Capt. E. Berkeley, a former resident of Greensboro and a prominent railroad man, was injured in a wreck in Georgia last week that was caused by the heavy rain.

John Lee, of western Guilford, had the honor to be the first prisoner in the city's new calaboose. He was locked up Saturday evening for some minor offence.

The big addition to the McAdoo House is receiving the finishing touches inside. The stuccoing of the building will be deferred until the north wall is thoroughly dry.

Mr. M. T. Farley and Miss Lula Allen, of Danville, Va., were married at the McAdoo House here last Thursday evening by Rev. W. C. Newton. It was a Gretna Green affair.

Arguments in the Greensboro water works cases were made before Judges Boyd and Simonton, in Federal court, last Thursday. It will be several days before a decision is handed down.

The Greensboro district dental society held its regular monthly meeting Monday evening at the office of Dr. J. E. Wyche. The principal paper of the session was read by Dr. E. J. Tucker, of Roxboro.

One of the windows in McLamb's grocery house, on South Davis street, was broken last Thursday night with the evident intention of robbery, but something happened to frighten the thief away before he got anything.

Messrs. R. H. Brooks and W. S. Duffie, of the Odell Hardware Company, left the first of the week for San Antonio. The health of both these gentlemen has been on a decline for some time. We hope the change will be beneficial.

Mr. E. E. Trogdon, of Winston, and Miss Luella Lewis, daughter of Mr. Derastus Lewis, were united in marriage at the home of the bride on Arlington street last Thursday evening by Rev. T. M. Johnson in the presence of a few friends.

Greensboro's insurance companies will not raise rates twenty-five per cent. in conformity to a recent order of the Southeastern Tariff Association, and a merry war will likely result, in which the man that carries insurance will get the best of it.

Capt. L. G. Beall has returned to Asheville to take charge of his classes in the Bingham School, which was forced to suspend a few weeks ago on account of the presence of scarlet fever. The term will be extended a month to make up for the time lost.

Mr. H. F. Millikan, a brother of United States Marshal Millikan, has just been appointed registrar of the United States land office at Dodd City, Kans. Previous to his appointment to this office he was county treasurer, having held the office for several terms.

Mr. W. C. Bain, a Greensboro man, is having splendid success growing celery. He began the cultivation of the delectable vegetable as an experiment, but will probably go into it on a larger scale. His celery is pronounced far superior to the imported article.

Mr. M. J. Ramsey, of Spokane, Washington, an old and valued subscriber of the PATRIOT, died last Friday. He was a brother of Capt. N. A. Ramsey, of Durham. The deceased was born at Pittsboro, this state, and was 70 years of age. He left a wife, two sons, three daughters, four brothers and two sisters.

Will Preddy, a son of G. M. Preddy, of Proximity, was badly hurt by falling from a Norfolk & Western freight train at Rocky Mount, Va., on which he was employed as a brakeman, last Thursday night. He was taken to a Roanoke hospital and his injuries were reported serious. His father went to Roanoke Saturday to see him.

The Greensboro fire department was called to Graham last night about ten o'clock on account of a fire in the cotton mills. At Elon College the special train carrying the firemen was turned back, the fire having been gotten under control in the meantime. It is reported here that the old mill, the Oneida, was damaged to the amount of $50,000.

Amos Stirling, a young negro who murdered Prof. Roy Wilson White, of the law department of the University of Pennsylvania in May of 1900, was hanged for the crime Thursday in Philadelphia. Three men were implicated in the murder, but Stirling said he was solely responsible. Prof. White was a cousin of Mr. David White, of this city.

The store at McLeansville has been robbed twice within the past week. The last time the people were so worked up over the occurrence that they sent to Burlington for bloodhounds and at last accounts were giving the thieves a merry chase. There seems to have been an epidemic of thievery in that neighborhood of late, and it will be broken up at once.

The Dixie Manufacturing Company is the name of a new concern that will shortly begin the manufacture here of apparatus for removing shavings, lint, dust, etc., from manufacturing establishments. The promoters of the enterprise are Messrs. F. P. Nolan, of Boston, and M. T. Lynch, of Detroit. They will handle a number of automatic appliances that should find a ready sale in the mills of this section.

The floods last week came near causing a tie-up in the PATRIOT office. A shipment of paper that would ordinarily have reached us in ample time was delayed until yesterday, and the only reason that the paper is not later in coming out is that the office force has worked night and day to overcome the disadvantages of the delay. The Daily Record reached its last day's supply when a shipment came on the same train with ours.

Mr. Henry P. Brim, of Muscatine, Iowa, who has been visiting relatives and friends in Greensboro and vicinity for several weeks, left Monday for home, going by way of Kansas City, where he will stop over a few days. The thirty-four years intervening between the time of Mr. Brim's removal from the state and his visit this winter wrought far more changes than he had anticipated, however he had a very pleasant time.

Mr. J. L. Hendrix was in town Saturday for the first time in several weeks. His health has not been at all good this winter, but he is on the mend. He tells the PATRIOT that he will move to town the first of next month, occupying the Denny property, on Chestnut street, recently purchased by his son, Mr. J. M. Hendrix. Mr. Hendrix was a merchant in Greensboro up to the outbreak of the civil war, and since that time has been one of the county's most successful farmers.

Judge John J. Jackson, who is to preside over the special term of District Court which convenes in Asheville to-day, reached Greensboro last evening and stopped over to spend the night with Judge Boyd. Judge Jackson is one of the ablest and most distinguished Federal court judges in the country. He bears the distinction of being the oldest judge, in point of service, on the bench in the United States. He was commissioned by President Lincoln, in 1863, judge of the western district of Virginia, which later became West Virginia.

Mr. John Barker has instituted a $5,000 damage suit against Mr. E. P. Wharton for alleged slander. The trouble grew out of something Mr. Wharton said of Mr. Barker when the latter's application for license to open a saloon was pending before the county commissioners. Mr. Barker is represented by Judge W. P. Bynum, Jr., and Col. John A. Barringer. Mr. John N. Wilson will appear for the defendant. It will be recalled that Mr. Wharton was very active in preventing the establishment of a bar room on West Market street, opposite Mrs. C. C. Gorrell's.

Judging from matters brought to the attention of the county commissioners Monday, there is much sentiment in Greensboro favoring macadam roads. People living along the road leading south through Warnersville have raised nearly $200 toward macadamizing that road a distance of two or three miles from the city, and something like $1,400 have been subscribed toward macadamizing the road that leads to the South Buffalo bridge. As soon as these amounts are increased a few hundred dollars the commissioners will be asked to supplement them with a fund that will enable the work to be done to the best possible advantage.

Henry Berry, an employee of the city for several years and later convicted of wholesale thieving operations, landing on the county road force, from which he made his escape some months ago, was captured in Raleigh last week and is back at his job wheeling dirt with Superintendent Tyson's force. Berry, it will be remembered, had the confidence of the city officials, and his early morning trips over the city with what appeared to be an innocent wheelbarrow with a sloopbarrel attachment caused no suspicion, when in reality he was gathering up all sorts of stolen property, principally eatables filched from back porches and pantries. Housekeepers breathe easier when they know he is where he cannot continue his nocturnal visits.

At the meeting of the board of aldermen last Friday evening the resignations of two members, Prof. J. Y. Joyner and Mr. W. T. Sergeant, were handed in and reluctantly accepted. Prof. Joyner's appointment as State Superintendent of Public Instruction necessarily takes him away from the city. The board passed a series of resolutions embodying an expression of the sincere regret which his departure occasions and an acknowledgment of his eminent ability, zeal and faithfulness in the self-sacrificing service he rendered the city. Mr. G. T. Glascock was chosen to succeed him as mayor pro tempore. Mr. Sergeant resigned to become supervisor of public works. The board was loth to give him up and did so after passing a resolution requesting him to attend all the meetings, so the city might receive the benefit of his counsel in matters of public import. The successors to these gentlemen will probably be named at the next meeting of the board. Mr. Walter Greene resigned the office of cemetery keeper. A committee to which his resignation was referred has since accepted it and chosen a temporary successor, Chas. P. Hiatt, who has been a special officer for some time, in connection with his duties as driver for the Southside hose company. The market regulations and several other matters of minor importance also claimed a share of the board's attention, and it finally adjourned to meet Friday evening of this week.

