FIREMEN AND ALDERMEN FRATERNIZE.

The Mayor and City's Governing Board Handsomely Entertained at Eagle Headquarters.

The Greensboro fire department might reasonably make some claim to distinction as a social organization should its becoming modestly admit an acknowledgment of talents along lines not contemplated in its specific sphere of usefulness. An informal reception tendered the mayor and board of aldermen Monday evening, in which the newspaper men were graciously included, gave the department an opportunity to show what it could do in the role of a host, and the success attendant upon the occasion was all that could have been hoped. The reception was held at the headquarters of Eagle Hose Company, No. 7, on South Davis street. The visitors were received by representatives of all the different companies and given a readily-accepted opportunity to inspect not only the quarters of that company but the hook and ladder company's quarters next door. The equipment of the fire fighters, their sleeping and recreation rooms and all else pertaining to the service were shown the interested visitors, several of whom had never had the privilege of seeing the inside workings of a well-regulated department home.

At nine o'clock everyone was invited to the Eagle assembly hall, a large airy room on the second floor of the building which is handsomely furnished with modern desks, easy chairs, tables and pictures galore, and at Chief Taylor's call to order listened for a short time to the consideration of matters that claimed the attention of the department, among them the assignments of the various companies in response to alarms from different sections of the city. Following the brief business session Chief Taylor announced that a member of the Southside company, Mr. R. D. Douglas, would extend a formal welcome to the guests of the evening, which he did in a most creditable and acceptable manner, embodying in his remarks a concise history of the growth of the department. Mr. Douglas is a vice president of the national association of firemen and an enthusiast in all that pertains to the betterment of the service.

Mayor Murphy responded to the hearty welcome spoken by Mr. Douglas, acknowledging in a graceful way the patriotism and efficiency of the men composing the department and their usefulness in the protection of the city's interests. It was an encouraging speech, one that justified the department in feeling sure of the moral support of the city's chief executive in all that might tend to promote the mutual interests involved.

All the members of the board of aldermen except Mr. Brandt, who was detained elsewhere and unable to reach the hall until a late hour, together with City Attorney Scales and City Clerk Michaux, responded to calls for speeches, and there were several very happy efforts in the speechmaking line. Without exception the aldermen complimented the work of the department and assured the members of a personal interest in the work it had done and was doing. Messrs. Abbott, Elam and Monroe voiced the pleasure of the firemen at having the aldermen present at their meeting, assuring them a continual welcome at the various meetings and hoping good would come from a closer fellowship. One of the best speeches of the occasion was that of Mr. C. D. Benbow, a former chief but now an honorary member of the department.

Following the adoption of a resolution offered by Mr. E. E. Bain providing for a committee to go before the board and urge a doubling of the fine for turning in a false alarm of fire, which simply involves an amendment to an ordinance already in force, the assembly adjourned to the lower floor, where a long dining table flaunted its snowy covers in an inviting manner.

Col. Jeems West, he of Philadelphia cream fame, and a retinue of capable assistants, soon had miniature mountains of delicious cream and generous slices of assorted cake spread before the firemen and their guests. Alderman Brandt, who is chairman of the fire committee of the board, arrived at this juncture, and there were calls for the speech which every one suspected he had bottled up in his breast for the occasion. Mounting a chair at the end of the table opposite Mayor Murphy he spoke briefly but encouragingly to the firemen. When the cake and cream had passed from view cigars were lighted—good cigars, such as most of us have to be content with reading about.

The climax to the evening's pleasure was a demonstration of what might be termed the active workings of the department. At a tap of the bell the magnificent big horses leaped to their places underneath the suspended harness and in an instant were ready to speed to the scene of a fire had there been one. Repeated tests of this character were made with slight variations, the horses exhibiting almost human intelligence in responding to the bell. The last demonstration was one in which the men all retired to their rooms on the second floor and the horses were in their accustomed stalls. In just seventeen seconds from the tap of the bell the two big wagons emerged from the building almost at full speed, fully manned and equipped for any emergency. It was a thrilling sight, and brought forth three hearty cheers from the visitors. The firemen responded with three cheers for the city officials, who thereupon departed for their homes with a new realization of the capabilities of the brave men who stand ready at all hours to risk their lives if need be in the protection of life and property from the awful ravages of fire.

The President and Speaker Cannon to be invited to the Reunion Next October.

The Board of Managers of the Reunion was in session yesterday in the directors' rooms of the Greensboro Loan and Trust Company. This is the first meeting of the board since their reelection by the mass meeting of the 9th instant.

The board of managers organized by the reelection of Dr. Charles D. McIver chairman, Mr. R. D. Douglas secretary and Mr. Lee H. Battle treasurer.

Several matters were considered and the work of the board was sub-divided as heretofore. Dr. McIver was made chairman of the committee to look after and secure the attendance of President Roosevelt, Speaker Cannon and other distinguished gentlemen whose names will be announced later. Messrs. J. W. Fry and R. R. King were appointed to take charge of the matter of transportation and making rates with the railroads. Messrs. J. A. Ogden and Lee H. Battle were given charge of the finances.

Mr. G. S. Bradshaw was re-elected chairman of the committee of arrangements and Mr. Andrew Joyner was re-elected chairman of the press committee.

A number of new features will be added and a much more varied and interesting program is being prepared.

Annual Meeting of the Medical Society of North Carolina Next Week.

The fifty-second annual meeting of the Medical Society of North Carolina will convene at the county court house in Greensboro next Tuesday, May 23, at 10 o'clock A. M., and continue three days.

The program has been prepared by the local committee of arrangements. The society will be the guests of the Guilford County Medical Society and a reception will be given one evening at the State Normal College. Five hundred are expected to attend.

The State Board of Medical Examiners will meet in annual session this afternoon at 2:30 at the assembly hall of The Benbow and continue in session every day until next Tuesday examining applicants for license to practice medicine. It is thought there will be over one hundred applicants. The Board of Examiners is composed of Drs. George W. Pressley, Charlotte, secretary; M. H. Fletcher, Asheville; A. A. Kent, Lenoir; F. H. Russell, Wilmington; James M. Parrott, Kingston; F. O'H. Laughinghouse, Greenville; and J. T. J. Battle, Greensboro.

New Secretary-Treasurer for the L. Richardson Drug Company.

Mr. L. Richardson and the Messrs. Smith, together with other stockholders, have sold their interest in the L. Richardson Drug Company to Mr. R. L. Justice, of Baltimore, who has been elected secretary and treasurer to succeed Mr. Richardson, who resigned. Mr. Justice made a success of the Gear Drug Company, of Columbia, S. C., and since leaving there has been managing salesman of the eastern district for the Park-Davis Company of Detroit. Mr. Justice's family will come to Greensboro in a short while to make their home here. Mr. R. G. Vaughn is president of the company and Messrs. A. E. B. Alford, H. T. Ham, C. W. Battle and R. L. Justice compose the board of directors. The executive committee is composed of Messrs. Alford, Ham and Justice. The firm name will remain the same. Mr. Richardson has not announced his plans for the future, but it is probable that after taking a much-needed rest he will engage in another line of business here.

GREENSBORO TOBACCO MARKET.

MARKET REPORT.

The receipts on our market for the past week have been small, due mainly to the fact that tobacco in this section is practically all sold, and farmers are not taking time to prepare for market what still remains in their hands. Those farmers, however, who have taken the trouble to come to market the past week were well repaid for their extra work, as prices on all grades continue full up to the high water mark and our buyers are very anxious for the weed at present prices. The market is quite active on all grades and buyers bid eagerly when they find tobacco in good condition. We would advise farmers to take advantage of the present conditions of the market and sell all the tobacco they have on hand, as we believe it will bring more money now than it will later on; besides, you run the risk of getting it damaged, and it is a lot of trouble to have it ground in the way.

Walter Smith was with us the past week and made a good sale.

J. W. Pearson was here with tobacco the past week and went away pleased.

Dr. J. J. Hilton had a load on the market yesterday and was more than pleased with his prices.

W. N. Wright, a prominent eastern Guilford farmer, made a highly satisfactory sale the past week.

George Oliver, one of Rockingham's good farmers, was here with tobacco last week and made a highly satisfactory sale.

Jim Jeffreys, a prominent farmer of this county, was here with tobacco the past week and made a very satisfactory sale.

D. B. Watlington and J. A. Christmon, good farmers of this county, were here with tobacco the past week and went home pleased.

Theodore Stanley, a prominent farmer of the Summerfield section, was here with tobacco the past week and got good prices for same.

Capt. J. W. Forbis, a very prominent farmer of this county and a man beloved by all, was here with tobacco the past week and went away highly pleased.

Zimmerman Bros. made a very satisfactory sale of old tobacco on the market yesterday, their prices ranging from $6.75 to $19 per hundred. They were more than pleased with these sales.

Mr. Caesar Cone, of Greensboro, and Mr. J. Elwood Cox, of High Point, were witnesses last week in Washington before the Senate committee on Interstate Commerce which is investigating the question of railroad rate legislation. Both gentlemen are opposed to the law which proposes to give the government the rate-making power, believing that such a statute would interfere with the industrial development of the United States, viewing the matter as a broad and general issue covering the whole country, and not from a local standpoint. While a few local inconsistencies in rates might be corrected by the law proposed, the long haul rates made by any commission would naturally disrupt business conditions, involving endless red tape methods beside putting an end to railroad development. Speaking for the Cone Export and Commission Company Mr. Cone said that he shipped to all points of the United States last year approximately fifteen million pounds of finished cotton fabrics. Every pound was shipped at full published rates without any concession or rebate of any kind either directly or indirectly, and his company had no more consideration shown it than the smallest shipper received.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Joyner have gone to Newbern to be present at the unveiling of the monument to the New Jersey soldiers killed in battle there in 1862. At that battle the flag of the Beaufort Plowboys was captured by the Jersey troops, and it will be formally returned to the surviving members of the company at the same time. A sister of Mr. Joyner assisted in making the flag and made the presentation to the company, and she will receive it back again after the lapse of nearly half a century.

Southern Life and Trust Co.

The Southern Railway officials have closed a deal with Mr. C. D. Benbow for a lease upon the storeroom now used by the Stieff piano people in the Benbow Arcade, to be used as the up-town ticket office of the Southern. The Stieff people have agreed to give up their lease on the place June 15th. The Southern will install furniture and fixtures for the up-town ticket office and use the rear part of the room as offices for the division freight officers now occupying rooms on the fourth floor of the Arcade. The storeroom selected is centrally located and the arrangement will prove a great convenience for the citizens and traveling public.

Two heavy rains which fell here late Monday night scarcely an hour apart did considerably damage to improved streets, washing the macadam badly in places and overflowing streets and sewers in many places. Almost without exception there have been daily rains here the past three weeks, and farm work especially has been greatly hindered. In many sections growing crops have been badly washed, while much tobacco remains unset. Wheat is damaging some, and unless there is a change in the order of things soon the loss from that source alone will be considerable.

FOUND A WATERY GRAVE.

Mill Operative Suffering From Temporary Dementia Loses His Life in North Buffalo.

The body of a man supposed to be colored was seen among the weeds and sand along North Buffalo creek last Thursday afternoon by a passing railroad flagman and a message to Coroner Turner brought about an immediate examination as to the identity of the man and cause of his death. The coroner recovered the body from the stream, with the aid of a number of people who had been attracted to the scene, and it was not until an examination of the clothing of the deceased was made that his identity was established.

Learning that the body was that of William A. Lindley, the coroner was soon in possession of sufficient facts to warrant him in the belief that the man had met death in an accidental manner, and the body was turned over to friends for interment without the formality of an inquest. Lindley was a man perhaps forty years old, and had been employed at the Revolution mills for some time. He made his home with his mother and younger brother, his father being an inmate of an asylum. The family came here from Burlington. About a month ago Lindley showed signs of a mild form of dementia, and being a man of intelligence the knowledge of his affliction caused him great mental worry. Not finding relief here at home he concluded to make a visit to a sister living in Reidsville, where he hoped a change of scene would promote his recovery. Accordingly on Monday night, after several hours of restlessness and insomnia, he left home saying that he would come to town and take an early morning train to Reidsville. The dawn of Tuesday had not begun to break when he started out along the street railway track, and he had gone but a short distance when he either fell or jumped from the trestle that spans North Buffalo. The stream, swollen by the recent rains, carried his body some little distance below the trestle, where it lodged in the sand and grass. There were no marks of foul play, and all the money that Lindley was known to have carried when he left home was found in his pockets. Those most familiar with the man and all the circumstances attending his death believe that he made a misstep on the trestle. The body had turned almost black and was so badly decomposed that it had to be hurriedly buried that night. Associates and acquaintances of Mr. Lindley speak of him as an industrious, intelligent and kindly disposed man, and there is much sorrow felt in the mill village over his unfortunate taking off.

State Medical Society Meeting.

The state board of Medical Examiners will meet in this city May 17th and the State Medical Society will meet here May 23rd. The prospects are that the meeting will be a most successful and largely attended one. Dr. Hubert A. Royster, member of the council from the Sixth district, says the attendance will probably exceed 500 members. A reception will be tendered the Medical Society on Tuesday evening at the State Normal and Industrial College and another reception will be held on Wednesday evening. An interesting program has been prepared for the meeting.

LETTER TO GREENSBORO LUMBER CO. Greensboro, N. C.

Dear Sirs: A painter complained that our cans are too full; unhandy; spill. It's a way we have; 'tis handier not to be full; but we have a weakness for full measure. Our gallon contains eight pints; the usual "gallon" is seven.

We'll think it over again; but we like a full can. How much short would you like a barrel? Seven gallons would be the proportion.

Short-measure suggests that the shortage is probably not in the cheapest ingredient.

Guess we'll stick to four quarts to a gallon, and fifty gallons a barrel.

The name to go by is Devoe lead-and-zinc.

Yours truly, F. W. DEVOE & Co.

