KILLED BY HAZING.

Students Responsible For Tragic Death at State University.

A shock, felt throughout the length and breadth of the entire state, was caused by the announcement that Isaac William Rand, a quiet, studious and promising young man, had met a tragic death in the early hours of the morning Friday, at the hands of fellow students—four sophomores, who, it appears, entered the room of their victim masked, compelled him and his room mate, Robert A. Wellons, to get out of bed and follow them in his night clothes, to the old athletic grounds, where he was made to perform on the top of a barrel for their amusement. The young men guilty of such reprehensible conduct are A. H. Styron and W. L. Merriman, both of Wilmington; R. W. Oldham, of Raleigh, and A. C. Hatch, of Mount Olive. All are of good families and are each under bond of $5,000.

Young Wellons first suffered the humiliation of singing and dancing and fell from the barrel with a slight cut on his leg. The young fellows did not profit by the suggestion of accidents, but ordered Rand to occupy the improvised stage and sing and dance for them. Men attracted by this demonstration, long since made disreputable and almost driven from college, went down to the field and saw what was going on. Some of them, it is claimed, remonstrated with the leaders. When Rand had practically concluded the performance for the upper classmen, he fell from the barrel, and in a moment was seen mortally wounded. The barrel upon which he had been standing, appears to have been filled with crockery.

The broken bottle near it had not been discovered. When Rand was picked up, a gash four inches long and two inches deep was observed and the blood poured from the wound. Though some of the sophomores were terrified and fled, some remained with Wellons and aided in giving the alarm. They bore the bleeding boy to a point near the Carr building and called loudly for help. It aroused fellow students and these went for a physician. The gash in the poor fellow's neck had severed the carotid artery and both the exterior and interior veins. Every blood vessel leading to the head was snapped and in his own blood, young Rand lay and died before help could reach him. He did not live ten minutes.

Mayor Robertson ordered the arrest of the hazers and called upon Sergeant J. R. Pendergrast, of Durham, to come immediately to Chapel Hill. President Venable also asked that the boys be taken into custody and by 4.30 the officer was in Chapel Hill. They made no effort to escape.

Orange county has no coroner, but Clerk Strayhorn swore one in and sent Algonson S. Barbee to serve the state in that role. Mr. Barbee impaled S. W. Andrews, S. L. Herndon, J. M. Neville, J. M. Cheek, R. L. Stroud and W. N. Pritchard to sit as a coroner's jury. Solicitor S. M. Gattis, appearing for the state, declared the evidence so strong that he thought the defendants should be held in bonds exceeding $5,000 each. Coroner Barbee fixed the sums at that amount.

Gen. Julian S. Carr, who is an alumnus of the University and the giver of the Carr building, sent word that he would come over and put up the bond of $20,000. In doing that, however, General Carr is not to be understood as showing sympathy for the hazers.

The Coroner's Jury Verdict.

The official verdict of the coroner's jury is, "The jury finds that Isaac William Rand, of Smithfield, came to his death from a cut on the throat caused by a fall from a barrel while forced to dance on the barrel by a party of hazers and the jury recommends that Ralph W. Oldham, of Raleigh; W. L. Merriman, of Wilmington; A. C. Hatch, of Mt. Olive, and Arthur H. Styron, of Wilmington, be held for investigation by the grand jury of Orange county."

The following witnesses appeared before the coroner's jury: R. A. Wellons, A. R. Parsley, W. Morrison, J. C. Busby, H. R. Willis, J. B. Moore, W. B. McNider, L. A. Harper, W. L. Merriman, R. W. Oldham, J. D. Pendergrast, A. C. Hatch, A. H. Styron, F. O. Clarkson, W. L. McQuinn. Most of these were bound over to court.

Young Rand was the youngest of the three Rand boys who have attended the University. He was 19 years of age, religiously inclined, a son of Oscar R. Rand, of Smithfield, a lumber dealer, who has sent his three oldest boys there. In the class of 1908, Oscar Rand, Jr., graduated and later finished as Rhodes scholar at Oxford, England. "Billy" Rand was modest and a model. He gave every promise of bringing honor to the University, credit to his father and to himself, and good to the commonwealth in which he lived.

At the inquest there seemed little doubt that the barrel was kicked over while Rand was standing on it but the one who did the kicking could not be identified. Wellons would not swear positively that the barrel was kicked over but knew something happened to his roommate just as the flashlight was extinguished.

This is the third death from hazing in the history of the University according to old residents. A man named Fries was killed many years ago and there was another death but none quite so tragic as this.

President Venable and the entire faculty were overcome with grief over the shocking affair and will do nothing to prevent the civil law from taking its course.

In response to a call from the governor a meeting of the trustees of the University was held in the executive office in Raleigh Monday, with the following result:

President's Report.

President Venable presented his detailed statement of the death of Isaac William Rand, freshman at the University of North Carolina, September 13, while he was being hazed, to the executive committee of the University in special session in the executive office of Governor Kitchin as called for.

The report treated the whole scope of the hazing tragedy at considerable length. It showed that Dr. Venable was aroused between 1.30 and 2 o'clock A. M. and found young Rand already dead. From the description given of one of the hazers by Freshman Wellons, Dr. Venable took young Merrimon in custody and then called in the civil authorities, who later arrested Hatch, Styron and Oldham.

The president procured the presence of Solicitor S. M. Gattis at the coroner's inquest. His report to the executive committee treated especially the testimony of young Wellons, Rand's room-mate, who was also hazed, as showing that the hazers called Rand and Wellons at their room door, and that the two freshmen realized that they were to be hazed.

Hazing Reviewed.

They went with the hazers to the athletic field, where Wellons was made to mount the barrel and ordered to make a speech on "the whiteness of thus."

He insisted that he could not handle this subject, and was ordered to sing "How Green I Am." He knew the tune for this, he said, and sang. Then he was ordered to dance and did so. He was taken down and Rand was made to mount the barrel.

He was ordered to make a speech, and then to sing. He insisted that he could not sing and was directed to dance, which he began to do. Wellons was standing near the barrel and saw it rock and fall over without any one pushing it. Young Rand did not get up immediately and three of the hazers went to him and found that he was hurt.

Further examination showed that he was bleeding freely from the cut on the broken bottle. The party started with Rand toward the gymnasium building and carried him about 180 yards, when they found that his condition was desperate. They left Rand with Wellons, giving the latter the light and Wellons began calling for help, which soon came. Other details of the Wellons statement were very much as generally published heretofore.

Resolutions Adopted.

The report of President Venable also reviewed the giving of bonds by Merrimon, Hatch and Oldham and stated that a bond for young Styron, who is a ministerial student from Wilmington, was made up at Wilmington Sunday night and forwarded to Chapel Hill last night.

Acting on Dr. Venable's report, the executive committee adopted resolutions as follows:

"Resolved, That the executive committee of the board of trustees of the University, having received the official report—made by President Venable and which will be published—the death of Isaac William Rand, at the University on Friday morning, September 13, express its deep sympathy with the father and family of Isaac William Rand and over his untimely death. We deeply deplore, not only the death of the young man, but the manner of his taking off.

Expelled For Hazing.

Under a resolution of the board of trustees passed some years ago, any and all students engaged in hazing in any form, when convicted, shall be expelled. The council of the student body has and is co-operating with the president and faculty of the University in effort to suppress hazing, and all boys who have been detected in the past three years have been expelled. The students who engaged in the hazing that resulted in the death of young Rand have been committed to the Superior court of Orange county to answer to the charge of homicide.

"The solicitor of the district, Hon. S. M. Gattis, was present at the request of the president of the University, and conducted the examination of the witnesses on the part of the state at the coroner's inquest. The young men engaged in the hazing must answer to the laws of the state. It is gratifying to us to know that only four out of 800 students engaged in this hazing. And the awful results of the hazing of young Rand will, we believe, effectually end this brutal form of amusement and degeneration."

CITY BONDS SOLD.

Bought by the American Exchange National Bank of Greensboro.

The municipal bonds recently voted by Greensboro for city improvements were sold Monday to a local bank—the American Exchange making the highest bid of the nine banks and bonding houses which were among the competitors. The Home Savings Bank, another prosperous Greensboro institution, bid the next highest, showing the faith which Greensboro people have in the city's future and their interest in her progress.

The bid of the American Exchange National Bank was $82,252 for the entire issue of $80,000, while the Home Savings Bank made a bid of $10,385.50 for the issuance of $10,000 water and sewer bonds. The other eight bids were upon condition that they were given the entire issue and the offer of the American Exchange Bank being considerably above that of any other the bonds were ordered sold to that firm.

The bids filed were: American Exchange National Bank, Greensboro, N. C., for $80,000 of bonds, bid $82,252—successful bidder.

Wellroth & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, for $80,000 of bonds, bid $82,200.

Bolger, Moser & Williams, Chicago, Ill., for $80,000 of bonds, bid $81,610.

Rudolph Kleybolte Company, Inc., Cincinnati, O., for $80,000 of bonds, bid $81,328.

Home Savings Bank, Greensboro, N. C., for $10,000 of bonds, bid $10,358.50.

The Provident Savings Bank and Trust Company, Cincinnati, O., for $80,000 of bonds, bid $80,696.

The Baker, Watts & Co., et al., Baltimore, Md., for $80,000 of bonds, bid $81,676.80.

Stacy & Braun, Toledo, O., for $800,000 of bonds, bid $81,357.

Death of Mrs. A. W. Huntley.

Greensboro friends will regret to hear of the death of Mrs. A. W. Huntley, of Jonesboro, who died last Wednesday night at Central Carolina hospital, after a brief illness. The remains were taken to Oxford for interment, accompanied by a number of relatives and friends.

Deceased was a sister of Mr. A. B. Kimball, of Greensboro, and is survived by a husband and little son. She was prominent in the social life of both Sanford and Jonesboro, her friends being numbered by her acquaintances.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. Y. Joyner addressed a large gathering of Guilford farmers and educators at the annual Junior Order and school rally and picnic at Jamestown Saturday, the event being attended by hundreds. His address was of non-political nature, dealing principally with the advantages of an agricultural education.

BONDS CARRIED.

Proposed New Railroad For Greensboro Now Stands a Chance.

Morehead and Gilmer townships last Tuesday voted $200,000 bonds to be used for a new railroad for Greensboro. There are several ways by which the bonds could be used but it is assured that they will not be used unless the railroad is in actual operation—running cars within three years. The Greensboro Loan and Trust Company holds the bonds and unless the railroad comes the taxpayers will not be obliged to spend their money.

The idea is to get a connection with some trunk line—some line that will give Greensboro another railroad. The Southern Railway has long enjoyed a monopoly on the traffic from this city and into this city and those who ship goods and perhaps those who consume them are of opinion that another line of road would help out.

In this day and age the idea of paying railroads to come into good territory hardly obtains, but the citizens of Greensboro seemed to think that the only way we would secure a competing line was to pay for it. The chances are that the rates will be no lower—generally freight rates are about the same—but with another line the competition will naturally be developed and with two lines there will always be a desire on the part of each road to do the business. This means that the man shipping goods or receiving goods will be relieved of that peculiar feeling now experienced where there is a monopoly—he will feel that he isn't being pinched.

This is why the majority of the people of Greensboro, a majority of nearly a hundred of the registered voters expressed themselves in favor of a new railway. This is why The Patriot is glad the expression was so great. With another railroad Greensboro will not be handicapped in any way. If the rates are no lower the service will be better and the knucker, if any such a personage is in "our midst" will have nothing to do with his hammer at least along railway lines.

