LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF FORM

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO THE READERS OF THE PATRIOT FAR AND NEAR.

Mr. J. Henry Phipps is confined to his home on Asheboro street by an attack of grip.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Tucker, of New York, are in the city on a visit to relatives. They are accompanied by Mrs. Tucker's mother, Mrs. Vond, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Rev. Dr. Gilbert T. Rowe, president of the Greensboro Methodist district, is recovering from an attack of grip that has kept him confined to his home on Summit avenue for about a week.

David Nixon, of Randolph county, was given a hearing before United States Commissioner Collins yesterday on the charge of operating an illicit distillery and held for the United States District court under $5,000 bail.

Mr. V. Richards, of Washington, D. C., and industrial agent of the Southern Railway, is a visitor in Greensboro today. He will address the members of the Chamber of Commerce at the Elks Club this evening at 8 o'clock.

The city commissioners are preparing to order an election on the question of issuing $100,000 in bonds for further street improvements. It is estimated that this amount of money will be required to put all the streets of the city in good condition.

Mr. Henry L. Hanner has moved from Pleasant Garden Route 1 to Julian, where he is working for the North State Nursery Company.

A good delegation of Greensboro people went to Jamestown this morning to attend the county Sunday school convention.

In this issue of The Patriot will be found a card from Mr. Delos E. Hammer, of High Point, announcing his candidacy for the Democratic nomination as a representative from Guilford in the lower house of the next assembly. He announces the measures for which he stands and lists which he asks the support of the Democratic voters.

An ordinance was passed yesterday by the city commissioners requiring all persons, firms or corporations in Greensboro dealing in deadly weapons to keep a book in which shall be registered every sale made of such a weapon. The book shall show the kind of weapon sold, together with the name, age and address of the purchaser, and shall be open at all times to the inspection of the police.

Mr. Charles N. Norman and Miss L. B. Elliott were married Tuesday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Elliott, on Rankin street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. B. D. Sherrill, pastor of Central Methodist church, and was witnessed by relatives and a few friends. Upon their return from a short trip to Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Norman will be at home in evening.

The Home Lending and Loan Association, which was chartered recently, was organized by electing the following directors: E. F. Whart, Jr., J. B. Douglas, J. R. Edwards, J. B. Linnell, J. P. Saunders, J. L. Crooks, J. A. Klemmer, J. M. Lewis, J. A. Odell, N. E. G. White and H. R. Bush. Officers have been elected as follows: E. P. Whart, president; J. J. Stone, vice president; N. E. White, secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Thomas J. Shaw has filed with the clerk of the court his name as a candidate in the coming election May 16 for the Democratic nomination for judge of the Superior court of the twelfth judicial district. Judge Shaw was appointed judge of this district by Governor Craig about a year ago, following the redistricting of the state by the legislature, and it is expected that he will be nominated without opposition. The district embraces Guilford, Davidson and Stokes counties.

Death of Aged Citizen.
Mr. William Gray, of Colfax, one of Guilford's oldest citizens, died at his home Tuesday morning from the infirmities of age. The funeral and interment took place yesterday at Shady Grove church. Mr. Gray was 84 years old and a man who held the confidence and esteem of the people who knew him. He leaves a son and three daughters.

COURT HOUSE CASE IS POSTPONED UNTIL MAY.

When the April civil term of Superior court convened Tuesday morning the first case called was the suit instituted to clear the title to the court house property, in order that the county commissioners might be able to make a valid deed to the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company, but after some sparring by the lawyers, the matter was continued to the May term of court. The motion for a continuance was made by attorneys for the defendants and was resisted by counsel for the plaintiffs, the latter urging the importance of an early settlement of the matter. The next civil term of court will convene May 11, and Judge Lane ordered that the court house case be set first on the calendar.

County Attorney John N. Wilson and Brooks, Sapp & Williams, represent the county commissioners, and the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company in the litigation. King & Kimball and J. W. F. Bynum appear for the defendants, who are: W. C. Porter, W. A. Porter, Logan Porter, Ruth Porter Adams, Mary E. Caldwell, W. A. Caldwell, Lizzie Caldwell Johnson, John Parker, W. T. Fockwell, A. W. Cooke, John A. Barringer, W. F. Lynum, John Johnson and J. H. Adams.

The case will go to the Supreme court for final adjudication, and it had been hoped that it might be settled on appeal before the Supreme court adjourns for the summer.

Transfers of Real Estate.

Deeds conveying real estate have been recorded within the past few days as follows:

H. L. Coble and W. E. Blair to William H. Allen, a farm of 127 acres in Fentress township.

The Southern Real Estate Company to Mrs. Nettie V. Chisholm, house and lot on Douglas street.

Real Estate and Trust Company to W. W. Bennett, a farm of 50 acres in Fentress township.

L. A. Caviness to Charles C. Dorsett, house and lot on Bragg street.

John M. Dick to H. E. Gilliam, house and lot on Church street.

H. M. Matthews to Kate R. Kearns, residential lot in H. H. Point.

R. H. Wheeler to J. F. Taylor, residential lot in High Point.

Charles C. Dorsett to S. A. Caviness, house and lot on Gregory street.

B. B. Phillips to S. A. Caviness, lot on Bragg street.

W. F. Hutton to L. Richardson, lot in Jordan-Milliken subdivision, near Pomona.

Moving Pictures of County Commencement.

County Superintendent Foust has arranged with the Southern Amusement Company, of Greensboro, to take moving pictures of the school parade and other features of the county commencement at the Central Carolina fair grounds Saturday and also of the civic parade that will follow the commencement exercises. It will take about ten days to have the pictures developed and they will then be exhibited at one of the local moving picture shows.

220 Graduates Will Receive Certificates.

The names of 220 boys and girls who are graduating from the elementary public schools of Guilford county have been reported to Superintendent Foust for certificates that will be awarded at the county commencement Saturday, and the names of others probably will be reported. Each of the pupils will be presented with a handsome certificate bearing witness to the fact that he or she has finished the seventh grade and is entitled to enrollment in the high school. Each certificate will bear the signature of Thomas R. Foust, county superintendent; Dr. W. T. Whitsett, chairman of the board of education, and the pupil's teacher.

Mrs. Elmira Ashworth Dead.

Mrs. Elmira Ashworth died last night at 8:30 o'clock at the home of her son, Dr. W. C. Ashworth, on South Spring street. She was 66 years of age and had been an invalid for the past six years. The body was carried this morning to Asheboro, the former home of the deceased, for the funeral and interment. Mrs. Ashworth was a member of a well known Randolph county family, being a daughter of the late Enoch Brookshire.

Horse Thief Works Smooth Game.

Mr. W. R. Knight, who resides near Rocky Springs, between Stokesdale and Madison, was victimized a few days ago by a smooth horse thief to the tune of $155. The stranger, who gave his name as W. M. Knight and claimed Danville, Va., as his home, showed up in Greensboro Friday and hired a horse and buggy from the King-Stewart Livey and Sales Company, saying he desired to drive to Summerfield.

When the man failed to return, the owners of the horse became uneasy and began to make inquiries. Sunday Mr. Jule Stewart heard that a man answering the description of the stranger had been seen with a horse and buggy at Stokesdale and Madison. Mr. Stewart went to Madison, where he ascertained that Mr. W. R. Knight had bought his horse, paying the stranger $105 and giving his note for $50. The thief claimed that he didn't want to sell the buggy and left the vehicle in Madison, saying he would come or send for it in a few days.

Mr. Knight readily surrendered the horse to Mr. Stewart and the animal was brought back to Greensboro.

Superior Court Moving Slowly.

Things are moving rather slowly over in the Superior court, which convened Tuesday morning, the amount of business transacted so far being almost a negligible quantity. After continuing the court house case Tuesday, the court granted divorces in the following cases: Thomas A. Moss vs. Susie Moss, Alexander Nixon vs. Dulette Nixon, William H. Allen vs. Rosette C. Allen. Yesterday was spent in trying a suit brought by the Guilford Lumber Manufacturing Company against the Shaw Brothers Lumber Company. A judgment for $329 was given against the defendants, who were allowed a counter claim of $210 against the plaintiffs.

Chicago Capitalists Here.

A special train conveying 25 or more representatives of the Chicago Association of Commerce reached Greensboro this morning at 11 o'clock, coming to this city from Winston-Salem. The visitors were met at the railroad station by a delegation from the Chamber of Commerce and taken for an automobile ride over the city, after which they were entertained informally at the Merchants and Manufacturers' Club. The Chicago men, who are making a tour of the South, left this afternoon for Charlotte.

W. C. Sapp Dies at Advanced Age.

Mr. W. C. Sapp, an aged and well known citizen of Guilford county, died Saturday night at his home near Jamestown. He was in the eighty-second year of his age and had been in feeble health for several years, suffering from a form of stomach trouble. He was the last of a large family and is survived by a son, Mr. Alfred Sapp. He was a brother-in-law of Mr. Joseph M. Reece, editor of the Greensboro Daily Record. The funeral and interment took place Monday morning at Deep River church.

Orange Presbytery in Session at Madison.

The spring meeting of Orange Presbytery is in session at Madison, the opening service being held Tuesday night, when an address was made by Mr. A. W. McAlister, of this city, the retiring moderator. The Presbyterian pastors of the city and county, together with a number of laymen, are in attendance. Yesterday a very impressive memorial service was held for the late Rev. John A. Gilmer, who died last fall while pastor of the Presbyterian church of Mt. Airy.

