HAVE YOU PAID FOR THE PATRIOT?

There are several hundred names on our subscription books, who are owing us sums all the way from 25c. to $10.00. If you are one of that number we respectfully request you to send us the amount. It will be easier for you to pay $1.00 than for us to lose two or three hundred. Don't think this notice is intended for your neighbor but see if you do not owe us something yourself. Don't get mad and stop your paper because you owe the "Patriot," you can stop your paper, but you cannot stop our paper. The man who orders his paper stopped because he is asked to pay for it, shows strong signs of weakness in the upper story. Send us a dollar and let us know you are alive and read the "Patriot."

$50.00 GIVEN AWAY!

Do You Want It? We want new subscribers and we are willing to pay for them. Listen to our plan: On the 24th of the next December we will pay the next little sum of $25.00 to the man or woman who will get the largest number of subscribers during this year. To the young lady who brings in the next largest number we will give $15.00. And to the boy or girl who gets the next largest number, will get $10.00.

Conditions. In order to keep from being imposed upon, we are obliged to make the following conditions: The person who gets the $25.00 must get at least 25 subscribers. The second 15, and the third 10 subscribers each. Each, with each name we must have $1.00 in cash. 3rd. Those who are working for the PATRIOT on a per cent. cannot compete for the prize.

Selections. The coming year will be an unusual good year to secure new subscribers, as it is the year for the Presidential campaign. Then again, there are hundreds of people in Guilford and other counties who have been accustomed to take the PATRIOT, and would be glad to do so again if their attention were called to the subject. We will do everything we can to help you get the names and send you all the sample copies you may desire.

When any one signifies a desire to try for the prizes we will write his name on a special book and keep an accurate account of the number he brings in. In case no one should succeed in getting enough names to procure any of the prizes we will pay all those who have tried 25 per cent of the cash taken in. We hope every boy and girl in Guilford, Rockingham, Surry, Stokes, Randolph and other counties will try for these prizes.

STRAWS.

—Your attention is called this week to the report in another column of the expenses of the Clerk's office.
—Judge Connor is presiding over Court this week with his usual ease and ability. The Judge has become very popular at this place.
—If you have a friend at a distance who used to live in this county, you cannot make him a more acceptable present than a year's subscription to the PATRIOT. Try it.
—The PATRIOT calls the attention of its readers to the county exhibit and Clerk's report now being sent out. The people can thus see how the funds of the county are being expended. They will observe that notwithstanding the heavy expenses of the last year there is a comfortable little balance which goes over to next year.

—If you receive a sample copy of the PATRIOT this week, please examine it carefully and if you think it worth reading send us your subscription. The PATRIOT will help you keep yourself informed about what is going on in your county and the world around you, so that you will not be ashamed to talk with your neighbors intelligently. Just think what a pleasure it will be to you these long winter nights to have something to read.

—We have received several inquiries in regard to an offer in the PATRIOT of Nov. 20th, about a picture that will be sent to any one who will send 3 two cent stamps to W. J. Demorest, 15 East 14th street, N. Y. We will say for the benefit of our readers that the house is perfectly reliable and will send the picture which is really a very beautiful thing. The publisher sent us one last week and we were greatly pleased with it. The only condition imposed when you send for picture is that you mention that you saw the notice in the PATRIOT.

Serious Accident.

Mr. Jno. Miles, who works in a saw mill on Reedy Fork river in this county, while at work last week, was caught by the band and jerked some distance against the wood work, with such force that his skull was broken and he was otherwise seriously hurt. We could not learn whether his wounds are fatal or not.

Died.

Mr. Edmund S. Hobbs, a native of Guilford county, N. C., departed this life on December 6th, 1892, at the house of a friend near Fayetteville, N. C. He was born July 31st 1819, near the Old Court House Battlediel of General George. He had been a member of the Methodist Church since young manhood and died in the true faith.

To every new subscriber from now until January 1st, we will give

Short Method of Calculating Interest

This method is based on the following principles: To find 6 per cent interest on any sum for 6 days move dec. pt. 3 places to left, 60 " " " 1 place " 20 months " " 6 days is 25 cts. " " " 60 " " $2.50. " " " 20 mo. " $25.00. The following examples will illustrate the method: Find interest on $300, for 3 yr. 9 mo. 21 days.
$72. Interest for 40 months, 9. " " 5 " " 1.08 " " 18 days. .18 " " 3 " $82.26 " " 45 mo. 21 days Find interest on $480 for 11 mo. 11 days $24. Interest for 10 mo. 2.40 " " 1 " .80 " " 10 days. .08 " " 1 " $27.28

Find interest on $120, for 93 days at 8 per cent.
$1.20 for 60 days. .60 " 30 " .06 " 3 " $1.86 " 93 at 6 per cent.

