Smith's home was at Liberty, and his body was taken there for burial.

GUILFORD SUPERIOR COURT.

Regular Term Occupied Wholly With Minor Cases—Special Term Began Monday.

Judge Moore adjourned the regular term of Superior court Saturday afternoon upon the conclusion of the case in which W. P. Daniel was the defendant. Daniel is the young man who was recently charged with the larceny of some freight from the Southern depot. He showed to the satisfaction of the jury that he had an understanding with some of the railroad officials as to the removal of perishable freight, and the jury promptly returned a verdict of not guilty.

The entire week was taken up with cases of a minor character, in the main. Fully three-fourths of them could have been disposed of in magistrates' courts, had such a thing been possible under the law, without detriment to the peace and dignity of the state or a sacrifice of any right on the part of the defendants. How long this state of affairs is to continue is a matter for the taxpayers to decide. Unless there is a united protest our court dockets will continue to be burdened with entries charging simple assault, minor affrays, petit larceny, carrying concealed weapons, retailing and the like, any and all of which, except in aggravated cases, should be passed upon by a county official clothed with proper jurisdiction. The right of appeal would always be vouchsafed and defendant, while justice would be administered in a decidedly more economic manner. The Superior court judges themselves would welcome a change in the existing order of things, as it would enable them to give more of their time to the consideration of weightier matters. Guilford's representatives in the next legislature could not devote their energies to a better cause than securing judicious amendments to the law relating to certain classes of crime.

Before the grand jury was discharged Saturday its report was read by the court and filed with the clerk. The report is appended in full.

Immediately after adjournment Judge Moore heard arguments in the habeas corpus proceedings brought by S. F. Hutches to secure control of his two children, who were recently taken from their mother by order of the court and placed in the care of the mother's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Coble, of Randolph county. After a number of affidavits had been read and Hutches had testified in the matter Judge Moore announced that he was satisfied neither parent was fit to bring up their children and they were permanently placed in the custody of their grandparents. Hutches by his own affidavit alleged that Mr. Coble was unfit to rear the children, being a man in poor circumstances with an invalid wife, of violent temper, not on speaking terms with his son who lived only a few hundred yards from him, owning no land of consequence and having been charged with illegally selling whiskey. At the conclusion Judge Moore stated that he did not attach any importance to an affidavit sworn to by Hutches, besides he had affidavits from many influential citizens of Coble's neighborhood testifying to his good character and his ample means for providing for the children.

During the week Dr. J. B. Matthews appeared before the clerk of the court and renewed his bond in the sum of $5,000 for his appearance at the December term, pending the decision of the Supreme court in his case.

Under sentence of the court for the periods indicated the following prisoners were conveyed to the convict camps and workhouse Monday morning:

Capt. Tyson's camp No. 1—Will Glass, assault, one month; Welton Davis, carrying concealed weapons, two months; Lee Caldwell, assault, one month; Charles Taylor, retailing, twelve months; Rancher Johnson, retailing, four months; John Martin, larceny, eight months; Walter Jordan, carrying concealed weapons, two months; Della Hicks, larceny, twelve months; Lily Gilmer, larceny, twelve months; Daisy Gibson, larceny three years.

Major Melver's camp, No. 2—Rowe Brewer, larceny, twelve months; Bob Wharton, larceny, twelve months; Aaron Blount, highway robbery, eighteen months; Pinnacle Jones, assault, four months; Harrison McGee, embezzlement, four months; Jim Thompson, retailing, six months.

Workhouse—Alex Chaffin, larceny, twelve months; Ben Petty, larceny, eight months; Bruce Martin, larceny, twelve months; Ben Clendenin, larceny, twelve months; Henry Galloway, larceny, twelve months; Martha Evans, larceny, six months; Fannie Tatum, larceny, two years; Viola Long, larceny, eight months; Dock Brower, highway robbery, twelve months.

All of the male prisoners sent to the workhouse are boys, with one exception, a cripple. Dock Brower, sent up for highway robbery, is less than ten years old. He held up a small white boy on the street and robbed him of a few cents.

Henry Fulton, a white boy given two years for forgery, will serve his term in the Virginia state reformatory, where his expenses will be paid by his father. All of the losses sustained by reason of the boy's misdeeds were made good by the father.