Railroad Men in Conference.

The monthly conference of the division superintendents of the northern district of the Southern Railway was held here yesterday, in the office of the general superintendent, Mr. R. E. Simpson, who assumed the duties of the position yesterday. There is an unconfirmed rumor to the effect that the office of the general superintendent is to be moved from Greensboro to Richmond, in order that more room may be provided for other officials in the Southern's building here.

The members of the Y. M. C. A. will hold a "get acquainted social" at the association building tomorrow night.

FLEET TO MEXICAN WATERS

TO FORCE PUBLIC SALUTE TO STARS AND STRIPES AS SUITABLE APOLOGY.

President Wilson Tuesday ordered virtually the entire Atlantic fleet to Mexican waters to force a public salute to the Stars and Stripes from the Huerta government as an apology for the arrest of American marines at Tampico last Thursday. No ultimatum has been issued, that is, no specified time has been set within which the Huerta government must comply, but the naval demonstration has been ordered as a concrete evidence of the fixed determination of the United States to back up Rear Admiral Mayo's demand for a salute.

The decision to send the fleet was reached after the President and Secretary Bryan had conferred for an hour with John Lind, personal representative of the president in Mexico, and after a two-hour cabinet meeting, during which dispatches from Charge O'Shaughnessy revealed that the Huerta government disputed the right of American marines to be ashore at Tampico, and contended that no recent public statement of apology was ample.

Immediately after the cabinet meeting adjourned Secretary Daniels issued his order to the Atlantic fleet, and wireless messages flashed up and down the Atlantic coast to put the fleet under steam for Tampico.

It will be the largest fighting force the American government has assembled for possible action since the Spanish-American war. Forty-six warships and 21,000 men will comprise the force off Tampico.

Everywhere, at the White House, the state department and the navy department, the hope was expressed that the dispatch of the fleet would not lead to serious consequences, and there was a confident prediction among administration officials that General Huerta would satisfy the American demand and close the incident. Officials were careful to point out that negotiations with the Huerta government had not ended, and that the way was still open to General Huerta to make amends.

High administration officials do not expect critical developments, but they are prepared for any emergency. Secretary Bryan, who is ill, had intended to leave for Miami, Fla. He cancelled his reservation, and announced that he would stay in Washington indefinitely.

The Status of the Case.

The status of the case, as summed up by cabinet officers and other officials, was described as follows:

"Assistant Paymaster Charles C. Copp and a boatload of marines landed at Tampico last Thursday to obtain supplies. They were arrested but later discharged. In accordance with regulations in all navies of the world, Rear Admiral Mayo, on considering that an unwarranted arrest had been made and that the uniform of the American navy had been disregarded, demanded reparation in the form of a salute of 21 guns.

"The American flag, while not taken ashore, was flying at the stern of the whaleboat and all the marines were in uniform. Rear Admiral Mayo allowed the Huerta commander until 6 o'clock that evening to fire a salute, but later extended the time to afford the local commander an opportunity to communicate with his superior officers in Mexico City.

"A statement of apology was issued in Mexico City by General Huerta, and the officer who arrested the marines was ordered punished. This did not satisfy the United States government and the salute was insisted on. General Huerta himself at no time agreed to comply, but an under-secretary in the Mexican foreign office did inquire of Charge O'Shaughnessy if a salute fired to the gunboat Dolphin and responded to by the American ship would be acceptable. This was emphatically rejected by the United States and word was sent that nothing short of a public salute to the American flag would be satisfactory.

John Lind, it is understood, in his conference with the president and Secretary Bryan, had counseled a forceful move. For two hours the cabinet discussed the pros and cons and the possible consequences of drastic action; and the plan of sending the fleet as a warning to Huerta of the lengths to which the Washington government was prepared to go to enforce its policy, was unanimously adopted. There was no previous intimation that the naval demonstration would be ordered, but this as well as other moves had been discussed on many an occasion in the past.

Cabinet officers and others were insistent that no change in the general policy toward Mexico was imminent and that so far as possible the factions would be left to fight their battles unhindered by American interference. Officials declared with emphasis that no other phases of the Mexican situation beyond the affront to the flag at Tampico were involved in the dispatch of the fleet, though officials admitted the strategic value of having so big a fighting force in proximity to a country in which emergencies might arise at any time.

NINE-DAYS' BATTLE ENDS IN VICTORY FOR REBELS.

A report from Juarez, Mexico, states that a nine-days' battle, possibly more desperate than that at Gomez Palacio and Torreon, has resulted in a victory for the rebels under Gen. Francisco Villa.

The combined rebel force came upon the reunited federals, said in the last days of the battle to have numbered 15,000, at San Pedro de las Colonias, state of Coahuila, 40 miles east of Torreon. Killed and wounded on both sides, it is said, will number in the neighborhood of 3,000.

The rebels claimed to have taken 700 prisoners. The federal army is said to have included the Torreon garrison, led out of that city in retreat by General Velasco, those of General Maas, General Hidalgo, General De Moure and two others.

Maas, Hidalgo and De Moure were on their way to Torreon with reinforcements, but Velasco retired before their arrival. Since then, until the federal concentration at San Pedro and environs the Federals have been maneuvering in an endeavor to mobilize in force, while rebel detachments have scurried hither and thither between Viesca, Parras and San Pedro to prevent their concentration.

When the general engagement was brought on, it is reported that the battle line measured 20 miles in a semicircle about the city.

A telegram from General Villa asked for two million cartridges. There were no other details.

TO ASCERTAIN POSITION OF THE CANDIDATES.

During the next few days letters will be mailed by the North Carolina Anti-Saloon League to the chairmen of prohibition forces in all of the counties asking for information as to the position of all men who have announced themselves candidates for the legislature, both in the house of representatives and in the state senate, on the proposed enactment of a law to prohibit the shipping of liquor into the state.

Rev. R. L. Davis says that this step is being taken as a means of finding out the prospects for the passage of the proposed bill to prohibit the delivery of all liquors in the state. As soon as all of the chairmen have been heard from, the information thus secured will be collected and distributed over the state, so that the people may know whom they may vote for in the interest of the measures sought at the hands of the next general assembly.

The superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League is confident that the people will send up to the next session of the legislature men who may be depended upon to enact the laws that the organization is at the present time seeking as a means of keeping out of the state all liquor to be used for beverages. The league is going to assist in the work in every way possible, and it is to this end that the information is being secured.

Child Labor Pictures.

Mr. W. H. Swift, secretary of the North Carolina child labor committee, has on display in one of the windows of the Greensboro Drug Company a series of picture illustrating in a very effective and striking manner the evils of the employment of children in industrial enterprises. The pictures are actual photographs and tell their own story of the chain of evils resulting from the employment of children of tender years as bread-winners.

William Caspar, personal representative of Queen Eleanor, of Bulgaria, has arrived in New York to make arrangements for the visit of the queen to the United States. The queen will sail late in May and will visit all of the larger cities as far West as Chicago. She will remain in this country about five weeks.

NORTH CAROLINA NEWS NOTES

The Fenn Brothers Sis.ender Company, of Madison, has been chartered by the secretary of state to manufacture suspenders.

Paul C. Umstead, agent of the Norfolk & Western railroad at Wilmersville, Durham county, accidentally shot himself while cleaning a pistol Sunday morning and died in a short time.

At Lexington Monday morning, as the result of a quarrel, W. T. Childers shot at C. L. Rowe three times, one shot entering Rowe's hand, and then Childers fell dead from excitement.

Rev. Dr. Charles H. Durham, pastor of the Baptist church of Lumberton and president of the Baptist State Convention, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Crown Memorial Baptist church of Winston-Salem.

Dr. Charles L. Minor and Dr. William L. Dunn, prominent throughout the country as tuberculosis experts, will spend between $250,000 and $300,000 in the development of a sanitarium at Asheville for the treatment of tubercular patients.

State Senator Hector McLean, of Scotland county, was paralyzed last week while attending a meeting of Fayetteville Presbytery at Carthage. He was the author of the bill that created Scotland county and has represented that county in both branches of the legislature.

For the first time a North Carolina woman has been made president of the Southern Association of College Women, Miss Elizabeth Avery Cotton, of Meredith College, Raleigh, having been given this honor. She was elected at the annual meeting in Louisville, Ky., last week.

Dr. James Y. Joyner, state superintendent of public instruction, has been elected president of the Conference for Education in the South and of the Southern Educational Association, both organizations having held meetings simultaneously in Louisville, Ky., last week.

Charles S. Frivette, 23 years old, who resided at Spray, was shot and killed Saturday evening in Burlington by a companion, O. P. Clark. Both men are said to have been drinking and went to their boarding house after having had a fight on the street. Clark, who is in jail at Graham, claims that the shooting was accidental. Frivette leaves a wife and children.

According to testimony introduced at the hearing given Mrs. Mattie Edwards in the Asheville police court, on a charge of shooting John W. Edwards, her husband, two weeks ago, Edwards has two other wives, one residing in Graham county while another lives in Georgia. Edwards, who was thought to be fatally injured, had improved sufficiently to flee from the hospital. The case was continued and a warrant issued for Edwards.

Four suits for $50,000 each against the Standard Oil Company were settled in the Federal court in Charlotte last week by a consent judgment, the plaintiffs paying the costs. The suits were brought by Union county people as the result of a lamp explosion, in which two young women lost their lives and others were injured. It was alleged that the explosion was due to the poor quality of the oil. The suits have been in the courts a long time.