Greensboro is growing all the time, and there is no doubt of the old proposition that competition is the life of trade. Let this new railway come, and then let our people get behind the Coler project and give us the inter-urban. Then with two steam railways and a first class electrical line the old town will hum as never before. Get into the booster wagon—don't knock!

Fisher-McMillan.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized in Greensboro Wednesday, Rev. R. Murphy Williams officiating, when Miss May Fisher was united in marriage to Rev. James McMillan, of Kansas, where they will reside in future.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Fisher and has a large circle of friends in Guilford who regret that she goes to live in a distant state.

DR. W. L. GRISSOM DEAD.

Sudden Death of Dr. W. L. Grissom, Well Known Methodist Minister.

Just as The Patriot goes to press the community is shocked by the announcement of the death of Dr. W. L. Grissom, which occurred at his home on West Market street, about 3 o'clock this—Thursday—morning, the cause being heart failure.

Dr. Grissom was on the streets yesterday apparently in good health, although several times in the last year or two he has had attacks of heart disease. Dr. Grissom was one of the best known men in the Methodist church, and had hosts of friends throughout North Carolina. He was born in Montgomery county about sixty years ago, and joined the North Carolina Conference at Durham in 1881, and traveled as an itinerant Methodist until 1893, when he took a trip to the Holy Land—being gone some six months.

Upon his return from the Holy Land Dr. Grissom associated himself with F. L. Reid in the publication of the Raleigh Christian Advocate and continued as editor until 1894. Dr. Grissom was also presiding elder of the Morganton district, filling out an unexpired term.

In a "terry way Dr. Grissom made himself a name by writing a work called Methodism in North Carolina, one volume of which has been completed and printed, material for the other two volumes having been compiled before his death. Those who are competent judges say that this work is an excellent compilation of historic material of facts about Methodism in North Carolina, and the only regret concerning it is that Dr. Grissom did not live to see the three volumes come from the press. However, this history will live as a monument to his name.

Dr. Grissom is survived by a wife and three children—one son, Wyatt Grissom, and two daughters, Miss Bessie, who recently married Dr. Smith, of Richmond, and Miss Annie Lee Grissom. Besides these he has other relatives in the county and many friends who will be shocked to learn of his sudden taking off.

Fireman Eagle, of the Southern, sustained two broken ribs last week, when a freight train made a wild run down the Saluda mountain and ran over the end of safety track number two on that line. The engine was damaged considerably, although none of the members of the train crew except Mr. Eagle were hurt.

In the event of a recurrence of the act he would be fined $25. If he had not before learned the lesson he should now be convinced that honesty is the best policy.

DAY OF ATONEMENT.

Will be Observed by Those of the Hebrew Faith in Guilford.

People of Hebrew faith throughout the world will on next Friday evening and Saturday observe Yom Kippur, or the Day of Atonement, Rabbi Egleson, of the local synagogue, announcing service for Friday evening at 8 o'clock and for Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Yom Kippur, which is ushered in by the appearance of the first stars appearing in the heavens Friday evening, is to Jews the holiest day of the entire religious calendar. From that hour until the evening of the following day, September 21, the devout Israelite will give himself entirely to God, and to the purifying of his soul by repentance. It will be a day spent by him in meditation and prayer, with no thought of the world, its profits or pleasures.

The day is also known as the Great White East, when abstaining from all food from sundown to sundown, the people of Israel "afflict their souls" for the sins of the past year. The Hebrew date is the 10th of Tishri. The festival is ordained in Leviticus XVI 29-34 and XXIII 26-32. In both passages it is styled "A Sabbath of Solemn Rest."

The purpose of the Day of Atonement is clearly indicated by its name. It is intended to complete and crown the work of the penitential season, begun on the first of Tishri (New Year) by finally reconciling the soul with the Almighty. Implicitly trusting in the Divine forgiveness, the Israelite believes that his contrition, if it be really sincere, will atone for him, will make him "at one" once more with his Heavenly Father. The day, then, is devoted to a supreme effort of penitence, to a mighty endeavor after communion with the Almighty. It is spent in prayer and meditation.

It is kept, too, as a fast, in obedience to the command given in each of the two passages above cited where the expression "afflict his soul" must be understood, as it is throughout the Bible, as synonymous with fasting.

The chief, the real aim of the Day of Atonement is the reformed life. All the external elements of the day's observance—its worship and austerities—are intended to promote this supreme purpose. They cannot do duty for it. The act of fasting is partly to serve as a self imposed chastisement, and partly it has a reflex influence. For hunger and weakness tell upon the conscience; they mortify pride, break down obstinacy, cast men down before God in humility and contrition. But fasting does even more than that. Taking the worshiper away from such carnal occupations as eating and drinking, it helps to fix his thoughts upon the needs of the soul. It makes the day one of physical abstinence and self denial, but also of correspondingly increased spirituality.

Repels Attack of Death.

"Five years ago two doctors told me I had only two years to live." This startling statement was made by Stillman Green, Malachite, Col. "They told me I would die with consumption. It was up to me then to try the best lung medicine and I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery. It was well I did, for today I am working and believe I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure that has cheated the grave of another victim." Moore-Causey.

At the home of Rev. and Mrs. E. K. McLarty, and in the presence of a few intimate friends, Miss Neta Causey, of Greensboro, was married last Thursday to Mr. J. W. Moore, manager of the Greensboro Cotton Warehouse Company. Mr. Moore is a young man of sterling qualities and well-liked by a large circle of acquaintances in both town and country. Immediately following the ceremony the couple left for a honeymoon trip to eastern North Carolina.

A STATION MASTER.

Captain Horace Foushee is Chosen and Congratulations are in Order.

Greensboro is rejoicing over the fact that a station master is again to be in authority in and about the Southern Railway station—something that has long been needed and which will add greatly to the comfort and security of the traveling public. The order came from headquarters several days ago and will go into effect this week.

In the selection of Capt. Horace Foushee to fill this very important position a wise choice has been made, it being generally admitted that no man in Greensboro is better fitted for the place or will fill it more conscientiously and acceptably to all concerned.

This action on the part of the railway company is in compliance with a request from some of the more observant and progressive citizens, particularly the civic department of the Woman's Club, which has been working the past year hand in hand with the local railroad men in an effort to improve conditions about the depot. That these efforts on the part of the club women have been appreciated has been manifested in the friendly co-operation of those in authority and a growing sentiment for higher civic ideals.

In anticipation of the announcement the city commissioners some months ago passed stringent ordinances against drinking, loafing, etc., about the depot property. Under these ordinances Captain Foushee will have full power to break up all the objectionable practices which have heretofore been indulged in by the disreputable characters who have made the railway station a convenient loafing place, and that he will do his duty goes without saying. Having served before as station master he knows the game and is equipped in every way for the best service to the city, the railway company and to the traveling public.

Congratulations are in order, and look for order from this on around the Southern depot.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF FORM.

Matters of Interest to Readers of The Patriot Far and Near.

Miss Jennette Wetmore has gone to Washington, N. C., to visit friends.

Mr. Ned S. Parker, Jr., of Graham, was in Greensboro Tuesday to argue a case in chambers before Judge Whedbee.

Col. and Mrs. W. H. Osborne have returned home after a stay of several weeks at Mt. Airy White Sulphur Springs.

Miss Flora Cooper, a teacher in the schools at Washington, N. C., left last week to begin her school work Monday.

Mr. Ralph Odell, who is investigating cotton conditions abroad, is visiting his brother, Mr. Fred Odell, in Greensboro.

Mr. J. A. Troxler, of Brown Summit neighborhood, was among the pleasant callers at The Patriot headquarters Monday.

Among those whose faces we were glad to see last Monday were J. A. G. Shepherd, A. G. Apple and R. A. Apple, of Altamahaw.

Mr. W. R. Shepherd, on Liberty Route 2, was a caller last week and reported everything about so in his neighborhood.

Miss Mary Braswell, who has been visiting in the home of her aunt, Mrs. Andrew Joyner, has returned to her home at Whitakers.

President Harper, of Elon College, issues a circular letter in which he wants it distinctly understood that no hazing will be countenanced in his institution.

Miss Maude Hancock, who has been spending the past few weeks in Greensboro the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. I. Underwood, is visiting friends in Mt. Airy.

The time for the great Central Carolina fair grows nearer and every man who can come and bring "his folks" should do so. Secretary Daniels says this year it will be bigger than ever—and the Central Carolina holds first place in these parts.

L. F. Brunt, who while driving an unlicensed and unnumbered automobile Sunday run down and seriously injured three Assyrians, was found guilty and fined in the city court on warrants charging reckless driving and the running of an automobile without license.

Upon recommendation of Superintendent J. L. Mann, Homer Winecoff was elected by the city commissioners as teacher of Latin in the Greensboro high school at a salary of $70 a month. Mr. Winecoff fills the vacancy made by the resignation of Miss Eleanor Elliott.

Mayor Murphy has received from J. L. Ludlow, a Winston engineer, plans for the new septic tank which the city is to place on Muddy branch and which it is believed will have the effect of riding that section of the alleged nuisance caused by the emptying of sewer pipes.

Misses Katherine Tate, of High Point; Lettie Gwyn, of Mt. Airy; Mildred Wallace, of Morehead City, and Mrs. Frank Martin, of Winston-Salem, all members of the G. F. alumnae, who have been here for the opening of G. F. College, returned Tuesday to their respective homes.

Greensboro has had quite a time over the proposed railroad bonds—and of course those opposed to bonds think they are right as those who favored them believed they were right. Great old world, it would be, if we would all go together and agreed upon everything.

The Richmond boosters were given the glad hand by many of our people, and the ones who didn't want to receive them had a right to express themselves accordingly. As one man put it: "If Richmond wants to boost, let 'er boost—and if Greensboro doesn't want to help that is Greensboro's business."

Greensboro has been selected as the place for campaign headquarters by the Taft Republicans, which means that Attorney A. E. Holton, chairman of the campaign committee, State Chairman Morehead and Secretary Gilliam Grisson will spend the greater part of their time in the Gate City until after the election in November.

Greensboro's city commissioners have decided to pave Church street with "Warrenite" a light grade of bitulithic which will be put down by the same company that has been given the contract for the Davie street paving. The work on Church street is to be done at $1.70 a square yard, and, unless complaint is made by the property owners as to the material selected, will begin immediately after the completion of Davie street.

To Mothers—And Others.

You can use Bucklen's Arnica Salve to cure children of eczema, rashes, tetter, chafings, scaly and crusted humors, as well as their accidental injuries—cuts, burns, bruises, etc., with perfect safety. Nothing else heals so quickly. For boils, ulcers, old running or fever sores or piles it has no equal. 25 cents at Fariss-Klutz Drug Company.

LIBERAL OFFERS.

The Central Carolina Fair This Year Has New and Liberal Premiums.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found what Secretary Garland Daniels, of the Central Carolina fair, has to say about the premiums in gold offered for wheat and oats and rye—what he has in the children's department concerning vegetables, etc.

If you have not yet secured a premium list, secure one at once and make up your mind to not only enter an exhibit—but try to secure the premium.

The fair this year offers larger premiums than ever before; it has increased its scope and certainly has taken the farmer into consideration.