Man's Unreasonableness

is often as great as woman's. But Thos. S. Austin, Mgr. of the "Republican," of Leavenworth, Ind., was not unreasonable when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife, for female trouble. "Instead," he says, we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick, she could hardly leave her bed, and five [5] physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters, she was perfectly cured, and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by all druggists, price 50c.

MAJOR STEDMAN MENTIONED

For Appointment to Position Made Vacant by Death of Col. Robbins.

His many friends in Greensboro are delighted to hear that Major Charles M. Stedman has been so prominently mentioned in the past few days for appointment to the position on the Board of Directors of the Gettysburg Battle Ground Commission made vacant by the recent death of the lamented Col. Robbins.

Friends from many sections of the state have written letters here urging the appropriateness of Major Stedman's selection. It is felt that with the recommendations he could get for the position from influential parties of both political organizations, and especially from the old soldiers, Major Stedman's endorsements would have considerable influence in retaining the position to North Carolina.

From this view-point alone, a very prominent federal official here said Thursday that he hoped Major Stedman's thousands of friends throughout the state would present the appropriateness of his selection to the President. When seen Thursday Major Stedman said that it was an almost ideal position to a man of his age and taste, but that he hadn't thought of the place as a possibility until he had letters from old friends in other sections urging him for the position. He said he would not think of entering into a contest with any other gentleman for it, nor would he seek the place in any sense as a candidate, but that he did from his heart deeply appreciate the sentiment which prompted the mention of his name, and would gratefully appreciate their further good will.

The class day exercises of the high school will take place Friday of this week at 11 A. M. at Lindsay street school and the annual address will be delivered to the graduating class at the Grand the same day at 8 P. M. by Hon. W. A. Self, of Hickory, followed by the presentation of the diplomas to the graduates by Prof. W. C. Jackson, principal of the high school. Superintendent W. H. Swift will also make a short address.

CONFEDERATE DEAD HONORED.

Features of the Memorial Day Exercises Held Last Wednesday.

Greensboro again demonstrated its love for the Confederate veterans by providing lavishly for the usual ceremonies attendant upon the observance of Memorial Day, which occurred last Wednesday. The ladies of Guilford Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, who always assume the responsibility of planning every detail of these memorial occasions, were unusually zealous in their efforts this year, and the result was such as to call forth the warmest praise from every veteran present.

Almost the entire city gave itself over to the event, and widespread interest was manifested on every hand. At the opera house two thousand people assembled to hear the exercises, which commenced at 10 o'clock. The program announced the week previous. On the stage were seated Major W. W. Wood, adjutant of the Guilford Camp; Mayor Thomas J. Murphy and members of the board of aldermen; Dr. L. W. Crawford, chaplain of the Guilford Camp; Col. D. C. Waddell, orator of the day; Major Charles M. Stedman, Judge R. B. Peebles, several ministers of the city, representatives of the press, members of the band and other citizens. Members of the Guilford Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, occupied the boxes.

It was 10:20 before the vast assemblage could be seated, the band in the meantime having rendered a number of patriotic airs. The opening invocation was made by Rev. L. W. Crawford, D. D., chaplain of Guilford Camp, after which there was a musical number by the band. The orator of the day, Col. D. C. Waddell, of this city, was introduced by Major W. W. Wood. Col. Waddell was a member of the famous Eleventh North Carolina regiment, which went into the fight at Gettysburg as a part of Pettigrew's brigade with 500 men and came out with less than 200. For forty minutes the speaker held the closest attention while he recounted many interesting historical incidents relating to his command, combining in his eloquence reminiscence, pathos and poetry. Altogether it was one of the most acceptable addresses ever heard here on such an occasion and added to the Colonel's laurels as a speaker. It may be recalled that the Eleventh regiment, about which so much was learned by the assembly, while participating in many battles, was never captured, or never surrendered. At Appomattox, where the struggle ended in chaos, with gloomy prospects for the future of the Southland, the seventy survivors of the regiment gathered around the flag and burned it. The regiment had a record of which the survivors, now very few in number, well might be proud. Of the number who joined the regiment when it went to the front, only about one-sixth of the number returned to their homes to tell of the horrors of war.

Brief but interesting addresses were made by Dr. Crawford and Rev. Dr. Battle, who were called upon by Major Wood. Worthy of special mention also were the musical numbers of Miss Pearl Long, of Graham, and Mrs. Anna Shoter Gorham, of this city. Their beautiful voices were first blended in a duet. Later Miss Long sang a solo that again brought out the richness and culture of her voice.

The bestowal of crosses of honor on a number of veterans made a scene that was impressive in its sublimity. The grey-headed veterans as they walked across the stage to receive the cross of bronze from the hands of some fair daughter of the Confederacy were applauded enthusiastically. The stage itself, which was banked with beautiful decorations in which the national colors predominated, presented a picture that is not easily forgotten. Heightening the general effect were the boxes on either side of the stage, which seemed to almost overflow with beautiful flowers and more beautiful faces.

At the conclusion of the exercises at the opera house the veterans formed in line, such as were able to make the trip about, the others being taken in carriages, and with the band, military company, firemen, citizens in carriages and on foot, were marched to the cemetery under command of Capt. J. Y. Whitted, commander of Guilford Camp, where the graves of all soldiers were lavishly decorated by children, under direction of the Daughters. The Confederate monument, which occupies a commanding position in the cemetery, was piled high with flowers. The only exercises at the cemetery were a prayer by Dr. Crawford and the customary salute to the dead.

When the veterans had reformed in procession they were marched to the court house lawn, where a sumptuous dinner was served. Following the dinner came pipes, tobacco and cigars, and the afternoon was pleasantly spent on the benches beneath the grateful shade of spreading elms in reminiscences and recitals of incidents of the greatest civil conflict ever known. The ladies felt that they were more than repaid for their efforts by the unstinted praise bestowed by the veterans individually and collectively before departing for their home.

THE VETERANS' ANNUAL MEETING.

All the Old Officers Re-elected—Thanks Extended to All Those Who Assisted in Making Memorial Day a Success.

The annual meeting of Guilford Camp, U. C. V. No. 795, was held in the Grand Opera House, Greensboro, N. C., May 10th, 1905.

A motion was made and carried by which all of the old officers of the Camp were re-elected for the next ensuing year, viz:

Commander—J. Y. Whitted.
Adjutant—W. W. Wood.
First Lieutenant—J. M. Bandy.
Second Lieutenant—Robert Grotter.
Third Lieutenant—N. F. Edland.
Treasurer—George H. McKinney.
Surgeon—Dr. J. George Brodnax.
Assistant Surgeon—Dr. J. E. Logan.
Quartermaster—S. C. Dodson.
Commissary—W. T. Wharton.
Officer of the day—W. C. Weaver.
Historian—D. C. Waddell.
Sergeant Major—Joseph T. Morehead.
Color Sergeant—Thomas Rhodes.
Color Guards—J. E. Sechrest, R. S. Smith.

Foreign Correspondent—James W. Albright.

Chaplain—Dr. L. W. Crawford.

On motion it was ordered that the time of annual meeting in the future shall be 9 o'clock, May 10th.

Upon the calling of the roll, it was ascertained that since our last annual meeting the following named members have died, viz:

Marshal Rumley, Thomas F. Hendrix, T. A. Grissom, Lon Short, David Forbis, Washington Brown, C. A. Whitworth, David Greeson, Owen A. Wood, W. J. Chandler, Gen. Cullen A. Battle.

On motion the following was adopted: Resolved: That we sadly miss from our midst today, these departed comrades who have gone over to join the great throng that has gone before. While we are filled with regret because of their absence, we are thankful that they have left evidences of their eternal rest with God.

Resolved: That the recent death of Gen. Cullen A. Battle and Gen. Fitz Hugh Lee have removed from the Association of U. C. V. two of the most conspicuous figures remaining with reference to the great war of 40 years ago. We view with pride the lives of these men, and commend them to the present and following generations as a modern example for citizens and soldiers who shall follow after them.

Resolved: By the Camp as follows: That we are brought under renewed obligations and hereby tender our united thanks to Guilford Chapter Daughters of the Confederacy, for this another day of joy and pleasure, for their continued goodness and kindness. We feel that this day will ever show a refreshing green spot in our memories, wherein our memory of these Daughters shall predominate.

Resolved: That our cordial thanks are due and are hereby tendered to Comrade D. C. Waddell, the historian of our Camp, for the splendid historical account of the war, as he saw it, which he has so ably presented to us in his speech today, as orator for the occasion. We feel justly proud of his comradeship.

We extend thanks to the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, for materials furnished for the delightful after-dinner smoke enjoyed by the veterans today.

We are thankful to Judge Peebles for adjourning his court and favoring our meeting with his presence. It was a pleasure to have him with us.

We are thankful to Huntley-Stockton-Hill Co., for seats loaned us.

We are thankful to Capt. Glenn Brown chief marshal, and his aides, and Capt. Hobgood and his company for their splendid part in the day's doings, especially their beautiful considerations for the comfort of old men who in their feebleness made the march in the hot sun to and from the cemetery.

We are thankful to the managers of the Opera House for the use of same, and to Miss Kirkland and her company of beautiful young ladies from the Normal College for the very efficient manner in which they handled the large audience, as ushers, and to Miss Steele for her splendid float of charming little girls participating in the parade.

We are thankful to the livermen, Mr. Vanstoy, Mr. Ogburn and Tatum & Taylor, for conveyances furnished for the old and decrepit soldiers who could not walk.

We are thankful to Mr. Jas. H. West for the splendid ice-cream dispensed to every old soldier, free of charge. Mr. West is a Prince of ice cream men. As evidence of the superiority of his ice cream, it is nearly impossible to keep the general public from taking it away from him by force on these annual occasions.

We are thankful to children and grown up people all over the city, for flowers furnished by almost every family, in great profusion, for the decoration of the graves of our dead comrades.

We are thankful that our people and children are thus getting practical lessons in past and present history concerning the Confederate soldiers to be handed down to generations that shall follow.

We are thankful to the Vanstoy Clothing Company, for the useful presents given to nearly all the old veterans in attendance today, and we note with pleasure, that these gentlemen intend bettering their own hand next year, in gifts to the veterans.

We are thankful to the editors of the city for much friendly help in behalf of our cause. We have learned to lean upon them for annual help. We have never found them lacking or halting in their devotion to the cause of the Confederate soldier. They have done more than all others to keep history straight concerning him.

We are thankful to every one who in any way contributed to the pleasure of this occasion, and regret that it is not in our power to express our thanks personally to one and all. We shall endeavor to make our gratitude better known by living upright lives in your midst during the few years that may remain to us among you.

On motion the Camp adjourned.

First Regular Meeting of the New Board of Aldermen.

The new board of aldermen met in their first regular meeting Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mayor Murphy presided and all the members were present with the exception of Mr. W. E. Harrison, who was out of the city. According to the arrangement of the new board the meetings are held on the second Friday afternoon at 2 P. M. and on the fourth Friday evening at 8 o'clock in each month.

The chairman of the finance committee stated that he had placed the money realized from the $250,000 bonds recently sold in the different banks of the city, at 3 1/2 per cent. interest, to be paid to the city on demand. The chairman recommended that this arrangement should be accepted by the board. The recommendation was adopted.

Mr. Z. V. Taylor, attorney for the Greensboro Electric Company, asked that the franchise of the Greensboro Electric Company be extended for a term of five years from the date of the expiration of the present franchise. The request was granted.

The following ordinance regulating the sale of whiskey by druggists on physicians' prescription was offered by Mr. J. A. Odell and adopted by the board:

Be it ordained by the Board of Aldermen of the city of Greensboro, N. C.: First. That it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation having license to retail intoxicating liquor upon prescription to fill any prescription unless such prescription shall be written entirely in the handwriting of and signed by a practicing physician.

Second. That it shall be unlawful for any such person, firm or corporation to fill any prescription for intoxicating liquors unless the same be dated on the date of its presentation to the druggist, or on the day next preceeding, and unless said prescription contains the name of the person for whom said intoxicating liquors are prescribed.

Third. That the druggist having license to sell intoxicating liquors upon prescription shall at the end of each month make a written report to the chief of police of the city, showing in detail the number of prescriptions, date of each prescription, the person for whom prescribed and the name of the doctor giving the prescription.

Fourth. It shall be unlawful for any physician to give any prescription in blank or with fictitious names or for any person not bona fide under his charge.

Fifth. That any person, firm or corporation violating any provision of this ordinance shall upon conviction be fined fifty ($50) dollars.

Mr. W. B. Harrison filed an application for license to sell whiskey on physicians' prescription. The board granted the license subject to the conditions of the above ordinance.

The Gate City Guards requested permission of the board to hold a carnival, but the board refused to grant the request.

Alderman Wysong moved that Chairman of the Street Committee, Hunter, City Attorney Seales and City Engineer Potter be appointed to prepare specifications for a standard sidewalk and report at the next meeting.

Mr. C. H. Dorsett was appointed a judge of the election to be held in June to decide the question of issuing bonds instead of Mr. J. A. Odell, who has since been elected a member of the board of aldermen.

On motion of Alderman Hunter the mayor appointed Aldermen Harrison and Thompson and Chief of Police Neely a committee to purchase summer uniforms and light helmets for the police force. The board desires to help to make the police force as efficient as possible and desire to have them dressed in a uniform manner. Regulations will soon be adopted making it compulsory for the officers to keep their uniforms as neat as possible.

DYNAMITE WRECKS PASSENGER TRAIN.

Railroad Disaster From Which Few Escaped Uninjured—The Dead at Least a Score—Collision Preceded the Explosion.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 11.—Twenty persons were killed and nearly one hundred more or less hurt by the wreck of the Cleveland & Cincinnati Express bound westward on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Paxtang, five miles east of here, at 1.40 o'clock this morning. The passenger train, with almost every berth on its many sleepers filled, crashed into a wrecked east-bound freight train, exploding a car filled with 50,000 pounds of low grade dynamite. The loss of life and many injuries received were caused, not by the wreck itself, but by the dynamite explosion.