MARKET REPORT.

The receipts on our market for the past week have not been as heavy as some of the preceding weeks of the season, yet they were heavy enough to keep all of our buyers and manufacturers busy handling their purchases, and on the whole, we think both farmers and buyers had a very satisfactory week's business. But for the exceedingly bad roads and high water courses, we think our sales would have been exceptionally large. The quality of the offerings was of the good manufacturing type, which was very eagerly sought for by all our buyers. There was a small sprinkling of wrappers which went off at very satisfactory prices, some of them selling as high as $45.00 per hundred.

Prices on all grades were about the same at the beginning of the week, but have gradually advanced until they are now a little stiffer than they have been for two or three weeks past, with the market in a healthy and active condition. Our buyers are very anxious for the weed and are bidding very liberally on it in order to secure enough tobacco to supply their wants. We think it is as good a time to sell tobacco as you will find this season, and would advise farmers to put what tobacco they have stripped and ready on the market as early as convenient.

D. R. Younits, of Randolph, was here last week with leaf.

G. B. Lineberry, of eastern Guilford, was on the market with a good lot of leaf this week.

W. E. Perry and Thos. E. Murray, of Alamance, were on the market yesterday with leaf.

D. L. Johnson and W. L. Morton, of northern Guilford, made very satisfactory sales here last week.

W. L. Lindsay, of McLeansville, made the best sale on medium brights here this week that he had made in years on that grade.

W. H. Warren, of northern Guilford, sold the last of his crop here yesterday and admitted gracefully that it was the best sale he had made this winter.

Levis Holbrook, of Oak Ridge, although eighty-four years old, made a crop of tobacco last year. He marketed some of his common stock here last week.

The PATRIOT is in a position to know that the demand for leaf in Greensboro is greater than for years. The outlook now is that the buyers will not be able to get near all they want.

W. J. Groome, one of Guilford's leading tobacco growers, was on the market with some medium leaf last week and made over a fifteen cent average on nearly a thousand pounds.

C. W. Kirkman got more for a load of good working tobacco here this week than he anticipated when he started to market. His experience is duplicated on the floors most every day now.

R. T. Kernode, of Alamance, knows how to raise tobacco as well as run a warehouse. He sold leaf here the past week at from $10.25 to $45 a hundred, making an average of over 21 cents.

There will be good sales today. Both houses are full of wagons, notwithstanding the awful roads. The prices on this market would bring leaf here if the farmers had to carry it on horseback.

D. H. Wright & Son of High Point, made a good sale of leaf here last week. They unfortunately got hung up on one of our bottomless streets, but managed to get out in time for the sale next morning.

After the sales Saturday W. H. McLean, of McLeansville, remarked that he wished he had brought all his tobacco with him that morning. He felt amply repaid for the difficulty he had in getting to town with an ordinary load.

Among the Alamance people here the past week with leaf were Cooper & Coble, J. H. and J. R. Anderson, Loy & Foran, John Loy, Loy & Garrett, Brown Lee, McBroom & Co., W. H. Brannock, Wm. Mills, George Steele, Bason & Crisp, Daly & Ward and A. G. Faucette.

Mr. J. S. Cobb, of the firm of Cobb & Currin, Winston leaf dealers, has accepted a position with the American Tobacco Company, with headquarters in Richmond, and will move to that city in May. Mr. Cobb was a buyer on the Greensboro market for several years, and has as many friends here as any man ever known in the trade.

John Shaw, an industrious colored man who raises tobacco every year and always patronizes the Greensboro market, was on the sale Monday with some common leaf. When the bidding on one of his piles was at its height and he had seen the price go way up beyond his expectations, he yelled for the bidders to stop bidding, as he had enough. He was about the happiest darkey in town when he received his money.

We are glad to see Japan interested again in our southern bright leaf. Good size purchases have been made in this section by the Japanese, which means something to the bright tobacco belt. Japan was a very large consumer of our tobacco several years ago, but gave us the go-by last year for some reason. We presume they were trying a substitute, but did not find it as good as our brights and have returned to this market.

Sales the past week were made up mainly of Guilford tobacco, as the condition of the roads prevented many "long hauls" of leaf in wagons. Among our farmers were A. W. Scoggin, W. R. and C. M. Zimmerman, Z. T. Melvin, J. R. Stanley, P. R. Michael, W. D. Kirkman, J. R. Moore, R. F. Troxler, A. R. Thomas, A. J. Busick, P. M. and J. H. Fryer, A. C. Denny, C. A. Tucker, W. H. Rankin, S. E. Coletrane, Gant & McCoin, Albert Wagoner and W. L. Armfield.

A forcible illustration of the value of intensified farming comes from southern Guilford. A young man whose name we withhold planted two acres of tobacco in the spring of 1901. Concentrating his energies on a small crop he brought it to a high state of cultivation, using fertilizers more freely than usual. His father planted a crop of six acres on the same farm from which he realized less money than the son. The labor and expense attached to the crop of six acres would, had they been expended on one-third the acreage, brought more clean cash to the farmer, we honestly believe. Fertilizers of double strength could have been used at a less cost than those employed on the six acres. Double the amount of cultivation would have entailed less work on the smaller crop. In curing and handling the work would have been less, and in returns there would have been a decided advantage.

Receives Nothing Under the Provisions of the Grosvenor Bill.

President James B. Dudley, of the Agricultural and Mechanical College for the Colored Race, located in Greensboro, complains that his institution is to receive nothing from the fund it is proposed, under the provisions of the Grosvenor bill, to have the general government distribute among the different States for industrial and technical training. It is proposed to share North Carolina's portion of this fund, about $10,000 annually, between the North Carolina College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts and the University. President Dudley says that the institution over which he presides receives nothing from either the $7,500 this state annually receives from the land scrip fund or the $15,000 provided for experiment stations, and but 33 per cent. for the annual appropriation of $25,000 received under what is known as the second Morrill act, adopted by Congress twelve years ago. President Dudley says: "Is it becoming a great nation and a wealthy, chivalrous people to make a national appropriation for the education of its citizens and then deprive a portion of its helpless children of any share because they are black?"

PROF. JOYNER TAKES THE OATH.

Gen. Town's Successor Formally Inducted into Office Last Wednesday.

By the Post, 27th.

Prof. J. Y. Joyner arrived in the city yesterday morning from Greensboro, N. C., and was escorted to the superintendent's office, where Judge Clark, of the Supreme Court, administered to him the oath of office as State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Among those present when the new superintendent was sworn in were Governor Aycock, Auditor Dixon, Attorney General Gilmer and Hon. Fred A. Wilson, of Wilson. The oath was administered shortly before noon, and Prof. Joyner immediately entered upon his new duties.

It was noted that during the time the new superintendent was sworn in, a considerable accumulation of correspondence and other matters awaiting attention. To the correspondence the attention was directed and the day was devoted to the discharge of the duties of the office.

It is the fact that some time will be required to secure a successor to Prof. Joyner at the State Normal School. It is expected that he will return to his work there. It will be necessary for him to alternate for some days between his office here and the college at Greensboro before he can devote his attention to his new duties.

A man called on Professor Joyner yesterday in the Varborough last night. He said that for the present he would not have any statement to make with reference to the lines upon which he is working, as he will require a little more time to look into details, see just what has been done and determine where and where to strike the most effective blows for the cause of public education in the State.

"I am deeply touched," said he, "by the kindly expressions of the press of the State in regard to my appointment. I have these expressions as a compliment to my profession rather than to me as a man. The newspapers are giving the great work of education and the strong force to the cause and the cause of the future."

It is not to be expected that a great deal of work will be done with the hearty co-operation of the press, which I feel assured, of the Governor and other friends of education in the State, with a great educational system and the aid of the people, I believe we will be able to bring to light the battle against ignorance in North Carolina to a splendid issue."