SPECIAL TERM.
Judge B. F. Long, of Statesville, presides over the special term of one week which opened Monday morning. A few unimportant cases carried over from the regular term were disposed of at the morning session. Pleas Thomas was given eighteen months for larceny and Frank Williams twelve months for forgery. Florence Hanks, colored, charged with keeping a bawdy house, slipped out of court before her case was called and it was necessary to order a continuance and capias.

A special venire of one hundred, from which to select a jury in the Beachman murder case, was ordered returnable the following morning at 10 o'clock. Most of Monday afternoon was taken up with the case against John F. Strong, charged with obtaining money under false pretense from C. L. Jones. The defense introduced no testimony, claiming that the prosecution had failed to make out a case, but the jury readily agreed on a verdict of guilty. It is presumed that when sentence is passed an appeal will be taken.

Yesterday morning Frank Bohannon, the self-confessed slayer of foreman R. E. Beachman, who was killed at Hilltop on July 31, and Kiser and Oscar Crutchfield, father and son, accessories before the fact, were placed on trial for their lives. Solicitor Brooks is assisted in the prosecution by Mr. G. S. Ferguson, Jr. Bohannon is represented by Mr. G. S. Bradshaw, and the Crutchfields by Col. J. A. Barringer and Mr. W. J. Sherrod. The following were chosen for jurymen in the case after more than half the special venire was exhausted: A. E. Fryar, B. F. Barefoot, D. M. Halladay, J. W. Loman, W. R. Forbis, J. F. Hanner, E. P. Huffines, Claude Smith, John A. Gilmer, C. E. Coe, J. S. Greeson and E. J. Stafford.

At the afternoon session five important witnesses for the state gave their testimony in the case, W. H. Hutchins, a railroad brakeman who saw the tragedy from the top of a passing train; W. F. Ausley, a telegraph operator who was working at Hilltop the day of the murder; Dr. J. E. Foscoe, who attended the wounded man, conveying him to a High Point hospital; Deputy Sheriff Weatherly, who assisted in the arrest of the murderers, and Mrs. Gray, at whose house Beachman boarded. Several others gave brief corroborative testimony.

The testimony throughout corresponds with the first published reports of the tragedy. Bohannon had been discharged from the double tracking force by Beachman and ordered away. Filling up on whiskey and arming himself he hunted up Beachman and shot him down in a cold-blooded manner. He then said and still insists the Crutchfields urged him to commit the murder, plying him with whiskey and aiding him in securing the weapons he had at the time.

It is probable that all of today's session of the court will be consumed in the taking of testimony. Several other capital cases remain on the docket for the week, and it is a matter of speculation as to how many of them can be heard at this term.

GRAND JURY REPORT.
To His Honor, Fred Moore, Judge presiding at the September term of Guilford Superior court:

We the grand jury for this term of the Superior court beg leave to make the following report:

We have investigated all bills sent to us by the solicitor and made proper disposition of same. We visited the county home and county work house and hereby submit our report as follows:

At the county home we find that there are 32 inmates: 3 white males, 13 white females, 9 colored males and 7 colored females. All of these from their appearance, except one, are well cared for, and those with whom we talked said they had plenty to eat. The one exception is a negro man, who was under confinement in a cell, and the condition was such that confinement was absolutely necessary. The condition of his cell, on account of the foul odors emanating therefrom, we could not make a thorough inspection of.

As to the county work house we have to report that we found 14 inmates: 1 white male, 2 white females, 5 colored

JOHN SHARPE WILLIAMS COMING.

Democratic Congressional Leader to Speak in Greensboro Monday Afternoon, October 15th.

It is with very great pleasure that we announce the coming of John Sharpe Williams, of Mississippi, the able leader of Democracy in the lower house of Congress, who will speak in Greensboro on Monday afternoon, October 15th, at 2 o'clock. Mr. Williams is one of the ablest exponents of Democracy in the United States, and he will have a message for the people of Guilford and surrounding counties that will be worth coming a great distance to hear. County Chairman Brown is busy perfecting the details for this important occasion and they will be announced next week.

Returns After Thirty-Three Years.