Roanoke Rapids disaster, April 13: A distressing accident occurred here this afternoon, when Ned, the three years old son of J. H. Watkins, fell into an unused well and was drowned. The well was located on the outskirts of town and was covered over with boards, which seemed to have been rotten and while the little fellow with a number of other children were on an Easter egg hunt he attempted to cross the well and the boards gave way causing him to fall in and he was drowned before help could arrive.

"GO TO CHURCH DAY" TO BE OBSERVED IN GREENSBORO.

It has been decided to make the first Sunday in May "Go to Church Day" in Greensboro, and an organized effort will be made to have every resident of the city attend divine services at some church on that day. The movement has the endorsement of the Greensboro Ministers' Association, and a committee of 100 or more men, representing the various churches of the city, is to be appointed to see to it that every man, woman and child in Greensboro receives a personal invitation to attend church services Sunday, May 3.

In other cities throughout the country where "Go to Church Day" has been observed the plan has been a success, and the local pastors are optimistic over the result of the campaign in Greensboro. The entire city will be divided in districts and the work of the committee will be systematically carried out. The campaign will begin at once, although the invitations have not yet been printed. The movement is the first of its kind ever launched here.

A GUILFORD COUNTY BOY WHO IS BEING HEARD FROM.

In its daily sketches of "Resistive Men of North Carolina" the Charlotte Observer Tuesday carried the following concerning a worthy young son of Guilford county who is making a name for himself in the field of education:

"There's so much of Edgar Whitson Scherer Cobb's full name that it will not go in one line of million caps of 13 em measure, and therefore the subject of this sketch was brought to your attention by degrees. There is quite a bit of E. W. S. physically, also, something over six feet and no pomp, four count d on the tally-sheet, either. The name stands for and the size supports progressive ideas in the schools of Polk county. At present Mr. Cobb is principal of the state high school at Columbus and county superintendent of education, also.

"In the beginning Edgar Whitson Scherer Cobb was in Guilford county, having been born on a farm September 25, 1877, at Sedalia. His parents, Jacob D. and Catherine Cobb, owned and operated a large farm and found a variety of things which could be done by their children. Until he reached young manhood, Edgar W. S. was no exception to the general rule that the farmer boy works. Always of a thoughtful nature, he early became a member of the Lutheran church and was made a deacon while yet in his teens. The schools in his district while he was growing up were two months in length. Attending these, he fitted himself for high school and in 1895 entered Jefferson Academy, walking six miles daily to get there and back. After his graduation from the academy in 1897 he taught in the public schools of Albemarle and Guilford counties for three years. In 1900 he graduated from the Georgia-Alabama Business College, of Macon, Ga., with a C. H. degree. The correspondent who furnished the facts for this article seems to have forgotten to ask Mr. Cobb what "C. H." stands for, but if used now in speaking of the possession of the degree it would mean "comfort at heart." In 1903 he entered Whitsett Institute as instructor in science and also took some higher work in the institution and normal training.

"Being a student at the University of North Carolina in 1904, he became a bachelor of arts in 1908 and also received a certificate in pedagogy and school organization. He did not complete his studies at the University, however, but in 1912 matriculated in Columbia University Graduate School, summer session, for a M. A. degree.

"On leaving Chapel Hill, Mr. Cobb went back into the school work, being first principal of the Mount Uta school, of Rowan county. To this position he was re-elected the next year—and with a 20 per cent increase in salary. Next he went to Morganton where he was superintendent of schools, a position which he resigned to take the principalship of the Columbus high school. For the four years since that time he has been in Columbus, the enrollment of the school increasing 500 per cent and his salary $712 per year. In July, 1913, without any solicitation on his part, he was elected county superintendent of schools and holds that job in connection with the principalship. Nor has the double job proven too much, for the schools of the county are taking on new life and the teachers showing better preparation.

"Mr. Cobb appears to have decided to stay in Polk county and owns a nice home in Columbus. He was married in 1909 to Miss Elizabeth Adela Shore, of Winston-Salem. There are three children, a son and two daughters.

"Progressive in all things and always ready to respond to any call, made upon him for public service, he is an active worker in the church and Sunday school and has so wrought as a teacher and a leader of teachers that the educational standard of Polk county has been materially raised."

Guilford Team Defeats Carolina.

The baseball teams of Guilford College and the University of North Carolina met in Greensboro Monday afternoon for their annual Easter game. Guilford triumphed by the score of 8 to 1, with Shore, Guilford's pride for three years, pitching masterly ball and his team working behind him in clock-like manner. Guilford hit Watkins and Aycock seemingly at will, and the whole Carolina team was up in the air. Guilford's entire team fielded like fiends, and Nichols, at short, was the particular star, his one-hand stab of H. Bailey's line drive in the fifth and his perfect throw to first constituting the fielding feature of the game. Woodall and K. Bailey, for Carolina, did its best work. The weather conditions were ideal and the game was witnessed by a crowd of nearly 2,000 rooters.

VITAL STATISTICS LAW—GUILFORD'S REGISTRARS.

A bulletin of the North Carolina state board of health gives the following information concerning the working of the vital statistics law, which requires the registration of all births and deaths:

"Now that the new state law requires that every birth and death be registered, a great many people want to know where to have such matters recorded, and how.

"It is all very simple. There is one person, known as the local registrar, appointed in each incorporated town by the mayor and in each township in the county by the chairman of the board of county commissioners. This local registrar is supplied with all blank forms for recording births and deaths and reports all such records each month to the state registrar at Raleigh.

"In the case of a birth the doctor or midwife who attends the birth reports the facts to the local registrar, and a birth certificate is made out giving the date of birth, sex of the child, and other statistical particulars regarding the names and address of the parents, and so on. Where there is no doctor or midwife in attendance, the parents are required to attend to this matter.

"In the case of a death the doctor fills out the medical cause of death on the death certificate furnished by the undertaker, and the undertaker secures the other statistical items, such as age, date of birth, occupation and so on from any one competent to furnish such information. Where there is no undertaker, the person who sells the casket at retail is required to place a blank death certificate and a printed instruction sheet (both of which are furnished by the state board of health) in each casket. Then the person acting as undertaker is required to fill out and file the death certificate with the local registrar."

NOTICE.

The United States of America, In the District Court of the United States for the Western District of North Carolina.

In the matter of J. T. Lambert, Bankrupt.

In Bankruptcy.

To the Hon. James E. Boyd, Judge of the District Court of the United States for the Western District of North Carolina:

J. T. Lambert, of Greensboro, in the county of Guilford, and state of North Carolina, in said District, respectfully represents: That on the 27th day of January, 1914, he was duly adjudged a bankrupt under the Acts of Congress relating to Bankruptcy; that he has duly surrendered all his property, and rights of property, and has fully complied with all the requirements of said Acts, and of the orders of the court touching his bankruptcy.

Wherefore, he prays that he may be decreed by the court to have a full discharge from all debts provable against his estate under said Bankruptcy Acts, except such debts as are excepted by law from such discharge.

J. T. LAMBERT, Bankrupt, Dated this April 9th, 1914.

Notice on Petition for Discharge. It is ordered by the court that a hearing be had upon the same on the 25th day of April, 1914, before G. S. Ferguson, Jr., Special Master, at Greensboro, N. C., in the said District at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice thereof be published in The Greensboro Patriot, a newspaper published in said District, and that all known creditors and other persons in interest appear at the said time and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered by the court that the clerk shall send by mail to all known creditors copies of the said petition and this order addressed to them at their place of residence as stated.

This April 14, 1914.

G. S. FERGUSON, JR., Special Master.

ROAD NOTICE.

A petition having been presented to the board of county commissioners by citizens and taxpayers of Friendship township asking for a road, beginning at the intersection of the Ridgefield road and the Friendship and New Salem roads, running south over the lands of Thomas Wakefield, J. A. Johnson and J. T. Drake and ending at the clay road in front of the bank formerly known as the Corner Store, now owned by C. W. Idol, this is to notify all persons objecting to same to appear before the board at its next regular meeting on Tuesday, May 5, 1914, and state said objection.

PAYING THE FIDDLER.

From all over this broad land comes the complaint of extravagant expenditures by every kind of government and of constantly increasing taxation to meet it. In some states the expense of administering the government has doubled in a decade and in a multitude of municipalities the expenditures are growing faster than population or property valuation. The demand upon Congress for appropriations for all manner of things exhausts the revenue of the national treasury faster than income taxes and tariff laws can produce it. There is only one remedy—constructive work. The complaint of extravagant public expenditures and heavy taxation is not so loud as the demand for every kind of public necessity or benefit that can be met in no other way. Cities must have usable streets, enough schools to educate the rising generation, parks and public buildings; counties demand good roads, better schools and more attention to public health and sanitation; states require institutions for charity and correction, a complex educational system, hospitals and sanitariums; the nation calls for river and harbor improvements, drainage, irrigation, railroads in Alaska, more and better government buildings in every congressional district and every kind of aid to industry and happiness.

These necessities and luxuries are not free boons of nature; they must be paid for, and often the same citizens complain loudly of taxation for the very benefit they clamored for. There is no magic about public help to the citizen. It is not something for nothing. Often constructive legislation is held back by substituting incompetent legislators for competent ones. Some times ideas of popular government have led the states and the nation away from ability. The man who has proven his incompetency in business management is sent to Congress to pass on great questions. The result is enfeebled government and waste. The principle runs down through state, county and municipal government.