Get a premium list and see what is in store for you if you conclude to enter.

It may also be remarked that the free attractions this year will eclipse all others and from indications the Central Carolina Fair will be another record breaker.

Of course you are going to attend. The dates are October 8, 9, 10 and 11.

Died at Henderson.

News was received in Greensboro Sunday of the death of Mr. George L. Adams at his home in Henderson after a short illness. The deceased was a brother of Mr. W. M. Adams and Mrs. J. L. Brockmann, of this city; Mrs. J. L. Ledgerton, of High Point, and Mrs. W. H. Wakefield, of Charlotte.

Greensboro Man Hurt.

News from Carthage Sunday told of a very painful accident sustained by Mr. J. S. Moore, a Greensboro lumber dealer, when a Randolph and Cumberland railroad jumped the track at an open switch catching Mr. Moore's foot and seriously crushing it.

U. A. Smith, Bridgeton, Ind., had kidney trouble for years, and was so crippled with rheumatism he could not dress without help. He started using Foley Kidney Pills, and says: "I began to get better at once, and now all my trouble has left me and I do not feel that I ever had rheumatism. I rest well all night and though 59 years old, can now do the work of a man of 35 years. I would like to be the means of others getting benefit from Foley Kidney Pills." Refuse substitutes. Howard Gardner.

R. F. D. Carrier to Study Dentistry.

Mr. J. S. Deviney, the popular mail carrier on the Julian R. F. D. route, will give up his position October 1 to prepare himself for the practice of dentistry, a profession toward which his ambition has run for several years. He will be succeeded by Mr. R. L. Jones, the substitute carrier on the route, who will serve until an examination is held for a permanent appointment.

Mr. Deviney has been in the R. F. D. service about seven years and has made a record that stamps him as one of the best and most efficient men in this branch of Uncle Sam's employment. The patrons of the route will learn of his resignation with regret and their best wishes will follow him into his new vocation. The Patriot wishes for him the very best of good fortune.

Mr. Deviney will pursue his course of study in the dental department of the Baltimore Medical College.

A Summer Sale of Blankets

Commencing Thursday, Sept. 5

300 pairs North Carolina Wool Blankets on which the savings are 1-4 to 1-3 winter prices

Our only reason for exploiting a sale of Blankets right now in the heat of summer is based on the actual service we can do our customers.

When we say that this sale brings savings of one-fourth and one-third regular winter prices we speak advisedly. We are putting in print, that all may read, what you will find in reality when you visit the Blanket Department.

And in this day and time when household necessities are offered at such savings thrifty housekeepers are not slow in following up the opportunity. The sale covers the Blanket question in a broad, wholesome fashion. It offers Blankets in practically every size and in all good qualities. The prices are small because there are a number of Blankets that come to us as mill accumulations, some are slightly imperfect. There are still other Blankets that have become soiled to the extent that we could not offer them as strictly fresh. These have been subjected to the greatest reductions of all.

From our viewpoint a very happy combinations of conditions has made the price. Think now of your next winter needs, and when Blanket time comes you will appreciate the opportunity that this store now offers. On sale Thursday morning, Sept. 5th, when the doors opens.

NEWS OF THE OLD NORTH STATE

A Survey of What is Transpiring in the Commonwealth.

Eighteen men and women were arrested in Raleigh one day last week charged with retailing.

Seven prominent citizens of Durham, names not given, were caught playing poker Tuesday night and haled to the recorder's court, where they were fined $25 each.

Her plan to wed her 16-year-old sweetheart having been frustrated, 14-year-old Carrie Scott, of Kinston, attempted suicide by taking carbolic acid. The doctors managed to save her life.

Rev. W. D. Moss, for seven years pastor of a Presbyterian church in Washington, is to become pastor of the Presbyterian church at Chapel Hill, which he served before going to Washington.

A young man representing himself as W. Frank Whitaker, son of a prominent merchant of Charlotte, has been arrested in Atlanta charged with stealing $4,000 in money and jewelry from a wealthy woman in Norfolk, Va.

The test farm committee of the state board of agriculture has returned to Raleigh from a trip to the eastern part of the state for the purpose of locating a black land test farm. The committee will decide upon the location of a test farm in the bright tobacco belt.

Mr. Whitehead Klutz, of Salisbury, has closed an agreement with the national Democratic committee to make several speeches in the Northern states, mostly in New Jersey. He will make the first speech in Atlantic City. He goes on this speaking tour the first two weeks of October.

Hon. Locke Craig, the Democratic nominee for governor, has accepted the invitation of the United Commercial Travelers of America to deliver a public address in Asheville on the night of October 10. The Western North Carolina fair will be in progress at the time and the occasion will be notable.

Mrs. James C. MacRae, widow of Judge James C. MacRae, late dean of the University law school, died suddenly of apoplexy at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. J. Lilly, in Fayetteville Saturday. Mrs. MacRae had been ill for three weeks with malaria fever but her condition was not considered alarming. Her death came unexpectedly.

Owing to the unavoidable absence from the state of Dr. Joseph Hyde Pratt, state geologist, the inspection tour of the central highway which was to have begun Monday has been postponed. President Varner has reports showing that parts of the highway are yet a long ways from being completed and that is another reason for delaying the tour.

Dr. E. Varner, president of the Central Highway Association, has appointed the following gentlemen to represent the association at the First American Road Congress at Atlantic City, September 30 to October 5: E. C. Chambers, of Asheville; H. P. Benton, of Mooresville; R. M. Phillips, of Greensboro; F. H. Flier, of Thomasville, and G. D. Canfield, of Morehead City.

The Durham Herald says: Mr. W. F. Streater, of the North Carolina Children's Home Society, spent yesterday in the city in the interest of the society. With him was Mr. Brewer, of the firm of architects, Brewer & Geary, Greensboro, who drew the plans for Joyland, the home of the society, which is to be built for the home on the hill in front of the home of Mr. O. K. Froctor, on the Mineral Springs road.

ANOTHER ENEMY.

Always Something to Keep the Farmer Hus'ling.

A Kinston, N. C., dispatch says: A queer pest, operating in exactly the same fashion as the boll weevil, which has devastated thousands of acres of cotton in the South, has made its appearance in the counties of here, and is causing much concern to the farmers. The new destroyer does not precisely fit the description of the boll weevil, but goes about its work in a similar manner. The small worm enters a boll, making a hole about the size of a pin point, and shortly after the rupture is noticed the boll begins to swell and drops to the ground. A blossom which is just putting out a boll is effected in the same way, and quickly drops. The scourge seems to be covering all the counties of the coastal plain.

The Western Way.

A Larnel, Kan., dispatch says: Horse whips and clubs are women's weapons, the members of the Women's Anti-Gambling Association of Larnel threatened to use upon the city's gamblers if they do not leave the home-loving husbands of their town alone. After futile efforts by the police to rid the town of gamblers, the women met today and issued an ultimatum that they intended to take the law into their own hands.

TO EUROPE IN A DAY.

French Aviator Figures on such a Possibility.

New York, Sept. 14.—Jules Vedrines, the French aviator, who won the James Gordon Bennett Aviation Cup at Chicago, recently, making a record of 105 miles an hour over the course, sailed yesterday for Havre on the French liner France with his trophy. Before sailing he said that the speed limit for aeroplanes had not nearly been reached, and that he had a machine which could travel 125 miles an hour.

When asked as to the possibilities of crossing the Atlantic in an aeroplane Vedrines said: "Within a year we will have machines that will fly 200 miles an hour which will enable aviators to cross the Atlantic from Cape Ushant to New York between dawn and twilight of one day in the summer. I am confident that this can be done and that in the near future there will be regular express aeroplane trips from New York to Paris during the summer. Of course, it would be a much longer journey in the winter, as the aviators would have to steer a long way south to avoid the storms and the severe cold weather which prevails at that season of the year."

READY FOR WHEAT.

The Greensboro Roller Mills Again Ready For Business and Wheat.

The Greensboro Roller Mills have been transformed. Mr. W. A. Watson, the live wire of that successful milling company has just completed a dream which he has had a long time. He has finished another new brick building 36x78 feet five story high and installed in it the most complete lot of milling machinery ever set up in North Carolina and the wheels were started Monday. The new engine room made of concrete and brick houses a $10,000 plant by itself—the power being made from gas generated in the engine room.

But what we want to say is that Mr. Watson is now ready to buy the wheat of the Guilford county farmer or grind the wheat to make his flour. And in passing it might be said that when Mr. Watson started his roller mills in Greensboro away back in 1893 he was unable to buy as much as five hundred bushels of wheat from Guilford farmers, while last year he bought 50,000 bushels—and naturally he proudly claims he was largely instrumental in creating the demand for wheat here, thus assuring the farmer a cash market, and naturally more wheat was grown.

Mr. Watson extends to every farmer a cordial invitation to call and see his new machinery; examine his power plant and see what rapid and wonderful strides have been made in milling machinery during the last few years.

And of course every farmer who buys flour should see that it is made in his home county—the brands made by the Greensboro Roller Mills being: Purity; Star—Fancy Straight; Plymouth Rock; L. X. L. and Old North State. Any one of these popular brands will give satisfaction and the guarantee of a responsible milling company is back of each sale.

A SENSIBLE MOTHER.

What a Rich Woman Considers a Well Educated Girl.

Believing that no young woman, however rich, should be reared in ignorance of the fundamental principles of housekeeping, says a New York society item, Mrs. Elmer Black, president of the Woman's Progressive Economic League, who sailed for London on the Lusitania, is taking her daughter, Dorothy, to place her in an English school, which will give her such an education as well as training in social requirements. Miss Dorothy is sole heir to her mother's large fortune. According to Mrs. Black, the American girl, unlike her English sisters, from nobility to peasant class, is not trained for a domestic life. Mrs. Black says she considers her daughter's education only half a one if she did not learn to market, cook and take care of a home.

A Plain Man's Logic.

Baltimore Sun.

Ten years ago this country's exports of manufactured articles did not amount to half a billion of dollars.

In the fiscal year just ended they amounted to more than a billion. If our manufacturers can so successfully compete with their rivals abroad, why do they have to be protected by high tariff duties against competition at home?

Antoine Deloria, postmaster at Garden, Mich., knows the exact facts when he speaks of the curative value of Foley Kidney Pills. He says: "From my own experience I recommend Foley Kidney Pills, as a great remedy for kidney trouble. My father was cured of kidney disease and a good many of my neighbors were cured by Foley Kidney Pills. Howard Gardner."

HOW ABOUT THE SCHOOLBOY?

Don't Let Him Start to School Physically Impaired.

"One of North Carolina's crying needs today is the medical inspection of schools and school children," said a prominent health authority recently. "Why?" he was asked. "Because it is a wanton waste of time, energy and money for parents and the state to endeavor to educate children when they have to dig their education out while laboring under a lot of physical defects or handicaps. Did you know," he added, "that taken the state over about 22 per cent. of the school children have defective eyes, over 50 per cent. have defective teeth, 10 per cent. have diseased tonsils, and from 30 to 40 per cent. have hookworm disease, to say nothing of those having defective hearing, bad nutrition, skin diseases, lung diseases, etc? Furthermore, it is a crime against the innocents to send them to school to study under such handicaps."