The wreck was caused by a smaller wreck to the freight train, which was eastbound. Passing the plant of the Paxtang Electric Company, an air hose burst, and several cars in the middle of the train buckled up and fell across the passenger track at the side.

Almost at the same moment the express train with ten coaches dashed along and plunged into the wrecked freight cars. The boiler of the passenger locomotive blew up, and the concussion caused the immediate explosion of the two cars of dynamite near by in the freight train.

The force of the collision smashed all of the passenger cars, which piled up in a huge mass with those of the freight. Instantly the two trains were a raging mass of flames. With the crash the passengers, all of whom were asleep in their berths, were hurled in all directions. Many of them were tossed free of the wreckage, some down the railroad embankment, some into the Susquehanna river.

All who were not pinned in the debris or totally incapacitated ran. Strong men with nerves of steel, who would have given their lives to save one in the perfect hell that existed, governed by common sense, knew that it was impossible to reach the imprisoned passengers whose cries rent the air for blocks.

When the fire was still raging fiercely the burning bodies of the dead could be seen still lying in their berths. In several cases the flesh had been entirely burned away so that the red hot bones shined like will o' the wisp in the dark.

The passenger train, of which not a valuable square inch was left, had consisted of one locomotive, torn to pieces when the explosion occurred, six Pullman sleeping cars, two baggage cars, one mail coach and one engine tender.

Eleven bodies were recovered from under one sleeping car, but they were so badly charred and mangled as to be unrecognizable. The train contained 162 passengers and a train crew of fifteen.

As soon as some of the dead and injured were reached they were laid in rows along the tracks. Many were carried into the offices and even into the working rooms of the Paxtang plant and other manufacturing establishments. There are few private dwellings near the scene of the disaster, which is an industrial district. The Paxtang plant was transformed into an emergency hospital, where everything was done for the mangled and dying while they waited for conveyances to the Harrisburg hospital.

Cabs and all available conveyances were commissioned into ambulances and joined in the work of removing the unfortunates. Special trains were immediately made by the railroad company and conveyed the injured to the Union Station. At the hospital every available bed was soon filled. Every physician or surgeon available in the city was called, and immediately rendered his services in the herculean task of caring for and dressing the wounds of the mangled.

The first explosion heard was that of the boiler of the passenger locomotive. This was followed by a most terrific noise when the dynamite car went up. The car had a cargo of 50,000 pounds of dynamite, consigned to Brooklyn. Nearly all the glass in the windows of South Harrisburg and Steelton were broken by the force of the explosion. Most of the downtown sidewalks were literally covered with glass. Glass windows in Market street, one mile from the disaster, were broken and fell out into the streets.

Many of Harrisburg's most wealthy citizens sent their stylish equipages to carry the bleeding and injured to the hospitals. Some who resided near the hospital sent their best table linen for bandages. Out of the first eleven brought to the morgue this morning only one was identified. Six bodies, the arms and legs burned off, are beyond recognition. One man, who may have been a foreigner, judging by the shirt he wore, was among this lot. Some of these people evidently occupied berths in the sleepers, as there were no clothes at all.

Despite the harrowing occurrence there were early on the scene undeterred many negroes and foreigners, searching for loot. The heat was so intense and the crowd of reputable people so great that it is believed that they secured but little of value.

Gattis-Kilgo Case Again Postponed.

Raleigh, May 11.—The Gattis-Kilgo damage suit is not to be tried at this term of Wake Superior court after all, an order being made this morning that it be postponed until such time as shall be agreed for Governor Glenn to call a special term for its trial. The continuance was on an affidavit by President John C. Kilgo, of Trinity College, that W. R. Odell, of Concord, and Dr. Dred Peacock, of High Point, important witnesses for the defense, cannot be gotten here for the trial at this time.

The North Carolina Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows today elected and installed officers and adjourned to meet next year in Goldsboro. The principal grand officers are: Grand master, Plato Collins, of Winston; deputy grand master, Thomas M. Stephens, of Durham; grand warden, Perrin Busbee, of Raleigh; grand secretary, B. H. Woodell, of Raleigh; grand representative, H. E. Biggs, of Raleigh.

The order will establish a home at Goldsboro for the care of its aged and indigent members.

FEAR SPREAD OF THE STRIKE.

All Team Owners in Chicago Lined up Against Union—Number of Men Out is 4,500.

Chicago, May 13.—The strike of the teamsters is expected to spread rapidly during the next week. At a meeting held tonight between the teamsters' joint council, which is the governing body of the local unions of the teamsters, and representatives of the Team Owners' Association, the latter informed the representatives of the Teamsters that the condition of their business made it necessary for them to make deliveries to houses which had been boycotted by the unions, and that they would do so next week heedless of the fact whether or not a strike existed at such places. The council was urged to agree to this procedure, and avert a great strike. After an extended debate among its members the Teamsters' council decided that it would not agree to the delivery of goods to any of the boycotted houses by union teamsters, and that strikes would be called whenever a man was discharged for refusing to deliver goods.

The situation has now reached a point where practically all of the team owners in the city are lined up against the Teamsters' Union. The number of men now out is about 4,500, and it is expected that the strikes that are now sure to come next week will more than double this number. It means that practically all of the truck drivers in the city will be on strike in a few days. In addition to refusing the requests of the Team Owners' Association, the teamsters' joint council tonight took action that may cause a general strike of all the carriage and hearse drivers in the city. The Liverymen's Association, an organization of employers, requested the council to order the drivers to leave passengers at their destination, instead of stopping at some distance from a store. The council refused to do this, and announced that if the liverymen did not recede from their position a general strike of all drivers, including hearse drivers, would be called.

While the union leaders were preparing for the meeting tonight there were several breaks in the ranks of the union men. A number of striking drivers applied for their former places at the department store of Rothschild & Company, and union drivers in several cases delivered goods to boycotted firms without trouble.

There were a few isolated attacks on non-union men throughout the day, but no riots of much size.

35,000 More May Walk Out.

Chicago, May 14.—Unless compromises are offered by all the opposing interests in the teamsters' strike now in progress in Chicago, the strike will spread during the next 48 hours. The refusal of the Teamsters' Joint Council, representing 35,000 union drivers, to accede to the demands of the Chicago Team Owners' Association, to handle merchandise for all business houses having contracts with the members of the owners' organization without discriminating against the firms involved in the present strike, has brought the controversy to a point where a speedy settlement will have to be made to prevent an extension of the trouble.

There is a probability, however, that the whole trouble may be satisfactorily adjusted without bringing about such drastic measures. After receiving the announcement of the Teamsters' Joint Council, refusing to obey the ultimatum of the Team Owners' Association, a meeting of the owners' organization was held and it was decided to give the teamsters more time to consider the question. At first it was the intention of the owners to put their ultimatum into effect Monday morning, but, believing that the teamsters could be induced to change their minds, they were given until Tuesday to make final answer.

Information, which the owners say they received today, that the Teamsters' Joint Council was not a unit last night in its determination to fight the owners was given by the owners as the reason for the postponement of the enforcement of the ultimatum until Tuesday.

Another meeting of the Teamsters' Joint Council has been called for tomorrow night and the executive committee of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters will meet Tuesday.

Former Foes in War Fraternize.

Washington, May 11.—A fraternal meeting of the grim fighters who wore the blue and gray in the sixties is being held here, and Major R. F. Dixon, state auditor of North Carolina, is one of the honored guests who espoused the cause of Confederacy. The former foes are here to give a lesson to the world by getting together as only American soldiers can and for the purpose of forming a great organization of the blue and gray to be composed of former soldiers of the civil war. In addition to Major Dixon, Gen. Julian S. Carr has been invited to deliver an address. The first meeting was held this evening at Grand Army Hall, where Rear Admiral W. S. Schley was the principal talker. Tomorrow Major Dixon is scheduled to make an address, responding to Bishop Fallows, of Chicago, who will speak in behalf of those who wore the blue. Among the prominent veterans identified with the meeting are Generals Grosvenor and Rosser. It is proposed to hold a general reunion and review in Washington in 1906, in which both Union and Confederate veterans from every state will march in line and be reviewed by the President in addition to all living generals who fought on either side.

North Carolina Bonds Bring Premium.

Raleigh, May 10.—State bonds of North Carolina to the amount of $250,000, running for eight years at 4 per cent interest, payable semi-annually, were sold today to Townsend Scott & Sons, of Baltimore, and Charles A. Webb, of Asheville, for 1,0676 flat, equaling 1,04736 with interest, the premium amounting to $15,440. These bonds are sold to pay the Schafer bondholders and the South Dakota judgment.

It is estimated that at least 15,000 people attended the funeral of Mr. Washington Duke at Durham last Wednesday. All business was suspended in the city during the funeral hour. The floral offerings represented an outlay of $5,000 and were the most elaborate ever seen in the South.

TROOPS SLAY 300 MOROS.

Fierce Fighting on the Island of Jolo—American Losses, Seven Killed and Nineteen Wounded.

Manila, May 15.—Fierce fighting has been going on the last two weeks on the island of Jolo between the outlaw Moro chief, Pala, with 600 well-armed followers, and troops under the personal command of Major General Leonard Wood. Pala's losses thus far are 300 killed, while those of General Wood are seven killed and nineteen wounded. Pala and his remaining followers, in accordance with Moro tradition, prefer death to capture.

General Wood, with detachments from the Fourteenth Cavalry, the Seventeenth, the Twenty-second and the Twenty-third Infantry and Constabulary Scouts, have driven Pala and his followers into a swamp, which has been surrounded.

Pala was a noted slave-trader and warrior when the Americans occupied the islands. Later, he escaped with his followers to the island of Pala Sekar, near Borneo. One of Pala's leaders deserted and took refuge in the British settlement at Lahad. Pala, discovering his whereabouts, landed and demanded of the British magistrate that he turn the deserter over to him. The demand was not complied with and Pala ordered massacre. Twenty-five persons, including several Britons, were killed. Pala escaped to the island of Jolo and organized the present uprising.

It is reported that the Borneo authorities requested General Wood to apprehend Pala, dead or alive, and turn him over to them.

NEED OF A NEW PARTY.

Washington Post.

Democrats are divided into two camps—conservatives and radicals. The conservatives are just as conservative Democrats as the radicals. McKinley to Bryan, the radical Democrats in 1904 preferred Roosevelt to Parker. It is not only a party, but it is a party, to attempt a fusion of the men who believe as do Cleveland and John G. Carlisle, with men who believe as do Bryan and Eugene V. Debs. You will mix oil and water as soon. You will put truth and error into the same principle as easily. There is an irrepressible conflict here that will not be composed and must be fought out.

In 1861, on January 1, John C. Breckinridge of Kentucky, and Oliver P. Morton of Indiana, were members of the Democratic party. Both agreed to the compromise of 1850 and both supported Franklin Pierce for President of the United States. Morton had no very strong objection to slavery in Kentucky, but he was bitterly opposed to the extension of slavery in Kansas; Breckinridge was little in love with slavery in Kentucky, but he thoroughly believed in the constitutional right of the slaveholder to carry his property to the territory of Kansas and to protect it in the ownership of it there as he was in Kentucky. But in the spring of 1854 Mr. Douglas passed the Kansas-Nebraska bill, and then it was that John C. Breckinridge and Oliver P. Morton parted company. They were not further apart than are the anti-slavery Democrats and the pro-slavery Democrats of 1904 could be. The Democrats of 1861 could not be fused, nor can the conservative Democrats and radical Democrats of 1904 be held together.

It seems to me that it is time for a new deal; the sheep and the goats must separate. The men who think Democracy as Tilden preached it must depart from the men who think socialism as Bryan proclaims it. It is time for all men who understand the constitution of the United States, and revere it as the charter of free government, to get together and form a new party—conservative would be an excellent name for it. It would be a big party to begin with, and aggressively led and capably organized, it will be formidable the day it is born.

The 2,000,000 Democrats who voted for McKinley would join it. The solid South would join it, and there are many hundreds of thousands of Republicans who are ready to bless the day that is born a party they can fully trust. These latter are apprehensive. They fear the big stick. They see no necessity for an enormous navy. They would gladly be rid of the Philippines. They repudiate the guardianship of those islands to the south of us, such as Santo Domingo, who may any moment get us into a war over the Monroe doctrine, which was a shield until Roosevelt got hold of it, and is now become a sword. They look upon their government as the most valuable asset in the world, and worth all the $85,000,000 per annum it costs, but they believe a conservative, a sensible, an honest and a patriotic party could take hold and get more that is desirable—and less that is undesirable—for the money than we do get.

I have employed the term solid South. I do not mean it in an offensive sense or in a sectional sense. I used it because there is no safety and no hope for the South except in conservatism. Radicalism means contempt for the constitution; it means consolidation of Federal power; it means change; it means novelty; it means unrest; it means agitation. It means all this and these, and it means that the weaker must go to the wall—the South is the weaker. And thus when the question is discussed to exhaustion and properly understood, the South is bound to be conservative and adhere to the party of conservatism. And so I said the South must come out from among the charlatans and the fakirs.

The constitution of the United States was made for the weaker, and the Federal nature of it—the composition of the United States Senate and the method of the election of senators—is the best and most effective plan of minority representation ever devised. The government is a representative government; but it is also a nation and a nationality joined together. In the House of Representatives we have the majority. In the Senate we have the minority. In both, we have the republic. But a generation has risen that knows not Hamilton and Madison and they have laid their hands on the Federal feature of our government and would destroy it. Their first assault is against the election of senators by the representatives of equal communities in the states—they would elect them by mob.