The much heralded hopes of Americans who expect to be injured by the repeal of the tolls exemption clause of the Panama canal act have not indicated a desire to rush on the witness stand and tell the senate committee on Inter-oceanic canals their troubles. The repeal bill is before this committee, and desiring all the light there is to be had on the subject, members of the committee have sent out a blanket invitation to all who may be interested in the measure, either pro or con, to come forward and be heard, but the opponents of repeal are either very scarce or mighty shy. Of the ten witnesses stated to testify this week, all but three favor the repeal measure. With the shipping interests eliminated, there would be but little opposition to the bill.

Elsewhere in this issue of The Patriot appears an official call by Mr. A. Wayland Cooke, chairman of the Guilford county Democratic executive committee, for the committee to meet in this city on Saturday, April 25, to select a date for the county convention and for the transaction of any other business that may come before the committee.

FIVE TO ONE FOR REPEAL.

The most interesting and significant development in the spirited contest now being waged over the proposed repeal by Congress of the tolls exemption clause of the Panama canal act centers around a poll that is being taken of the delegates to the Baltimore convention. The Democratic platform adopted at Baltimore declared in favor of free tolls. This platform pledge has been the chief argument on the part of the opponents of repeal. It has been the Gibraltar from which they have been conducting their operations in opposition to the president's policy. Morning, noon and night they have pleaded the sanctity of a platform pledge. This plea is constantly on the lips of Democratic senators who are resisting repeal. It was constantly on the lips of the house leaders, who led one-fifth of the Democrats in that body against repeal.

In order to ascertain the sentiment of the delegates to Baltimore on the question of free tolls as detached from every other question, Senator Gore addressed an unbiased letter to the delegates asking each one whether he favored or opposed free tolls. Up to date the returns are alike astounding to the champions and opponents of repeal. The returns have been coming in rapidly, and the vote stands 338 in favor of repeal, 69 against repeal, and 11 non-committal—a ratio of five to one among the delegates for repeal, as the ratio among the Democratic congressmen was four to one. Only two states have given a majority against repeal. A number of them, so far as the votes have as yet been received, have declared unanimously in favor of repeal. The North Carolina delegates to the Baltimore convention endorse the repeal bill.

TRUST LAWS MAY WAIT.

Recent developments make it appear probable that anti-trust legislation will not be undertaken at this session of Congress on the broad scale originally planned by the administration. The tentatively outlined assumed proportions that precluded its accomplishment at this time, in view of other legislative problems confronting Congress, and because of conflicting opinions as to just what should be done. It has been suggested, and the plan meets with the approval of many party leaders, that Congress pass one bill which would create an interstate trade commission, with broad powers to investigate affairs of corporations and with specific authorization to inquire into the relation to commerce of interstate duties, rates, holding companies, stock water, the issuance of railroad securities and price discriminations which tend to destroy competition. The commission would be organized to the next Congress what further trust legislative legislation is deemed advisable for the welfare of the country.

There is one serious drawback to the successful carrying out of this program, and that is the opposition of President Wilson. He has expressed to party leaders his disapproval of any plan to curtail the anti-trust legislative program. He is firm in his opposition and insists that Congress enact the anti-trust legislation the administration feels the country needs, even if doing so should prolong the session until a fall.

SENATOR LEWIS OFFERS PANACEA TO THE NATION

United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, has introduced in the senate three bills which virtually contemplate the direction of all American business by a commission form of government. The first authorizes the United States government to build a certain number of merchant vessels, which shall remain the property of the government subject to lease to individuals, firms, or corporations, and further subject to requisition by the government for purposes of war.

The second seeks to create a "national commission of commerce and industry and to consolidate the regulation of supervision into a single body of transportation, banking, financing and manufacturing, and for the abolishment of all other commissions or agencies in conflict therewith."

The third frankly proposes the absorption by the federal government of all the common carriers and the highways over which they run, together with the leasing of such systems to private operators, retaining as its own power the regulation of rates and the earnings of operators.

Senator Lewis' commission bill, regarded by himself as the most important of the three, as explained by himself, seeks to create a commission of twenty-one, which actually will be a triplex organization, consisting of three subcommissions of seven members each. As Senator Lewis said, one is to have interstate commerce and steamships; one to have banking and finance; the third supervision over manufactures and the interstate shipment of manufactured articles. In a word, the three subdivisions of the projected commission take to themselves severally the work of the interstate commerce commission, the federal reserve board, and the proposed interstate trades commission.

In explanation, the author said: "The government is to issue bonds to buy and build the properties of railroads and steamship lines, the bonds and the interest thereupon to be liquidated only out of the earnings of the properties. These bonds are not to be a charge upon any taxpayer, of the present generation or to be met out of the general funds of the government. The plan is to be carried out in geographical zones so as to divide the undertakings into divisions until the entire country is covered—and existing systems absorbed."

Notice.

A meeting of the Guilford county Democratic executive committee is hereby called to meet at the county commissioners' room at the court house in said county on Saturday, the 25th day of April, 1914, at 12 o'clock, noon, for the purpose of calling the county convention and for the transaction of any other business that may come before said meeting. This the 15th day of April, 1914.

WHITSETT.

In the junior debates, which are always held during the Easter season, the medals were won as follows: In the Athenian debate on Saturday evening by E. V. Welch, of Beaufort county, who spoke on the affirmative of the question of the alien ownership of lands. The Dialectic debate was won by C. G. Somers, of Alamance county, who spoke on the negative of the government ownership of railroads. Large crowds attended both debates, the number of visitors being larger than for many years.

On Saturday the first team defeated the strong team from Mars Hill College in a game running to eleven innings and on Monday the second team took under cover the Highland team to the score of ten to five. Neither the first nine or the second nine has lost a game this season. On Thursday the boys will play the Twin-City league team at the Albert park at Winston-Salem. They have several strong players still on the list for the remainder of this season.

About fifty students went home for the Easter holidays. About all have returned and resumed their work.

The Y. M. C. A. held a most interesting Easter service Sunday morning with Bro. J. H. Joyner as the principal speaker. The special music for the occasion was of unusual beauty.

Several crowds in automobile went over to Winston-Salem for the Moravian Easter services. They started from here just after midnight and made the run in a little over two hours.

Miss Beulah McNemar, a reader of wide reputation, is tied for this place Friday night, the 17th.

Rev. Robert E. Redding delivered a fine sermon here Sunday evening on the origin of man, giving a very fine disquisition on the Darwinian theory of evolution among other excellent points.

The commencement program is about complete. The dates are May 16, 17 and 18.

The Whitsett cornet band expects to furnish music for the Guilford commencement at Greensboro April 18.

Deacons of Greensboro, has just completed the taking of the various group pictures of the school organization for this year. He has secured some fine groups. Many of these will appear in the new catalogue.

It is said Mrs. Whitsett are rejoicing over the arrival of a fine daughter at their home.

Robert Fitzgerald, of the University, W. Moser, of Guilford College, and school; Virgil Perrett, of Greensboro; Mrs. W. C. Rankin, of Charlotte; of Charlotte; G. C. Moore, of Burlington, and numerous others spent Easter here with friends.

Thompson a coupe has been completed and is now open to the public. This fine driveway opens up some beautiful lots that will doubtless sell well.

Whitsett and Oak Ridge are now trying to arrange a game of ball for Piedmont park in Burlington, on Saturday, April 25. With the string of victories now to the credit of each team for this year, a game between the two teams will be worth while to all lovers of ball.

Plans are under way to dedicate the M. E. church here some time soon. It is expected that Bishop John C. Kille will officiate on that occasion. Definite announcement will be made soon.

SHADY GROVE.

The Easter season passed off quietly. There were two egg hunts, one given by the Baptist Sunday school and the other by Miss Vesta Lineberry to about 25 of her little friends.

Mrs. J. H. Lewis, who has been quite ill for some time, has completely recovered, we are glad to note.

Misses Mary and Leila Kethie and Messrs. Floyd Fryar and Robert Sockwell visited at Mr. John Clapp's Saturday night and Sunday.

Mrs. S. D. Dick spent a few days in Greensboro last week.

The carpenters are progressing nicely with Mrs. H. A. Garrett's new residence. It will soon be ready for occupancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Kikman visited friends and relatives in this community Sunday and Sunday night, returning Monday morning to their home in Greensboro.

Misses Flossie and Jennie Burnside spent Sunday night with their sister, Mrs. E. L. Smith.

Mrs. S. M. Brown's mother, Mrs. Evans, from Raleigh, is spending the week with her.

Mr. William Lynch is remodeling his dwelling house.

The death angel visited the home of Mr. M. D. Stafford last Sunday morning and claimed for his victim their beautiful and beloved little daughter. She was only eight months old and her stay on earth was short, but during that brief time she had endeared herself not only to the fond parents, brothers and sisters, but to many friends and loved ones. The body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Alamance, the funeral services being conducted by the pastor, Rev. A. W. Crawford.

J. W. Scott Suggested For Legislature.

Editor Patriot:

While we are casting about for good men to represent Guilford in the next legislature, the writer desires to suggest the name of a splendid gentleman and loyal Democrat who is known and esteemed by all the people of Guilford county. I refer to J. W. Scott, of Greensboro. Mr. Scott has lived among the people of Guilford county about 70 years, and his record of uprightness and devotion to duty is known of all men. I have no idea that he has ever thought of asking for this or any other nomination, but I am satisfied that we couldn't select a better or truer man to represent us in Raleigh. A soldier of the Confederacy, a business man of unsullied reputation and sound judgment, a patriotic and progressive citizen, Mr. Scott combines the experience of mature years with the enthusiasm of youth. Do I hear a second to my motion that we draft J. W. Scott as a candidate for the legislature? PLAIN DEMOCRAT.