.62 " " 2 " "

$2.48 " " 8 " " $1.21 " " 5 " "

Advantages of this method.

The numbers 6, 60 and 20 furnish more multiples and aliquot parts than 30 and 12. It does not require the principal to be multiplied by the rate per cent. By merely moving the decimal point and multiplying by some aliquot part of 6, 60 or 20, we easily find the interest for any possible number of months or days at 6 per cent.

If any of our readers has any shorter or simpler method than this we would be glad to publish it.

The Egg Question Again.

Miss Mary L. Brown, of Brick Church, sends the following solution of the egg problem:

"It is a law of figures that the 4th power of the prime numbers 5 or 7 is divisible by all numbers less than them, leaving 1 as remainder. Thus the 4th power of 7 is 2401, which is divisible by 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 leaving 1 as remainder, and exactly divides 2401. Hence 2401 is the number of eggs in the nest." This solution is a very pretty one but unfortunately it does not give the smallest number that will satisfy the conditions. 2401 is the smallest possible number that does satisfy all the conditions. Our old friend Ed Townsend now of Omaha, Ala. gives 301 as answer.

The following answers have been sent in since last week: Mrs. Jule Hendrix, of this county, answer 301. Miss Sarah C. Stewart, Vass, N. C. 721. Mrs. C. M. Mcintosh, 301. Mr. S. D. McLean, 301. Walter S. Whittington, 301. E. C. Coleman, Faison, N. C. 301. J. R. Hancock, Gilmer's Store, N. C. 301.

Electric Bitters.

This remedy is becoming so well known and so popular as to need no special mention. All who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise. A purer medicine does not exist and it is guaranteed to do all that is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all diseases of the liver and kidneys, will remove pimples, boils, salt rheum and other eruptions caused by impure blood. Will drive Malaria from the system and prevent as well as cure all Malarial fevers. For cure of headache, constipation and indigestion try Electric Bitters—Entire satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded—Price 30c. and $1.00 per bottle at C. E. Holtons drug store.

A Big Business.

Through the kindness of Mr. W. C. McLean of the firm of J. W. Scott & Co., we were shown the enormous stock of Xmas goods on hand in their store. In addition to the large retail grocery department, there are four large warehouses for the storage of goods for shipment. In one of those warehouses, were shown nearly a hundred barrels of stick candy for the trade and just here let us say it will not all be there here let us say it is being shipped off at present. In another large room were hundreds of boxes of cakes and crackers of every description, fine french candies and fire works enough to light up Guilford county. In the other rooms are thousands of dollars worth of dry goods, notions, etc. In this department you find all kinds dress goods, plaids, women goods from the Leaks-ville Women Mills, lace, handkerchiefs by the box. Blank books, writing paper, etc. This firm started 21 years ago with a small one room grocery store. Now they ship goods to nearly a dozen States in the South.

The Marysville appeared from which his statement is clipped says, that De Jarrette is improving physically and mentally.

J. D. Peyton, J. D. Watson and J. D. McIntyre were born near Charlotteville, Va., according to the Staunton Vindicator, on the same day of the same month of the same year, entered the Confederate service at the same time, and were wounded in the same battle. Some part of the body of one was near the shoulder.

A series of articles on the life work of men in many callings—the chief ways (exclusive of professions) in which men earn their livelihood.

THE WORLD'S FAIR IN CHICAGO.

A series will be published later in the year giving the impressions made by the exhibition upon different observers of note, both American and foreign; and many of the observers will be also artists who will illustrate their own articles.

MISCELLANEOUS ARTICLES.

Further contributions to the Poor in Great Cities. Mrs. Burnett's Illustrated paper on the London poor for Home aid to Laidly Children, etc. Of special interest also will be Professor Hell-prin's authoritative account of the Peary Relief Expedition (Illustrated), a very interesting article by Octave Uzanne on the exhibition of Woman's Art now going on in Paris, and articles upon artistic subjects, accounts of travels, etc.

The Bogher Man.
Down dar by de cohn frol, whar do branch an a-runin' froo, Dar's a cabin in de boiler, an' I's sure a-tellin' you, Ef yo go on in de ebenin', when de sun an done gone out, Den de Bogher man'll ketch yo, ef yo ain't a-lookin' out.
When yo go down froo de medder, an'
come back arter dahk, An' jum at ebyr shadder, which yo' harr de foxes bahr;
When yo come long by de short cut, stidder goin' 'round about, Den de Bogher man'll ketch yo ef yo ain't a-lookin' out.
When a daddy's done a-hocin' cohn an' settin' by de do, An' all de little pickaninnies an play-

ROLAND FOR OLIVER.