Let me try to illustrate. Take my home, Kentucky. Barren county has the vote in the house of representatives of the state general assembly and Breckinridge county has one vote in that body, and each has a population of some 20,000. One of them is in the Ohio River section, the other is low down on the Ohio River, and Glasgow, in Barren county, is at least 100 miles from Harboursburg, in Breckinridge county. These two communities are equally powerful in the Kentucky legislature. In the senate as well as in the house. In electing a senator in Congress the 20,000 inhabitants of Breckinridge county are exactly equal to the 20,000 inhabitants of Barren county. Elect senators by direct vote and Breckinridge county with its 1,000 Democratic majority is ten times as strong as Barren county with her 100 Democratic majority. "That is all right," declares the thoughtful man—who reads the Constitution of the United States and who would not understand it if he should read it— "that is all right. Let majorities rule." Does not reflect that the majority is a day in court when members of the national House of Representatives are chosen, and that is all right for the people, while the Senate is chosen by the Federal and represents the States? I can see why one hailing from the dominant section, prompted by selfishness and not by intelligence, would favor the election of senators by direct vote; but it is the most mysterious thing in the world to me that a Southern Democrat should favor the election of this most precious jewel in the crown of the republic.

No, there is no place for the South in a radical party. If she had followed the teachings of her two greatest men of post-bellum times—Lamar and Ben Hill—the Democracy would be triumphant at this moment, and I have no sort of doubt that had she done so a Southern Democrat would be President of the United States the good year 1905.

The South and radicalism are as ill-matched a pair as age and want, and the South will wax in political power just in ratio that she is conservative. If she shall be radical, her influence at Washington will be on a par with Ireland's at London.

Take down the works of Samuel J. Tilden. There the South will learn a secret which, if taken advantage of, will do her a power of good.

The Impending Naval Battle.

The largest and most imposing fleet that ever sailed from the West to the East is now seeking a way past another fleet which has already defeated a foe worth of its steel. Admiral Rojestvensky, it is announced, has effected a junction with Admiral Nebogatoff's squadron, and the combined fleet has left the coast of Indo China. Admiral Togo, with practically the entire Japanese fleet at his disposal, is lying in wait.

The maneuvers precedent to the impending encounter are being watched by the whole world. It is a struggle for the mastery of the seas. Diplomacy as well as strategy of the highest order is being employed in the effort to gain every advantage. Rojestvensky has been enabled, by reason of diplomatic influence, to make a naval base in neutral waters long enough to replenish his stores and prepare for action. Togo, through cunning and secretiveness peculiarly Japanese, manages to keep the world in ignorance of his whereabouts. That he knows every move being made by his adversary goes without saying; he could learn that much merely by reading newspapers.

It is now apparent that Togo was not outwitted by Rojestvensky when the latter entered the China Sea, and it is probable that Togo was perfectly willing that Nebogatoff should join the larger Russian forces. The Japanese has chosen the place for encounter, wherever it may be. He may be depended upon to utilize every circumstance to the advantage of the enemy. Not only will he choose the battlefield, but he will determine the range of fire and the character of ships to engage in the encounter.

Naval experts unite in the assumption that Togo will employ torpedo boats in the preliminary fighting. The Japanese use these vessels with skill during, and the effect of their attacks is as demoralizing to the Russian personnel as it is destructive. The forthcoming encounter will be intensely interesting also if submarines are used, as is expected. Each fleet has half a dozen of these moles of the sea.

When the real battle opens between the heavy ships it is probable that another exhibition will be given of the remarkable gunnery of the Japanese. At the Port Arthur battle there was no spectacular closing in, no death grapple of the monster ships. The opposing battleships were at no time closer together than 4,000 yards. At this distance the Japanese guns were worked with great execution.

Russia's four best battle-ships are quite new, with the hardest of armor and the most efficient guns, while the Japanese battle-ships belong to a class that has been superseded by more modern vessels. The Japanese have more armored cruisers and are much stronger in torpedo boats.

The battle between Rojestvensky and Togo, wherever it occurs, will be one of the dramatic world spectacles of the century. It will not only be of momentous consequence to the two nations involved, but will furnish such object lessons to other nations as may revolutionize naval construction.

The South and Immigration.

Washington Post.

The tide of foreign immigration to our shores was never so high as at present. Our fathers were in terror lest the "Irish and Dutch" overwhelm us in their day, but we absorbed and assimilated them, and they are about the most American of all the Americans. The same is true of the Scandinavians.

But this is a new set that is now coming—men, women and children from eastern and southern Europe. We are absorbing them at an enormous rate. They are very different from the English, the Scotch, the Irish, and the Germans, who came over fifty years ago and who are now of our blood and our bone—American in idea, in speech, in custom.

Will the Slavs and those of more southern Europe also become Americans? That is to be seen. They are not making much headway at it out in Chicago.

Something has been said about these people going South and growing up with that country; produce our cotton and early fruits and vegetables. It is a fact that for a century the South has not been as inviting to the foreigner as the North and West. With a more fertile soil and a more salubrious climate, with all the products known to the temperate zone, with mountains rich in mineral, and the vastest water powers on the continent, yet the foreigner refused to go down and cast his lot there.

Before the war the reason assigned for this repugnance of the foreigner to be a Southerner was slavery. But slavery has been dead fifty years, and the foreigner will no more go South in 1905 than he would in 1855. Now there is assertion for it, whether by authority is not quite clear, that Abraham Lincoln believed the South would never get her share of immigrants as long as the negro remained in that section.

What is most desired by the South, and what would most benefit that section, would be the removal of Northern and Western farmers to the Gulf States. Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi could absorb a million each of such population; but they will not go to those states. They prefer to go to Canada, become the subjects of a descendant of George III, and live in a surly climate that admits of but a single crop.

The result is that the whites of the South are more Saxon than the population of any other section, and there are some people who think they see the work of destiny in that. One thing is quite clear: The foreigner and the Northern farmer have no use for the land of cotton east of the Mississippi.

DESERTIONS FROM THE NAVY.

One Problem That Causes Worry and Seems Far From a Solution.

Philadelphia Record.

One of the most serious problems which confronts our naval administration is that of securing and retaining in the service the crews needed to man the increasing number of new warships. The fact that the government has been obliged to open recruiting stations for the navy in the inland states indicates the growing difficulty of obtaining enlistments in the maritime regions; but hard as it is to get recruits, it is harder still to keep them. A recent statement issued by the Bureau of Navigation shows that last year 3,210 men, over 10 per cent. of the entire force, deserted. This is a condition of affairs of which the advocates of the "Big Stick" policy will have to take account.

The reasons for the conditions indicated are no doubt numerous. The unwillingness of young Americans to submit to military discipline in time of peace, and their restiveness under the irksome surroundings of life in the forecabin, and the opportunities for more congenial and more lucrative work ashore in a time of prosperity, are probably the main reasons. The largest percentage of desertions occur among the so-called messmen—the cooks, wardroom stewards and cabin boys. Of these nearly one-quarter of the whole number took French leave from the navy during last year, and in their case the desertions are largely due to the demand for trained servants in our ever-growing steam yachting fleet and the higher wages offered in that employment.

A remedy for the conditions indicated will not be easy to discover. Holding forth inducements to young Americans to continue in the service by rewarding the efficient with officers' commissions has been suggested. But young men with natural aptitude for sea service and capable of educating themselves in mathematics, engineering, naval construction, international law and other sciences, up to the standard required for admission to the officers' corps are rare, and very few possess of this combination of talents would be likely to seek their way to the quarterdeck by way of the forecabin. But a solution of the problem must be found, and a searching inquiry for the reason for the alarming increase of desertions ought not to be long delayed.

Teachers Scarce in South Dakota.

The cry is going up from all over South Dakota for a new crop of school teachers—all the old ones are being married off so rapidly that the state is threatened with a famine in respect to school teachers. The cry for the "mamas" is coming from the young farmers and the cattle men, as well as from the local superintendents, and it is nip and tuck as to whether the young women of this profession are more in demand in the homes of the well-to-do young men of the state or in the schoolrooms.

South Dakota always has had trouble keeping its school teachers for any length of time. So many young men have come into the state, have taken up homesteads and are looking for wives, that when a young, good-looking, refined school teacher goes into any community she has offers to wed by the score. And while she may hold out for awhile, eventually the right young man comes along and then the school committee advertises for another teacher.

Last summer the dearth of school teachers became so pronounced that the school authorities placed advertisements in Eastern newspapers asking teachers to come to South Dakota and take positions. But nothing was said at the time of the chances of taking husbands as well.

The result was that when school opened last September every position in the state was filled by a lot of nice-looking, cultured young ladies.

Scattered throughout South Dakota are hundreds of prosperous and intelligent young farmers and cattle raisers who are looking for wives. Many of them are sons of well-to-do people of the middle and eastern states—young men who at home were used to good society and who brought good sense and good breeding with them when they came into the Dakota to live. And after carving a farm and a good start of a fortune from the prairies, these young men want wives to make homes for them.

The nights are long in Dakota and the sleighing during the past winter was exceptionally good. Sleighbells parties were indulged in to the heart's content and the young school mamas were the leading attractions, as well as the guests of honor.

All of which bore fruit. The school authorities have just issued orders to the effect that all applicants for positions as school teachers must first of all sign an agreement that they will not marry until they have taught at least two terms. The authorities say they have been forced into requiring this contract because the schools are being left without teachers—are being deserted on all sides.

With the coming of spring so many of the courtships which have been in progress all winter have been brought to a successful finish that the result has caused a dearth of school teachers all over the state and the matrimonial market is booming.

In many of the larger towns the local girls have openly declared a boycott against any young man who pays attention to a school teacher until she has been a citizen of the locality for at least two years.

Big Deal in Lumber.

High Point Enterprise.

R. F. Dalton went to Montgomery county yesterday to close a deal for the Snow Lumber Company for 12,000,000 feet of sawed lumber. There will, in all probability, be 15,000,000 feet. It must be delivered in three years, for which the Snow Lumber Company will pay $150,000. This is one of the biggest contracts for lumber ever made in the state.

Summer Terrors

Acne, Tetter
Eczema
Salt Rheum
Psoriasis
Nettle Rash

An itching, burning skin disease during the hot, sultry summer weather, is a positive terror and a veritable demon of discomfort. The intolerable itching and stinging are tantalizing almost beyond endurance, and the unsightly eruption and rough, red skin keep one thoroughly uncomfortable and miserable night and day. Eczema, Tetter, and diseases of this type are caused by acid poisons in the blood, which the heat of summer seems to warm into life and renewed activity. These fiery acids keep the blood in a riotous and sour condition, and the skin unhealthy and feverish—they inflame the pores and retard perspiration, when the whole body feels like an over-heated furnace, and the escaping poison burns and blisters like liquid fire.

TORMENTING ECZEMA.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May, 1898.

In 1895 I experienced at times patches on the inside of my hands that itched and burned, causing much discomfort. As time went by it grew worse. I had read medicine in my early twenties (now 50 years of age) and was convinced that I was afflicted with a type of Eczema. I consulted several physicians and a number of specialists, and used several external applications, one of which was claimed to be a certain specific. I confess, however, I had but little faith in external applications, yet I used them, receiving but slight temporary relief. In February I decided to try S. S. S., and in less than a month I experienced a change for the better, and by May of that year all symptoms had disappeared, and I found myself entirely cured, and have had no return of the disease since.

W. P. BRUSH,

or check the outflow of the burning fluids through the skin. Only persistent and faithful constitutional treatment can do this. The acid poison in the blood, which is the real cause of the eruption, must be attacked, and when the blood has been cleared of all accumulated impurities and restored to a healthy condition, then, and only then, will a thorough and lasting cure be effected, and for the accomplishment of all this, no remedy equals S. S. S., which contains all requirements for cleansing and building up the acid blood, and invigorating and toning up the system. S. S. S. completely and permanently eradicates every vestige of poison, thus effectually preventing a fresh outbreak of the disease.

Cases that have resisted ordinary treatment for years, yield to the purifying, cooling effects of S. S. S. upon the blood, and when rich, pure blood is again circulating through the system, the itching and stinging cease, the eruption disappears, and the red, rough skin becomes soft and smooth again.

Skin diseases appear in various forms—sometimes in pustules or blisters, sores, rashes, or red, disfiguring bumps and pimples—but all are caused by a bad condition of the blood, and for which S. S. S. is a safe and effectual cure. No bad effects can come from its use, because it contains no Arsenic, Potash or other harmful drugs, but is guaranteed a strictly vegetable remedy.

If you are a sufferer from some summer terror like Eczema, Tetter, Acne, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Nettle Rash or kindred disease, write us about it, and medical advice or any special information wanted will be given without charge.

Our Book on Skin Diseases will be sent free to all desiring it.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 17, 1905.

Supplies for the Panama Canal to be Bought in the World Market.

Washington, May 15.—The executive committee of the Isthmian Canal Commission today decided to purchase in the markets of the world the material and ships necessary for building the Panama canal.

This important decision was reached with some reluctance, because it was appreciated by Secretary Taft and the executive committee that there would surely be a great outcry from two great interests in this country, the producers of material and the ship owners, if the purchases were not limited to the American products. But it was decided that the money consideration was so great that it could not be ignored, for it was held that in some cases fully fifty per cent. more would be charged for material needed in canal construction than the same goods could be purchased for in Europe. Chief Engineer Wallace, for instance, showed that two ships, in addition to those running between New York and Colon and owned by the Panama Railroad Company, were absolutely necessary to carry the food supplies and material needed for the work. No American ships could be bought at any reasonable price and when it came to buying ships, Secretary Taft said, that while he could buy two 6,000 ton ships in Europe for $750,000, it would cost $1,400,000 to build ships here.

As to material needed for canal construction, the commission decided that by reserving to itself the right to purchase in the world's markets, it would at least oblige American manufacturers to bid against their foreign competitors if they wish to sell goods to the commission.

Atlanta's New Union Passenger Station Opened.

Atlanta, Ga., May 15.—The formal opening of the new union passenger station here today was made a gala event, about fifty thousand persons accepting the invitation of the railroads to be present. Music was rendered by the Sixteenth United States regiment band.