Prof. Joyner has been elected to the position of State Superintendent of Public Instruction. He is a man of high character and ability, and his appointment is a great honor to the State. He is a native of North Carolina and has spent much of his life in the State. He is a member of the State Bar and has been active in the work of the State Bar Association.

Prof. Joyner has been elected to the position of State Superintendent of Public Instruction. He is a man of high character and ability, and his appointment is a great honor to the State. He is a native of North Carolina and has spent much of his life in the State. He is a member of the State Bar and has been active in the work of the State Bar Association.

Mr. Tillman and Mr. McLaurin have unquestionably been guilty of a flagrant violation of the rules of the Senate, and they should be made to suffer the consequences. Senators should not decide this issue in a spirit of partisan prejudice, or permit themselves to be influenced in any degree by sectional considerations. Least of all should the Senate abdicate its own powers and allow the presiding officer to order the names of Senators to be stricken from the rolls and states to be deprived of their representation in the Senate.

OLDEN MEMORIES.

Prepared in Behalf of the Jamestown Public School by Victor P. Hammer.

"Weep not for those who've passed beyond."

Our earthly visions keen,

For on this vale where troubles roll,

They'll never more be seen,

"Live but today a noble life,

As if it were the last,

Just think the moments that you have

Are but diamonds cast."

In my quiet hours of study and meditation I often think about and ponder over many things, and in my train of thoughts and imaginations, the sweetest one that I have ever entertained is that of "olden memories."

In the dead hours of the lonely night when life is wafted on a shadow of rest into the solitary regions of dream land, I often ransack that old memory casket of mine for the relics stored away in the early morning of childhood, and, in my wanderings, I live years, so to speak, in a few brief moments, going over my school days, rehearsing anew the long-forgotten lesson, looking and gazing at the beautiful pictures that hang on memory's wall, and talking and laughing and associating with those dear ones whose lives on earth have been transformed into angels in Heaven.

All these things which were once realities have become almost mysteries. One can hardly believe that there are so many changes in the great realm of life.

Life is real. Each day brings forth its buds and blossoms, its flowers and fruits, its joys and its sorrows.

Let us look upon the past as forever gone—it can never come back—and make full preparation for the unknown future. Prepare to meet the duties of life with an ardent determination to succeed.

To the old and the young let me admonish you, if you will, in this way: In whatever sphere you act, act wisely. Whatever you do, do well. Use your own ingenuity, for no one has ever become famous by borrowing jewels from other minds.

Now, may it be your only choice to go forth to meet life in all its fullness, to fight the dread warfare through to the end and to conquer. The great highway of life is open before you, the fertile fields, the waving forests, the treasure mines—all these offer you wealth and happiness on every hand. There is work for able hands, ready hearts and willing minds, and therefore honor and fame for those who surmount the difficulties of life and brave the opposing storms.

We have not wings, we cannot fly, but we have feet to scale and climb. By slow degrees, by more and more, the lofty summits of our time.

Press onward and upward through life's long pilgrim journey 'till your life-work is finished, and when the reality of life, with his sickle keen, shall have come to garner in his own, may you be so endowed with the good graces of a well spent life, as to answer like the prophet of old, who said: "I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day." So when Death, the last of earth, shall come, with his icy fingers, I entreat that each one of you may so live as to be able to receive this sweet welcome: "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joys of thy Father, into an upper and better world where the redeemed dwell without molestation, without sorrow, and for ever more."

Selling Out to Avoid Tobacco War.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The Imperial Tobacco Company today secured control of the tobacco business of Salmon and Gluckstein, limited, by a vote of the shareholders of the latter concern, who are guaranteed a 10 per cent. dividend on their stock by the Imperial Tobacco Company. The chairman, Mr. Gluckstein, emphatically urged the acceptance of the proposal, as they wished to escape the risks of the fierce tobacco war now entering upon its skirmishing stage.

The Americans, he said, were about to spend vast sums in an attempt to capture the British tobacco industry.

A Printer Greatly Surprised.

"I never was so much surprised in my life as I was with the results of using Chamberlain's Pain Balm," says Henry T. Crook, pressman of the Asheville (N. C.) Gazette. "I contracted a severe case of rheumatism early last winter by getting my feet wet. I tried several things for it without benefit. One day while looking over the Gazette, I noticed that Pain Balm was positively guaranteed to cure rheumatism, so I bought a bottle of it and before using two thirds of it my rheumatism had taken its flight and I have not had a rheumatic pain since." HIS ENGLISH FRIEND.

A Visit That Wrecked the Nerves of an American Host.

"I've been having the time of my life, I tell you," said the suburbanite gloomily to his city friend at lunch.

"What's the matter? Pipes burst? Furnace won't work? Dog killing the neighbors' chickens?" asked the friend, sympathetically running through the list of the suburbanite's usual grievances.

"No; worse than that," sadly answered the first speaker. "I've been having an English friend visit me. It's years since I've been across the water, so one or two of his ways were a little strange. The worst of his doings was what has broken me up so. He went to bed the first night before the rest of us, and when I came along the corridor an hour or so later there were his shoes standing outside his door and frightfully muddy too."

"I looked at them in astonishment. Then I remembered the English custom of having the boy come up for the boots. We keep only two servants, you know, both women, and of course in the country you have to rub them the right way or they'll leave. I knew perfectly well that if I told either of those free and independent Irish women to clean the Englishman's shoes we'd be left servantless, and that would have been the death of my wife."

"I lifted the shoes gingerly by two fingers and carried them to my room. When I thought the servants must be asleep, I crept down stairs and got to work with a brush. At every sound I would nearly jump out of my own boots and drop his. I fancied every moment that the girls would see my candle and give the alarm of burglars or that my friend would be taken ill and get up and find me brushing his shoes. Oh, I had a pretty time of it! He stayed a week, that Englishman, and what with loss of sleep and overstrained nerves I'm a wreck."

"Well, why on earth didn't you have the moral courage to—"

"Moral courage! I'd like to see the man who'd have the moral courage to tell an English gentleman with a monocle that the ways of even well bred people in this country differ from those he's been accustomed to! My friend, you do not know the breed!" And he drowned his sorrows and braced his nerves with a second cup of unsurpassed coffee.—New York Tribune.

The Best Telephoned City.

What is the best telephoned city in the world? San Francisco seems to be the answer. In that city, with a population of 342,782, there are 21,324 telephones, or fifty-two per thousand. In Europe, Copenhagen is probably the best telephoned city, with 16,311 telephones to its 312,850 of population, equal to forty-nine per thousand. In Copenhagen, too, the best conditions for the public exist, although the rates are relatively as high as those in American cities. London compares very unfavorably with these figures. At the beginning of this year there were 41,111 telephones to a population of more than 5,500,000, or a proportion of seven to every thousand people. New York, with a population of 2,350,000, had 54,647 instruments, or twenty-six to a thousand.

IN MEMORIAM.

Manor, Texas, Free Press.

W. D. EDWARDS.

William Daniel Edwards was born at Greensboro, N. C., July 21st, 1833. He was of Scotch Irish descent. At the age of fourteen years he was employed as salesman for Dowler & Co. for six years, where he remained until the breaking out of the civil war; went thence to Greensboro, and there enlisted in the Second North Carolina Cavalry under Col. Andrus and Capt. Nelson. He served in Lee's army, participating in all its hard-fought battles. After the close of the struggle he engaged in the stock business in Texas, and in 1869 located in Travis county, on Gilland's creek, three miles west of Manor. In 1870 our subject was united in marriage with Susanna Jester Cain, a daughter of John and Katie (Huff) Jester, natives of east Tennessee. He was a citizen of sterling character, kind, generous and true to all. He was a Mason and a member of the K. of P. In religion he was a true believer in Jesus Christ as his personal Savior. He was brought up a Quaker, but since 1870 has been a regular attendant at the Baptist church. He gave of his means to the support and spread of the gospel, and was a friend to the poor and those in distress. Thus ends the life of one of Manor's best citizens. When the end came January 22, at 12 p. m. he fell to sleep in the arms of Jesus, perfectly resigned to meet his God. His last words were: "I am ready to meet my Lord." He leaves a wife, niece and children, and many relatives and friends to mourn his loss. We extend to them heart-felt sympathy, and point one and all to Him who alone can give comfort. Lovingly subscribed by his friend, J. A. STEPHENS.