Further inquiry brought out the following facts: Not one fond parent in a dozen realizes that there is anything wrong with his child. This is because many of these minor physical ailments have come upon the children so gradually that they are unnoticed by parent and child alike. Frequently one child will be found having several easily remedied defects. Many of these apparently minor ailments become serious defects or handicaps on the pupil's physical and mental ability if let go unheeded. Removing adenoids, fitting glasses to the eyes, treating hookworm disease, etc., frequently makes dull, backward children the brightest in the class. When such handicaps are removed children frequently advance in three years as far as they formerly advanced in four or five. Very few parents will permit such handicaps on their children when they once learn that they exist.

What is the Remedy?

The ideal remedy would be the medical inspection of every school child in the state at least once a year. The medical inspector and teacher to notify the parents of any defects found. The parents will then, in most cases, have these defects remedied at once, and the child will be restored to his normal vitality and given an equal chance.

But not all of our school and health authorities are fully awakened to the importance of medical inspection of school children. Many of those that do appreciate its importance are not backed by public opinion. In a number of places in the state they already have medical inspection, and this number is rapidly increasing every year.

In the meantime, the best that most parents can do is to take their boys and girls to their family physician, with the request that he examine them carefully for defective teeth, eyes and ears, as well as for tonsils, hookworms and all other physical defects. When such defects are found, they should of course be remedied at once.

Conscientious teachers will keep a close watch on their pupils, particularly upon entering school. When they find one that breathes largely through the mouth, that admits snoring, gives evidence of post nasal catarrh or recurring ear trouble, they should suspect adenoids, and parents should be urged to consult a specialist.

Enlarged tonsils should be suspected where there are frequent attacks of tonsillitis, enlargement of the glands in the neck, and deafness. Suggest to the parents in a tactful manner that the family physician examine the child's tonsils.

Quacks thrive upon the ignorance and gullibility of the people. The only remedy for quackery lies in the education of the people in those medical facts and theories which will lead them to see that there is a scientific foundation for rational medical practice.

A pain in the back seldom indicates disease of the kidneys, as most people suppose. Don't let quacks impose on you with all kinds of kidney remedies and patent medicines. If you are really sick see a doctor.

Every individual should consider the hour for meals a sacred one, not to be intruded upon under any ordinary circumstances. The habit of regularity in eating should be cultivated early in life.

Japanese General and His Wife Pay Tribute to the Dead.

Tokio, Sept. 13.—General Count Maresuke Nogi, supreme military councillor of the empire, and his wife, the Countess Nogi, committed suicide tonight in accordance with the ancient Japanese custom as a final tribute to their departed emperor and friend, Mutsuhito.

The death by their own hands of the famous general and his wife was as dramatic as it was sad. The general cut his throat with a short sword and the countess committed hari-kari.

Following the Samurai custom the couple had carefully prepared their plans for killing themselves and timed them so that they would be coincident with the departure forever from Tokio of the dead emperor.

General Count Nogi was a national hero in Japan. It was he who captured Port Arthur from the Russians in 1904, and assured the success of his country in the battle of Mukden. The count was born at Hagi in the province of Choshu in 1849 and was the eldest son of Marotsugu Nogi, a Samurai of the Choshu clan.

During the Saigo rebellion Nogi fought bravely at the battles of Yamaguchi and Tawarazaka and was wounded and after the rebellion was suppressed he was made a lieutenant colonel. He commanded the first brigade of infantry in the Chica-Japanese war and captured Port Arthur in one day. On the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war in 1904 General Nogi was appointed commander of the third army.

His forces took 230 metre hill after terrible slaughter and also destroyed the Russian squadron in the port. General Nogi personally received General Stoessel's proposal to surrender Port Arthur.

The Countess Nogi was a daughter of Yuchi Sadayuki, a Samurai of Kagoshima clan.

It's an excellent remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion, builds up the strength. WILL BENEFIT THE FARMER.

Electricity Will Run the Farm Machinery as Well as the Factory.

Says an Atlanta boomer: Farm life in the Southern states is going to be revolutionized within the next few years by the power of electricity, according to leading agriculturists who are watching the development and spread of power company lines.

The great development at Tallulah Falls, with the construction of tower lines intersecting the country in many directions and reaching towns and hamlets, is going to bring power to the door of the small town and farm purchaser, for the first time in history putting him on the same basis as the city man. Within a few years, it is predicted, the prosperous Southern farmer will have his heating, lighting and even cooking done by electricity; the washing machine and farm machinery will be operated by the same power; the doors and windows of the farmhouse and barns will lock through the same agency; electric incubators will help hatch the chickens; in fact, all the comforts and conveniences of city life will be transplanted by wire into the farmer's own front yard.

SIDNA ALLEN CAUGHT.

A Love Affair Leads to the Arrest of the Carroll County Outlaws.

A Des Moines dispatch under date of September 14, says: Sidna Allen, leader of the Allen clan which shot up the Carroll county court house at Hillsville, Va., March 14, killing Judge Massie and others, and his nephew, Wesley Edwards, tonight are manacled in cells at the city jail as a result of love affairs which led detectives to them. Both have announced their willingness to return to Virginia without requisition.

Edwards, for the love of whom Miss Maude Iroler, of Mt. Airy, N. C., had innocently led detectives to Des Moines was captured tonight as he was returning to his boarding house, after having worked all day with a paving gang. Just as he boarded a street car, detectives and officers surrounded it. Edwards was trying to escape by crawling through the front end of the car, when officers caught him. The arrest of Sidna Allen was effected earlier in the day.

Sidna Allen, in his cell tonight, talked freely of the events of the last few months, but declined to say much concerning his movements immediately after the court house tragedy. He and Edwards remained in the mountain country of Virginia and North Carolina for about a month and then got over into Kentucky, going to Louisville, where they spent several days. Their next stop was in St. Louis, where they remained a week. They had sufficient money for their needs and traveled as first class passengers.

"I was writing when the detectives came today. I heard that Wesley and his girl were to be married and that she was coming here. If he hadn't been a blamed fool and gone back to Virginia and dropped that letter, we wouldn't be in this fix tonight. I don't blame the girl. I don't know her, but her mother Mrs. Frank Iroler was once my sweet-heart."

$80,000,000 Lost Annually by Wage Earners.

Dr. Sadler estimates that about $80,000,000 in wages is lost annually to the American people as a direct result of colds. Lost time means lost wages and doctoring is expensive. Use Foley's Honey and Tar Compound promptly. It will stop the cough, and heal and soothe the sore and inflamed air passages. Howard Gardner.

For Judge Clark.

To the Editor of The Patriot:

After Bryan's open denunciation of Simmons, the only logical course for the Democrats who have followed the leadership of Bryan in all his fight for the people, is to turn to the candidate who has three times been mentioned by Bryan as eminently qualified for the Democratic nomination for president of the United States—Judge Walter Clark, who is being supported by Cy Watson, Editor Hale, of the Fayetteville Observer, Judge T. A. Jones, of Asheville, Judge R. W. Winston, of Raleigh, former law partner of Aycock, the Hickory Democrat, and other Democratic leaders and newspapers.

Eighty-three per cent. of the Democratic voters of the state are farmers, and it is to these men that Judge Clark looks for support, and they are coming to him, and they have the power if they will use it, in spite of the bosses and few politicians who think they can "hand over a county tied hard and fast" to Simmons.

I want everyone in Guilford county who is interested in this, to send me their names at once, so that some interesting literature can be sent to them; the address of Cy Watson, the complete speech of Judge Clark, and a little circular entitled "The Special Interests and the Senatorial Campaign."

If you are friendly to Judge Clark's candidacy, please advise me at once, so the county can be organized for the primary on election day. There must be one Clark poll-holder at each precinct, and I will be glad for you to recommend at once someone for the place for your precinct, sending the names direct to me, or to J. W. Nicholson, Greensboro, September 16, 1912.

BRUCE CRAVEN.

The Simmons-Kitchin campaign gets warmer as the weather grows cooler. It is a matter of regret that personalities must be indulged in, but as that seems to be the program there is nothing else to do but yell for your man and see that he gets all that is due him.

Mrs. J. N. Hill, Homer, Ga., has used Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for years, and says she always recommends it to her friends. "It never fails to cure our coughs and colds and prevents croup. We have five children and always give them Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for a cold, and they are all soon well. We would not be without it in our house." Howard Gardner.

Some women complain that they periodically suffer from dull and heavy feelings, or dizziness in the head, nervousness, pain and bearing-down feelings which should not occur at some time in her life, due to abnormal conditions in life, such as corsets, over-taxed strength, bad air, poor or improper food, wet feet, sluggish liver, etc. A regulator and female tonic made from native medicinal roots with pure glycerin, and without the use of alcohol, called has proven its value in thousands of cases, like the following:

MRS. DORA M. MARTIN, of Auburn, Nehr., Route 1, Box 84, says: "I thought I would write you in regard to what your medicines have done for me. I have used them for thirty years for female trouble and general weakness with the very best result, and they have saved me hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills. I buy the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and take them together. I never was disappointed in your remedies and take pleasure in recommending them to any suffering lady. I am now almost fifty years old; at forty-five I took your medicines, both kinds, and I passed that period very easily and left me fat and healthy. I feel like a young girl. If any lady cares to write me, I will gladly tell her more about the good work of your medicines."

HAZING SHOULD BE STOPPED.

The State University must bear the blame for an inexcusable death of a student last week. The circumstances were peculiar—would not occur again in perhaps a hundred years—but that they brought about the death of a young man who was overpowered and made do the bidding of a few young fools remains the same. A few students, it is reported, took a young man and made him dance on the head of a barrel for their amusement—thinking, because they were greater in numbers and could compel him to comply with their wishes, they were doing something exceptionally funny.

The barrel turned over and the intimidated student fell on a piece of glass, cutting his jugular vein, and bled to death. That is the story as related in the newspapers, and perhaps the story as it will be related in the courts when those guilty of the murder are tried.

Of course it has been the custom to engage in this sort of foolishness. The many cases of hazing reported from time to time have made us all familiar with the tactics. We recall the students at West Point who were forced to eat prunes until they died. We have all read of inhuman treatment called hazing, and many institutions of learning have stamped out the evil. Perhaps it is not allowed at the University. But it seems to have been indulged in and an innocent young man paid the penalty with his life.

It is not harsh to say that those who caused his death should be punished to the limit of the law. There is no excuse, no palliating circumstance. Because it has been a custom or a habit to drill the young student should make no difference. Whether such a death could by any reasoning be called "accidental" is hardly possible. Let the authorities see to it that those who caused this inexcusable death receive their just deserts. And then it is safe to guess that there will be no more hazing.

BUT WHOSE FAULT?

Governor Wilson says that a handful of people rule the United States. That is true and will always remain true until each individual learns the lesson that he is an important factor. The average individual, no matter about his politics or about his personal preference is willing to let the "other fellow" do things. It is so in all churches, in all organizations, in all parties. If every man would understand that he is essential; that if he has but a dollar in the world his vote amounts to as much as the vote of a millionaire; get out election day and work; get out every day and assert his authority—then it would be different. But the indifferent man; the don't-care man; the lazy man and the man too busy shifts it all on a few and naturally the few handle things.

And the remedy—well, there is no remedy because the indifferent people have always been in the majority.

The Mexican situation remains about the same. Intervention on the part of the United States will eventually be necessary to take the impudence out of those who rebel and who want to interfere with the general movement. They may be right—but when a revolution is on innocent people suffer—and as Uncle Sam has many nephews in that country he will be obliged to send the soldiers there and take charge.