The station ranks among the best in the country. The building proper is constructed of ferro concrete and steel, and is handsomely embellished with Georgia marble. It is fitted up with all modern conveniences.

The train shed accommodates twelve tracks, and is 765 feet long. The building and shed cover thirteen acres. The station cost $1,600,000 and has been in course of construction about twenty months. The Southern, the Atlanta and West Point and the Central of Georgia are the railroads which will use the station. After midnight tonight trains on these roads will regularly enter the new station.

Building at High Point.

High Point, May 15.—Dr. E. E. Richardson, of Leaksville, will build a modern two story residence on Steele street. Dr. A. Fuller, of the Jones mine, has bought the Suits place and will build two houses this summer. The property adjoins that of Rev. J. M. Hillard. Mr. J. W. Lineback will build a two story residence on Ray street, in the northern part of the city. With the houses contracted for the past two weeks it runs the number of houses built here since the first of the year to 110. Though never on a boom and not now so, High Point is building houses as rapidly as they are built in "boom towns." No matter where one may go in this city he is never out of the sound of the hammer and the hum of the saw.

Laying Cross-Ties Begun.

High Point, May 15.—The laying of cross-ties for the High Point and Inter-Urban Electric Railway has commenced, the first ties being laid in front of Beeson Hardware Company, on North Main street, going in the direction of Winston. This street is being macadamized on either side of the road bed for the electric railway, and now since the ties are being laid it begins to look as if the proposed and much discussed road is a certainty in the near future.

General Revival Planned.

A large delegation of ministers and prominent churchmen met Monday night at the Benbow to discuss the advisability of holding evangelistic meetings in the various churches of the city in the early fall. The meeting was called to order by Rev. J. Edgar Williams and Rev. L. F. Johnson was made secretary. Prayer was offered by Dr. Battle. Dr. Detwiler was asked to state the object of the meeting and he responded, expressing in his remarks a desire to see united efforts on the part of the churches for the salvation of souls. Dr. Battle after hearing the object of the meeting stated offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That we adopt the suggestion, that at such time as may be determined in the early fall, we hold simultaneous evangelistic meetings in the various churches of the city, each meeting being conducted by the individual church independent in its method, but all concurring in time and object."

The following laymen made timely remarks on the motion: J. Norman Wills, C. H. Ireland, L. M. Clymer, E. L. Sides, J. S. Moore, C. C. Johnson and C. J. Davis. The delegation was a unit on the motion. Dr. Detwiler made a motion that a special committee on plans be appointed to report at the next session of the Ministers Association. Committee: Drs. Smith, Detwiler and Battle.

The meeting was one of very great interest to laymen and ministers. It is hoped that all the good people of the city will join in the proposed plan and pray for the salvation of our city and its people.

Mt. Airy Orchard Company Organized.

The stockholders of the Mt. Airy Orchard Company met in the directors' room of the Greensboro National Bank Thursday afternoon and organized under their charter.

The company has an authorized capital stock of $50,000 with about $9,000 subscribed, and has 500 acres of fine land in Surry county on which it will plant winter apples. John A. Young, owner of the Greensboro Nurseries and president of the Cleveland Orchards Company, Patrick county, Va., is president of the new company, and F. C. Boyles secretary and treasurer. The directors are Thos. Fayette, president of the Mt. Airy National Bank, and J. B. Sparger, of Mt. Airy; C. H. Hanes and R. C. Freeman, of Dobson, and Rev. M. H. Blair, of Greensboro. Messrs. C. H. Hanes, R. C. Freeman and R. B. Himes represented the Surry county stock in Thursday's meeting. There is a great future for apple orchards in western North Carolina, and this new company starts out well officered and with bright prospects.

Some confusion exists as to the appointment of a successor to the late Major Robbins on the Gettysburg Battle Ground Commission, a lapse of memory on the part of Secretary Taft being responsible in the main for the recommendation of General Lomax, a Virginian who was dug up somewhere in the archives of gravity at Washington, where he has held a snug departmental berth for years without number. Senators Overman and Simmons may have the appointment held up until they can consider the matter further, but it is probable that it has gone too far to be recalled. Major Stedman, of this city, who was in no sense an applicant for the place but whose name had been suggested by many veterans, received hundreds of letters from friends in and out of the state proffering their support if he would enter the race. In his own dignified way he has answered these letters, assuring the writers that he appreciates their consideration and esteem, but will await developments before making any move whatever in the matter that would embarrass the President, who it appears is already committed, in a measure.

A telegram received Monday brought news of the death of Hon. David D. Taylor, of Cambridge, Ohio, a brother of Mr. J. B. Taylor, of Guilford College. The deceased was one of the best known men in Ohio. In recent months he had been prominently mentioned in connection with the lieutenant governorship of the state and was regarded as a formidable candidate for that office. He had edited the Guernsey Times, one of the strongest partisan papers in the state, for many years, taking an active part in the great political debates that have characterized Buckeye politics in the past two or three decades. Mr. Taylor was the fifth of a family of nine sons, all of them prominent in the business or professional world, to pass under the rod of Death in recent years. His age was 68 years and his last illness was an unusual form of pneumonia. Mr. J. B. Taylor, who has not enjoyed the best of health for some time, was unable to undertake the journey to Cambridge to attend the funeral, which was held yesterday.

"I Thank The Lord!"

War News of the Week.

Charlotte Observer.

Matters in the far east seem to be shaping themselves slowly. As regards the land forces Oyama is slowly pressing Linevitch's army east and west along the line of the railroad, with Vladivostok as his probable goal, while a portion of the Japanese navy is said to be watching that point attentively. The fleets of Rojestvensky and Nebogotoff are said to have united, but all is speculation as regards their movements. The most important development of the week, probably, is the stress laid upon the increasing distrust of France by the Japs and the attendant tension between France and England which has come about over the presence of the Russian fleet in Indo-China waters. A Japanese official is quoted as voicing the strong disapproval of his government over the stand France has taken and France, on the other hand, is reported as projecting stronger defenses in Indo-China in the belief that a rupture with Japan, under the circumstances, is among the probabilities.

Neighborhood News.

Matters of Interest Reported by Our Corps of Correspondents.

Boone's Store Items.

Miss Fannie Scott has been in Alamance county visiting relatives the past week.

Mr. T. J. Brooks and Mr. Russell Apple made a business trip to your city last week.

The wheat crop is looking fine for the time of year and if nothing happens the crop will be very good.

This section was visited by a severe rain and wind storm last Friday evening that did much damage to fruit trees.

Rev. Stowe filled his pulpit at Friendship church Sunday and preached a good sermon to a fair sized congregation.

We have had very wet weather for the last two weeks, which has greatly hindered the farmers. Very little tobacco has been set, and many of the plants are already too large to set.

We haven't said anything about the Sunday school work that is going on in this community, but its going on just the same. We organized at the Haw River schoolhouse the first Sunday in April. The school has grown from a small beginning and now it numbers fifty energetic Sunday school workers. The school has adopted the lecture system as a means of making it interesting and each Sunday we have a talk from some member of the school. Below we give you an essay read last Sunday by Mr. T. J. Busick, on the line of our duty which we think will be helpful to any one who will read it.

"As you have chosen me to say a few words in our Sunday school I have gathered a few beneficial thoughts that I hope will prove the same to the school. I feel weak in the field, but as we have just opened the work for this another year, first of all we should study our duty, both teacher and scholar. There is so much on this line of work. May some little good come of my few wandering thoughts. I do not feel that I am before strangers, but old time friends. We are not seeking to take a new field, but to take better care of the one already occupied by us. There will of course be new friends, and it may be that with our means of helpfulness we shall enlarge our Sunday school. I deem it not necessary to speak of the duty of our superintendent. We know he is our chief teacher, and by his work in life we shall be better able to understand him. We feel like we have a Godlike man to lead us. First, the most important duty I would notice is that of the teacher and pupil in this great work for it is of them we shall have our success. We want good teachers—not untrained persons but Christians with clear ideas. The teacher should know his Bible well; should be able to talk and know when to talk. He should be a person of faith, hope and courage, and if he ever gets discouraged on any line of Christian work he should not tell it, or in any way show it, but drive away the evil spirit by doing better things. The Sunday school teacher should be a person of practical common sense, kindly in disposition, consecrated to God's service; studious in habit and one who has the full respect of the community. I would urge the teacher to show the lesson well and come to the class fairly overflowing with information about the lesson. He should seek for opportunities to do good and find the wandering sheep. You will never find a service more sweet than working for the Master and bringing all your students to His feet. Second, I would speak of the scholars, for without these our Sunday school would drift with the tide. Boys and girls, we must be in the fight; we must help in the good work by giving our presence, our study and some of the precious moments of our time to the Allwise, or some day be cast aside in darkness. Our good people have opened a way for us to be built up spiritually and we have only but to accept, obey, study and at last receive the honor well done. It may seem a sacrifice, yet when we remember Christ and his love we lighten up and say, "I will go to Sunday school. There is no joy like that of studying God's word and of trying to be like him." Let no one on the wayside lead you off, but try to gather them in to the fold. Beg your mates to join with you. Get love in your hearts that you can win any one in the way you go. Let the Sundays be the sweetest day of the week. Study the lessons so as to draw out the most. Get not the idea in your head that to go to Sunday school is only to see and to be seen, but a place of work for the Master. Be unselfish and ever ready to share the woes of those not so fortunate as you. Study life and try to make men and women of yourselves that the world shall be proud of and that God shall rejoice over. So let not only one help in this great work but let us all be soldiers of the cross, ever ready and willing to do whatsoever we can to lift man to a higher and nobler plane of life."

Misses Maude Waynick and Mamie Robertson, two prominent young ladies from Rockingham county, spent the latter part of last week and the first of this week in this community visiting their uncles, Messrs. L. D. Rippey and W. L. Wicker.

The Appalling Waste of Fire.

One thousand million dollars, said President Washburn, of the Board of Fire Underwriters, at its meeting in this city, is the country's loss by fire in six years. The loss for 1904 surpassed all previous records, reaching $229,000,000, of which $50,000,000 disappeared in the Baltimore blaze.

But that is not the real total of destruction. It does not include all lonely, uninsured farm houses of small value burned. It does not fully cover the losses of household goods in general less adequately insured than buildings. It takes no note of forest fires, the most irreparable of all calamities. The figures might almost be doubled without exaggeration. The true annual fire tax of the nation is doubtless $25 per family.

No other civilized nation knows such an appalling waste. Even in the timber-and-paper Japanese cities fire losses are comparatively slight, since building is cheap and family valuables are kept in fireproof "go-downs," or store-houses.

Ours is a prospering nation; but can it much longer afford a fire tax of 50 cents a week for every family.

Damage by Storm at Sharp Institute.

Intelligence, May 15.—Friday's storm did some damage at Sharp Institute. The flag on Sharp Institute failed to be taken down before the storm. The wind caught in its folds and snatched flag, pole and one side of the banister work from the tower, but not causing any serious damage to the building. Just a few seconds before the force of the wind had struck Prof. Sharp's store building, lifting it from its foundation and setting it over in the hollow. Messrs. Horsford and Still just cleared the door in time to escape the fall of the building. The studding was wrenched from its base, the windows crushed and doors bound so they could not be forced open. Many of the goods were damaged so they are worthless. At the same time Prof. Sharp's smoke-house was partly demolished by a tree being uprooted and dashed upon it. The roads are fenced with trees and fields are strewn with fence rails. Many barns and houses are damaged throughout the country. Prof. Sharp's damage will reach several hundred dollars.

New Advertisements.

Folks who traded at Thacker & Brockmann's 10 years ago when the business started are still regular customers of the store. This means honest goods and fair treatment. Read their new ad. on last page.

You can readily find just what you want in clothing at Blaustein's. He carries nothing but the latest and best, and the price speaks for itself.

Now is the time for bargains in furniture and sewing machines at McBride's.

Our brothers have just received a big lot of fruit cans. They pay highest market price for chickens and eggs.

J. A. Canaday gives special bargains this week in wash goods, and 33 per cent. off on millinery.

A Disastrous Calamity.

It is a disastrous calamity, when you lose your health, because indigestion and constipation have sapped it away. Prompt relief can be had in Dr. King's New Life Pills. They build up your digestive organs, and cure headache, dizziness, colic, constipation, etc. Guaranteed at all druggists; 25c.

Jeffries Leaves the Ring.

Co-operative Efforts.

EDITOR PATRIOT—In my regular work of editing news every day on almost all subjects, an opportunity is afforded me of taking a bird's eye view of important events vouchsafed to but few. Concentrated information gained in this way has a working value that may be styled strictly commercial, or professional, since out of a full storehouse of garnered threads of thought and accomplished deeds there is left a residuum or afterglow, which makes the web and woof of other things, even local, common passing events. If it were not for a Providential ordering that the mind could throw off the mass of details of work-a-day matters, retaining this residuum for growth and ripening wisdom, there but few editors, reporters, teachers or lawyers who would not be insane from insomnia in six months of regular, conscientious devotion to their duties. It occurs to me to write for the benefit of my state, a series of letters, giving in concrete shape some old hand epitome of deeds done and doing towards North Carolina uplift. That wonders are being worked in many fields of endeavor everybody realizes. The particular things being done few can recount. In this initial letter, it strikes me that some facts about education would be most appropriate. In subsequent letters I shall relate facts about manufacturers, facts about general industrial progress, facts about moral progress, facts about increase of electrical appliances, expert workmen, etc.