The cards were out for the wedding.
The troupe was complete. The best man had the ring. The company had assembled, and the final touches were being put to the bride's veil.
The maid of honor and the four bridesmaids were superintending this ceremony. All these girls had graduated together two years before, and had agreed then to fill these relative positions at the first wedding among them.
"There," said Nettie Valentine, and one of the pink maids, "I think that is quite perfect; don't you, girls?"
"Yes, lovely," murmured Theresa Evans, one of the brides. "You must go down now, of course," as an impatient knock came at the door. "Let us say good-bye to Pauline—Pauline De-mond for the last time."
"I do wish, dear," said Fannie Graham, the maid of honor, "that you could have made up your mind to this before he should take your name instead of you his. But you must write it with a hypothen, won't you?"
"Of course, girls; we all promised, and I certainly will."
"And you won't forget what else you promised?" said several voices.
"No, girls. You may depend upon me. Yes, I am ready now." Five minutes later the bride and groom stood at the head of the long parlor, in the front of the bay-window, where the clergyman had been awaiting them.
Frank Lacy was a fine young fellow, and they made a handsome couple. To be sure, one of the bridesmaids (the blue one, who had kept on her eyeglasses) had her own opinion of Pauline, in that she had not prepared the Greek Professor; but then, really you know, the Professor was pretty odd, and, as he never talked in society, it was not generally supposed that he understood English as well as Greek.
Then there was Mr. Midas, thought one of the pink bridesmaids. Pauline was a singleton then. But, after all, it was just as well, when he took notice again—
"At this point the pink maid's wandering attention came back to the sentence the minister was just finishing:
"—so long as you both may live!" It was the bride's turn to say, "I will," as the groom had just said it.
Pauline stood erect. She raised her dark eyes and fixed them upon the face of the questioner. She was pale, but it was with an honest purpose, not with nervousness.
"I will do all these things," she replied, "except that I will not obey him." Every one was taken by surprise, except the five girls who stood about the bride. There was a profound hush, while the clock on the mantel ticked ten times.
"Frank," she said, turning to her half-made husband, "you do not wish me to make this monstrous promise—to drag this relic of the Middle Ages—of the times when the women were slaves and playthings of men—into our lives?
You do not expect this of me, Frank?"
"Because if he does," murmured the tall usher to the pink bridesmaid, "he is very unwise, and he will apparently be disappointed—like England, you know?"
"It is I that you wish for, not a servant; it is not so, Frank?"
"Certainly, Pauline; you need not say it; but why couldn't you have arranged this quietly beforehand?"
"Because I wished to do it now. My friends," she said, turning to the assembled guests, "am I not right? It is for you, my sisters, that I do this. A recent writer has said: 'Would that some woman would have courage to make a scene, if necessary, on such an occasion!'
"It would be a glorious scene, if she possessed the courage and dignity to refuse for the sake of outraged womanhood to pronounce the monstrous promise. It would be a woman's splendid declaration of independence. The brave bride would be the heroine of the hour. She would do more than a thousand sermons to wipe out this blot upon the nineteenth century!"
"Quoted correctly," whispered the blue maid. "What a memory Pauline has!"
"I am this brave bride, my friends.
Now we will go on," she said, turning to the minister.
The service proceeded. The bride did not spoil her point by refusing to be given away. The vows were made (leaving out the obnoxious words). Then came the nervous moment while the best man fumbled for the ring. He had not lost it. He gave it to the man, who gave it to the woman, who gave it to the minister, who gave it to the man, while the nineteenth century stood by and recoiled. The groom placed it upon the finger of the bride and hesitated over the words he was to say:
"With this ring I thee wed—"
"And with all my worldly goods I thee endow," prompted the minister.
"No," said Frank, abruptly. "Not all of them."
The clock ticked again.
"My friends," said Frank, turning to "the company," "my brothers, I call you to my support. Why should a man be expected, century after century, to make this monstrous promise? Why should we give all our property to our wives?"
"It's not a bad plan, sometimes," said Uncle Canfield, of Canfield, Drew & Co., but nobody heard him.
"Why should a self-respecting man be expected to bring home all his money, like a model little boy in a Sunday school book? Let us throw off the yoke, and our wives will respect us the more. There are 978 employments open to women where there were formerly but six. They are able to get worldly goods for themselves. Pauline, I know it is that you wish for, not my money."
"It is I," muttered the blue maid, mechanically.