SOUTH BUFFALO.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Shaw spent Saturday night and Sunday at Mr. W. A. Jobe's.

Several from here attended the closing exercises of the Cedar Hill school last Saturday.

Mr. O. M. Fogleman and daughter, Miss Annie, spent Friday at Mr. J. W. Fogleman's.

Mr. and Mrs. Birdia Fogleman spent Saturday night at Mr. Ernest Allred's.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. McCall, from Winston, visited relatives in our community recently.

CLOSING EXERCISES OF COLFAX GRADED SCHOOL.

The closing exercises of the Colfax graded school were held Saturday, April 11, and a large crowd attended and seemed to enjoy the day. The exercises began with devotional services conducted by Rev. J. O. Gray. The children all did well and were a credit to themselves and teachers—Mr. Henry Cude, principal, and Misses Lamb and Jackson, assistants. The program was quite interesting and the best of order was maintained.

Dr. C. O. Meredith, of Guilford College, made an address on general education and the whole address was freighted with sense and good logic. He advocated the establishing of a high school at Colfax at an early date. He assured us that the state would employ the principal of such a school if we would get ready for and do the rest. It seems that no better place or one more convenient than Colfax could be selected for a high school. We don't remember having seen a larger gathering of young people in the country or a village. Dr. Meredith advocates the teaching in the public schools of the plan of marketing farm products and co-operation among farmers.

It verily seems that older farmers are too much for themselves to ever cooperate with or help each other much. It will have to be taught the rising generation, as other things in the public schools are taught.

At night the larger pupils gave a play entitled "The Man-Haters," which was well rendered and enjoyed by a full house.

The Colfax string band made excellent music, assisted in the day by Mrs. Grace Tucker at the organ and by Miss Carrie Morgan at night.

The day was bright and so was the night. All had a good time, but with sad hearts said good bye.

PLANNING FOR ANOTHER BETTER BABIES CONTEST.

Editor Patriot:

On county commencement day next Saturday the Women's Club hopes to see the heads of all the betterment societies, and with their help, discuss plans for the second better babies contest. The secretary of the Central Carolina fair, by consultation with physicians, feels that this contest meant much for babyhood last fall. He is now studying the comfort of mothers and babies for next fall and will build suitable rooms, which will be heated, for the use of the Women's Club committee in charge of the contest.

He also offers $125 in prizes. The prizes will be sent by mail and no mother will be forced to come to the fair to receive a prize. Score cards will also be mailed to the mothers. A beautiful certificate of examination will be given each baby examined, so the mothers can keep the scores. The first prize will be given for improvement.

Any mother who may take her baby out and cannot have an examination that day will be given a ticket of admittance for another day. Only one examination of each baby will be made.

The committee in charge hopes to add many prizes to the fair prizes.

A fund will be raised to be called "a fund for modified milk for frail babies," which will be placed at the disposal of city and county physicians to be used to bring strength and health to the frail babies of the poor.

Dr. W. M. Jones, the county health officer, will gladly answer any inquiries in regard to the contest.

RAMSEUR.

The commencement exercises of the Ramsour graded school will be held Saturday, beginning at 9:30 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. B. G. Leonard, who has been teaching at Why Not, is at home with his family.

The Liberty and Ramsour baseball teams will cross bats here Saturday.

The auditorium of the graded school building has been remodeled and well lighted by electricity.

Our people were shocked to hear of the sudden death of Mr. J. W. Cox, of Staley, Monday.

Mr. G. Foushee has been appointed postmaster of Ramsour. He will fill the office in a very acceptable manner.

Miss Sarah Cole, of Salem Female College, spent Easter at home.

Monticello Commencement.

The Monticello high school commencement begins Sunday morning, April 19, with the annual sermon, which will be preached by Rev. R. M. Andrews, of Greensboro. Exercises by the school Monday night, Tuesday night and Wednesday night, April 20, 21 and 22. Graduating exercises Tuesday night. Play Wednesday night.

The suffragettes have invaded Raleigh and an equal suffrage league is to be organized in the capital city Saturday.

NINE CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS HERE.

Beginning May 6 and continuing through May 20, nine civil service examinations will be held at the postoffice in Greensboro to secure eligibles for appointments to positions in various branches of the government service. The entrance salaries for these positions, which are mostly of a technical nature, range from $840 to $4,000 a year. All of the examinations are competitive, but in three of them it will not be necessary for those undergoing the tests to assemble before the examining board, the filing of papers with the commission at Washington being the only requirement.

Three of the tests are to be given to applicants for positions under the department of agriculture. That for assistant in poisonous plant investigations will be given on May 20, and from the register of the successful candidates appointment will be made to a position in the bureau of plant industry, at a salary ranging from $1,200 to $1,400 a year. Another examination, for the position of aid in grain standardization in the same bureau, will be given May 6. Appointment from this test will be made to an office in New Orleans at a salary of from $1,000 to $1,400 a year. Draftsmen will be given a chance to connect with a government salary on May 6-7, when a dual examination for assistant farm architect and barn architect in the department of agriculture will be held. These places carry an entrance salary of from $1,680 to $2,500 a year.

A trio of examinations which does not require the appearance of the candidates before any examining board will be conducted May 11, when the papers of applicants for three positions in the bureau of mines will be scanned by the civil service commission. An extensive educational training and a lengthy field experience is required of each candidate for these positions which pay attractive salaries. One test will be given for nine statisticians with a yearly salary of from $1,800 to $2,400 and another for assistant engineer of mine tests at the same salary. The mining engineer position for which candidates will be examined, pays from $2,400 to $4,000 a year.

From the register of eligibles resulting from an examination for superintendent of gas works to be held on May 6, an appointment will be made at $1,500 a year. On May 6 a test of candidates for the position of scientific assistant in the bureau of fisheries that pays a yearly salary of $1,200 will be conducted. Another examination will be given on the same day for the position of engineer and carpenter, a vacancy existing in a place of this nature at the Tohatchi boarding school, Navajo agency, Ariz., that pays $850 a year.

Applications for blanks or other information concerning the examinations should be made to the United States civil service commission at Washington or to Joseph H. Arnfield, secretary of the local examining board at Greensboro.

Test of Greatness.

There is no man who has never sacrificed his selfish desire for the sake of some other person, who has never felt a pleasure in undergoing some loss or trouble because it pleased somebody else. It is a truth that man is not a detached being, that he has a universal aspect; and when he recognizes this, he becomes great.—From "Sadhana—The Realization of Life," by Rabindranath Tagore.

Asked for Information.

The adult joke about "Keep still, can't you? The holy grail has just died," is matched by the anecdote of the two newboys watching the "Quo Vadis" pictures. "Please, mister," one of them asked of a good-natured man who sat near, "Which guy is Quo Vadis?"

Useless.

"After a man has invested in one of your get-rich-quick schemes, do you keep on sending him literature for your new enterprise?" "Certainly not," answered the promoter. "What's the use of wasting postage stamps on a man who is broke?"

The Awakening.

"Then," said the man who was preparing the sketch, "I shall say that you first saw life in the little village of Backwoodsville." "No," said Mr. Selfmade, "I was born there, but I didn't see any life till I came to New York."—Puck.

Improved Water Gauge.

To avoid accidents due to water gauge glasses appearing to be full while in reality they are empty, a glass has been invented with spiral markings that refraction makes appear horizontal when covered by water.

Instantaneous Housekeeping.

"I see a prominent New York club woman says you can do a day's housekeeping in ten minutes." "Something in that. Every notice the housemaid in a play? One swipe, and the room is in order."—Judge.

The suffragettes have invaded Raleigh and an equal suffrage league is to be organized in the capital city Saturday.

The Hollow of Her Hand

By
GEORGE BARR
MCCUTCHEON
Author of "Gaucho" and "The King of the Mountains"

Illustrations by Elsworth Young

He came upon it at last. For a long time he sat there gazing at the face of Hetty Castleton, a look of half-wonder, half-triumph in his eyes. There could be no doubt as to the identity of the subject. The face was hers: the velvety, dreamy, soulful eyes that had haunted him for years, as he now believed. In no sense could the picture be described as a portrait. It was a study, deliberately arranged and deliberately posed for in the artist's studio. He was mystified. Why should she, the daughter of Colonel Castleton, the grand-niece of an earl, be engaged in posing for what evidently was meant to be a commercial product of this whimsical artist?

Turning from a skillfully colored full page reproduction, he glanced at first casually over the dozen or more sketches and studies on the succeeding pages. Many of them represented studies of women's heads and figures, with little or no attempt to obtain a likeness. Some were half-draped, showing in a sketchy way the long graceful lines of the half-nude figure, of bare shoulders and breasts, of gauze-like fabrics that but lily concealed impressive charms. Suddenly his eyes narrowed and a sharp exclamation fell from his lips. He bent closer to the pages and studied the drawings with redoubled interest.

Then he whistled softly to himself, a token of simple amazement. The head of each of these remarkable studies suggested in outline the head and features of Hetty Castleton! She had been Hawkright's model!