EDUCATION BY CO-OPERATION.
The educational campaign that has been carried on constantly and aggressively for the past few years has resulted in much educational progress. Friends of the movement for more liberal school taxes have every reason to rejoice at the result of the recent elections held in various sections of the state. So far as I have seen in the newspaper reports, Mooresville is the only place where the special school tax was defeated. During the past few weeks the following nineteen towns, villages and communities have voted for local taxation:
Louisburg, Franklinton and Youngsville, in Franklin county; Siler City, in Chatham county; Smithfield, in Johnston county; Kernersville, in Forsyth county; Pinnacle, in Stokes county; Churchill, in Warren county; District No. 2 of Lilesville township, in Anson county; Monticello, in Guilford county; Lake Landing, in Hyde county; Webster, in Jackson county; Fremont, in Wayne county; Nebo, in McDowell county; Terrell, in Catawba county; Abbottsburg, in Bladen county; Hertford, in Perquimans county; and Kings Mountain, in Cleveland county.

In addition to the local tax establishing better public schools in the above localities the following communities have, during the same period of time, voted bonds for school buildings: Durham, $50,000 for a high school; Morganton, $20,000; Randolph, $20,000; Sanford, $20,000; Washington, $20,000; Hertford, $15,000; Kernersville, $10,000; King's Mountain, $10,000; Franklinton, $10,000; Louisburg, $10,000.
Many other local tax elections have been ordered. Most communities will undoubtedly vote in favor of the tax. Within the next few weeks fourteen school districts in Guilford county will vote, and if the vote in all of them should be favorable to the tax the county superintendent informs me that over half of Guilford county would then enjoy the advantages of a special local school tax. Already twenty-six districts have voted a special tax. An election has been ordered in Greensboro in June at which $20,000 of bonds will probably be voted for a high school building.

How to Know Diamonds.
If you doubt the genuineness of your diamonds or stones which you contemplate purchasing, it is not necessary to submit them to an expert—by studying the following methods of testing these gems you may become your own expert, says the Chicago Tribune.
For the first lesson, take a real diamond and an imitation. Drop them in glasses of water. The imitation will blend with the water and become almost invisible, while the real one will be distinctly visible, shining out white through the liquid.
Dry and clean the two stones, and on the flat side of each put a tiny drop of water. On the real the drop will hold its globular form and can be led about with a pin point. The drop on the glass one will spread.
Study the two stones with a magnifying glass. The facets of the false one are even and regular. On the other they are of varying sizes. The reason for this is that a diamond cutter with a good gem will sacrifice symmetry to weight, preferring to leave some slight irregularities in the planes and edges rather than to reduce the stone's value. The material in a false stone being of little value, the cutter makes as finished a job as he can of it, the appearance counting for more than the stone itself.

An Obstacle to Union.
Philadelphia, May 10.—The Press tomorrow will say:
"After two years of agitation on the question of union between the Presbyterian and Cumberland Presbyterian churches, and after both bodies have decided the issue favorably, the point has now been suddenly raised on the eve of the meeting of the two general assemblies whether such a reunion will be valid and sustained by the courts. An eminent Presbyterian layman, Judge William M. Lanning, of the United States District court of New Jersey, declares that the united church would not have a legal right to the property of the Cumberland body."

When Eggs are Cheap in China.
Americans might go to school to the Chinese in the art of chicken farming. A traveler passing through the province of Chekiang a few weeks ago was struck with the enormous number of young chickens carried in the farmers' carts he met in the T'ung-tai country. He made inquiries on the subject, and at length he was asked by a poultry farmer to go and inspect his rearing arrangements. The plant deals with 10,000 eggs at a time and the average price is 3,000 checks. The arrangements are simple and inexpensive. The eggs are examined at the end of the fourth day and those that show no signs of fertilization are "sold cheap."

"Let us suppose a railway to have been built between the earth and the fixed star Centauri," said the lecturer. "By a consideration of this railway's workings we can get some idea of the enormous distance that intervenes between Centauri and us."
"Suppose that I should decide to take a trip on this new aerial line to the fixed star. I ask the ticket agent what the fare is and he answers:
"The fare is very low, sir; it is only a cent each 100 miles."
"And what, at that rate, will the through ticket one way cost?" I ask.
"It will cost just $2,750,000,000," he answers.
"I pay for my ticket and board the train. We set off at a tremendous rate."
"How fast?" I ask the brakeman, "are we going?"
"Sixty miles an hour, sir," says he, "and it's a through train. There are no stops."
"We'll soon be there then, won't we?" I resume.
"We'll make good time, sir," says the brakeman.
"And when will we arrive?"
"In just 48,633,000 years."

It is much easier for a woman to confide in the average man than in the average woman. She knows that the man will respect her confidences and keep them to himself. He is strong, has more experience of the world and can help the woman who needs advice. There is every reason why women should not trust their delicate constitutions in the hands of unskilled persons. It requires a thorough medical education to appreciate and understand the womanly organism. When a woman has ill and pains that she cannot bear—when life seems dark for every woman, she should confide her troubles to a physician of standing in the community, or one who has a national reputation. Certainly it would not be the part of wisdom to confide in an ignorant person without medical education simply because she was a woman. There is every reason why she should write to some great specialist, one who has made the diseases of women a specialty for a third of a century, like Dr. R. V. Pierce, founder of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. All his correspondence is held sacredly confidential, and he gives his advice free and without charge.
So uniformly successful has Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription proven in all forms of Female Weakness, Prostration, or Falling of the Uterus, and Leucorrhoea, that, after curing the worst cases of these distressing and debilitating ailments, Dr. Pierce now feels fully warranted in offering to pay $50 in cash for any case of these diseases which he cannot cure.
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

Is the name given a wonderfully successful medicinal preparation, discovered and formulated 33 years ago, by the once celebrated physician and chemist, Dr. Franz Gauswein, of Weisbaden, Germany. The curative properties of "SEVEN BARKS" are extracted from the bark of a specially grown species of the Hydrangea plant—the bark of which, as botanists will tell you, grows in seven layers, each of different color and each possessing a distinctive medicinal value. It is the only plant known from which is extracted providence-given elements, which in combination produce a single panacea that is a sovereign remedy for most all ailments and diseases of the Lungs, Stomach, Bowels, Liver, Kidneys and Nerves.

"SEVEN BARKS" was introduced in America in 1872 by Mr. Lyman Brown, of New York City, a chemist of national repute, who in the early '70's spent nearly a year in Weisbaden before he could secure the highly prized formula. Although "SEVEN BARKS" has never been advertised in newspapers, yet thousands of American families are never without a bottle, while hundreds of physicians and druggists are recommending and prescribing it. By this slow process of personal recommendation "SEVEN BARKS" is today one of the most popular and most successful remedies on the American market. The reader has no doubt heard of it.
The undersigned purchased the formula and sole right of distribution in the United States. He realizes that every family desiring continuous good health should always keep a supply on hand, therefore strenuous efforts will be made to introduce it in every home where it is unknown.

From any disorder of the stomach, or you are inclined to attacks of biliousness or constipation; if your bowels are inactive at times; if your kidneys are sluggish or pain you, or you suffer from sick or neuragic headaches, buy a 50 Cent bottle of "SEVEN BARKS" from your druggist. If this first bottle does not benefit you, or you are disappointed in its action, take the remaining portion back and get your money. It will be cheerfully returned. If you cannot afford to pay for a bottle now, send us your name and address. We will give you an order on your home druggist for a bottle, with our compliments.

YOUR KIDNEYS ARE THEY WELL?
Unless they are, good health is impossible.

Every drop of blood in the body passes through and is filtered by healthy kidneys every three minutes. Sound kidneys strain out the impurities from the blood, diseased kidneys do not, hence you are sick. FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE makes the kidneys well so they will eliminate the poisons from the blood. It removes the cause of the many diseases resulting from disordered kidneys which have allowed your whole system to become poisoned. Rheumatism, Bad Blood, Gout, Gravel, Dropsy, Inflammation of the Bladder, Diabetes and Bright's Disease, and many others, are all due to disordered Kidneys. A simple test for Kidney disease is to set aside your urine in a bottle or glass for twenty-four hours. If there is a sediment or a cloudy appearance, it indicates that your kidneys are diseased, and unless something is done they become more and more affected until Bright's Disease or Diabetes develops.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE is the only preparation which will positively cure all forms of Kidney and Bladder troubles, and cure you permanently. It is a safe remedy and certain in results.

If You are a sufferer, take FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at once. It will make you well.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Correspondence of the PATRIOT.

Washington, May 15.—But one topic has been discussed in Washington this week and that is President Roosevelt. His old stand regarding the necessity of Federal control of the ironed highways of the country; his declaration that the Federal government must exercise a "supervisory and regulatory function over the great highways of the country," made to the Chamber of Commerce at Denver, revived the hopes of those Democrats who have rejoiced at seeing the day when a Republican President should espouse a policy so essentially Democratic—hopes that had become faint from the constantly repeated, although unwarranted, reports that the President would content himself with only such railway rate legislation as would prove acceptable to the railway managers.

Then came the news of the unbounded enthusiasm with which the President had been received at the Iroquois Club of Chicago, that stronghold of the western Democracy, the oldest Democratic club in Illinois, where Mayor Dunne and the staunchest Democrats in the organization cheered to the echo the words, not of a Republican President, but of a President of the United States. And at that moment the President assured the Democratic mayor that in his efforts to preserve order and enforce the law he should have the hearty support of the President. Earlier in the day, speaking to a delegation of strikers which called on him, the President had said: "In every effort of Mayor Dunne to prevent violence by mobs or individuals, to see that the laws are obeyed and that order is preserved, he has the hearty support of the President of the United States, and in my judgment he should have that of every good citizen of the United States." Speaking at the Club, and to Mayor Dunne, he said that in all conflicts with mob violence, "if ever the need arises, back of the city stands the state and back of the state stands the nation." When the President made this declaration the enthusiasm knew no bounds. It had the ring of pure Americanism and his Democratic auditors recognized that ring as quickly, perhaps more so, than would have a gathering of the President's own party.

Naturally the question arises in the minds of Democratic politicians, What will be the outcome of this enthusiasm for a Republican President? Of course, opinions differ on that point but many of the Democrats in Washington, and among them some of the keenest observers of public affairs, declare that the immediate result will be the reversal of the present majority in the House of Representatives. And they reason in this way: "The President has won the confidence of the entire people. He is urging, and next fall will urge in stronger terms than ever, that legislation shall be enacted which shall so control the railroads of the country as to make them serve first the interests of the people by whose authority they exist. But this was hardly an issue when the present House was elected, especially when it was nominated. It was not an issue when most of the present senators were elected. Therefore, the men who now sit in the national Congress do not realize the grasp which this issue has taken upon the public mind, as they are, in many instances, beholden to the railroads for their elections, or at least for the campaign funds with which they were elected, they will not, dare not, vote against their patrons. The President will be defeated in his every effort to secure efficient railway legislation in the next Congress, and then will come the cyclone which will send into oblivion those statesmen who have so blocked the wheels of progress in Congress and their places will be taken by a newer and younger generation. The railroads, still fighting for mastery, will nominate the Republican candidates and the people, aroused to an appreciation of their responsibilities by a Republican President, will send to Washington a Democratic majority which will be pledged to carry into effect the railway recommendations of Theodore Roosevelt." It is even predicted that the very railway men who this year are fighting with all their energy the legislation advocated by President Roosevelt will, two years hence, be begging Congress to enact this legislation, rather than the more radical laws which the people will by that time demand.

One prominent eastern railroad man, one who is now president of an eastern road, after long service as a high official of a road in the northwest, admitted to your correspondent this week that he regarded the legislation advocated by the President as inevitable. "It has got to come," he said, "and we might as well face the inevitable gracefully." Unfortunately, however, the railroads seem about to repeat the mistake they made with regard to organized labor. They fought labor organizations to the death, their own death. Now they admit that the labor organizations are easier to deal with than were the disorganized element which they formerly employed. But by their protracted fight they embittered the laboring men, and now the unions elect as their officers men who are bitter against the railroads. Suppose, however, that the railroads had foreseen the inevitable and yielded gracefully. Then, today, they might have had men to deal with as officers of the labor unions who were reasonable. The unions might even have been persuaded to elect officers who were mutually agreeable to themselves and to their employers and the gain to both would have been incalculable. It is a wise man who knows when to quit. The time for the railroads to quit is right now, and although I am president of a great railway system I would gladly join my colleagues in saying to the President and to Congress, "enact such legislation as you deem necessary and we will do our best to live in accordance with its provisions. We bury the hatchet. Treat us tenderly as a conquered enemy which stands ready to swear allegiance."

Strike in Porto Rico Ends.

Washington, May 14.—The strike of the 14,000 agricultural laborers in Porto Rico has ended according to a cablegram today received by President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, from Santiago Iglesias, the organizer of the federation.

MAPLE SUGAR IS SCARCE.

Seven-Eighths of the Supply is Not the Real Thing.

Seven-eighths of the so-called maple sugar and syrup that is sold is a spurious article, according to a bulletin recently issued by the Bureau of Forestry of the Agricultural department. While the demand has constantly increased, the output from maple trees has decreased during the last twenty years. The trade has been supplied only by radically adulterating the pure goods or by manufacturing a product entirely from foreign material. Most of the fabrications are entirely harmless, but they are not the real thing.

The fault does not lie with the producers, those who tap the trees and reduce the sap to syrup and sugar, but with the middlemen, who buy the sugar and mix and adulterate it most profitably for themselves. The most common substitutes used in the adulteration of maple sugar and syrup are other sugars and glucose. Much of the so-called maple syrup on the market is nothing but a combination of sugar with a little maple molasses added to give the maple flavor. There is also a maple syrup which contains no maple at all, but the flavor is obtained by the compound of an extract of hickory bark. This extensive adulteration forces the producers of the pure maple syrup to compete with cheap imitations. The price of their raw product is kept down, and the forests of maple are not as profitable to their owners as they otherwise might be.

The best sap now is secured in the cooler northern states, yet good results can be expected in most of Pennsylvania and West Virginia, in western Maryland, all of Indiana and Kentucky, eastern Tennessee and western North Carolina. At present the largest producers of sugar maple products are Ohio, Vermont and New York. The sugar and black maples yield the most and best sap, although some other species of maple may be worked to advantage when neither of these is available.