Prof. Gideon Duvall Hines, of San Francisco, Cal., is in the county on a visit to relatives, after an absence of more than thirty-three years. During this time Prof. Hines has been teaching in city schools and colleges in California and Washington. More recently he has been doing special literary work for San Francisco papers.

Prof. Hines is a son of the late William Hines, of northern Guilford. His living brothers are H. L. and P. J. Hines, of Greensboro; W. J. Hines, of Reidsville, and A. R. Hines, of Reidsville. His wife, who is a native of this county, and children did not accompany him upon the visit. He intends to remain in North Carolina until spring.

After the Civil war, in which he lost an arm, Mr. Hines entered Trinity College, from which he was graduated. He then entered the ministry of the Methodist church, but on account of throat trouble was forced to give up active ministerial work.

Death of Mr. W. T. Powe.

Mr. W. T. Powe, one of the most highly esteemed young business men of Greensboro, died yesterday at his home in Morganton after an illness covering a long period. Since 1897 Mr. Powe had been the efficient manager of the Odell Hardware Company's mill supply department, and his acquaintance throughout the southern states was extensive. At home and abroad he was recognized as a man of sterling integrity and exceptional business qualifications. His death causes great sorrow here and elsewhere.

Mr. Powe's health began to fail from Bright's disease three years ago, and despite all efforts there was a steady decline until the end came. Mr. J. A. Odell, Mr. C. H. Ireland and other members of the Odell company, together with representatives of the Elks, Odd Fellows and K. of P. lodges will attend the funeral in Morganton today.

Democratic Appointments

The issues of this campaign will be discussed fully before the voters of Guilford in every precinct in the county. Appointments will be announced from time to time and to these speakings everybody is invited, including the ladies. The following appointments have been arranged:

Hon. B. R. Lacy, State Treasurer, and Hon. E. J. Justice, Democratic candidate for the legislature, will speak as follows:

Proximity, Friday night, Sept. 28th. High Point, Saturday night, Sept. 29. Hon. A. L. Brooks, Democratic candidate for solicitor, will speak as follows:

Summersfield, Monday, Oct. 1st, at 1 P. M. Gibsonville, Tuesday night, Oct. 2nd. Respectfully,
E. A. BROWN,
Chm. Guilford Co. Dem. Ex. Com.

It's a mistaken idea to imagine that every store charges about the same price for goods. Compare our prices on matings, carpets, rugs and curtains with prices at other stores and you can see the difference. There is a reason. There is not another store in the city that does the same amount of business with such a small expense account. And we pay cash for every dollar's worth of goods we buy, which helps a whole lot in buying at the very lowest market prices.

FUNERAL OF DR. CHARLES D. McIVER.

Vast Concourse Gathers to Pay a Last Tribute to the Distinguished Educator—Dr. Crawford Delivers a Fitting Eulogy—Friends Present from Far and Near.

On one of the beautiful slopes in Greene Hill cemetery all that was mortal of the late Charles D. McIVER, president of the State Normal and Industrial College ever since its establishment, was laid tenderly to rest Wednesday at noon in the presence of one of the largest funeral gatherings seen here in decades. Business houses throughout the city were closed during the funeral hour, the city schools suspending for the entire day. Excepting the portion reserved for the family and out-of-town friends of the deceased the great First Presbyterian church structure was already filled when the funeral cortege, over half a mile in length, reached the church doors. Hundreds were unable to gain admission, while the throng inside was so great that ladies fainted in the crowded aisles.

In the family group were Dr. McIVER's mother and two sisters, of Sanford; his brothers, W. D. McIVER, of Newbern; J. H. McIVER, of Farmville; and C. R. McIVER, of Spray; C. D. McIVER, a son, of the University; J. Alton McIVER, of Jonesboro; D. McIVER, of Sanford; G.

standard by which we may test correctly the man of every generation, and the individuals in every community. These are unerring tests, and whenever you can find one who can meet these tests, there you have truly a great man.

"Now when we come to measure the life and spirit and work of our departed brother by this measure, how excellent he stands before us, how pre-eminent. And when we come to apply these tests, how great is the life that he lived among men. Does any one present who knew Charles D. McIVER have the slightest doubt this morning that he had the power of vision? None. None. Years ago he saw with the prophet's eye; years ago he discerned with a master's spirit; years ago he penetrated into the depths of things.