The next morning at ten he was in Southlook, arranging his easel and canvas in the north end of the long living room, where the light from the tall French windows afforded abundant and well-distributed light for the enterprise in hand. Hetty had not yet appeared. Sara, attired in a loose morning gown, was watching him from a comfortable chair in the corner, one shapely bare arm behind her head; the free hand was gracefully employed in managing a cigarette. He was conscious of the fact that her lazy, half-alert gaze was upon him all the time, although she pretended to be entirely indifferent to the preparations. Dimly he could see the faint smile of interest on her lips.

Hetty came in, calm, serene and sweeter than ever in the clear morning light. She was wearing the simple white gown he had chosen the day before. If she was conscious of the rather intense scrutiny he bestowed upon her as she gave him her hand in greeting, she did not appear to be in the least disturbed.

"You may go away, Sara," she said briefly. "I shall be too dreadfully self-conscious if you are looking on."

Booth looked at her rather sharply. Sara indolently abandoned her comfortable chair and left them alone in the room.

"Shall we try a few effects, Miss Castleton?" he inquired, after a period of constraint that had its effect on both of them.

"I am in your hands," she said simply.

He made suggestions. She fell into the position so easily, so naturally, so effectively, that he put aside all previous doubts and blurted out:

"You have posed before, Miss Castleton?"

She smiled frankly. "But not for a really true portrait," she said. "Such as this is to be."

He hesitated an instant. "I think I recall a canvas by Maurice Hawkright," he said, and at once experienced a curious sense of perturbation. It was not unlike fear.

Instead of betraying the confusion or surprise he expected, Miss Castleton merely raised her eyebrows inquiringly.

"What has that to do with me, Mr. Booth?" she asked.

He laughed awkwardly.

"Don't you know his work?" he inquired, with a slight twist of his lip.

"I may have seen his pictures," she replied, puckering her brow as if in reflection. "Oh," she cried, with a bright smile of understanding. "I see! Yes, I have a double—a really remarkable double. Have you never seen Hetty Glynn, the actress?"

"I am sure I have not," he said, taking a long breath. It was one of relief, he remembered afterward. "If she is so like you as all that, I couldn't have forgotten her."

"She is quite unknown, I believe she went on, ignoring the implied compliment. "A chorus girl, or something like that. They say she is wonderfully like me—or was, at least, a few years ago."

He was silent for a few minutes, studying her face and figure with the critical eye of the artist. As he turned to the canvas with his crayon point, he remarked, with an unmistakable note of relief in his voice:

"That explains everything. It must have been Hetty Glynn, who posed for all those things of Hawkright's."

"I dare say," said she indifferently.

CHAPTER IX.

The Ghost at the Feast.

The next day he appeared bright and early with his copy of the Studio. "There," he said, holding it before her eyes. She took it from his hand and stared long and earnestly at the reproduction.

"Do you think it like me?" she inquired innocently.

"Amazingly like you," he declared with conviction.

She turned the page. He was watching her closely. As she looked upon the sketches of the half-nude figure a warm blush covered her face and neck. She did not speak for a full minute, and he was positive that her fingers tightened their grasp on the magazine.

He Was Watching Her Closely.

"The same model," he said quietly. She nodded her head.

"Hetty Glynn, I am sure," she said, after a pause, without lifting her eyes. Her voice was low, the words not very distinct.

He drew a long breath, and she looked up quickly. What he saw in her honest blue eyes convicted her.

Sara Wrاندall came into the room at that moment. Hetty hastily closed the magazine and held it behind her. Booth had intended to show the reproduction to Mrs. Wrاندall, but the girl's behavior caused him to change his mind. He felt that he possessed a secret that could not be shared with Sara Wrاندall, then or afterward. Moreover, he decided that he would not refer to the Hawkright pictures again unless the girl herself brought up the subject. All this flashed through his mind as he stepped forward to greet the newcomer.

When he turned again to Hetty, the magazine had disappeared. He never saw it afterward, and what is more to the point, he never asked her to produce it.

He thought hard over the situation. The obvious solution came to him: She had been at one time reduced to the necessity of posing, a circumstance evidently known to but few and least of all to Sara Wrاندall, from whom the girl plainly meant to keep the truth. This conviction distressed him, but not in the way that might have been expected. He had no scruples about sharing the secret or in keeping it inviolate; his real distress lay in the fear that Mrs. Wrاندall might hear of all this from other and perhaps ungente sources. As for her posing for Hawkright, it meant little or nothing to him. In his own experience, two girls of gentle birth had served as models for pictures of his own making, and he fully appreciated the exigencies that had driven them to it. One had posed in the "altogether." She was a girl of absolutely irreproachable character, who afterward married a chap he knew very well, and who was fully aware of that short phase in her life. That feature of the situation meant nothing to him. He was in no doubt concerning Hetty. She was what she appeared to be: A gentlewoman.

He admitted to himself that he was under the spell of her. It was not love, he was able to contend; but it was a mysterious appeal to something within him that had never revealed itself before. He couldn't quite explain what it was.

In his solitary hours at the cottage on the upper road, he was wont to take his friend Leslie Wrاندall into consideration. As a friend, was it not his duty to go to him with his sordid little tale? Was it right to let Wrاندall go on with his wooing when there existed that which might make all the difference in the world to him? He invariably brought these deliberations to a close by relaxing into a grim smile of amusement, as much as to say: "Serve him right, anyway. Trust him to sift her antecedents thoroughly. He's already done it, and he is quite satisfied with the result. Serve them all right, for that matter."

But then there was Hetty Glynn. What of her? Hetty Glynn, real or mythical, was a disturbing factor in his deductions. If there was a real Hetty Glynn and she was Hetty Castleton's double, what then?

On the fifth day of a series of rather prolonged and tedious sittings, he was obliged to confine his work to an hour and a half in the forenoon. Mrs. Wrاندall was having a few friends in for auction-bridge immediately after luncheon. She asked him to stay over and take a hand, but he declined. He did not play bridge.

Leslie was coming out on an evening train. Booth, in commenting on this, again remarked a sharp change in Hetty's manner. They had been conversing somewhat buoyantly up to the moment he mentioned Leslie's impending visit. In a flash her manner changed. A quick but unmistakable frown succeeded her smiles, and for some reason she suddenly relapsed into a state of reserve that was little short of sullen. He was puzzled, as he had been before.

The day was hot. Sara volunteered to take him home in the motor. An errand in the village was the excuse she gave for riding over with him. Heretofore she had sent him over alone with the chauffeur.

She looked very handsome, very tempting, as she came down to the car.

"By Jove," he said to himself, "she is wonderful!"

He handed her into the car with the grace of a courtier, and she smiled upon him serenely, as a princess might have smiled in the days when knight-hood was in flower.

When she sat him down at his little garden gate, he put the question that had been seething in his mind all the way down the shady stretch they had traversed.

"Have you ever seen Hetty Glynn, the English actress?"

Sara was always prepared. She knew the question would come when least expected.

"Oh, yes," she replied, with interest. "Have you noticed the resemblance? They are as like as two peas in a pod. Isn't it extraordinary?"

He was a bit staggered. "I have never seen Hetty Glynn," he replied.

"Oh? You have seen photographs of her?" she inquired casually.

"What has become of her?" he asked, ignoring her question. "Is she still on the stage?"

"Heaven knows," she replied lightly. "Miss Castleton and I were speaking of her last night. We were together the last time I saw her. Who knows? She may have married into the nobility by this time. She was a very poor actress, but the loveliest thing in the world—excepting our Hetty, of course."

If he could have seen the troubled look in her eyes as she was whirled off to the village, he might not have gone about the cottage with such a blithesome air. He was happier than he had been in days, and all because of Hetty Glynn!

Leslie Wrاندall did not arrive by the evening train. He telephoned late in the afternoon, not to Hetty but to Sara, to say that he was unavoidably detained and would not leave New York until the next morning. Something in his voice, in his manner of speaking, disturbed her. She went to bed that night with two sources of uneasiness threatening her peace of mind. She scented peril.

The motor met him at the station and Sara was waiting for him in the cool, awning-covered verandah as he drove up. There was a sullen, dissatisfied look in his face. She was stretched out comfortably, lazily, in a great chaise-longue, her black little slippers peering out at him with perfect abandon.

"Hello," he said shortly. She gave him her hand. "Sorry I couldn't get out last night." He shook her hand rather ungraciously.

"We missed you," she said. "Pull up a chair. I was never so lazy as now. Leave me, I am afraid I'll get stout and gross."

"Spring fever," he announced. He was plainly out of sorts. "I'll stand, if you don't mind. Bearly tiresome, sitting in a hot sunny train."

He took a couple of turns across the porch, his eyes shifting in the eager, annoyed manner of one who seeks for something that, in the correct order of things, ought to be plainly visible.

"Please sit down, Leslie. You make me nervous, tramping about like that. We can't go in for half an hour or more."

"Can't go in?" he demanded, stopping before her. He began to pull at his little moustache.

"No, Hetty's posing. They won't permit even me to disturb them."

He glared. With a final almost dramatic twist he gave over jerking at his moustache, and grabbed up a chair, which he put down beside her with a vehemence that spoke plainer than words.

"I say," he began, scowling in the direction of the doorway. "How long is he going to be at this silly job?"

"Silly job? Why, it is to be a masterpiece," she cried.

"I asked you how long?"

"Oh, how can I tell? Weeks, perhaps. One can't prod a genius."

"It's all tommy-rot," he growled.