Senator Simmons says that the fight is between Teddy and Wilson—so the Democrat knows what to do.

THE BLOOD RED.

Governor Wilson in a talk on tariff on the meat said the other day that it was meat that made the blood red and made work easier. Of course the Democratic candidate for president was speaking in general terms. But if he thinks that some of the beef that is now and then offered to the man who chews and the man who toils makes work easier—then we suggest that the gentleman is mistaken. Take some of the beef that has been offered in this town and it would make a laboring man weary unto death to attempt to masticate it. Car springs, rubber shoes, tin cans were much easier masticated than some of this Armour plate beef that we have seen; that we have chewed and finally attempted to digest. Fresh beef, corn fed beef—tender beef, properly cooked and properly served is pretty good for the inner. But to go to a boarding house and have a piece of India rubber beef about a third of an inch thick cooked to a crisp—without flavor; with no more resiliency than is found in a granite slab served to you while you hunger—it takes work, man work, and hard work to get away with it.

But perhaps if the tariff were taken off; perhaps if beef could be sold cheaper, then the fastidious and discriminating beef eater could afford, without mortgaging his home, to buy a choice steak and have it cooked and increase the red blood which Wilson talked about. If that glad day could come, then we will exclaim to the tariff and the tariff makers: Avant!

BRYAN ON THE TRAIL.

Bryan rings like his old self. Like a battle horse he smells the battle from afar—he wires the national committee that at his own expense he proposes to strike the trail of Roosevelt and speak wherever the Bull Moose has spoken. He sees that it is necessary to inform the people—and as a patriot, he goes down into his own pocket and digs up the coin and starts on the trail. That is commendable. That is party patriotism—and no one can accuse Bryan of sulking in his tent. He is a warrior this time—and ready for the fray.

And The Patriot offers to suggest that by the time Bryan has analyzed the impossible platform of Roosevelt; after he has shown that Roosevelt in making his present performances as a trust buster and friend of the people, his two largest contributors—$15,000 each—were two of the biggest trust magnates in America—Perkins and Munsey—thoughtful voters will open their eyes and see how like the old, old story of

"Will you walk into my parlor
Said the spider to the fly"

It is, and the chances are that the people will swat Roosevelt in the fall even as they swatted flies in the summer.

The great tidal wave—the popular enthusiasm which Roosevelt seems to be enjoying cannot stand the light of reason. He is a pretender; he is simply ambitious to be a king and he is fooling his followers. Bryan is the one man in America who can pull off the mask, and we are certainly glad he has camped on the trail of the Bull Moose.

The Rambler in the Charlotte Chronicle, referring to his recent visit to the Queen City, has this to say of United States Senator F. M. Simmons: "Senator Simmons convinced that audience last night of the fact that he is bigger than a single one of his traducers and in reality bigger than all of them put together. Brave and true, clean and pure, honest and earnest, Furnifold McLendon Simmons is neither a tool of others nor a weakling to be led by popular outcry. His record proves his devotion to the Democratic party and his service shows his love for North Carolina. Those who bitterly fought Locke Craig in 1908 because of petty ambition are likewise opposing F. M. Simmons.

Of course it goes without saying that Major Stedman will be returned to Congress, but the idea should be to see that his majority is larger than it was last time.

Senator Simmons opened his campaign in Charlotte and the papers there said the people who turned out to hear him could not be accommodated with even standing room. It was a Simmons audience, we take it, from the applause accorded him. He made a great speech and assured his hearers that if he were not made the minority leader again, if elected, he would resign within twenty-four hours. This brought down the house, so to speak. The statement was made to show that he had not been set up as a tin soldier to deceive the people in his home state.

It is gratifying to know that the railroad men who have recently made demands for material increase in wages have decided to arbitrate the matter. Arbitration is always better—especially where the general welfare of the entire country is involved. Individuals may have their differences and fight it out, but to tie up commerce is another thing.

And now they are going to change the currency laws. Just what change will happen we are not advised. But if it is a change that will bring us more money and cost no more than we now pay—of course all of us will gladly welcome the change. But it has been our experience that sweat and not laws makes the money.

One enthusiastic Democrat gave a fine Jersey cow to the Wilson fund. That was entirely out of place. The cow should have been given to the Roosevelt managers, for, indeed hasn't Teddy explained that he drank only milk—about as much as Dr. Lyman Abbott drinks? Then why not a cow in the campaign equipment?

The Southern Railway ran an excursion to Tampa, Florida, this week. The rate was low and people who get cold feet in the winter wonder why there is not such a rate on—say in January. To take a pleasure trip to Florida in September would be like going to Alaska in the winter.

The Richmond boosters didn't exactly understand why it was that they were denied the strong right hand of friendship from Greensboro. But the reason was that John Barleycorn had one time accompanied them and Greensboro merchants wanted no more of that.

Taft is being played up as the third man in the campaign, and Democrats are going after Teddy. Teddy is cutting quite a swath just now—but Democrats are going to remain steadfast and give Wilson the biggest majority any president has ever had.

The University of North Carolina begins its 118th year. Think of the honorable years of its life, and the honorable citizens graduated in that institution of learning. And as the right man in the right place, Dr. Venable as president, is the right man.

Judge Baldwin, of Connecticut, who refused to sit at the banquet with Roosevelt has been nominated for governor the second time. The judge will doubtless be elected as the nutmeg state isn't in a frame of mind to accept the Republican party or any of its offspring.

Of course it is a matter of regret that the Simmons-Kitchen people have grown personal and bitter in the senatorial campaign. Both gentlemen are Democrats—and that a family row over the spoils should commence so early is a matter of sincere regret.

The good roads boosters are everywhere in evidence and the good roads in Guilford are rapidly going to pieces. Something must be done and done quickly. If the winter rains get after our road system it will be its finish.

The trouble might be with Democracy that it will be too certain of success and allow a scant vote to defeat its candidate. Better make up your mind to vote and to vote straight, no matter how good it looks.

Up to the hour of going to press Iredell Meares is still the Bull Moose candidate for governor in this state. He may, however, like Walser and Thompson, reconsider and take to the tall timber.

Locke Craig still talks about the biggest majority the Democratic party ever received, but he might as well also understand that the Bull Moose is loose in the land, and tell the boys to rally.

The good roads building boom is universal—and while it is a good thing, it is feared that many other good things, and some more essential to our happiness, are being overlooked.

Roosevelt followers dream that they can break the Solid South—but Democracy is not going to let anything like that happen.

Two students from Richmond, Va., arrived Saturday to enter school. They are still registering from various sections.

There will be a union revival, meeting here beginning on the night of the fifth Sunday in this month. The first service will be held in the chapel. The day services thereafter will be held in the various churches. Our people will welcome this plan, and the outlook is for a fine meeting.

The lecture on Sunday evening was upon the subject, "The Heroes of History."

The sermon of Rev. J. D. Andrew last Sunday is still being spoken of most favorably. It was an unusually excellent sermon on the subject of "Proper Education."

The Y. M. C. A. this year has opened with a fine membership, and the meetings are well attended.

New drums have been ordered to take the place of those destroyed in the fire of June 21.

Family Reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Shaw entertained last week at their home near the city at a family reunion of the descendants of the Cromer family, which came to North Carolina and Pennsylvania from England sixty-eight years ago.

The event was in honor of Samuel and Daniel Cromer, grandsons of the elder Cromer's, who have been on a visit to relatives in this county. A feature of the occasion was a splendid picnic dinner served under the shade of mammoth oaks in the Shaw yard and a talk by Rev. Mr. Cox, of Mt. Hope church. A photograph of the entire group seated at dinner was taken.

MRS. F. M. WATSON DEAD.

A Well-Known Guilford Woman Answers the Summons.

Guilford county mourns the loss of a good and much beloved woman in the passing of Mrs. Mary Watson, whose death occurred on Wednesday of last week at her home on Ashboro street, Greensboro. A long illness, following a severe attack of pneumonia, was borne with Christian fortitude, and when the final summons came she was ready for the roll call.

Early in life deceased joined the Tabernacle church near Greensboro, later removing her membership to Pleasant Garden, where she labored unceasingly for the upbuilding of that church, being one of its most active and loyal supporters. She was about sixty years of age and is survived by three sons: Messrs. Jules, Wallace and Robert Watson, all of Greensboro, and a number of relatives in the county and state.

The funeral, conducted by Rev. C. E. Hodgins, of the Westminster Presbyterian church, was attended by a large number of sorrowing friends, and the interment was made at Pleasant Garden Thursday, near her old home.

SHOT HIS SON.

A Shooting Affair Near Kernersville Lacks Explanation.

News comes from Kernersville of a shooting affair which appears to have been without provocation. It seems that J. H. Smith, a prosperous farmer living about three miles from Kernersville, near Beason's store, had been drinking heavily and while in an intoxicated condition went home and shot his son Carl with a double-barrel shot gun. The shot took effect in the groin and hand of the young man, inflicting dangerous and painful wounds.

After the shooting Smith went to a neighbor's and requested that he return with him to his home, explaining that he had shot one of his boys. Smith is the father of a large family and no cause is assigned for his unnatural behavior toward his son.

Major Stedman at Gibsonville.

Major Stedman, the next Congressman from this district, as he is already the present congressman, opened his campaign at Gibsonville since our last issue. The major, will of course, be elected by a handsome majority. His record so far in Congress has been satisfactory to all his constituents, and by the time he has served another two years naturally he will be better fitted for the position. The longer a man remains in Congress the better he fills the place. But Major Stedman is a man who naturally fits in such a place, and then his ripe experience and exceptional ability puts him at once at home as a national law-maker. During his brief stay in Washington the major has made scores of friends and incidentally added to his wide reputation as a man of affairs. See to it that you vote for the major and make his majority as large as possible.

Some one who has had experience with fleas recommends sprinkling oil of pennyroyal on the floors of house and barn and in the sheds.

What has become of the box elder bug that was so much of a nuisance ten or a dozen years ago? Somehow it has not seemed much in evidence lately.

Often the tender spots or bunches on the horse's shoulder made by ill fitting collars may be reduced or entirely removed by painting them daily with tincture of iodine.

The food chemists of the Oregon Agricultural college have figured it out that a slice of ordinary plain cake contains as much in way of food elements as a pint and a half of milk.

The word alfalfa comes from the Arabs and means "the best fodder." This designation seems to be borne out today by practically all farm animals and poultry that have access to it.

Draft horses are in greater demand than light weights; but, for all that, most men prefer the roadsters in the hope, doubtless, that they may haply find a jewel of a trotter among their colts.

There is near Hempstead, a suburb of Houston, a watermelon patch said to contain 6,000 acres, and it is nothing uncommon for the patches to produce melons weighing from forty to sixty pounds.

The largest and finest strawberries the writer saw this season were from a four-year-old bed, from which all weeds were carefully pulled last summer and a good many of the old roots removed.

A new record for size of egg is said to have been made by a White Leghorn hen in New Jersey, its respective measurements being 9.5 and 7.5 inches. The egg was soft shelled and has been put in alcohol for exhibition.

Farmers blame the predatory dogs for the decline of the sheep industry in many sections. A single night's raid may destroy the profits of an entire season. And of what use are the predatory dogs that they should be feared?

The favorite as well as the most common breeding place for flies is the pile of horse manure out back of the barn. If it is not possible to screen this, a simple method of preventing the flies from getting to it is by covering it with straw or old hay.