"He passed throughout the state and he saw much of it. He loved every inch of its soil. He dreamed of great possibilities for the state. But he had a vision of something else more important than that factories and growing towns and cities. He realized that the great need of our state was popular education. He saw that in the solution of this problem all of the problems would be solved.

"The State Normal and Industrial College is only one feature of his work. Think of what it has done; 3,000 young

DR. CHARLES DUNCAN McIVER.

W. Hinshaw and two daughters, of Winston-Salem.

A wealth of floral offerings were banked about the casket. Four large vehicles were required to convey these beautiful offerings to the cemetery, where later they spread their fragrance over the freshly-made mound that marks the last resting-place of one of the state's greatest men.

The last sad rites were under the auspices of Winston Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of which Dr. McIVER was a member. The members of this lodge attended the funeral in a body, as did the members of Greensboro Council No. 13, Jr. O. U. A. M., and the members of the faculty of the college, which now mourns the loss of its executive officer.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. L. W. Crawford, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, of Reidsville, assisted by Rev. C. E. Hodgkin, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church, and Rev. R. Murphy Williams, pastor of Walker Avenue Presbyterian church.

The service opened with the hymn, "In the Hour of Trial," sung by a quartette composed of Misses Sadie Dick and Nan Wood and Messrs. Waldo Porter and George P. Beverly.

Rev. C. E. Hodgkin read the first Scripture lesson and Rev. L. W. Crawford made a fervent and beautiful prayer, after which the choir joined in singing, "Rock of Ages." Rev. R. Murphy Williams then read the second Scripture lesson.

Dr. Crawford took for the basis of his discourse the text found in Daniel 3: "Then this Daniel was preferred above presidents and princes, because an excellent spirit was in him." He began by speaking of the elements that are necessary to make real greatness. He said they had been the same in all ages. Nations may change, but these remain the same. They are: First, power of vision; and second, ability and willingness to serve.

He spoke of the wonderful vision of Michael Angelo, who saw in the unshewn stone an angel form; and of Sir Isaac Newton, who in watching an apple fall from a tree to the ground set to thinking, and the result was the discovery of the force of gravitation. He then spoke of the vision of the Prophet Daniel, who saw in the fields and forests more than rich soil and the vision of a beautiful harvest. But he emphasized the necessity of having the patience to toil if one would make of his visions realities. He then turned to the life of Dr. McIVER and said, in part, as follows:

"So it is, beloved, the man of vision, and the man with the ability and the willingness to be a servant, is the truly great man, and the one who gives us a women have gone forth from the institution and into each one of them he breathed some of the spirit that inspired him. His work has not been confined to North Carolina alone, however. Adjoining states saw his work and followed in the movement for popular education. Great cities began to call him to come and speak to them; and he began to unfold. His influence then was felt not only throughout Southland, but some extent throughout our entire country."

The remainder of the oration was a continuation of words of admiration and appreciation of Dr. McIVER, delivered very feelingly and in a most fitting manner for the occasion.

At the conclusion of Dr. Crawford's remarks, Rev. C. E. Hodgkin led in prayer and the choir and congregation sang, "Abide With Me." This concluded the service and as the congregation left the church the choir sang "Some Sweet Day."

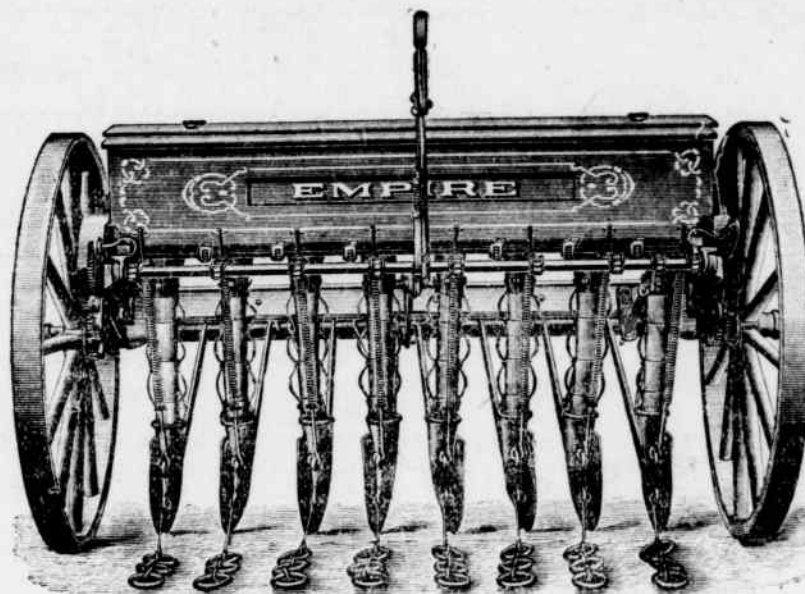

The interment was made in Greene Hill cemetery with Masonic honors.