"I suppose I'd better take the next train back to town."

"Don't you like talking with me?" she inquired, with a pout.

"Of course I do," he made haste to say. "But do you mean to say they won't let anybody in where—Oh, I say! This is rich!"

"Spectators upset the muse, or words to that effect."

He stared gloomily at his cigarette case for a moment. Then he carefully selected a cigarette and tapped it on the back of his hand.

"See here, Sara, I'm going to get this off my chest," he said bluntly. "I've been thinking it over all week. I don't like this portrait painting nonsense."

SPENT EIGHT MONTHS IN WALLED CITY OF MECCA.

The dangerous and unusual experience of penetrating the walled city of Mecca, living there for eight months in a Mohammedan household, performing all the rites and ceremonies which the 200,000 pilgrims perform every day and attending lectures which in the past have been heard only by Mohammedan ears, was accomplished successfully by Dr. C. Snouck Hurgronje, professor in the University of Leyden, and now in the United States as exchange professor to a number of American universities.

Dr. Hurgronje is not only an adept in the Arabic language, but prefaced his sojourn in the sacred city by several years of research in Mohammedan theology. It was this complete familiarity with Mohammedanism which made it possible for him to preserve his disguise for the entire period of eight months.

"I even fooled the tramp dogs," he explained. "They are afraid of the Moslems, but they can smell a foreigner—an infidel, you know—and they reveal him to the Mohammedan by attacking him."

Live as in the Dark Ages.

"Nothing could be more inconceivably remote than Mecca. It represents the Islam of centuries ago. The houses are impossible. All the conveniences to which we are accustomed—light, heat and water—are as they were in the dark ages. But one who has not been to Mecca, has not lived there in Mohammedan households and studied at the mosques cannot understand Islam."

"There has been some talk from time to time that Mecca would be thrown open to the world by force. But I see nothing to indicate that this is true. England is the only nation that would attempt it, and it would stir up too much trouble—trouble for her in the British Indies should she take such a course. Mecca will for many years to come, I believe, continue to be a center of Mohammedan tradition."

Dr. Hurgronje believes that there will be a gradual breaking down of barriers and a merging of the east and west, which will come with comparative rapidity within the next few decades. He holds that the future development of Islam will repeat with an amazing degree of similarity the history of later Judaism. The evangelists of the Christian world who look forward to an incorporation of all creeds by the Christians will not see their dream realized in regard to Mohammedanism. Mohammedanism will continue as strong and vigorous a faith as Judaism, adapting itself much in the same manner as Judaism has adapted itself to changing conditions and requirements.

Will Never Adopt Christian Faith.

For seventeen years Dr. Hurgronje has been an adviser to the government of Holland on matters relating to the Dutch East Indies and so speaks with authority. He says:

"Holland has empire over some 25,000,000 Mohammedans. The idea that she is going out to preach and win over those millions to the gospel has long since been abandoned. What we have come to realize is the need for educating these people, who, from the twist of historical events, have become intrusted to our care. We have realized that the best thing for their souls is the adaptation of their faith and their own institutions to the requirements of the day."

"The Mohammedan regards Christianity as something over and done with, and to his mind the adoption of it would be a turning backward. Whatever the change which Islam will undergo in the next half century it will not be a change which includes the adoption of the Christian faith."

TRYING NEW ANAESTHETIC.

Prolonged Insensibility Follows Use of Urethane.

The London Times announces that interesting experiments with a new anaesthetic, which it is believed may prove of great service, are being conducted on animals in a Cambridge laboratory.

The anaesthetic is a substance which for a considerable time has been familiar to medical men and chemists under the name of urethane. This drug, which is obtained by combining urea with alcohol, is administered hypodermically, like morphine, with a syringe.

The great advantage of urethane is said to lie in the fact that heart failure never occurs when it is properly used. On the other hand, a very prolonged period of insensibility—about six hours—follows the administration of urethane, and it has not so far been found possible to shorten this time materially.

Frenchwoman's Cold Cure.

Having been without a cold for 27 years, a French lady, who holds this fortunate record, attributes it to the following process. Each morning after taking a warm bath, she immediately sponges her throat, her face, and the back of her neck and ears with the very coldest water she can get for about two minutes. In cold weather one may feel inclined to shirk, she says, but the result of steady application she has found a plentiful reward.

Frankness itself.

Queer Things That Turn Up in the News

A jail was built at Altamont, Kan., five years ago, but to date has had no prisoners. The town's population is 800.

"Taxless town" of West Virginia—Harrisville—faces a race suicide peril and has offered a bonus for every baby born there.

In a New York city drug store is a hen which is making its home near the soda fountain and lays its eggs regularly for the patrons.

Thirteen women are among the largest stockholders in a St. Louis bank, while a large number of the minor stockholders are also women.

Michael Youhouse, a young ironworker at Duquesne, Pa., is said to have gone without sleep for more than a year without giving up his work.

EDUCATION DOUBLES THE PROFITS OF THE FARMER.

Federal Investigators Seek to Find Best Management Methods.

To determine where farmers are making money, how much they are making and by what methods, a broad study has been begun by the farm management experts of the department of agriculture, who have taken selected areas in the important agricultural sections and are making careful surveys.

The purpose of this study is to help the good producers to make money and to know how and where they are making it. The profits of the individual farmer are studied to determine the factors that control his income.

One interesting feature of the reports is the evidence that men with a high school education made almost double the profits of those without this training, and that farmers with a college education made an average income of 50 per cent more than those with high school records.

The reports of surveys in Indiana, Illinois and Iowa show startling results. On one-third of the 273 farms operated by owners it was found that the farmer was not even earning for himself the wages of a section hand after the moderate interest of 5 per cent had been allotted on the investment in real estate, farm equipment, stock and supplies. In other words, one man out of every three whose farms were studied would be better off financially if he sold his farm, invested his money at 5 per cent and went to work for some one else.

More than 18 per cent of the 273 farms were losing $200 to $500 a year for their owners, and 15 per cent lost from $200 down to $1 or managed to "break even." Slightly more than 50 per cent made between $1 and $1,500, and only 8 per cent made profits of $1,500 or more. These records were made in one of the best farming regions of the United States, with the averaging farm capital of each farm averaging more than $30,000. After deducting 5 per cent interest on the capital the 273 owners made an average profit of $108 on his investment, or less than 14 per cent.

The 247 tenant farmers whose operations were included in the survey fared better on net profits than farm owners. This is held to be ample proof that the man with small capital should rent rather than buy a farm.

NEW ZEPPELINS NOISELESS.

Invention Would Add Much to Their Value Against an Enemy.

Germans are delighted over the latest achievement of Count Zeppelin in perfecting an invention which makes his airships practically noiseless in the sky.

Berliners had an opportunity of observing the effect of the invention when the new army Zeppelin No. 25 cruised over Berlin with hardly audible evidence of its proximity.

The passenger Zeppelin Hansa, which also sailed over Berlin, gave the usual sound of its approach when miles away through the rumble of its engines and propellers.

All this is done away with in the latest army and navy Zeppelins, which, as the papers proclaim, will henceforth be able to sail through misty or foggy skies without giving warning to an enemy that "dreamthoughts of the air" are coming.

PREDICTS NEW RELIGION.

Noted Rabbi Says It Will Supersede All Creeds of Today.

Rabbi Nieto, one of the most eloquent pulpit orators in the west, has outlined a new religion which he said should supersede the creeds of today. The religion of the future, he asserts, will be nonsectarian. It will be a combination of the best thoughts contained in all past and present religions.

"I believe it possible," says Rabbi Nieto, "for America to have a religion of its own, founded on the characters of its great men, the highest ideal of God the Sabbath day to indicate man's liberty and with national days as feast days. Social service is the foundation upon which we must erect the new religion."

"I believe the new religion will be a concept of the best things in life to keep one in the pursuit of all things good and noble and true."

FACTS SHOW DISEASE LURKS IN CANCER HOUSES.

An interesting contribution to the discussion as to whether cancer can be acquired by inhabiting a house previously occupied by a sufferer from this disease was made by Sir Thomas Oliver, the noted medical expert. In a recent lecture at Newcastle Sir Thomas pointed out that this question had claimed the attention of medical men for a long time and that references to "cancer houses" abound in medical literature, but nothing had been conclusively proved.

Sir Thomas said that the evidence in favor of the theory of infectiousness was too strong to be ignored. He gave instances of several remarkable cases in a village of Norway which had a population of 800 persons. There had never been more than one case of cancer annually until one year there were eight cases, which seemingly centered around a single sufferer from that disease.

Eleven Deaths in Block.

In a French village of 400 inhabitants there had been eleven deaths from cancer in seven years in the same block of houses, while three years later there were seventeen deaths in the same block.

Sir Thomas said that 1,062 houses in Paris in which deaths from cancer occurred are being watched. In twelve of these houses there have already been two successive cases of the disease. There were, he said, nineteen deaths in a short street in an unnamed town between the years 1893 and 1908, and in several of the houses there had been more than one case. The circumstances were such that these deaths occurring in the same houses could not be regarded as merely a coincidence.

The lecturer cited several striking instances where more than one death from cancer occurred in single houses or even in the same rooms.

There was a case of a vicarage in the north of England, where two successive vicars died of cancer. Another was in Somersetshire, where a man died some time ago of this disease. Since then his wife, her second husband and two other occupants of the house have died of cancerous affections.