Death Has Crowned Him as a Martyr.

Published by Request.]

In the midst of sunny waters, lo! the mighty Ship of State

Staggers, bruised and torn and wounded by a delirious fate,

One that drifted from its moorings, in the anchorage of Hate.

On the deck our noble Pilot, in the glory of his prime,

Lies in woe-impelling silence, dead before his hour or time,

Victim of a mind self-centred, godless fool of crime.

One of earth's dissension-breeders, one of Hate's unreasoning tools,

In the annals of the ages, when the world's hot anger cools,

He who sought for Crime's distinction shall be known as Chief of Fools.

In the annals of the ages, he who had no thought of fame

(Keeping on the path of duty, caring not for praise or blame,

Close beside the deathless Lincoln, writ in light, will shine his name.

Youth proclaimed him as a hero; Time, a statesman; Love, a man.

Death has crowned him as a martyr, so from goal to goal he ran,

Knowing all the sun of glory that a human life may span.

He was chosen by the people: not an accident of birth

Made him ruler of a nation, but his own intrinsic worth.

Fools may govern over kingdoms—not republics of the earth.

He has raised the lover's standard, by his loyalty and faith.

He has shown how virile manhood may keep free from scandal's breath.

He has gazed, with trust unshaken, in the awful eyes of death.

In the mighty march of progress he has sought to do his best.

Let his enemies be silent, as we lay him down to rest,

And may God assuage the anguish of one suffering woman's breast.

Good Boys

Are the bad boys very often. The boy that's good for anything is generally pugnacious. He's a healthy animal, and the healthy animal will always fight for his rights.

When a boy shuns the rough sports of his companions he is apt to be a weakling, and to be conscious of the fact.

New York, Feb. 26.—Among the souvenirs that Prince Henry will carry away with him upon his departure will be several thousand American cigarettes. As an attention to the distinguished visitor, who, he learned, is very fond of the little rolls of white, James B. Duke, "captain of the tobacco industry" and the president of the American Tobacco Company, which has recently added Germany to its tributary trade territory and established several factories there, sent 2,000 cigarettes to the Hohenzollern for the Prince. Just below the centre of each cigarette is stamped the Prince's crest. One thousand of the cigarettes are plain and 1,000 are gold-tipped.

The President told the delegation that if nothing intervened to prevent he would take great pleasure in visiting Charleston and the exposition some time in the near future.

Kelch, March 3.—The white Republican leaders talk but little about the negro convention to meet here in April. Those who will say anything remark that the affair will amount to nothing. They appear to have pretty thoroughly dropped the negro. There are now extremely few negro officeholders in this State. Nearly every negro postmaster has been removed. There are two negro clerks in the Revenue Office here.

New York, March 3.—Charles Broadway Roush died here today. Mr. Roush had suffered from heart disease and dropsy. Mr. Roush was born at Woodstock, Md., in 1836. He first engaged in business in Winchester, Va., served in the Confederate army, and then came to New York in 1865. He had been in business here continuously from that time. Mr. Roush erected at his own expense a monument to dead Confederate soldiers in Mount Hope Cemetery, this city; founded a physical laboratory at the University of Virginia, and gave $100,000 for a Confederate monument to be located at Richmond, Va. Some years ago Mr. Roush became blind. He offered $1,000,000 to any one who could restore his sight, but the reward was never successfully claimed.

ROBERT SOUTHEY'S CHURCH

Worshipping Place of the Great Master of English Verse.

Few pilgrims to Keswick who care for English literature fail to see Greta Hall and Crestwaite church. The house that sheltered, as did Greta Hall, at the same time two such men as Robert Southey and Samuel Taylor Coleridge is worthy of interest and honor. But a greater honor belongs to the memory of the man who could live amicably under the same roof with the brilliant but erratic Coleridge, of whom Southey once said, "Coleridge whenever he sees anything in the light of a duty is unable to perform it."

Standing on a summit of a hill that slopes gently down to the banks of the river Greta and commanding a magnificent prospect of Lake Derwentwater, Greta Hall attracted the discerning eye of Coleridge, and in 1800 he went with his wife to make it his home for a few years. Thither he persuaded Southey, who had married his wife's sister, and in 1803 the Southseys, their hearts sore over the loss of their little Margery, went also to make it their lifelong home. What fruitful study, what high thinking, what brilliant conversation, went on in that quiet retreat during the years that the two intellectual giants dwelt in their humble castle, entertaining such visitors as Charles Lamb, Hazlitt, Shelley and Wordsworth!

Hardly less interesting than their elders were the children who played about this old house—Hartley Coleridge, the lovable and precocious, who used to say when he had a pain in his stomach, "I've got the colic; read me the gospel and epistle!" Sara, who afterward edited her father's "Biographical Literature," and the philosophical little Derwent, who when he was asked by his father who made him reply, "James Lawson, the carpenter, father," and to the question, "What did he make you of?" replied, "The stuff he makes wood of; he saved me off, and I did not like it."

Crestwaite church, the parish church of Keswick, stands quite outside the village, a little beyond Greta Hall, northward. It is a quaint, sedate structure, having a great square tower with heavy buttresses and a battlemented summit. The church is dedicated to St. Kentigern, who when a boy, according to the legend, restored to life a robin killed by his schoolmates and who is said to have planted the cross in the valley of the Thwaite in A. D. 552. The church stands in the open with the mountains looking down upon it and a lake in front and is surrounded by an ample churchyard strewn with gravestones. Southey is buried near the tower, on the north, a spot selected by himself to show his disregard of the old superstition against burial on the north side of the church. A well worn path leads to the simple square tomb under which repose the bodies of the poet, his wife and daughter and Elizabeth Thompson, "for fifty years the faithful servant and attached friend of Robert Southey and of his children," as the inscription reads.

Within the church is as quaint and serious as without. The pews are no longer painted different colors, according to the whim of the occupants, as Southey describes them, but otherwise there has been little change for centuries. Southey's square box pew is near the chancel. There he used to be seen towering above the rest of the congregation with his eyes closed and his fine face turned upward, solemnly repeating the creed. Near the spot where he worshipped for so many years is the fine marble effigy of the poet by Lough, a recumbent figure with the right hand laid upon an open book. The epitaph beginning—
Ye vales and hills whose beauty hither drew
The poet's steps and fixed him here, on you
His eyes have closed, was written by Wordsworth.

A fine spirit was Robert Southey—conscientious, unselfish, faithful, not only a true scholar and poet, but, what is far more, a true man. His devotion to the fatherless children of Coleridge as well as to his own family will never fail to win an admiration deeper than even the greatest poetry can awaken. It is a just tribute that Walter Savage Landor paid him in the lines:

No firmer breast than thine hath heaver
To poet, sage or hero given;
No heart more tender, none more just,
To that he largely placed in trust;
Therefore shalt thou, whatever date
Of years be thine, with soul elite,
Rise up before the eternal throne
And hear in God's own voice, "Well done."

Wurttemberg Stamps.

Stamp collectors will be interested in learning that one of the German states will disappear as a stamp issuing country in a few months. At present the kingdoms of Wurttemberg and Bavaria are the only states of the German confederation which have their own special postage stamps. It has long been the desire of the German emperor to have uniformity in this respect. Quite recently the Reichsanzeiger announced that after April 1, 1902, Wurttemberg will cease to issue its stamps and will use those now in use in Germany generally. Bavaria has been pronounced on the subject, but the Bavarians will not listen to the proposal to give up their own stamps.

"FITTERS OF FEET"

WHACKER BILL'S CONVERSION.

BY H. WADSWORTH PARKER.

The Rev. John Rollins did not notice that his wife was holding out his bearskin coat with both hands. He continued to stare into the depths of the open fireplace.

The clock alarm clock ticked noisily on the high mantelshelf, the only sound in the cabin tucked under Billger's Hill. The minute hand touched 12, and Mrs. Rollins coughed apologetically.