"Mean old thing!" said the maid to the tall usher. "Mr. Midas wouldn't have done so."
"You can go on now," said Frank to the minister.
"Wait. Perhaps you had better not go on," said the bride's mother, nervously.
"I should think not," said Aunt Sophia, severely, to the bride's sister.
"You know I never approved of your forms, and you see what comes of them.
They had better wait a couple of weeks and join some church where they don't have them."
"I wish they would," whispered one girl to her sister. "They'll have to give back the presents, and that picnic I gave would just do for Fannie Warner. Her wedding's to-morrow."
"And perhaps the caterers will take back the wedding-cake," mused an im-portunate young man, "and that will do for that same Fanny. But we'll have to have the salads. I'm awfully hungry."
"Pun, isn't it?" said the tall usher to the pink maid. "I don't often enjoy weddings. But if they don't go on it would be a pity to waste the minister.
Some of the rest of us might use him."
"Go on," said the groom impatiently.
"Go on," said the bride, firmly.
"Go on," said Uncle Canfield, from the back of the room.
"Oh, don't," said the other pink maid, looking for her handkerchief.
"Though it be long in the telling how these behind cried forward and those before cried back, it was only fifty seconds by the clock. Then the reverend Mr. Blake cut the Gordian knot by saying, hurriedly, 'I pronounce you man and wife.' Then he went back and finished the service in the usual fashion—M. Helen Fraser Lovett, in Lippincott's Magazine.

Russians at Home.

It is generally well-known that the Russians live more indoors than we do, and are very partial to closed windows. The houses are kept surprisingly warm all through the long winter, several stories built usually into the wall, and running from floor to ceiling, and often some of the windows are never opened till the summer comes round again. One or more of these windows is usually a single pane which opens or revolves, and this may be occasionally opened for a few minutes, perhaps once a day.
What exercise Russians take is usually more of a gentle promenade than anything else; they stroll up and down the principal street in the town or in some small public square or garden for hours, quite contentedly. Thus, in spite of the unique opportunity for skating which their long winter gives them, it is rare to find any Russian who can skate well. If you do find two or three good skaters, you will probably learn on inquiry that they are Englishmen or Germans. I was, however, somewhat surprised to find most of the Englishmen who are in the country on duty (as I was, for the purpose of learning the language) anything but pleased or contented with the life they are obliged to lead.

I remember well on one occasion an athletic young Saxon shrugging his shoulders and exclaiming, as some figures went by muffled up in a great fur coat, of which the collar turned up high as the top of the head, without using the sleeves; so much so, that it is frequently so worn in the army by all ranks in uniform, and there is a special word in the language which designates this peculiar way of wearing a coat. I tried so to wear it once or twice; but it really is troublesome to keep on, and I am at a loss to understand how a custom neither convenient nor becoming can have become so general as to be distinctly national.

Locomotives That Are Jovials.

"There are on nearly every railroad locomotives that are known as Jovials," said Henry E. Archer, who has spent twenty years in the service of the Illinois Central, to a St. Louis Globe-Democrat. "Some years ago an engine on an Illinois road blew up, cutting the fireman's head off with a segment of boiler iron. The engine was rebuilt and made as good as new, but no engineer could be found to run it more than one trip. It was soon whispered about that it was haunted; that the headless fireman had an unpleasant habit of appearing on the tender with pick and shovel and insisting on firing up.
"One night an engineer and his fireman deserted the locomotive while on a run, and the conductor attempted to bring the train in. He was not afraid of ghosts; not he! But he side-tracked at the first opportunity, and waited until daylight before completing the run. He told me that the ghost was no joke; that every time the furnace door was thrown open, the headless apparition entered the cab, bearing a shadowy scoop of coal.
"For a month the engine laid in the shop. Then an engineer, who was compelled to either take it out or lose his place, mounted it. Before he had run a dozen miles, it went through a culvert, wrecked the train, and killed nine people. It was never rebuilt."

A Sad Complication.

"I'll never publish another book anonymously as long as I live," said a poet on Christmas morning.
"Why not?" queried a friend.
"Because I have already received five copies of my own book from my admirers, with the compliments of the season."

Panama Scandals Again.

PARIS, December 8.—Libre Parole to-day says that M. Bourgeois, minister of justice, has ordered the immediate arrest of the members of council of the Panama Canal company who are charged with a breach of trust. The members of the company now under indictment are M. Ferdinand De Lesseps, chairman of the board of directors, M. Charles De Lesseps, vice chairman and M. Fontaine, and Barton Cottu, directors. It is reported that the autopsy on the body of Baron Reich ordered by government, was held last night.
The result has not been made public.