An interesting fact in connection with turkeys is that the hen, when ranging with her poults, seldom roosts in the same place twice. A distinct advantage of this is that her flock is less subject to the ill likely to result from occupying foul quarters.

Land in some sections of New York state is said to have doubled in value since the introduction of alfalfa growing. This is simply a working out of the law of cause and effect. Any crop that will double or triple the crop value of land is bound to make it advance in price.

Experiments in the feeding of beef tops, as conducted by California dairymen, indicate that when used fresh as a part of the ration they tend to produce butter that is firm and of excellent market quality. The tops form a succulent ration and one that is much relished by the cows.

A lady friend in picking some Columbia raspberries the other day broke off one of the large and quite brittle stems which contained several dozen immature berries. She took this and set it in a vessel of water, and the berries are growing and ripening as if under normal conditions.

Fire killed timber, large quantities of which have been available in western states in recent years as a result of disastrous forest fires, has been found especially suited to the making of apple boxes, for the reason that it is practically odorless, and it is useful also for telephone poles and railway ties.

At a recent gathering of an organization known as the Native Sons of Minnesota a tablet was erected to the memory of Peter Gideon, the originator of the Wealthy apple, a variety which for its season is not surpassed in either richness or flavor by any produced in America. The memorial tablet was placed on the old Gideon farm in Minnesota, and the occasion was honored by the presence of noted horticulturists, who spoke appreciation for the service he had rendered to horticulture.

There are 29,566,000 miles of telephone wire in the world, and nearly two-thirds of this is found in the United States, and a good share of this latter amount has been strung to enable farm folks to visit with each other and get in direct touch with the outside world.

A review of automobile accidents as reported over the country seems to show that there are still plenty of fool chauffeurs who think it good sport to try to beat fast trains to a railroad crossing, with the usual result that the scrap iron collectors and undertakers both get a job.

A woman, aged fifty years, living at Grand Rapids, Mich., graduated from the local high school the other day. This should serve to spur on a certain class of boys and girls who consider themselves hopelessly outclassed if they happen to get a year or two behind their grade.

Figures compiled by the department of agriculture at Washington show that the farmers of the country were receiving 17.5 per cent more for their produce on July 1 of this year than they were a year ago. The increase noted is based on the prices prevailing on some 80 per cent of farm products.

One of the loveliest floral sights that the writer has had a glimpse of this season was a crimson rambler that was weighted down with numerous sprays of wonderfully perfect blossoms, some of which contained as high as forty and fifty individual blossoms. The flowers were picked by the bushel basketful and brought cheer to the bedside of many a sick person to whom they were carried.

The time is at hand for the sowing of the turnip seed for the fall crop. In the average small garden there is usually some space that has produced a crop that might just as well be growing turnips during the fall as weeds or nothing at all. The ground should be put in good condition and the seed sown rather sparingly, as it will produce many more plants than one realizes at the time of sowing.

Wyoming is one mountain state that has suffered a good deal in a business way for months past as a result of heavy cattle losses due to severe snowstorms last winter. One rancher at Douglas, Wyo., reports as high as 60 per cent of the cattle and sheep of that section lost as a result of the storms. In their efforts to save their flocks many inexperienced ranchmen and several old timers lost their lives.

The luxuriance of the bed of flowering plants is likely to depend quite largely upon the amount of water it receives. This is true with respect to the smaller flowering plants and especially of the larger, such as the aster, salvia and dahila. Water is needed at frequent intervals during the growth of the plant and particularly at blossom time, when the vitality of the whole plant is taxed to the utmost.

At the close of the strawberry season a few weeks ago a Missouri valley gardener reported a total of 2,383 quarts of strawberries picked from a bed containing just a quarter of an acre. These berries brought on an average 15 cents a box, or a total of $357.45. Multiplying this by four gives $1,429.80 as the per acre yield. This compares well with returns in any part of the country, including even California or Texas.

The experiment which is being made in Missouri of using convicts in the making of permanent highways is meeting with very satisfactory results. Thus far none of the men has refused to work, and none has tried to get away. The convicts seem to enjoy the outdoor work and are the better for it in every way. As an incentive to the men they are promised a reduction of their period of confinement by one day for every two days' work they do on the roads.

Plowing stubble fields as soon as possible after the grain is removed serves two purposes that are not emphasized as much as they should be. In the first place, it breaks up and exposes to the elements and to birds and poultry the nests of many insects that have sought a harbor in the ground for the winter. Again it serves to prevent the maturing of myriads of weed seeds and to germinate many remaining in the soil, the plants from these being killed by the fall frosts.

Land was being cultivated in portions of Germany before Columbus discovered America, yet after the relatively short time in which land has been tilled in this country Germany produced last season twenty-nine and a half bushels of wheat per acre, while the average in the United States was but fourteen bushels. The difference in yield is due chiefly to the fact that the German has taken care of his soil, while we in America have skinned the land and made little or no return to it.

The tone of many editorial articles in daily and weekly newspapers and in numerous farm journals seems to make clear the fact that legislators who hereafter expect to be on satisfactory terms with their constituents will have to take more definite action on measures that vitally concern their constituents than that has up to the present time been understood by the phrase "careful consideration." The rank and file of people are getting sick and tired of this "careful consideration" type of service, which, translated into plain terms, means nothing more than studied neglect and stupid indifference.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT.

It is hard to understand why so many country road supervisors, who spend good time and taxpayers' money in grading and shaping country highways, so often fail to put on the finishing touches necessary to make the roads passable. We refer to the practice so often followed of scraping to the center of the road clods, sod and weeds and leaving them there in a rough and unsightly ridge, when a little work with a disk pulverizer or common drag would do much toward inviting traffic. The writer is well acquainted with the aversion of the average man to hauling any kind of a load over soft and newly made roads, but the condition in which lots of roads are left is taken as sufficient ground for steering shy of them even with an empty wagon.

A NEW METHOD.

A Minnesota farmer in a discussion of the problem of quack grass eradication recommends a plan that he has found entirely successful, one in which he did not find it necessary to lose a year's use of the land. He began his campaign of eradication the latter part of August following the removal of a crop of small grain. He first used a deep tilling machine, plowing the soil to a depth of sixteen to eighteen inches. He harrowed immediately after and double disked three times at intervals during the fall. In the spring he harrowed thoroughly, seeded to wheat, and on harvesting it not a spear of the quack grass was to be seen. This method is different from those usually recommended, but the results obtained seem to furnish strong argument in its favor.

FARM MACHINERY.

Very satisfactory machines have been perfected for the harvesting of small grain, picking corn and digging and sorting potatoes, but as yet no machine has been devised which will pull and top beets. To meet this need the Great Western Sugar company of Denver has offered a prize for a practical sugar beet puller and topper. The motive power for the machine must not exceed four horsepower per beet row. The machine must pull and top all the beets, separate the beets from the tops and leave both convenient for loading. The awarding of the prize by the company does not entitle it to any interest in the invention or machines of the successful contestants.

ABOUT ANGLEWORMS.

The appearance of angleworms in large numbers after a heavy rain is not to be taken as conclusive evidence that they have "rained down." The fact of the matter is that angleworms can't live under water any more than can other land creatures and show up in large numbers following rains in an effort to get needed air, their places of retreat being full of water. In proof of this theory the writer well remembers some years ago the appearance of thousands of dead angleworms on a flat that was suddenly flooded with a freshet. The worms succeeded in getting out of the earth, but were not able to escape from the relatively large body of water above.

KILLING THE CORN WORM.

At the Kansas agricultural experiment station they have been conducting some experiments along the line of dusting the silks of sweet corn ears with equal parts of lead arsenate and lime to kill the worms that eat in the ends of the ears. In one plot of corn thus treated worms were found in but 25 per cent of the ears, while on a tract of like size untreated they were found in 75 per cent of the ears. The silks were kept covered with a light dusty coat. No harm comes from the poison, as it washes off readily.

THE SPARROW PEST.

The writer does not advocate the practice of a boy in his early teens monkeying around with target rifles that use powder and bullet, but believes this same small boy could satisfy his hunting instinct and render a real service if he were provided with one of the latest type of air guns and would start a campaign against the English sparrows that throng the place. The head of the house might encourage the enterprise by offering a bounty of 2 or 3 cents apiece for every sparrow killed.

SAVING FERTILITY.

Virgin soil was never so richly endowed with fertilizing elements that continued abuse in the shape of cropping and making no return in the shape of legumes and fertilizers would not wreck and prostitute it. Many an eastern farmer has learned this fact to his sorrow, but too late to save himself. The owner of the fat farms of the Mississippi and Missouri valleys should heed the warning of the abandoned New England farm before it is too late.

REWARD UNCLAIMED.

The reward is still unclaimed that was put up some time ago for a nesting pair of passenger pigeons, the species that forty years ago in migratory flights of many millions used to shade the sun. Along with the Indian and some other creatures the pigeon could not stand the inroads of the white man's civilization (perhaps it were better called inhumanity) and is now practically but a fact of natural history.

WEAR TO GOLD COINS.

Millions in Circulation That Are Not Worth Their Face Value.

There are probably billions of dollars in gold coin circulating in the United States which are not worth their face value. This fact has been called to the attention of Lee McClung, treasurer of the United States, but the government has no desire or intention to recall the money in order that only gold of standard value may be in circulation.

Should this gold be presented to the treasury or subtreasuries, its owners would be the losers, because of the enormous wear caused by abrasions in circulation. While the government does not require that gold coins shall be of standard weight to be redeemed at their face value, it has established what is known as a "limit of tolerance," which permits a loss in weight of one-half of 1 per cent.

Below that limit the treasury makes a reduction at the rate of 4 cents per grain.

Lightweight gold, it is said, exists principally on the Pacific coast, where the greater bulk of the yellow metal is in circulation. The financial interests of the West, the treasury has been advised, know two kinds of gold—the treasury gold and bank gold. The former is full weight while the latter is below the "limit of tolerance." The worn gold never reaches the treasury or the subtreasuries. According to reports here it is passed from bank to bank and individual to individual, like a plugged coin, and in that way maintains its parity of value.

Curiously enough, silver coin always is worth its face value, however much abused by the ravages of time.

Why You Should Not Pull Fodder.
Progressive Farmer.

The practice of "fodder-pulling" is still general over most of the South. This is practically a Southern practice—very few people in other sections do it—and, to put it plainly, it is the most wasteful and extravagant of all the common methods of saving the corn crop.

In no instance, to our knowledge, have accurate experiments failed to show that the practice is unprofitable. This is why Southern farmers should quit it. It does not pay. Why keep it up?

We know the objections urged against other methods, of handling the corn crop—that corn cut up is heavy to handle, that stock will not eat the large stalks, that cut-up corn often molds in the shock, that shredded fodder sometimes molds. All these objections are of more or less force, just as are the objections against leaving all the stalks in the fields and pasturing them off—that this practice means a waste of feed, and that, in some cases, the trampling of the land injures it or the crops sown on it. There is something in each of these claims, but not enough in any or all of them to justify fodder-pulling.

If a man can have his corn stover cut up or shredded, he can get more feed at less cost than by pulling fodder. The molding of corn in the shock is almost invariably caused by poor shocking or by cutting too green; corn cut at the proper stage is one of the easiest crops to cure. Shredded corn stover will keep perfectly if it is dry when shredded and is protected afterward. The man who has no facilities for handling cut-up corn can get more roughage for the same expenditure of labor by pasturing his corn field and growing legumes for hay than by pulling fodder; and he will also have more corn.