"The Reverend John," came out of his trance and slipped into the waiting room. His wife cast an adoring look up at his square shouldered six feet one.

"I hated to interrupt your thoughts, Jess, but the store is due in a minute. Were you thinking of my sermon?"

"Not much, my girl," replied Rollins. "I was thinking of that twenty-four mile ride with Whacker Bill. It is honestly the worst feature of this charge. I like to go over to Las Vegas. They're a friendly set, and they're always glad to see me. But the ride—that foul-mouthed Bill, with his swearing at every rut in the road! But I'll cure him yet. I feel somehow as if I'd been sent to this place to save Whacker Bill's soul, and I'm going to do it."

John Rollins set his mouth in the firm curve that his wife could remember from the old football days, long before he had taken orders in the church.

The little woman clasped and unclasped her hands nervously.

"I hope, Jack, dear, you'll be very, very careful in dealing with Bill. He's an awful character, they say—and—"

"Yes, he claims to be the champion bad man of the Las Vegas Valley, but you remember a certain little sling once did the business with another brawler, and I'm loading up with stones for the same trick."

He smiled cheerily into his wife's anxious face, kissed her tenderly, and crossed to the door.

"Don't worry, little woman, I won't hurt him or lay myself flat to the law."

The Rev. Rollins threw open the door and gazed down the winding mountain street. The commotion in front of the post-office told him that the stage had arrived. He stalked down the down-sloped path to meet it.

When the stage plunged and swayed past the cabin Mrs. Rollins waved her hand to her husband, sitting straight and smiling beside the rough driver. Then she ran into the house, where, burying her face in her husband's big chair, she had a hearty cry.

On and on swung the stage, Bill chatting amiably of his former triumphs when the vigilantes represented the law and life was worth living. Nothing happened to disturb his serenity until they had passed Las Cruces, when they suddenly came upon a patch of road that made the stage jerk and plow from side to side, like a ship in the teeth of a gale.

What Whacker Bill said about the road commissioners of the county would not bear publication. As he steered andaved in the madness of profanity the Rev. John Rollins squinted round and looked Whacker Bill fairly in the eye.

"Here, you triangulated sine qua non of a pecuniator, shut up!"

Bill stopped in the middle of a mighty oath and stared at the missionary in amazement. So preachers lost their temper, and such a quiet chap as Preacher Rollins, too!

Bill forgot the condition of the road while he ruminated over this fact. Then they struck an ugly stone, a mailbag flew through space, and Bill came back to earth by a most profane route. Rollins held the reins while Bill went back to gather up Uncle Sam's possessions. The offending bag went up with a crash and an oath, and Bill was following with a still mightier accompaniment of profanity when he felt the young missionary's grip of steel on his wrist.

"You bifurcated prismatic of a ne plus ultra iconoclast, stop that noise and tend to business!"

Whacker Bill climbed into the seat without a word. Rollins calmly lighted a cigar and studied the scenery, and they rode five miles in eloquent silence. Then Bill could stand it no longer.

"Pardner, what did you farm it?"

"At college," came the terse reply.

"Lordy, an' I've heard 'em called religious cemeteries!" murmured Bill, and silence once more settled between them.

Rollins was smoking his third cigar and feeling a bit nervous as they covered the last two miles into Las Vegas. Just as they caught sight of the town's lights twinkling in the mist one of the lead horses stumbled and fell. In ten seconds there was a mad combination of horses, tangled harness and profanity in front of the stage. When the damage had been repaired to a steady fire of cuss words Bill returned to his post, swearing as he mounted the step, swearing as he gathered up the lines, swearing as he cracked the whip. Then that calm, even voice fell upon his ear.

"That's enough from you, you quadrangular hypotenuse and polyhedral old scout—you triangular trigonometrical descendant of an antediluvian period!"

Bill fairly gasped. Words failed him. One hand clasped the lines, and the fingers of the other worked nervously, but it was not raised against his companion. The latter continued to gaze at him sternly.

"You psychological progeny of a mythological ancestry, you zanthidium cosmopolite, you problematical descendant of decadent progenitors, I want you to understand that when I'm riding with you and there's any swearing to be done I will do it! You don't know good cuss words when you see them."

The stage drew up before the Empire Hotel. Five minutes later Whacker Bill stumbled up to the bar and asked huskily for his usual drink.

"Make it two, Jiminy, make it two, and make 'em stiff!"

And he drank them slowly, staring moodily across the rim of his glass at the circle of men who wondered if Bill had a "teeth" of malaria.

That night after Rollins had conducted evening service in the chapel and had baptized two babies he returned to the Empire Hotel to find Whacker Bill in the room in silence. They went to the room in silence, and the bad man of Las Vegas Valley had a motley array of trophies on the missionary's table.

"That's a couple of my leads, as was found in men I put to sleep; there's a lock up Jim Dewey's hair, him that I knocked out in four room's in eighty-one; that's a couple of my claws from a grizzly I laid out in a clean fight an' a gun I yanked from as good an Injun as ever et dust. They're yours."

Rollins looked at the bad man in well assumed amazement.

"Why are you bringing them to me?" "You've 'arned 'em, pardner. I thought I could swear, but I ain't one-two-three with you. We can't walk on the same side of the street when it comes to cussin'. Take 'em. It's a cinch that if we put up a cussin' match you'd win, an' I'm ready to cry quits of you."

They shook hands on the deal, and Whacker Bill went down for another drink. The Rev. John Rollins had a letter to write. It was addressed to a struggling young lawyer in an Eastern city, and it wound up as follows:

"So I send you the trophies of my first victory, likewise the first use I have ever had of my geometrical studies. Hang the souvenirs in your den along with the check you receive for your first case. You ought to have a fairish collection if all the old crowd contribute, scattered as we are, from Dan to Beersheba. Come out next summer, and I'll introduce you to the bad man who went down before theological profanity. He's a character."

And in the cabin under Billger's Hill a sweet-faced little woman was praying the good Lord not to let Whacker Bill hurt her dear Jack.

Hydrography of the Southern Appalachian Mountain Region.

In the series of Water Supply and Irrigation Papers the United States Geological Survey, Mr. F. H. Newell, hydrographer in charge, has now in press Nos. 62 and 63, being Parts I and II of the "Hydrography of the Southern Appalachian Mountain Region," by Mr. H. A. Pressey. This great mountain system stretches from Maine southwestward for nearly 1,300 miles, terminating in northern Alabama. From the Potomac south the ranges are higher and broader than in Pennsylvania. They spread out into the Blue Ridge, the Shenandoah, the Allegheny and the Greenbrier mountains, extending, with broad and fertile valleys between, in nearly parallel lines through Virginia and West Virginia into North Carolina and Tennessee, and culminating in the Iron and Great Smoky ranges, the great mountain region of the southeastern states. In this mountain mass sixty-three peaks equal or exceed a height of 6,000 feet, twenty-five peaks are higher than Mt. Washington, and 255 peaks are over 5,000 feet. From North Carolina and Tennessee the ranges, leaving spurs in South Carolina, turn more westward through Georgia and Alabama, and sink into the hills of the Gulf watershed. This great mountain system forms the backbone and watershed of the eastern part of the United States. The greatest masses and highest peaks are in western North Carolina and eastern Tennessee, which region may be considered a high plateau, bounded west by the Smoky Mountains and east by the Blue Ridge. These ranges, almost touching on the north, part company, and then almost come together again in the south, thus enclosing this upland plateau, which has a maximum width of fifty-five miles and an area of about 6,000 square miles.

The region is well watered. The main divide of the river system is the Blue Ridge. The states of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and West Virginia are partially watered by rivers rising in mountains near the North Carolina and Tennessee state line. One of the principal tributaries of the Ohio and one of the largest feeders of the Mississippi head in the same mountains, and the region may justly be termed one of the chief watersheds of the United States. Grandfather Mountain, at the junction of Watauga, Mitchell and Caldwell counties in North Carolina, probably the most massive of the Southern Appalachians, may be taken as the center of this watershed. Thence the waters pour north, east, south and west. From the many springs on the southern slope of Grandfather Mountain flow some of the headwaters of the Catawba, which, rising in the Black Mountains and descending in leaps of from five to 100 feet to the Piedmont plain, crosses into South Carolina and, as the Wateree, passes on to the Atlantic. Flowing from this region, besides the Catawba, into the Atlantic are the Yadkin, Broad, Saluda, Chattooga, Tugalo and Oconee; into the Gulf are the Chattahoochee and the Coosa; into the Mississippi are New River and the Tennessee. From the western slopes of the Blue Ridge flow the headwaters of the great Tennessee River system, as do its larger tributaries, the Holston, the Nolichucky and the French Broad.