The pallbearers were J. K. Norfleet, Watt Martin, H. A. Pfohl and Dr. R. H. Jones, of Winston-Salem; and J. Giles Foushee, C. M. Vanstony, N. L. Hall and C. H. Ireland, of this city.

Among those who were here to attend the funeral of Dr. McIVER were the following: Walter H. Page, editor of World's Work, New York; Dr. Wallace Buttrick, secretary of the General Education Board, New York; Joseph Daniels, editor of the News and Observer, Raleigh; Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia; Dr. George T. Winston, president of the A. & M. College, Raleigh; Dr. R. T. Vann, president of the Baptist Female University, Raleigh; Dr. Henry Louis Smith, president of Davidson College; Dr. W. L. Poteat, president Wake Forest College; C. H. Mebane, president Catawba College; Dr. Eben Alexander, dean of University of North Carolina, and M. C. S. Noble, of the chair of pedagogy of the State University; Prof. Frank Curtis, superintendent Burlington city schools; Prof. J. J. Blair, superintendent Wilmington city schools; Prof. O. B. Martin, superintendent of public schools of Columbia, S. C.; Prof. I. C. Griffin, superintendent of the Salisbury graded schools; B. Frank Mebane, Spray; Attorney-General R. D. Gilmer, State Treasurer B. R. Lacy, C. L. Coon, W. B. Snow and Miss Mary K. Applewhite and F. B. Arendell, of Raleigh; J. Crawford Biggs, of Durham; President F. P. Venable, of the University of North Carolina, Hon. B. B. Martin, state superintendent of public instruction of Columbia, S. C.; Senator and Mrs. F. M. Simmons; Col. Paul B. Means, of Concord; C. F. Tomlinson and Geo. H. Crowell, of High Point; President L. L. Hobbs, of Guilford College; F. R. Chambers, New York.

The following members of the board of trustees were here: S. M. Gattis, Hillsboro; R. T. Gray, Raleigh; C. H. Mebane, Newton; J. L. Nelson, Lenoir; J. D. Murphy, Asheville; Dr. T. T. McMullen, Hertford; A. G. Connor, Rich Square, and T. B. Bailey, Mocksville.

Gentlemen:—We want to donate some L. & M. Paint to your church whenever they paint.

The largest Methodist church in Georgia expected to use 100 gallons of the usual kind of paint, they only used 32 gallons L. & M. mixed with 24 gallons Linseed Oil.

It costs less to paint a house with L. & M. than with other paint, because painter mixes Linseed Oil fresh from the barrel at 60 cents a gallon with L. & M., and doesn't pay $1.50 per gallon for Linseed Oil as done if ready-for-use paint is used. Also because the L. & M. Zinc hardens the L. & M. White Lead and makes the paint wear like iron.

Actual cost L. & M. about $1.20 per gallon. Sold by Gibsonville Hardware Co., Gibsonville, N. C.

T. C. HOYLE,
Greensboro, N. C.SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS CONVENT.

Semi-Annual Session of County Organization at Bethel Church Largely Attended—Profitable and Interesting Program.

Thirty-eight Sunday schools, with an enrollment of more than three thousand pupils, were represented at the semi-annual convention of the Guilford County Sunday School Association held at Bethel Presbyterian church, near McLeansville, Saturday. All who attended united in saying that the convention was the best the county association has ever held. The attendance was very encouraging, and the large church was filled at both the morning and afternoon sessions. The reports showed gratifying increases in attendance and interest in the organized Sunday school work.

This association embraces all of the Sunday schools of the county, no matter of what denomination the church may be, and is a part of the inter-denominational work of the state, which, in turn, is a part of the organized work in the United States and the world. Each year sees a wonderful increase of the membership and influence of the various local and state associations.

