsville man was charged with selling whiskey. The man was acquitted, and in the issue of Webster's Weekly Friday Elder Hardy printed an article censuring the court. The recorder thought some of the statements in the article a reflection upon the court and contempt, whereupon he caused a rule to issue against Mr. Hardy.

In the hearing Tuesday the article was introduced in evidence and was shown to have been written by Elder Hardy. Acting Solicitor Dalton prosecuted the case, and the speeches by him and Mr. Brooks are reported to have been splendid efforts.

Elder Hardy is 58 years of age, is pastor of the Reidsville Primitive Baptist church and is well known in his town and other sections of the state. His friends are upholding him in the matter.

Reunion of Fultons.

Plans are underway for a reunion of the Fulton family to be held at Salem Chapel church, Forsyth county, on July 29, and the indications are that a big crowd of people bearing that name or their descendants will be present. The purpose of the gathering is purely social. Salem Chapel is an ideal place for the reunion. It is three miles south of Walnut Cove and six miles north of Walkertown.

The Fulton family originally came to America from Scotland, landing in Maryland, where they made their first settlement. From that point the members of the family migrated to all sections of the country, a party of them coming to this state, where the family has long been one of the largest and most prominent in the history of Guilford, Forsyth and Rockingham counties. There are also a number of Fulton families in Patrick and Grayson counties, Virginia, and others in Georgia and Mississippi.

CARRIE NATION'S WORK.

Lived and Suffered For What She Thought was Right.

Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Carrie Nation was an interesting character. Such characters are not easily weighed. Often it is difficult to tell whether they do more good than harm. Very often they hurt the good cause they espouse. In their righteous zeal, they become extremists. Usually the extremist is brutally intolerant. Sometimes the easiest and quickest way to correct an evil is temporarily to tolerate it. But Carrie Nation was not inclined to tolerate the thing with which she quarreled; hers was a stormy, militant nature, uncompromising to the point of fanaticism, and absolutely relentless in its attitude toward the ineradicable weaknesses of human nature.

It would not be fair to belittle the value of her services. Carrie Nation lived for an idea, just as John Brown lived and died for an idea. But Mrs. Nation, like Brown, often allowed zeal to betray her into errors of conduct which hurt her cause and made impossible a realization of her dream. Whatever unkind things may be said of Mrs. Nation by those not in sympathy with the principles for which she stood, nor with the methods she employed in efforts to force her ideas upon the public, thoughtful men and women will concede her sincerity of purpose and must admire her for living and battling for what she honestly believed to be right.