The scenery of the southern Appalachian region is the grandest in the eastern states. The mean annual temperature varies from nearly 60° F. at Salisbury (760 feet, east of the mountains, to 40° F. at Linnville (3,800 feet, the latter being the mean annual temperature of Boston or Chicago). The annual rainfall is copious, especially on the eastern slopes of the mountains. At Highlands, in Macon county, the annual normal precipitation is about 72 inches; at Asheville it is about 42 inches.

Notwithstanding the forests that have been made on the forest that once covered nearly the whole of these mountains, nowhere in the United States is there an equal area of land covered with so great a variety of valuable timber. The walnuts, tulips, poplar and oaks grow to almost incredible sizes. White pine occurs in large tracts. Lumbering on a large scale has been carried on for only a few years, but is very destructive. Some of the companies saw anything that will make a plank. In the case of the bark gatherers, the wastefulness is even more deplorable and ruinous. This section is comparatively free from forest fires. A number of railroads run into this region; but the transportation facilities and the highways are very poor. Splash dams are much used in sending timber down-stream. The soil is generally deep and fairly fertile even to the mountain tops, but it washes easily when exposed. The entire region is well adapted to stock raising; some from occurs in large quantities in a number of counties; sheep, turkeys, corn, grain, gold and other minerals have been mined to some extent. Many varieties of shrubs and flowering plants abound, and the region should prove a Mecca to botanists.

The drainage basins, discharge measurements and water powers of the various rivers and their tributaries, are described at length by Mr. Pressey, and much information of great value to millers, sawmill men, lumbermen, miners, cattlemen, farmers, and travelers is to be found in the report.

Mr. Pressey insists upon the importance of the forest to the preservation of the soil of this region, and notes with satisfaction that the heavy forest growth on Grandfather Mountain is not to be destroyed. In order that the springs which give rise to so many streams on Grandfather Mountain may not be disturbed, 1,400 acres have been set aside as a public park, under five commissioners, one of whom is the Commissioner of Agriculture of North Carolina, and another the State Geologist, Prof. J. A. Holmes, with whose active assistance the surveys and examinations described by Mr. Pressey were made. The study is illustrated by forty-four plates.

TO SEE MOON BETTER.

Telescope That will Obviate Defects of Other Instruments.

A telescope which is to bring the moon within eight miles of the earth instead of forty miles, and have the view even more distinct, is the work which, after nine years of study and experiment, Mr. Thos. Preston Brooke hopes to accomplish, says the London Express.

Mr. Brooke is better known as a leader of bands and orchestras than as an astronomer, yet he has always spent his leisure moments in the study of the stars, and for the last nine years has been bringing to fruition plans for a telescope which he contends will obviate many of the defects in the largest and most modern instruments, and work wonders in bringing the heavenly bodies within range of mortal vision.

Mr. Brooke is at present getting estimates of the cost, and time required for the construction of his huge telescope. While the work was merely in the tentative stage he was extremely reticent in regard to his scheme; but now that he has substantial proof that he can accomplish his purpose, he has consented to give the public an account of his plans.

Obviating the blur occasioned by an indistinct focus by means of concentrated reflections of the telescope image is the feature of Mr. Brooke's plans which distinguishes his telescope from others. The reason that the image of a planet seen in the small end of a telescope is blurred and indistinct is that the telescope is near-sighted, just as are some people; and from a study of near-sighted people he has hit upon his scheme of reflections to counteract this evil.

The instrument planned by Mr. Brooke, and for which he has obtained estimates, calls for the largest lens ever fitted on a telescope, being fifty-four inches in diameter.

The cost of this lens alone will be about $2,000. Mr. Brooke has interested others in his scheme, and it is probable that the tubing of the telescope will be contributed by some manufacturer, and that others will contribute toward building a suitable observatory for the instrument.

It is Mr. Brooke's intention not to give the telescope to any institution, but to make a public observatory for it, so that students and laymen alike may reap the benefits from it.

"The greatest difficulty, of course with large telescopes," says Mr. Brooke, "is in securing a perfect focus."

"Now, no matter how large the lens the vision a telescope conveys to us can be sharpened and made distinct by reflection, not once, but several times, and it is possible in reflection to concentrate without reduction. This idea will be carried out and perfected in my telescope."

"The nearest moon can be brought to us by any modern telescope is a little over forty miles. In this connection permit me to quote from Flammarion: 'Now, I ask, what can be distinguished and recognized at such a distance? The appearance or disappearance of the pyramids of Egypt would probably pass unnoticed.'"

"I believe that with my instrument we shall be able to obtain a distinct vision of the moon at a distance of about eight miles, in which event it will soon be conclusively determined whether or not atmosphere or life exists on that planet."

THE WEEK ABROAD.

The Varied Happenings of Many Foreign Lands.

The sugar conference at Brussels has reached the critical stage of its proceedings, having before it, it seems, an ultimatum of the British delegates to the effect that unless the present bounty favors to Continental beet-sugar growers are reduced to one-fifth of the present amount England and India, the chief markets for beet sugar, will impose "countervailing" duties on imported beet sugar, thus promoting the prosperity of cane-sugar growers. Bounties on beet sugar have almost ruined a number of British colonies which produce cane sugar. They are an artificial interference with the course of nature, and the British colonists cry aloud for protection. Cuba and Porto Rico will profit by a countervailing duty. So will the British Treasury, which needs additional revenue.

THAT ALLIANCE.

The Anglo-Japanese alliance has been variously received by the various powers concerned in its provisions. The Chinese government rejoices to have found powerful protectors. The Cossack will not be yielded to hereafter when ever he shakes his knout. The Son of Heaven will look to Japan and England for advice when asked by the Czar to give away a province or two. Manchuria will be watched closely by Japan, and a Chinese army trained by Japs may be expected to extend its lines imperceptibly in that quarter. The new alliance applies explicitly to Manchuria. When the Anglo-German agreement was made England thought, it seems, that she was welcoming Germany's presence in the Yangtze Valley in exchange for an obligation to help protect the open door in Manchuria, but it was announced afterward at Berlin that Germany undertook no obligation with respect to Manchuria, being intent only upon getting "in the sun" on the Yangtze. The alliance with Japan now fills that gap, and all Korea and all China are now thought to be safe from dismemberment.

REALLY IMPORTANT.

But a more potent and efficient document than the Anglo-Japanese agreement in respect to Manchuria is the "note" sent by Secretary Hay to the Czar. This was sent after the Secretary knew about the Anglo-Japanese treaty, and supplements it in a searching and important way. England and Japan dealt apparently with the coast of China, but the note extends the gaze of the watchful Yankee eye into the interior, protesting not only against any appropriation by Russia of Manchuria or other port, but also against any Russian monopoly or special privilege in the interior. America has treaty rights in all parts of China, including those parts which Russia wishes to absorb. Americans must trade, mine, railroad, etc., everywhere on equal terms with any Russian not only at Ninghsiang, but even on the northern border of Manchuria. If the American's rights are invaded it is an unfriendly act—and the fat's in the fire.

THE WAY IT WILL WORK.

But wherever an American goes the Jap can go and so exclusive Russian control is destroyed. Thus the United States, though not a party to the new alliance, adds to its force and provides a scheme for working it in the interior of China. No wonder that the Czar has already assured the British Ministry that Manchuria, which he only "temporarily" occupies, is to remain a treaty port, open to all comers, as before. The Chinese crisis has passed, it seems, and the dismemberment of the Celestial Kingdom is averted.

IRELAND.