The attendance at the convention was composed of a large number of ministers, lay workers, delegates and visitors. Greensboro was well represented at the convention. Nearly every church in the city sent delegations, those from West Market, First Presbyterian, Christian and Westminster being especially large. One entire class of boys from the primary department of the First Presbyterian church Sunday school attended. In the morning they occupied seats upon the pulpit, forming a semi-circle extending from one side of the pulpit to the other.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the convention was called to order by the Rev. Lindsay F. Johnson, president. The secretary, the Rev. S. M. Rankin, and the assistant secretary, Miss Peele, were in their places. The opening devotional exercises were conducted by the secretary, and prayer was offered by President Hobbs, of Guilford College.

The address of welcome was made by the Rev. S. M. Rankin, pastor of Bethel church. Mr. Rankin made a brief but happy welcoming speech. The Rev. L. F. Johnson, pastor of the Greensboro Christian church, responded, on behalf of the members of the convention, to the welcome address, and said delegates and others were glad of the opportunity of meeting with people of the community.

The first address of the morning session, after the preliminary exercises, was made by the Rev. G. H. Detwiler, pastor of West Market Street M. E. church, who spoke upon the subject, "The Organized Work." He took up the various departments of the work, one by one, and discussed them in a most interesting manner. He explained the relation of the individual Sunday school to the county, state, national and inter-national work. He urged upon the audience the necessity of supporting the local organizations, which make up the great organization of Sunday school workers of the world.

The reports of the primary and home departments were made at the morning session by the secretaries. Prof. F. S. Blair is secretary of the home department, and Mrs. E. R. Michaux, of Greensboro, of the primary department. Mrs. Michaux made a most interesting talk in which she told of the beneficial results of the grading system when properly carried out by the teachers and primary superintendent.

Mrs. Michaux made special mention of the primary work in the Washington Street M. E. church, of High Point. This church has an enrollment of 108 in its primary department. There are six classes and the grading system is used. Once a month public services are held. She urged that special attention be given to the "radical roll" work. This, she said, would solve the problem of getting new members for the Sunday school. Few Sunday schools in the county have cradle rolls.

Miss Maude Reid, office secretary of the State Sunday School Association, was present at the convention and spoke at the morning session. She told of the work of the Sunday school association in the state, and said that the Guilford county association had supported the state work liberally.

The Rev. Mr. Porter, of Reidsville, made an interesting short talk on the subject, "The Sunday School and the State." Mr. Porter also exhibited to the convention samples of useful literature and supplies for the Sunday school. Immediately after dinner, the reports from townships were called for, and a majority of the townships made reports. The reports, however, were irregular, and a number of them verbal statements of delegates. This, it seems, was caused by the failure of township secretaries to secure blanks for the reports. The reports, in the main, were encouraging and showed a decided gain in membership, and more thorough organization of townships, since the last county convention. Conventions were held in nearly all of the townships.

The Rev. Dr. Detwiler made a short talk, having for his subject "Sunday School Evangelism," and he made a number of points that were both timely and practical.

"How to Use Blackboards and Maps" was the subject of a ten-minute talk by the Rev. Mr. Porter. He used the blackboard, and if his drawings did not look to be the work of an artist, he made clear the points he endeavored to make. This address was one of the very best features of the day.

During the afternoon J. Norman Wills conducted a "Round Table Exercise on Bible Study and Bible Teaching." Several questions were propounded and were answered by the Rev. S. M. Rankin, Miss Maude Reid, Prof. L. F. Johnson, Mrs. E. R. Michaux, the Rev. Mr. Porter, Mrs. S. L. Alderman, the Rev. Dr. G. H. Detwiler, the Rev. L. F. Johnson and T. C. Hoyle.

Following this, President L. L. Hobbs, of Guilford College, made an interesting address on the subject of "Preparation for Bible School Teaching," and Dr. W. T. Whitsett spoke "The Teacher's Power."

A collection for expenses of the county and state conventions was taken and $90 for the work pledged. Before the adjournment the secretary made a report showing the total number of schools represented and other statistical information.