As a result of the study recently made, definite directions for the management and improvement of existing groves and for the establishment of new ones in suitable localities and under different conditions have been prepared and will soon be published.

Mr. Bowen in Washington.

Washington, May 14.—Herbert W. Bowen, recently American minister to Venezuela, accompanied by Mrs. Bowen, reached Washington today from New York. Mr. Bowen, after leaving his baggage at a hotel, went at once to the White House and left his card for the President. He spent the evening quietly at his hotel, where he received a number of friends. It is expected that the President will send for Mr. Bowen tomorrow, and receive from him his statement in connection with the charges which have been brought against Mr. Loomis, the acting Secretary of State. Mr. Bowen refuses to discuss the matter in any way whatsoever, beyond saying that his mission to Washington is in obedience to instructions received some time ago and that he awaits the pleasure of the President for a hearing.

Morton Decides to Leave The Cabinet.

Washington, May 12.—Paul Morton, of Chicago, secretary of the navy, has decided to retire from the cabinet. He so announced at the meeting today. His decision was greeted by a chorus of noes, that of the President being the loudest. The secretary declared, however, that he has served longer than he had originally intended. It is understood that he will on July 1 formally tender his resignation, to take effect on a day to be later determined upon. Mr. Morton has been at the head of the Navy department since July 1, 1904. He succeeded W. H. Moody, of Massachusetts, the present attorney-general. He entered the railroad business when 16 years of age and continued in that work up to the time he entered the cabinet, except six years in the coal and iron business. He was with the Santa Fe Railroad when appointed.

Mr. Morton has not been in close touch with the administration's railroad policy, but this fact has nothing to do with his proposed retirement. All the members of the cabinet except those absent from the city, Secretaries Hay and Wilson, attended the meeting at the White House this morning, the first for six weeks. After receiving congratulations of his advisers on the success of his trip, President Roosevelt entered at once with them into a discussion of the various matters of public business that have accumulated during his absence.

Among other things considered was an opinion rendered by Attorney General Moody, to the effect that the eight-hour law does not apply to work on the Panama canal. This ruling is especially gratifying to the president and secretary of war, as the construction of the canal would have been seriously hampered had the commission been required to limit a day's labor to eight hours on the isthmus, in accordance with the requirements on government work in the United States.

Virginia Veteran Wins Out.

Washington, May 13.—Senator Daniel, of Virginia, recommended to the President today the appointment of Major General Lunsford Lewis Lomax as one of the members of the Gettysburg battlefield commission in succession to the late Major Robbins, of North Carolina, who was one of the Confederate commanders. The President referred the matter to Secretary Taft, who is the appointing power, with a request that the appointment of General Lomax be made. General Lomax is the senior Confederate officer of Virginia, and, with the exception of Major General Hoke, of North Carolina, is the senior officer living of the Army of Northern Virginia. He was first lieutenant of cavalry in the United States army, and commanded the escort of President Lincoln at the time of the latter's first inauguration. For many years General Lomax has been an employee of the War department.

TORNADO LEAVES 100 DEAD IN ITS PATH.

The Town of Snyder in Oklahoma Swept by Storm at Midnight—Work of Devastation Complete.

Mountain Park, Okla., May 11.—The town of Snyder, which was hit by a tornado soon after midnight this morning, is almost in ruins. It had 1,200 inhabitants, mostly Texans, and many of these were either killed or injured. It is now believed that the number of dead will not exceed one hundred and that over 200 were injured, about fifty of them seriously.

The tornado's havoc was not confined to Snyder. That the village of Olusee was also destroyed by the tornado is believed, for all attempts to reach it by wire or telephone have failed. According to the course of the storm it would have struck with full force upon the little village of frail frame dwellings.

Reports from dispatchers on the Santa Fe road say that the town of Quilman, in Woodward county, was hit and that three persons are known to have been killed. Relief expeditions are getting to the stricken town as fast as possible. The first to arrive was a trainload of physicians and nurses from Hobart. A second train containing a dozen undertakers who were in conference at Hobart, has been sent to Snyder with a carload of coffins.

At least four relief expeditions are supposed to have reached Snyder to assist the Hobart party. The Frisco Railroad authorities are doing all in their power in assisting in getting aid to the sufferers.

According to those who went to Snyder early today forty residences and twelve stores were destroyed and many other buildings were unroofed or badly smashed.

Among the piles of clapboards, beams, tin roofs and brick, the survivors were wandering aimlessly. So great had been the shock to those who had escaped that they were of hardly any assistance to the rescuing party. Field hospitals were established in the totally razed section of the town north of the tracks of the Oklahoma City and Western Railway. This has been the business section and many of the merchants lived in rooms over their stores.

Along the lines of the streets were many bodies, crushed and bruised almost beyond recognition, were found. The care of the dead, however, was forgotten in the face of the sufferings of the injured beneath the buildings and the entire force of available men continued work in the ruins.

Snyder came into prominence eight months ago, when its inhabitants waged war on the men of Mountain Park. Both towns were striving for supremacy in county affairs and many were killed on both sides.

The storm was not confined to Snyder. On the way to the boom town dead and injured were passed in plain sight of the relief trains, but these were passed by in the efforts of the rescuers to reach Snyder, where there was greater need of their services.

Latest estimates of the disaster place the number of killed at 100, and of wounded at 250.

Tornado Death List Grows.

Snyder, Okla., May 11.—Four more of the persons injured in Wednesday night's tornado died today. They were Miss Mize, Mr. Paulson, John McCarty and Miss Buser. This brings the total number of known dead to 117. A number of persons are missing, and several of the injured are in a critical condition. Relief is coming from many quarters. There was no rain today, and conditions are more cheerful.

A pocketbook containing $32 was picked up today nineteen miles from Snyder. It belonged to Mrs. James, who was killed, and it was carried twenty-three miles in the storm.

Southport the Coaling Point.

Norfolk, Va., May 12.—James M. Barr, president of the Seaboard Air Line, made the following statement tonight:

"There is not a word of truth in the report that the offices of the Seaboard Air Line will be removed from Portsmouth. No offices will be secured by the railroad in Norfolk.

"Regarding the report that a large coaling station will be established at Southport, N. C., some of it is correct and some parts of it are incorrect. The Seaboard Air Line has not purchased any coal land in southwest Virginia and northern Tennessee. The land was bought by Messrs. Ryan, Blair, Dennis, Green and Coolidge, who are however interested in the Seaboard."

This announcement by Mr. Barr means that the Seaboard will soon enter into a competition with the Norfolk & Western and Chesapeake & Ohio systems as a coal-carrying road. Its terminals will not be here because the property of the line on the water front is too far in from the outer harbor to compete with Lambert's Point shipments by the Norfolk & Western or Newport News shipments by the Chesapeake & Ohio, aside from the fact that the road would be compelled to haul the coal too great a distance to meet competition.

It is pointed out that to bring the coal to Portsmouth or Norfolk would require an additional hauling of 150 miles over the route to Washington and Southport, and it is declared that all idea of building great coal terminals at Portsmouth or in this city have for this reason alone been given up.

A branch road from the coal fields through to Johnston City, Tenn., will be completed within a year, and then the Seaboard's coal operations will be over this branch, coming from Johnston City to connect with the Seaboard Air Line's main tracks at Hamlet, N. C., whence there is at present a line to Wilmington.

Governor R. B. Glenn has accepted the invitation to deliver the address of welcome to the Virginia editors, who meet in Asheville with the North Carolina editors on the 5th and 6th of July. It is possible that the South Carolina editors will also attend.

Political Foes Dine Roosevelt.

Chicago, May 10.—Honoring and honored by his political foes, but personal friends, President Roosevelt tonight was the chief guest at a magnificent banquet tendered to him by the Iroquois Club, the leading Democratic organization of Illinois. Surrounded by men who have fought against him in two national political campaigns the President tonight was given to understand that in his case political differences were not a personal issue.

The banquet was given entirely by Democrats to the leader of their political opponents and many of the kindly personal references made by the speakers of the evening, the majority of whom are men of Democratic faith, deeply touched the President. Throughout the entire evening ran the dominant note of admiration for the character of the man himself.

Addresses were made by Mayor Dunne, Governor Deneen and others. The President in responding discussed organizations of capital and labor, saying in part:

"I believe thoroughly in each kind of organization but I recognize that if either kind of organization does what is wrong the increase in its power for efficiency that has resulted from the combination, means the increase in its power to do harm, and that, therefore, corporation, that is, organized capital, and union, that is, organized labor, must alike be held to a peculiar responsibility to the public at large; and that from each alike we have the right to demand not only obedience to the law but service to the public."

Passing to the railroad rate question the President said:

"I believe that the Federal government must take an increasing control over corporations. I trust there will be no halt in the steady process of assuming such national control and the first step toward it should be the adoption of a law conferring upon some executive body the power of increased supervision and regulation of the great corporations engaged primarily in interstate commerce of the railroads."

The President declared that he believed in unions, but that "the union, like the individual, must be kept in a strict accountability to the power of the law."

Mayor Dunne, as President of the United States and therefore, as the representative of the people of this country, I give you as a matter of course, my hearty support in upholding the law, in keeping order, in putting down violence, whether by a mob or by an individual, whether with many standing waving handkerchiefs and napkins. And there need not be the slightest apprehension in the hearts of the most timid that ever the mob spirit will triumph in this country. Those immediately responsible for dealing with the trouble must exhaust every effort in so dealing with it before call is made upon any outside body. But if ever the need arises, back of the city stands the state, and back of the state stands the nation." (Cheers)

President Coming South This Fall.

Washington, May 12.—Just before he reached Washington last night the President informed the representative of the three press associations, who went West with him as his guest, that he hoped to make his proposed trip to Georgia this fall, and that he would also visit Arkansas, Louisiana, Florida and Alabama, the only states that he has not traversed in his capacity as Chief Executive of the nation. At the same time Mr. Roosevelt declared that this would positively be the last extended trip he will make while in the White House. It is his ambition to visit every state in the Union while President, and it is for this reason that he will include the four states mentioned in his itinerary when he goes to the scene of mother's birthplace in Georgia. While the matter is not definitely settled, the President said he would like to make the trip this fall, and if he does he will have to make the start in September, if he holds to his present intention of convening Congress in special session in October. Whether he decides to make the trip this fall or next, he will stop at two North Carolina points and probably more. Assurances to this effect were given the Fayetteville committee this spring, when the invitation was extended him to visit the old Cape Fear city.

Calmage Sermon

By Rev.
Frank De Witt Talmage, D. D.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 14.—That the cause of success and the causes of failure, moral and material, lie in the foundations of character is shown in this sermon. The text is Luke xiv, 29, "When a man begins to build and was not able to finish."

What is the matter with yonder city of houses? I asked one of my friends, some time ago when walking along the Chicago streets. "I don't know," he said, "but I have seen it in many of the houses were laid. The buildings then seemed almost as if they were the plasterers. Why this amount of money lying idle? It was worth at least $100,000 a year to invest. It would have been far better to have had no foundation and no walls and allowed the land to be turned into a vegetable garden than to have those buildings in that state. I don't know it," answered my friend, "but the owner of those buildings overestimated himself. When the foundations were half completed his money ran out. Then, on account of his loss, all his properties were thrown into liquidation into the city courts. Now I don't know what is to be the outcome. Anyway, he cannot go on unless he gets out of his present difficulties. The property must still lie idle in this completed form."

"What is the purpose of those two mammoth shells?" I asked a naval friend some years ago while we were walking through the Brooklyn navy yard. "Why," said he, "those are the ships erected over two immense hulls of half completed warships. During the civil war the navy department was building as many and as large ships as it could, but as soon as the Appomattox peace agreement was signed the work was stopped upon these two vessels. The government had at that time no use for them. Now they are lying there, rotting away. The wood will be used for nothing but kindling, as the brass upon which these keels were laid are already obsolete."

"Incomplete buildings" were both the Chicago houses and the navy yard ships. We do not have to go clear back to Bible times to find illustrations for my text. We can see them everywhere around us in our present day and generation.

We have a right to draw now illustrations and up to date applications for this sermon. Indeed, the fresher and more modern the applications the better. The reason why this simile of my text made an overwhelming impression upon Christ's hearers was that it was an object lesson near at hand. When Christ was seated in the fishing boat upon the waters of Lake Galilee and said, "Behold, there went out a sower to sow," he looked off upon the hillsides overhanging the lake and pointed to a farmer scattering his seed upon the rich soil of the east. In the same way legend tells that when Christ spoke these words of my text he pointed to the half constructed walls of a tower which Pilate, the governor, had begun to build, overlooking one of the Jerusalem aqueducts, and had left in an incomplete state. There it stood, a powerful object lesson, showing that what one commences in life one should carry on to its full completion. So today I would draw my illustrations from every whither. I would find them in the home, the store, the factory, in the church and on the street. I would find them in your life as well as in mine.

Half Built Towers of Life.

The half built towers of life have a modern application in the average schoolroom education. They can be found in the preparations with which many of us were sent forth to the struggle of life. They can especially be found in the smattering of French lessons and painting and music and aesthetic culture in which some sisters and daughters are being dipped for a few months a year on the principle that the more outward color of the dye decides whether or no the garment is really woven and of good wearing quality. They are the "incomplete beginnings" of the schools and colleges which often send a young man or a young woman forth into the world knowing a little of everything and not any one study perfectly. They make their students know a little of astronomy, a little of chemistry, a little of Greek, a little of mathematics, a little of mythology, a little of architecture, a little of mechanics, a little of electricity, a little of this, that and the other thing and yet not well versed in any one subject or along any one line of work. What true education should do is to teach a man to do at least one thing as well as any one else could do and not to know many things poorly. "Lack of all trades is master of none."