Sir Thomas said he found further confirmatory evidence of the theory of "cancer houses" by experiments which he conducted some time ago with an infected mouse cage, in which he placed healthy mice which had been selected for laboratory purposes. A large proportion of the mice became cancerous until the cage had been repeatedly disinfected. Other mice which were kept at the same time in an uninfected cage remained healthy.

Food as a Cause of Cancer.

Chronic irritation is the most important condition which predisposes tissue to cancerous growths, according to Dr. William J. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., president of the American Surgical association.

The peculiar cancer which attacks the mouths of natives of India, Dr. Mayo says, is due to the irritation set up by the juice of the betel nut which they chew. Cancer of the groin is almost entirely confined to sailors and chimney sweeps. Cancer of the stomach forms one-third of the cases among civilized people, but is less frequent among savages and animals.

Dr. Mayo seems inclined to blame the prevalence of cancer more on the quantity of food eaten by people in civilized countries than on its quality.

NOVEL CURE FOR STAMMERING

Dr. Hudson Makuen, specialist at the Polyclinic hospital, Philadelphia, asserts that persons afflicted with stammering may be cured if they will reverse the use of their hands. His theory is that if a stammerer is left handed he should cultivate the use of the right hand and the stammering will probably disappear. The same applies to a right handed person.

Dr. Makuen has treated 2,000 persons afflicted with stammering. In many cases permanent cures resulted. Of the number 77 per cent were males, 83 per cent of average mentality, 14 per cent below normal and 1 per cent feeble minded.

MAN'S RIGHTS.

If a ruling of Justice Leary of the Minneapolis district court takes root and spreads a man living in any part of the country can make his wife stay home at night. He needn't even give her a latch key. The court held that if a man cared to keep his wife on the premises evenings it was his right—that he was entitled to her company after a hard day's work.

Gate of Tears.

The straits Babelmandeb, the passage from the Persian Gulf into the Red Sea, are called by the Arabs the "Gate of Tears." These straits are very dangerous in rough weather. The channel is very rocky, and is only about twenty miles wide. It received its melancholy name from the number of shipwrecks that occurred there.

Russian Ranks and Classes.

There is no upper middle class in Russia; a family is either of the peasantry—although this term has now a very wide inclusion—or of the aristocracy. And at court no one has precedence according to inherited rank, only according to official position in the government.

Harry Thaw's Petition Granted.
Concord, N. H., April 14.—Harry Kendall Thaw's petition for a writ of habeas corpus was granted by Judge Edgar Aldrich of the United States district court today. The court said, however, that no order would be issued for the prisoner's discharge from custody until arrangements had been completed to take the case to the United States Supreme court on appeal.

Thaw's petition for admission to bail the court left undetermined, taking the ground that it would be more appropriate for this to be passed upon by the supreme court.

The result of the decision is that Thaw's guardianship and condition will be unchanged for the present; but that his petition for a writ of habeas corpus will go to the highest court in the land with a decision of the lower court in his favor.

Words Without Rhymes.
There are many words in English that have no rhyme. As given in "The Rhymers' Lexicon," by Andrew Lang, they are as follows: Aitch, alb, amongst, average, blize, bourn, breadth, brusk, bulb, con, conch, culm, cusp, depth, doth, elgar, fish, film, force, forth, fugue, gulf, hemp, lounge, mauve, month, morgue, mourned, ninth, oblige, of, pearl, pint, porch, pork, poult, prestige, puss, recumb, saucer, scare, scarf, sixth, spoil, swain, swish, tenth, torsk, twelfth, unflagged, volt, warmth, wasp, wharves, width, with, wolf, wolves.

Universal Goat.
After all, the most complainant of individuals is the taxpayer. He will rear like a lion at an increase of a fraction of a cent in the tax rate, yet fawn like a kicked cur before a legislature that shovels his good money into the sea. So the legislature should worry.—Baltimore American.

Fish Unhurt by Freezing.
During several months of each year some of the great rivers of Siberia are frozen solid to the bottom, but the fishes imprisoned in the ice maintain their vitality and resume their active life when the ice melts.

Proof of Lack of Humor.
"You think the American people lack a sense of humor?" "Yes," replied the frank visitor from abroad; "otherwise you wouldn't find so many people weighing over 200 pounds who dance the tango."—Washington Star.

GENERAL NEWS PARAGRAPHS

SUMMARY OF EVENTS THAT CO TO MAKE UP THE WORLD'S NEWS OF THE DAY.

Felix Grigatis, a steel worker, was arrested in Gary, Ind., a few days ago because he was trying to force his wife to join him in drinking whiskey from a bottle that also contained two young snakes.

In a speech in Congress Tuesday Representative Proudy, of Iowa, charged that Washington is the harbor of refuge for rich tax dodgers, and that the property of the poorer classes is over-assessed.

That Americans carry a total insurance on their lives of $34,000,000,000 was the statement made by Charles Nestle, superintendent of insurance of the District of Columbia, in an address in Washington a few days ago.

Plans are being perfected in Washington for beginning work on the immense reclamation project in China fostered by the American National Red Cross to relieve suffering from flood and famine in the Hwai and Yellow river districts.

Congressman Whitacre, of Ohio, Democratic candidate for governor, is to be a unique figure in the election contest this fall. He has announced that he will finance his own campaign and will not receive one cent in contribution.

The foreign affairs committee of the lower House of Congress has reported favorably a resolution appropriating $50,000 to be used by the secretary of state in entering foreign delegates to the fifteenth International Alcoholic Congress to be held in the United States next year. That amount of money will buy a lot of grape juice.

Champ Calk hopes that the Filipinos will never become American citizens. In an address in Atlantic City he said: "The Filipinos are not the right kind for Americans. You cannot make a silk purse out of a sow's ear. Some people say the Monroe doctrine is dead. They will find differently if it becomes necessary to defend it."

Democratic Leader Underwood's entry into the house of representatives upon his return to Washington Monday was the signal for one of the most enthusiastic ovations of the session. There was loud applause from members of all parties and business of the house was suspended while members congratulated him upon his successful senatorial campaign in Alabama.

Thomas Jefferson's birthday anniversary was celebrated in the house of representatives Monday, with Representative Clark, Democrat, of Florida, making a speech proposing that President Wilson head a commission to plan a memorial to mark Jefferson's birthplace at Old Shadwell, Va. Representative Johnson, Democrat, of Kentucky, prevented consideration of a resolution to that effect on the ground that other business was pending.

The Kansas Supreme court has upheld the Webb-Kenyon law giving the state control over liquor shipments. As a result of the decision, Kansas will take charge of all liquor shipped into the state. The case was that of a St. Louis brewing company, appealing from a decision of a district court. The company shipped a carload of beer to Corona, Kan., state officials confiscated it under the Webb law and the company sought reimbursement.

Representative Parks's resolution to impeach Justice Daniel T. Wright, of the District Supreme court in Washington, has been favorably reported by the judiciary committee of the house of Congress. The effect of that action is to recommend that the house appoint a committee to take testimony on the charges brought against the justice by Wade H. Cooper, a Washington banker, who made allegations of misconduct by Judge Wright on the bench and in private life.

A bill at hand from Washington says that Secretary of the Navy Daniels will carry his prohibition policies to the point of substituting water for wine at warship christenings, although he intends standing by his order abolishing the wine mess in the navy. Mr. Daniels made the assertion that he will not change the christening custom, after hearing a report that he had ordered all warships building in government yards christened with water instead of the time-honored champagne.

Mrs. Luella West has filed suit against Governor Hodges, of Kansas, for $2,310 damages for injuries alleged to have been inflicted by the governor when she went to confer with him regarding the pardoning of a man from prison. Mrs. West charges that the governor attempted to restrain her from picking up some papers from his desk and in the scuffle which followed, the state executive struck her on the shoulder, causing a black and blue mark and also wrenched her arm.

Official figures on the cost of educating a child at public expense in New York show that that city in 1913 spent $38.72 on each child attending public school, $102.59 on every high school pupil and $150.46 on every person attending the municipal vocational schools.

The four gunmen convicted of the murder of Gambler Herman Rosenthal in New York July 16, 1912, were executed in Sing Sing prison early Monday morning. Charles H. Becker, a New York police lieutenant, who was convicted and sentenced to death for complicity in the crime, is to be given a new trial.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Pursuant to the power vested in the mortgagee by virtue of a certain mortgage deed executed by Paul Barnett and wife, Cora Barnett, to H. L. Coble, on the 23rd day of July, 1912, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Guilford county, N. C., in book 239, page 232, the undersigned will expose for sale, at public auction at the court house door in the city of Greensboro, N. C., on Monday, April 27, 1914,

At 12 o'clock noon, a certain tract or parcel of land lying and being in the county of Guilford, state of North Carolina, Gilmer township, adjoining the lands of J. M. Smith et al., and bounded as follows:

Beginning at the northwest corner of Morris and East streets; thence north 70 feet to a stake; thence west parallel with Morris street 120 feet to a stake; thence south parallel with East street 70 feet to Morris street; thence east with Morris street 120 feet to the point of beginning.

Also another tract of land adjoining the lands of Sarah Crosby, J. E. Thorpe et al., and bounded as follows:

Beginning at east corner at Sarah Crosby's line, running north 230 feet to King's line; thence running east 50 feet to his line, J. E. Thorpe's; thence 230 feet south to J. E. Thorpe's line; thence west 50 feet to Sarah Crosby's line, the beginning. Terms of sale—Cash.