The government proposes, it is said, to take strong measures to resist the United League's effort to control Ireland. In a recent speech the Secretary for Ireland condemned the United League, declaring it a political machine which constituted a grave menace to the community. He said the league had corrupted the whole moral fiber of Ireland and declared the only course of dealing with it to be the stern application of the Criminals act.

FREE AT LAST.

Miss Stone's release by the Macedonian brigands on the receipt of a ransom of $72,500 is joyous news for the missionary's admirers. The effort to regain the amount from the Sultan will perhaps fail, since Miss Stone went into a disturbed district against the protest of the Turkish officials.

DISTURBANCES.

Riots at Bucharest, Kieff, Trieste and other points in Eastern Europe, with like disturbances in Italy and Spain, point to an unwholesome economic situation. At Kieff a bad symptom is the readiness of laborers to join with the students in riotous outbreaks. There seems to be general discontent. The grand role Russia plays, keeping the world in anxiety, costs heavily and the poor suffer.

A EUROPEAN MONROE DOCTRINE.

The Hungarian Premier suggests to his Parliament that the necessity might some day arise for Europe to enforce a "commercial Monroe doctrine" against the United States. Our tariff has ruined many of Austria-Hungary's manufactures, while our grain destroys the market for her cereals. Hence a desire to put some curb upon our competition.

GERMANY.

The tariff fight is bitter in the Reichstag and the Agrarians have won in the Tariff Committee, getting higher duties on wheat, oats and barley. The government may withdraw the bill but the Agrarians in that case will block desired legislation. The hatred of England finds expression in "unlimited vituperation" in the Reichstag by members who resent the refusal of the British to let provisions, etc., be sent to the refugee camps and to let German ambulance corps go. The British say that plentiful provisions, medicines, nurses, etc., are supplied to the camps; that as a matter of fact no such want exists as the organizers of Boers charities imagine; that to let Germany send things to South Africa would imply an admission that they are needed, which is not a fact. Petitions for intervention also pour in. War between the two great branches of the Teutonic race is feared by those who note the growing animosities.

Meanwhile the warm welcome given in this country to Prince Henry delights the Fatherland.

OUR EMPIRE.

The capture of General Lukban, the famous leader of the Samar insurgents, is considered a long step toward the ending of our Filipino war. At Washington the capture of General Lukban is regarded as the most important military event since Aguinaldo's capture. General Lukban has been one of the most energetic of the Filipinos; of Chinese and Filipino stock, he has been an irreconcilable from the first. The capture of General Cortez is also important.

LATIN AMERICA.

General Castro's re-election for six years is ratified by the Congress, but the rebels are yet to be heard from. Official bulletins record numerous victories, but the opposition says the insurrection is spreading.

General Mator revolutionary steamer Libertador is said to have landed arms, ammunition and reinforcements at Pedernales, in the Gulf of Paria. The Venezuelan Government continues to cause numerous arrests here and there of persons believed to be hostile, with the result that the population generally is becoming exasperated.

Let the People Elect their Senator.

St. Louis Republic.

There is little necessity for The Republic to announce its hearty approval of the action of the House of Representatives in favor of the amendment providing for the election of United States Senators by a direct vote of the people.

The Republic has for many years extended an unqualified support to this proposition, and proposes to continue along this line with a confident hope of ultimate success. The sentiment in favor of the election of United States Senators by a popular vote has been growing steadily. There is excellent reason to believe that this sentiment has now attained a forcefulness which will compel the attention and proper action of the Senate. The House can usually be relied on to indorse the proposition.

The people of this country have repeated object lessons of the evils attaching to the present system of electing Senators by legislative vote. Expensive and wearying legislative deadlocks, resulting often in the election of men who could not have been elected through an appeal to the people, have not been without their effect on the popular mind. There has been more than one instance of the usefulness of a legislative session being utterly destroyed owing to such a deadlock in a senatorial election. The people have apparently reached the conclusion that their wisest course is to elect United States Senators by direct vote, leaving legislators free to transact the business of lawmaking for which they are sent to the State Legislature.

The United States Senate itself should promptly and willingly testify to its perception of the truth by making favorable action on the bill providing for senatorial elections by popular vote. A contrary course would seem very like the members of that body were acting from purely selfish motives and in fear of the people, or, at least, in grave distrust of the wisdom of the people. This would be an astounding confession on the part of an American representative body. Such a confession should not be possible. The United States Senator who believes that the people are not competent to choose a Senator holds his seat in the Senate under false pretenses.

Babies and children need proper food, rarely ever medicine. If they do not thrive on their food something is wrong. They need a little help to get their digestive machinery working properly.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL

will generally correct this difficulty.

If you will put from one-fourth to half a teaspoonful in baby's bottle three or four times a day you will soon see a marked improvement. For larger children, from half to a teaspoonful, according to age, dissolved in their milk, if you so desire, will very soon show its great nourishing power. If the mother's milk does not nourish the baby, she needs the emulsion. It will show an effect at once both upon mother and child.

TILLMAN AND McLAURIN CENSURED.

The Resolution of Censure Adopted After Much Debate and the Incident Officially Closed.

Washington, Feb. 28.—Senators McLaurin and Tillman, of South Carolina, to-day were severely censured by the United States Senate. The administration of the censure grew out of the sensational personal encounter between the two Senators on the floor of the Senate last Saturday during the consideration of the Philippine tariff bill. The adoption of the resolution of censure probably closes the incident, so far as official action of the Senate is concerned. Immediately after the Senate convened today, Mr. Burrows, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, to which the McLaurin-Tillman controversy had been referred, reported the resolution of censure framed by a majority of the committee. Accompanying the resolution was a report narrating the events which led up to the fight between the two Senators and setting out the conclusions of the majority. A brief statement was presented by Senators Bailey, Blackburn, Pettus, M. J. Foster and Dubois, Democratic members of the committee, dissenting from some conclusions of the majority. They agree, however, to the resolution offered. A minority report was presented by Senators McComas, Beveridge and Pritchard, Republicans, who maintained that the adoption of a resolution of censure was not sufficient punishment. Practically there was no debate on the resolution, although Mr. Gallinger and Mr. Platt, of Connecticut, made it in brief statements that the resolution was not quite satisfactory to them. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 54 to 12.

When Mr. Tillman's name was called he added a new sensation to the proceedings by rising and saying with ill-concealed emotion: "Among gentlemen an apology for an offense committed under heat of blood is usually considered sufficient."

At the request of Mr. Burrows the statement of Mr. Tillman was read by the clerk. Instantly the South Carolina Senator disclaimed any intention of being offensive to the Senate and said that if his remarks were so considered he would withdraw them. The chair (Mr. Frye) said that by unanimous consent they might be withdrawn, but Mr. Peirich, of Nebraska, objected. The incident was closed without further comment.

When the Senate was called to order today a notably large attendance of Senators was on the floor and the galleries were thronged. Both Senators McLaurin and Tillman, of South Carolina, were in their seats. Great interest was manifested by Senators on the floor and by spectators in the galleries in the reading of the journal, which contained the protest of Mr. Tillman against not being permitted to vote while under the ban of the Senate's order of contempt. Mr. Burrows, of Michigan, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, presented the following resolution which had been formulated by that committee:

"That it is the judgment of the Senate that the Senators from South Carolina, Messrs. McLaurin and Tillman, for misbehavior and flagrant violation of the rules of the Senate during the open session of the Senate on the 23d day of February, deserve the censure of the Senate and they are hereby censured for their breach of the privileges and dignity of this body; and from and after the adoption of this resolution the order adjudging them in contempt of the Senate shall be no longer in force and effect."

Mr. Burrows presented the report of the majority of the committee, which was read. The report recited the history of the altercation in the Senate and quoted the language then used by the offenders. All agreed to this statement. The report then continued as follows:

"The majority of the committee are of the opinion that the legal effect of the adjudging of these Senators in contempt of the Senate was to suspend their functions as Senators and that such punishment for disorderly behavior is clearly within the power of the Senate, but the conclusion they have reached makes it unnecessary to discuss this question. The offenses committed by the two Senators were not, in the opinion of a majority of the committee, of equal gravity."