Fodder pulling, as usually done, reduces the yield of corn sufficiently to pay for all the feed obtained in the fodder. The labor expended in pulling fodder is usually great enough to produce an equal feeding value in some other crop. These are demonstrated facts, and no amount of theorizing or arguing on the part of our fodder-pulling friends can change them. Taken together, they mean that the man who pulls fodder pays twice for what he gets—once in the decrease of his corn crop, and once in the labor expended in doing the work.

This, in short, is why the practice should be abandoned; it is wasteful and inconsistent with the best farming. It wastes labor and feed.

Southern farmers are rapidly learning how to grow corn; let them give a little thought now to the other big corn problem, and learn how to get the most out of the crop after they have grown it.

T. L. Parks, Murrayville, Ga., Route 1, is in his 73rd year, and was recently cured of a bad kidney and bladder trouble. He says himself: "I have suffered with my kidneys. My back ached and I was annoyed with bladder irregularities. I can truthfully say, one 50 cent bottle of Foley Kidney Pills cured me entirely. They contain no habit forming drugs." Howard Gardner.

FARM LIFE ATTRACTIVE.

Texas Seeking a Way to Keep Boys in the Country.

A solution of the problem of how to keep boys on a farm and contented with farm life is being sought in Texas and those who are attempting it believe they are making good progress, says an Austin correspondent in the New York World. At Coleman the other day sixty farmer boys belonging to the Coleman County Corn Club were invited to the town by the business men of the place and royally entertained for two days, all the expenses being paid by the townspeople.

At present over 14,000 boys and girls are enrolled in club work in Texas. Each boy is growing an acre of corn, cotton, milo or kafir, and the girls one-tenth of an acre of tomatoes, according to instructions given by the United States Farm Demonstration Department and the Agricultural and Mechanical College. This enrollment extends over 140 counties. The girls' tomato clubs are conducted in sixteen counties. The work in each county is supervised by a woman agent, whose duties are to organize the clubs, instruct the members in transplanting, staking, pruning, cultivation and canning of tomatoes and other garden crops.

Ten Thousand Dollar Calf.

Holstein bull calf, King Segis Pontiac Alcartra, nine months old, was sold at auction in June, 1911, at Syracuse, N. Y., to John W. Arfman, of New York city, owner of the Fairmont farm at Middletown, for $10,000. Mr. Slater writes that this is the highest price of which he has any record.

King Segis Pontiac Alcartra was sired by King Pontiac, sold by breeders to be a matchless bull, and was bred by the Stevens Brothers, at Liverpool, N. Y.

Another high price recently paid for a bull calf was $3,000, at which figure Harry B. Davis, of Chester, Orange county, N. Y., sold a seven-month-old bullock to a Michigan breeder last June.

PANAMA CANAL.

Will be Opened to Traffic Sooner Than Expected.

News comes from Washington that the Panama canal is to be opened to traffic in the fall of 1913. This statement was made officially at the navy department today with an announcement that the Atlantic fleet would rendezvous at Colon this winter before the water is turned on. The navy estimates are based upon the latest report from the army engineers.

Secretary Meyer found that construction work on the canal had progressed so far that unless action was taken immediately there was a probability that the men of the fleet would have no opportunity to examine the ditch before it was in operation.

The visit of the fleet will include railroad trips for the men throughout the canal zone.

The date of the opening originally was set for January 1, 1915. The remaining work is said to offer no new obstacles.

Mr. Webb's Estimate.

Democratic State Chairman Charles A. Webb is looking forward to a great victory according to an Asheville correspondent. He thinks that on account of the senatorial primary the Democrats will poll 160,000 votes as against 140,000 two years ago. The Republicans polled about 94,000. Mr. Webb has a notion that the Republican vote will be divided about three to one, with Mr. Settle getting the short end. One of them is running on a wet platform and one on a dry, and that ought to divide the party if anything would, he thinks. Allowing them 100,000 votes Mr. Webb arrives at the very comfortable plurality of 85,000 for his party. In the primary in Warren county the other day all the Democrats in the county, about 1,300, voted. Two years ago only 850 votes were polled. In Pitt 2,200 Democrats voted two years ago and 2,700 the other day. It is in many such instances as these that the increase is estimated.

The Ohio Way.

Norwalk, Ohio, Sept. 13.—Dressed as men, women at Clarkfield last night tarred an 18-year-old girl who refused to leave town when warned. The authorities won't investigate. For three nights the women waited in the woods with tar, finally catching the girl and carrying her to a spot where a fourth of an inch coat was applied to her body. The nearly crazed girl promised to leave forever.

GARLAND DANIELS, Sec'y.

Mektub

By Cunningham Graham

All Tangier knew the Rubio, the fair-haired blind man, who sat upon the mounting-block outside the stables of the principal hotel. His bright red hair and bearded blue eyes, with his freckled face, looking just like a newly scalded pig, had given him the name by which the Europeans knew him, although no doubt he was Mohammedan, something or another, amongst his brethren in the faith.

He spoke indifferently well most European languages up to a point, and perfectly as far as blasphemy was concerned, and his quick ear enabled him as if by magic to ascertain the nationality of any European passerby, if ever he had spoken to the man before, and to salute him in his mother tongue.

All day he sat, amused and cheerful, in the sun. As people passed along the road, their horses slithering and sliding on the sharp pitch of the paved road, which dips straight down from underneath the mounting-block of the hotel, between the tapia walls, over which Bougainvilleas peep, down to the Soko Grande, El Rubio would hail them, as if he had been a dark lighthouse, set up to guide their steps.

By one of the strong contradictions, which nature seems to take delight in just to confound us, when after a few thousand years of study we think we know her ways, the Rubio had a love of horses which in him replaced the usual love of music of the blind. Along the steep and twisting path that leads towards Sparte he used to ride full speed and shouting "Balak" when he was sent upon a message or with a horse from town out to the villas on the hill. All those who knew him left him a free road, and if he met a herd of cattle or of sheep the horse would pick his way through them, twisting and turning of his own accord, whilst his blind rider left the reins upon his neck and galloped furiously. In what dark lane or evil-smelling hole he lived no European knew. Always well dressed and clean, he lived apart both from the Moors and from the Europeans, and in a way from all humanity, passing his time, as does a lizard, in the sun and in the evening disappearing to his den. The missions of various true faiths, Catholic, Presbyterian and Anglican, had tackled him in vain. Whether it was that none of them had anything to offer which he thought better than the cheerful optimism with which he was endowed by nature to fight the darkness of the world he lived in, is difficult to say. Still, they had all been worsted; not that the subject of their spiritual blandishments could have been termed a strict Mohammedan, for he drank any kind of spirits that was presented to him by Christians, anxious perhaps to make him break the spirit if they were impotent to move him in the letter of his law. Still though he sat with nothing seemingly reflected on the retina of his opaque and porcelain-colored eyes, his interior vision was as keen or keener than that of other men. He never seemed a man apart, or cut off from his fellows, but had his place in life, just as throughout the east the poorest and most miserable appear to have, not barred out from mankind by mere externals as are their brethren in the north, shut in the ice of charity, as bees are shut behind a plate of glass so that the rich may watch their movements in the hive.

His blindness did not seem to trouble him, and if he thought of it at all, he looked on it as part and parcel of the scheme of nature, against which it is impious to contend. Doctors had peered into his eyes with lenses, quarreled with one another on their diagnoses of his case, and still the Rubio sat contented, questioning nothing, and enduring everything, sun, rain, wind, flies and dust, as patiently as if he were a rock. Nothing was farther from his thoughts than that he ever once again could see. Plainly, it had been written in the books of fate he should be blind, and so when European doctors talked to him of operations and the like he smiled, not wishing to offend, and never doubting of their learning, for had not one of them cured a relation of his own of intermittent fever by the use of some white magic powder, when native doctors after having burned him with a red-hot iron, and made him take texts of the Koran steeped in water, had ignominiously failed?

All that they said did not appeal to him, for all of them were serious men, who talked the matter over gravely, and looked on him as something curious on which to exercise their skill. All might have gone on in the same old way, and to this day the Rubio still sat on his stone without a wish to see the horses that he held, the sunlight falling white upon the towers, or the red glare upon the Spanish coast at eventide, had not a German scientist appeared.

From the first day on which the Rubio held the doctor's horse a fellowship sprang up between them, not easy to explain. The doctor peered out on the world through neutral tinted glasses, for his own eyes were weak. Whether their weakness drew him to the blind, or if he liked to hear the Rubio's tales about the Europeans he had known, to all of whom he gave the worst of characters, the doctor never said. Soon Tangier knew him for a character, and as he stumbled on his horse about the town, curing the Arabs of ophthalmia and gathering facts for the enormous book he said he meant to write upon North Africa, his reputation grew. The natives christened him Father of Blindness, which name appeared to him a compliment, and he would use it, speaking of himself, complacently, just as a Scotsman likes to be spoken of under the style and title of the land he owns, although it be all bog.

Whether the sympathy that certainly exists between wise men and those whose intellect is rudimentary, and which is rarely manifested between a learned and an ordinary man, prevailed upon the Rubio to submit himself to the ministrations of the German man of science, Allah alone can tell. A season saw the mounting-block deserted, and tourists gave their horses to be held by boys, who tied them by the reins to rings high in the wall, and fell asleep, leaving the animals to fight and break their bridles, and for a time no stream of cheerful blasphemy was heard, in any European tongue, from the usual guardian of the stone. In a clean unaccustomed bed in a dark corner of Hope house, the missionary hospital, the Rubio lay, his head bound up in bandages, silent, but cheerful, content in the skill of his strange friend, but yet incredulous, after the Arab way.

During the long six weeks, what were his thoughts and expectations it is difficult to say. Perhaps they ran upon the wonders of the new world he would inherit with his sight, perhaps he rather dreaded to behold all that he knew so well and so familiarly by touch. At last the day arrived when doctors judged the necessary time had passed. No one in Tangier was more confident than was the Father of Blindness, who went and came about the town buoyed high with expectation, for he was really a kind-hearted man, learned but simple, after the fashion of his kind.

At early morning all was ready, and in the presence of the assembled doctors of the place, with infinite precaution, the dressings were removed. Cautiously and by degrees, a little light was let into the room. Holding his patient's hand and visibly moved, the German asked him if he saw. "Not yet," the Rubio answered, and then, throwing the window open wide, the sunlight filled the room, falling upon the figure in the bed, and on the group of doctors standing by expectantly. It filled the room, and through the window showed the mountains standing out blue above Tarifa, the strait, calm as a sheet of glass, except where the two Calas cut it into foam. It fell upon the cliffs just into the sea below the Hope House; upon the hills of Anjera, and on the bird-like sails of the feluccas in the bay, filling the world with gladness that a new day was born. Still on his bed the Rubio lay, pale with his long confinement, and with his hands nervously feeling at his eyes. All saw that the experiment had failed, and with a groan the German man of science buried his head between his hands and sobbed aloud, the tears dimming the spectacles and running down upon his beard. With a grave smile the patient got out of bed, and having felt his way to where he heard the sob, laid his rough, freckled hand upon the shoulder of his friend, and said as unconcernedly, as if he had not suffered in the least, "Weep not; it was not written"; then, looking round, asked for a boy to lead him back again to his accustomed seat upon his stone.