I would illustrate my thought with a reference to a remarkable speech which Charles Francis Adams delivered some years ago before the Phi Beta Kappa Society of the Harvard university. The title of this address was "A College Education." In it Mr. Adams denounced the absurd course of study which many colleges demand of students in years of Greek and Latin and the sciences, utterly ignoring practical studies for everyday life. "How did Harvard college prepare me and my nine-to-ten classmates of the year 1856 for the work of life?" he asked. "In answer to the question it is not altogether clear to preserve one's gravity. The college fitted us for this active, bustling, hard biting, many tongued world, caring nothing for authority and little for the past, but full of its living thoughts and living issues, in dealing with which there was no man who did not stand in pressing and constant need of every possible preparation as respects knowledge and exactitude and thoroughness—the poor old college prepared us to play our parts in this world by compelling us, directly or indirectly, to devote the best part of our school lives to acquiring a confessedly superficial knowledge of two dead languages." Such is the testimony of Charles Francis Adams in reference to one of the educational fetiches of our college life. Such, on a broader scale, are the fetiches in reference to the education of the average young man or woman of today.

Let us take the average young man on commencement day. College or school days are over. The foundations of the educational towers have been laid. "Young man, what can you do?" asks the hard headed world. "Are you an expert in any one line? Are you a capable building engineer? Are you a first class advertising agent? Can you sell goods? Are you an authority as a real estate man? What can you do?" "Nothing," says the young man. "I am willing to do anything, but I do not know a trade. I have not become proficient in any one line of work. But I am willing to do what I am told to do."

"That is not enough. To be willing is not necessarily to be capable. What can you do?"

The Wheel of Fortune.

The wheel of fortune turns. The daughters, brought up in luxury, have to go out and make a living. Can you cook? Are you an expert stenographer? Have you papers which signify that you are a well trained nurse or schoolteacher or dressmaker? Are you enough of an authority on French to become a translator, or are you a proofreader, a master hand as a musician or a capable artist? The questions which face you, O woman, are these: "What can you do thoroughly and well? On what subject can you speak as an authority?" Half built towers are unshakable houses. Half built ships are absolutely useless to brave the tempests of the Atlantic ocean. What can you do? What can you do? What one thing can you do as well as most better than any one else?

But the half built educational towers are not to be condemned merely as such as the deserted, half built enterprises of life which we see everywhere around us. It was only here and there that a man or woman in the past had an opportunity to get a complete education. The higher schools of our fathers and mothers were few and far between. Besides that, even if there were fine schools in the past all children were not able to go to them. Perhaps you were like my grandfather. He was the oldest of a large family of children. He had to stay at home and help work the farm that the younger members of the family might have enough to eat and enough clothing to wear. Thus the only education you received outside of the three "R's" was out of the "University of Hard Knocks." But in spite of this handicap, my friend, you have a good mind, a good body and you have had a good many of the essential capabilities of success. Now, why have you been such a failure? Why is your life in its uselessness to be likened unto that half built tower which Pilate, the governor, erected and toward which Christ pointed when he spoke the words of my text? I will tell the reason. You went to work and worked hard. You developed yourself along one line. You laid your foundations; you partly completed your walls, but just when you were about to complete your work and win success you deserted the line of work you were following and went to dig in some other field to build another kind of tower.

Did Not Stick to It.

Is not this emphatically true with you in business? What are you doing today? "Oh," you answer, "I am in the mining business. Some of my friends and myself have a dozen claims up in the new gold fields. I am bound soon to be rich. There is no doubt about it. We are within a quarter of a mile of one mine where they have taken out $1,000,000 in one year. We are on the same vein or line of ore. We are bound to get rich. Will you take some stock in our mine? You can get rich too." No, I thank you. In the first place, I have no money to invest; in the second, if I had I would not invest it in your mine. You are almost certain to make a failure out of it. If there is no gold there, then, of course, you cannot get "blood out of a turnip." If there is any gold there you will let go of it before you develop that mine properly. Some one else will get the profits. How do I know? Why, that has been your record for twenty-five years. In the last quarter of a century you have dabbled in at least ten different businesses, at any one of which you could have made a success if you had only stuck to it. For five years you worked a ranch or a farm. After those five years you said: "There is no need of my burying my talents here. I must get out into some other business where I can make some money." You got out. How is it with the man who bought your place? He has made a success on your farm because he put his brains into it and developed it and ran it along the lines it could pay. After you left the farm you went into the real estate business. Then what was the matter? "Oh," you say, "there was no money in the real estate business. I got out of that very soon."

Yes, you speak the truth. There was no money in the real estate business for you. You are sure of making a failure at everything. But there was money and there is money in the real estate business for the man who took your office. He had no more capital to start with than you had, but he hung on until at last the financial tide turned his way. Today he is one of the wealthy men of this city. Then you failed as a life insurance agent. Next you failed as a book publisher. Then you failed as a commercial traveler. You have failed at everything you touched. Yet men no brainer than you who followed you have made successes in every one of these lines. You dug your foundations; you erected one-fourth, one-half, two-thirds, three-fourths of your walls. Then you said: "Let the unfinished towers stand. I am too discouraged to climb any higher. I will go and dig elsewhere."

But I would not halt here. The completed towers of life are due to grip and grit. They are due to more than that. They are due to more than that. Their foundation stones, their excavations, their walls, are built by character as well. Many a man has had all the proper mental preparation for life and perseverance enough in his makeup to tear down a stone wall with his bare fingers if it were possible for him to do so. But, on the other hand, many a man has lost all simply because his character could not stand the test of truth and justice. No matter how strong and staunch a ship may be, if it has no rudder that ship becomes a plaything of every current and a menace to all ships sailing the seas. No matter how swift a locomotive, if it has no indicator to its boiler that engine is momentarily in danger of blowing up. No matter how high the walls of a tower lift themselves, if those walls are not erected on a solid base and in a straight line they are in danger of toppling over. What the rudder is to the ship, the indicator to the engine, the plumb line to the mason building the wall, character is to man. It is his ballast, his sheet anchor, his safety valve, his protector, his all.

A Sad Example.

Let me illustrate my thought by the sad and yet brilliant life of one of the greatest statesmen England ever produced. Charles James Fox was one of the greatest geniuses who ever stood in the British house of commons. At twenty-one years of age he was ranked among the ablest debaters and at thirty had not superior or equal in all Europe. But, though at times he was the most applauded man in Europe, yet he never could win the confidence of the people. They admired his intellect, but they could not trust his heart. His daily custom was to rise just in time to stroll down to the parliament house. "There tonight," as a contemporary wrote, "he would build up a chain of arguments for a bill he was attacking and more powerful than any of his adversaries could force. Then he would, near these arguments to pieces as though they were cotton threads." Read his speeches on the impeachment of Warren Hastings. Read his masterpiece of the "Reflections of Napoleon's Overtures." After parliament adjourned there would come a round of debauch. Gambling with him was a mad passion. He was both spendthrift and libertine. "How can he guard his king's finances?" asked the people, "when he cannot protect his own pocketbook?" Charles James Fox had every qualification to make himself the political dictator of Europe save the single essential of character, the lack of which destroyed his whole career for practical good.

But you do not have to go back to history to prove the truth of my statement that character is one of the greatest builders of the towers of life and that without true character those towers are always left in a half completed stage. Who was the most brilliant young man of your school days with whom you were associated? Tall, handsome, fine looking he was. His brain became a perfect repository of facts. While you had to sweat and plod and groan over your studies he seemed to absorb his at a glance. On the football field or the baseball diamond he was the school's star athlete. The girls all flattered him. The young men ran after him. But no one could trust him. He was not a true man. "Oh," said the world, "Winifred will go right to the front in life. Success is sure to be his." Was it? No sooner had he left school a few years than his name got mixed up with some shady transactions. With all his brains and ability, what became of him? I know and you know. He is dead now, a suicide; or he is living, a social outcast; or he is begging and cheating his way through life. Oh, the magnificent ruins of the half completed towers of life we see everywhere around us! These towers should have been citadels for defense and safety. They are more dangerous for the owls and the bats and the vermin of sin to inhabit.

A Fatal Gift.

But is there no direct lesson from this characterless tower for the women as well as the men? How is it, O woman, with the most brilliant friend of your childhood days? You see her now, a perfect dream of beauty. As a little girl her teeth were a collection of priceless pearls. When she laughed all the sunshine of the heavens seemed to dance in her blue eyes. Her dimples looked like the eddies in the surface of a mountain brook. Her hair could be likened unto nuggets of gold were it not for the fact that, like that of Miriam of old, each curl had dancing feet that never kept still. Her hands were perfect hands, her feet perfect feet. Then her mind—it was so clear and bright and sparkling and witty and resourceful! What became of her? Where is she? You mention her name now with hushed lips and downcast eyes. Theasp of sin placed one fatal fang about one side of her heart and another fang about the other side of her heart and bit until she died. She destroyed her own life. Yes, but, like Cleopatra, she not only destroyed an Antony, but the moral lives of scores of other men who would today have been noble husbands and fathers and honored citizens of this commonwealth but for her evil influence. Lack of true moral character destroyed her. Ah, yes, brain power and perseverance alone do not build the strong, high towers of life. If we do not admire Satan we must at least, as a speaker once said, "grant that he is persevering."

This parable was spoken by Christ to teach a spiritual lesson as well as a temporal one. If to make a great earthly success we must consecrate our brains, our bodies and life to that particular work, how much more, then, must we consecrate our minds and hearts to Jesus Christ to help in the spiritual work of upbuilding his kingdom? If we must have preparation and perseverance and true moral worth to build the walls of a temporal tower, how much more must we have true preparation and perseverance and moral character to build the walls of our spiritual structure? "If any man," says Christ in the verse preceding this parable, "hate not his father and mother and wife and children and brethren and sisters—yea, and his own life also—he cannot be my disciple." That means "If a man is not willing to give up all for Christ then Christ can be none of his." Are you and I ready to make this sacrifice, to build our spiritual watchtowers today? Are we ready to make the necessary preparations?

Perseverance in Building.

We opened this sermon behind the schoolroom desk of the teacher. Are you and I ready to go and sit at Christ's feet and learn of him? Are we ready to accept his teachings and receive him as our Saviour? Christ says, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be damned." He says again, "I am the way, the truth and the life; no man cometh unto the Father but by me." Are not Christ's words clear enough upon this subject? Are we ready to make the necessary preparations for the building of our spiritual watchtowers by becoming one with him through the atonement of the cross?

Having accepted Christ after we have laid the foundations of our watchtowers, are we going to persevere in the building? We have read that Thomas A. Edison becomes so absorbed when working on a great invention that he will shut himself up in his laboratory and stay there for days and weeks. He will not leave his office even for his meals, but has them brought to him. We have been told that when George Westinghouse was perfecting his famous arc brake he could talk about nothing else. When he walked along the Pittsburgh streets and would meet a friend out of his pocket at once would come the patent. On the street he would talk and talk to prove that his brake was feasible. We have read how the great workers, the great inventors, the great artists, those who have won the great successes of the world, have thought nothing of giving up ten, twenty, thirty, forty, fifty years of perseverance to the accomplishment of their life's purpose. Shall we not be willing to give the same perseverance to the service of Christ?

Lastly, we must offer to Jesus more than proper preparation and perseverance. Can we bring to his service a true character or a spotless moral life? Ah, I think this last is the rub with many of us! The reason our spiritual towers are only half completed is that we are not willing to give up our pet sins. The younger Pilny wrote a strange, weird account of the tribe of Exyll. They were immune to the poison of snake bites because all their lives they were accustomed to handle these poisonous serpents as pets. They fought them and put them to sleep with their little children. When one of their ambassadors, Hexagon by name, came to Rome to prove to the consuls that no poisonous serpent could kill him, he allowed himself to be placed in a bed surrounded by swarms of wriggling, death-dealing adders. But, though Hexagon could sleep among poisonous serpents, no true Christian can build a spiritual watchtower with the poisonous serpent of sin clasped around his breast and heart. Are you ready, O man, to give up that sin, that pet sin, for Christ? Are you ready to offer to Jesus Christ the tribute of a pure life?

This is a call from God to you. In the far east the Mohammedan mosques are flanked by minarets, or tall watchtowers. There at certain hours of the day the priests come, and upon these watchtowers they cry aloud: "Come to prayers! Come to prayers!" All ye children, come to prayers! All ye children, come to prayers! Then the Mohammedans, no matter where they may be, whether as Arabs in the desert, princes and princesses in their palaces, merchants in their streets or laborers in the streets, kneel, bow their heads to the ground and pray. Oh, my friends, shall the call of the Mohammedan priests in the minarets of the far east have a more potent influence over Mohammed's disciples than this call of service and consecration which Christ makes to us? Will you offer to Christ your heart? Will you give to him your unremitting service? Will you come to him with clean hands and a clean, moral life?

The Telegraph in Africa.

According to German papers, the telegraph line which is to run from the Cape of Good Hope to Cairo, the length of the continent of Africa, has reached the south of the Tuganyika lake, in German East Africa. A survey is now to be made to find the best connecting route with the north. Considerable difficulty will have to be overcome, as a swamp 100 miles in length exists north of Ushidish, where it will be very difficult to run a reliable air line. It was intended to run around this swamp, but now it has been determined to utilize wireless telegraphy for communication across. Wireless telegraphy, however, would probably be only a temporary affair, as the wireless telegraph appears to be unreliable in the tropics.

AND KITCHEN ECONOMY

MALLEABLE
The 'Stay Satisfactory' Range

A Monarch or Mound City Range in the kitchen saves time, worry and wood, and is a beauty.

The Boss and Majestic Washing Machines are also great labor savers. Work done in an hour that usually takes half a day of hard work to do.

People who buy shoes at this store don't have any vain regrets. We sell good shoes that wear well, fit comfortably and look nice. People who who traded with us ten years ago are still our regular customers. We think this is pretty good evidence that we sell reliable goods and "tote fair." Just now we are making a special run on Ladies' and Children's Slippers and Oxford Ties. At $1.00, $1.10 and $1.35 you can get some very special values in this line.