"Mr. McLaurin did not commence the encounter, but only stood in his place at his desk, where he was speaking and resisted the attack that was made upon him. In other words, his offense was confined to the use of unparliamentary language, for which he had unusual provocation. Nevertheless, his offense was a violation of the rules of the Senate of so serious a character that in the opinion of the committee, it should be condemned."

"In the case of Mr. Tillman, The Record shows that the altercation was commenced by the charge he made against Mr. McLaurin. Such a charge is inexcusable, except in connection with a resolution to investigate. Mr. Tillman not only made the charge without any avowal of a purpose to investigate, but also disclaimed knowledge of evidence of the offense, which he said after the charge had been made specifically, and denied by Mr. McLaurin. Such a charge under the circumstances would be resented by any man worthy to be a Senator; but, made as it was in this instance, its offensiveness was greatly intensified. The feature of this offense, coupled with the fact that he also commenced the encounter by quitting his seat some distance away from Mr. McLaurin, and rushing violently upon him, struck him in the face, makes the case one of such exceptional misbehavior that a majority of the committee are of the opinion that this offense was of much greater gravity than that of Mr. McLaurin. The penalty of a censure by the Senate in the nature of things must vary with proportion to the public sense of the gravity of the offense of which the offender has been adjudged guilty. Therefore, notwithstanding the fact that in the opinion of a majority of the committee there is a difference in the gravity of the offense under consideration, the committee are of the opinion that that public good and the dignity of the Senate will be alike promoted and protected, so far as this particular case is concerned, by imposing upon each Senator by formal vote the censure of the Senate for the offense by him committed and, therefore, recommend the adoption of the resolution."

The county commissioners were in session Monday and a part yesterday. Aside from routine business, there seems to be no important business before the board. A jury was drawn for the April term, two or three road matters were considered, but not finally disposed of, and a liquor license was granted King & Oakley.

When we hear numerous complaints of irregularity in the delivery of the Paymaster at certain country postoffices we suspect that there is something afoot to carelessness, if not criminal negligence, in the management of those offices. People who take newspapers should remember that their paper mail is entitled to as much consideration as letter mail on the part of the postmasters, and a complaint lodged with the department will go a great ways in correcting matters.

From the preparations that are being made at Matthews & Ozburn's store it looks as though they expect to have a big spring trade. This firm adopted the cash system on the 15th of September, 1891, and since that date have adhered strictly to it. They claim that they can supply the trade with goods in their line at a much less figure than they could under the old system. We see no reason why they cannot. It is reasonable to suppose that a man doing a credit business sustains heavy losses in contracting bad debts, besides, a business of that kind requires more help. Take your dollar to them and see what its purchasing power is.

Superior Court Jurors for April.

The commissioners drew a jury Monday for the approaching civil term of court, which meets on Monday, April 14, and lasts but one week. Instead of the old method, which allowed every township in the county representation on the juries, the law now provides that the name of every man in the county eligible to jury duty shall be placed in a box and the juries selected from it at random. The disadvantage of such a system is apparent from the list which follows, in which it will be seen that one township, High Point, has five representatives on the April jury and eight townships have no representation. At the last term of court not a single juror was drawn from High Point. Under the present system there is nothing to prevent all the jurors being drawn from any one township if the names should happen to come from the box in that order. Of course such is not likely to occur, but it is possible. The greatest need for general representation is felt, perhaps, in the grand jurors, but they have to be formed like the others, in a hit or miss fashion. The next legislature will lose little time in amending the objectionable law.

The Hubbards Bound Over.

Justice Pritchett yesterday bound over to the Superior court John and Emily Hubbard, the two old negroes charged with being implicated in the murder of Seymour Shoffner in Greene township, ten days ago. The preliminary hearing was attended by a good portion of the population of the neighborhood in which the murder occurred. Only five of the twenty witnesses summoned were examined and their demeanor was about the same as on the occasion of the coroner's inquest, the only difference being in the testimony of one or two of the witnesses who attempted to shoulder the responsibility of the murder on an absent negro, John Hester, a negro, who, at the inquest, swore that he neither saw the shooting nor knew who fired the gun, testified yesterday afternoon that he saw Wilson Nelson, a negro who has since departed, take a gun from one of the Hubbard negroes and fire at Shoffner. The defense did not introduce any testimony, but relied on the plea that the state had not shown probable cause. It is a very peculiar case and many people believe that it will be impossible to get at the bottom of the matter. The attorneys for the prosecution admitted to the court yesterday that they were embarrassed by the unwillingness of their own witnesses to testify to anything that would incriminate John Hubbard, who wields a powerful influence in the community through the agency of wild-at-whiskey, in which he has been dealing for years. There are several indictments against the defendants for retailing, but the hearing of these was postponed until next Tuesday.

Still Fighting for Freedom.

Raleigh Post.

Another and perhaps the final chapter in the case of the gold-brick men, Howard, Hawley and Daly, who were sent to the penitentiary last year from Guilford, is about to be enacted.

The public is familiar with the stubborn fight put up by these men through able counsel from the time they were arrested in the act of swindling or attempting to swindle Mr. Paul Garrett, of Weldon, until their conviction and sentence. Then the fight was pushed through the state Supreme court, the judgment of the lower court affirmed and the prisoners were brought to the penitentiary and there confined. It was thought that when the great prison gates of that institution closed behind them it was all over.

But not so. Mr. J. L. Gilmore, the Chicago lawyer employed by these men, came to Raleigh, and, aided by ex-Judge W. P. Bynum, of Greensboro, procured a writ of habeas corpus from Judge Purnell, brought the prisoners out from the penitentiary to the Federal court room, and in an all-day session threshed the case over again in an effort to release them. Judge Purnell heard the matter patiently and dismissed the writ remanding the gold-brickers to the custody of the warden of the penitentiary.

That was to be the end, as everybody thought; but notice of appeal from Judge Purnell's decision was given. Lawyer Gilmore, undaunted by repeated defeats, left town, saying he would yet "take those boys out of the penitentiary." Since then the matter has been at rest apparently.

Yesterday it was revived again, when Mr. E. J. Best, acting as local counsel for Howard, Hawley and Daly, secured from Chief Justice Furches a writ of error to the Supreme court of the United States. Mr. Best says the case will also go up on appeal from Judge Purnell's decision in the habeas corpus matter, and that the case, both on the writ of error and on the appeal, will likely be heard by the United States Supreme court in April or May. The effect of the writ of error will be to open the case before the United States Supreme court for a review of the proceedings in the Superior and Supreme courts.

The consensus of opinion is that this last effort will fail to liberate the prisoners, who are now serving what the courts of this state and the public generally believe to be just sentences in the state penitentiary.

CAUGHT IN SNOWSLIDE.

Between 35 and 75 Colorado Miners are Overcome.

Telluride, Col., Feb. 28.—The most terrible snowslide ever known in Colorado caused the death of from thirty to seventy-five men at the Liberty Bell mine, on Smuggler mountain, today.

Although the scene of the disaster is scarcely two miles from this town, information is difficult to obtain on account of the precipitous character of the roads and the great amount of snow. Nearly all the buildings in the Liberty Bell mine were carried down by the slide, all the books which show the number and the names of the men employed being lost, so that the death list can hardly be known for some hours, possibly not until the rescuers shall have removed the immense quantity of snow, rocks and logs from the canyon where the victims lie buried.

It seems that two slides occurred practically in the same place, the second burying those who were trying to rescue the victims of the first.

The first slide occurred at 7:30 o'clock this morning, while the men of the day shift were preparing for their day's work. About 200 men are employed in the mines and mills of the Liberty Bell Company, and less than half this number were at work at the time of the accident. The others were in the boarding house or bunk-house nearby. Both these buildings were carried down the mountainside a distance of 2,000 feet and crushed by tons of snow. A little after noon a second slide, starting a short distance above the first and practically following its track, swept down the mountainside, burying many of the rescuers.

A third slide came down at 3 o'clock, about a mile below the Liberty Bell mines, and three men who were on their return from the scene of the first accident, were swept away.

Prince Henry received ovations in St. Louis and Chicago this week.