THOUGHT GRANDDAD WROTE IT

Finmore Cooper's Grandson Had Credited Him With the Authorship of the Bible.

When Demetra Vaka, author of "Haremlik" and "In the Shadow of Islam," first came to America she was a governess for a year to the two little grandsons of J. Finmore Cooper. The children had been brought up with the utmost reverence for their famous grandfather, and had unconsciously imbibed the belief that all the world's best literature was the offspring of his pen.

Something was said in the elder boy's hearing one day about one of the books of the Bible, with some reference to its authorship, and the boy looked up at his governess with a startled face.

"Who wrote the Bible?" he demanded, as one whose first faith has been shaken.

Demetra Vaka explained as best she could about the various books and the boy sighed, still a bit incredulous. "I always thought," he said slowly, "that grandfather wrote it."

Historic Blackguards

By Albert Payson Terhune

Abdul Hamid, Sultan and Scoundrel

On a divan in a room of Yildiz Kiosk, in Constantinople, reclined a lean, hawk-eyed man with dyed beard and gray-yellow skin. His glazed black eyes were shut. He was asleep—or pretended to be. A girl, scarcely more than a child, strayed into the room and stared in wonder at its rich furnishings. From one gorgeous bauble to another she wandered, gazing, examining, handling. At length, as she reached a table, she saw lying there a tiny jeweled, silver mounted pistol. It was unlike any other weapon she ever had seen. The girl picked it up, turning it over and marveling at its rare beauty. The man on the divan in the shadowy corner opened his eyes and slowly sat up.

"What are you looking at?" he asked gently.

"At this pistol, sire," answered the girl.

"And what are pistols made for?" he queried in the same pleasant tone.

"To—shoot people, sire," faltered the girl, a little reassured by his gentleness.

"Quite so," yawned the man. "And I will prove it. Let me show you."

Whipping another revolver from his pocket he shot the girl dead.

This is a typical anecdote of Abdul Hamid, "Commander of the Faithful," "The Prophet's Viceroy on Earth"—the man who until last year was sultan of Turkey. It shows at once his cunning, his heartlessness, his deadly fear of assassination. So deeply did he dread being killed that he usually remained a captive in his own palace, surrounding himself only with those to whom he was more valuable alive than dead, and at once slaying any one whom he even remotely suspected of having designs upon his life. The Yildiz Kiosk hid thousands of black tragedies.

Fear of death made Abdul's life a burden. It robbed him of slumber. At times the only way he could be put to sleep was by hearing some one read aloud the story of the awful punishments that had been inflicted on some of the slayers of rulers. These tales of torture would lull him to rest.

Abdul Hamid was born in 1842. He was the second son of a sultan and came to the Turkish throne in 1876 when his elder brother was deposed. To make way for Abdul, another brother was murdered and a nephew falsely imprisoned as a maniac. The new sultan began his reign by promising countless reforms—and by performing none of them. His Balkan States in those days were in wild revolt. At home, the "Young Turk" movement was already busy trying to build up the rotten government and to abolish tyranny. The people murmured. The Turkish crown seemed tottering. Abdul Hamid had before him a task that would have crushed most rulers. Yet he performed it with a skill that stamped him as the subtlest and ablest statesman of his day.

At the outset of his career as sultan the atrocities in the Balkans led Russia to declare war on Turkey. Russia won the conflict and might have wiped the stain of Turkish crimes from the earth had not the other European powers grown jealous. They interfered; saved Turkey and deprived Russia of nearly all the fruits of her victory. Already the sultan was beginning to show his rare statesmanlike qualities.

In the peace treaty Abdul made many fine promises. He kept none of them, and he so fooled the European powers that he suffered no penalty from his breach of faith. He choked the voice of liberty, silenced the "Young Turks" by force and made himself sole master of his empire. By playing one nation against another and by owing some of them huge debts that his downfall might cancel, he kept the world at large from interfering with his horrible plans.

For instance, in 1895-1896 the signal was given by him for a wholesale massacre of Armenian Christians. Thousands of defenseless persons were slaughtered. A far lesser series of atrocities had brought on a war with Russia in 1877. Yet this time not one European nation lifted a finger to check the outrage.

But tyranny has always wrought its own destruction. While Europe, bound hand and foot by the web of Abdul Hamid's wily diplomacy, took no step to check his crimes, his own people at length rose against him. The "Young Turks" grew too strong to be put down. There was an almost bloodless revolution in 1908. Abdul was deposed in April, 1909, and was sent to Salonica as a state prisoner. His younger brother, Mehmed, or Mohamed, was taken from a prison palace where Abdul had confined him, and was placed upon the Turkish throne.

That Abdul was deposed is but natural. The only wonder is that he was able to hold his shaky power in such masterful fashion for a third of a century.

A New Postal Law That Knocks the Pure Reading Matter Silly.

After October first the publisher who wants to enjoy his mailing privilege of a cent a pound, must be careful about his reading matter. The last Congress allowed a law to pass that eternally knocks the pure reading matter arranged for by the business office into smithereens.

If it be an editorial, a "puff," a statement of a fact—it must be marked advertisement, provided money enters into the contract—or the promise of money.

In other words the law was doubtless designed to do away with paid editorials and subsidized newspapers. But it is sweeping and far reaching. It means that if The Patriot wants, for a cold, bright nickel, to state that John Smith has just received a bolt of muslin—The Patriot must mark such startling announcement "advertisement" provided The Patriot had a contract with John to charge him for the space consumed in making this revelation to a sleeping and eager world.

If The Patriot concludes to write about a man who has gone to glory—write a story telling of what a good citizen Mr. Justpassed was; extolling his virtues and setting before the youth of the land the many virtues possessed by the deceased—if it dare want to charge for the space—and the space is its bread and butter, it must mark this tribute of respect with the offensive word "advertisement." Failing to do so means upon conviction of violating the law a fine anywhere of from $50 to $500 and the exclusion from the mail at second class rates.

Of course this will work a hardship on the country editor; on the metropolitan editor—on all the editors who are walking the path of glory that leads but to the grave. No more can the smooth advertising man from the laboratory of Dr. Hankem-Pankem come along and buy a five inch display ad and put over on the emaciated country editor twenty-seven columns of pure reading matter telling the world that a dose of Dr. Hankem-Pankem's pills saved from the grave and an untimely death, Jeems Henry Gosome, who, in the bloom and flower of his life was stricken while attempting to ford a river eighty feet deep in order to attend a dance at Squire Balsam's home. No more can the country paper, unless it takes off the mask of pure reading matter announce that the Honorable Bill Billson is a candidate for the legislature and that of all men in all the land he is the one shining mark that death never took but left him to go to Raleigh; left him to serve his country—that is to say if the editor, starving and hungry demands a dime for his honorable services. No longer is the editor captain of his ship. He is not only censored—but he must tag his days, and the tag rolls of its armor, reveals the claws of Mammon—and thus destroys the effect.

Of course we will try to weather the storm. We will all try to cut out the puffery and the prunes—what about the gentleman who awhile has taken his country paper in order to now and then have a said of him that he is the most honored citizen in Billville township—because where is there an hungry editor who could get up inspiration unless there was in sight for his services at least one crisp five dollar bill?

Alas, and it does seem that that sacred constitutional guarantee that the freedom of the press shall be not abridged has gone glimmering with the noise of the Full Moose party.

KILLED BY AN ENGINE.

High Point Man Run Over While Asleep on Railroad Track.

Wandering back to the railroad tracks from which he had but a few minutes before escaped a horrible death, J. H. Stack, a middle-aged white man of High Point, was run over Sunday morning and his head crushed into pulp by a Southern Railway yard engine. The body was removed to a local undertaking establishment and later in the day accompanied to the High Point home by the father, John Stack, who came here on No. 44, and by a brother, Newt Stack, of Greensboro.

Less than an hour before Stack had been picked up by the crew of a fast passenger train and placed at a distance which was considered safe. It seems that he got back on the tracks somehow and fell asleep. The accident occurred about 3.30 o'clock when a shifting engine on the yards passed over the body, causing instant death. Letters in his pockets established his identity.

NEWS OF THE OLD NORTH STATE

A Survey of What is Transpiring in the Commonwealth.

On account of the prevalence of scarlet fever and diphtheria in Concord, the Sunday schools at 13 churches were suspended last Sunday.

Miss Annie Norville, daughter of Mr. Thomas W. Norville, of Asheville, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid. Reason, poor health and despondent.

George W. Watts, of Durham, was elected president of the board of directors of Oglethorpe University, the proposed Presbyterian institution to be erected in Atlanta.

The Messenger says that Mr. J. R. Patton has sold his 80-acre farm near Morganton for $13,000. He bought the same land in 1905—seven years ago—for $7,000.

Thomas Parks died at his home in McDowell county a few days ago, aged 92 years. The Marion Progress says he was a soldier in the Cherokee Indian war and was an officer in the Confederate army.

Mr. Charles L. Coon, of Wilson, who was named as a candidate for state superintendent of schools by the Progressives and Roosevelt Republicans, says he would not accept the office if he was elected; that he will remain a teacher and "fight for constructive educational legislation outside the ranks of an officeholder."

J. R. Askew, of Halifax county, dreamed his saw mill had burned. When he awoke he was so impressed with the dream that he got out of bed and looked in the direction of the mill, but saw nothing. Next morning when he drove to the mill he found it in ashes. The loss on mill and lumber is estimated at $2,500.

Mrs. J. P. Board, whose husband was killed by falling, or jumping, from a tower at Wake Forest several months ago, was given a verdict for $5,000 against the Mutual Life Insurance Company, at Alexandria, Va., last week. The insurance company had refused to pay the policy on Board's life on the ground that he committed suicide.

Mrs. Joe Person has reported to the Statesville police that she was robbed of her purse and $40 in money while at the Statesville railway station Saturday night between trains. Mrs. Person came in on the 8.30 train from Charlotte and was at the Statesville station from that time until the 10.20 train for the west arrived. She says that she went to sleep in the waiting room and when she awoke she found that her purse containing the money was gone.

The Romance of It.

Just now the romancers at so much per column are trying to weave a nice little story about the capture of Allen and Edwards—showing of course that a woman was at the bottom of it. True the sweetheart of Edwards lost a letter; the detectives are said to have found it, and followed the girl when she went to wed the outlaw.

But the chances are that the lost letter had but little to do with the capture of Allen. True, had Edwards not been in love with the girl he would not have written her; had detectives not been employed they would not have followed her; had Allen never shot up the court they would not have wanted him and had Roosevelt never been born he would not be seeking a third term as president. But beyond it all is the old, old proposition that "murder will out" and the man guilty "most in generally" as the darkey puts it up is apprehended. Therefore the romancer's dream about the sweetheart and the proverbial woman who is always at the bottom of things comes only as a trivial incident. The Allen crowd, in the nature of things, were destined to pay the penalty of their crime.

Horney-Hayworth.

A quiet marriage was solemnized Sunday morning at 8.30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, near High Point, when Miss Mabelle Horney became the bride of Mr. W. L. Hayworth. The vows were impressively administered by Rev. Thomas Carrick, the pastor of both the bride and groom. The bride is the attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Horney, and is a former student of the State Normal College. The groom is one of Davidson's most worthy young men. At present they will make their home with the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Hayworth.