A special program of music had been arranged for the convention, and this was greatly enjoyed by those attending the meeting. Miss Lessie Lindsay was organist and J. Claudius Coe, director.

The dinner was served from a table seventy feet in length, and was a veritable feast for the members of the convention and proved the wisdom of the executive committee in selecting this place as the meeting place.

A meeting of the executive committee of the county association will be held in a few days to select a place for the next semi-annual convention. It will probably be held in Greensboro.

THEIR LAST RESTING PLACE.

Remains of Governor Franklin Brought From Surry County to Guilford Battle Ground.

From a humble grave in Surry county, marked only by a soapstone slab, the remains of former governor of North Carolina, Jesse Franklin, one of the most prominent men of his day and a hero of the Revolutionary war, were last week exhumed and brought to Guilford Battle Ground, where they will rest in the shadow of a handsome monument erected in his honor together with his compatriots Winston and Tallaferro.

Major J. M. Morehead, who was instrumental in preserving the dust of this illustrious son of North Carolina, and personally supervised the reinterment, has favored the newspapers with the following sketch of Governor Franklin:

Governor Jesse Franklin, of Surry county, North Carolina, was born in 1760. He was a native of Virginia, as is generally supposed, though he was possibly born in old Rowan, which, if it be a question, the records of Salisbury will settle.

He was in the battles of King's Mountain and Guilford Court House, was adjutant under his maternal uncle, Colonel Benjamin Cleveland, just before the Battle of King's Mountain, and so had had many a conflict with the dangerous Tories of his section. After the war he represented his countrymen in the State Legislature, in the lower house of Congress, in the United States Senate, and later was made Governor of this state. Later still the general government appointed him, as Governor, Andrew Jackson and Merriweather, a commissioner to conclude treaties with the Red Men of the West.

In 1824, in the 64th year of his age, and full of honors, he died, and was buried at the foot of Fisher's Peak of the Blue Ridge, about 20 miles northwest from the present flourishing town of Mt. Airy.

From about 1750 to about 1770 our immigrant fore-fathers settled themselves on their respective places of choice throughout the country and made their country homes. There were few or no villages at that time. Each home, as the family multiplied and death invaded its circle, the population being sparse and far separated, had its own private burying ground. With the passage of time, from removal or death of the family, the title to these homes passed from the original settlers into the hands of strangers and the fact is that such was the destruction of these old burial grounds that the state made their desecration by hoe and plow, or otherwise, an indictable offense. But you can't indict old Time, and his leveling hand is still smoothing over the mounds of these once "green bluffs" that know no opening, till very locations are lost.

Last week I went to Mt. Airy, the home of the nearest kin of Governor Franklin, and numerous others of his descendants. After a little consideration of the subject I readily got the consent to the removal of his remains, and their active assistance in their exhumation and preparations for removal to a spot where their ancestor's memory will be kept green by his innumerable beneficiaries of today.

The law of the land and, so far as I know, universal custom, places the control of deceased ancestors in the hands of their descendants. This of course is right and no man should disregard it; but the silent ones have rights also. If I had borne for my country the labors and dangers endured by many of our Revolutionary fathers, it seems to me, now in the flesh, that I would regard it as a great hardship, that my memory should be committed to the keeping of wild woods and cow pastures, where no man cares for my resting place, but trees and vines and briars are allowed to shut me out from the memory of men—and snakes and birds back on the dilapidated wall that once surrounded me.

Even the expressed will of these old heroes themselves ought not always to prevail, for changes have taken place in our beloved state that they could not have anticipated. Besides, however well they may have served their state, the state gave them being and the opportunity of service and of leaving behind them that honorable fame to which every good man ought to and does aspire. The lives of our good and useful or great men constitute largely the state's history, and when these sons ought to be kept alive and published abroad, the state has this supreme claim, that the inspiration of their example shall not be lost to the safety and fame of the state.

Encased and sealed in a copper receptacle, this old Revolutionary soldier, statesman and patriot, Governor Franklin, will hereafter lie at Guilford Battle Ground, hard by the noble granite monument erected by the late ex-Governor Thomas M. Holt, to Winston, Franklin and Tallaferro, and in the midst of other like memorials to his distinguished compatriots of 1776, Nash, Davidson, Davie, Macon, Winston, Alexander, Martin, Col. Robert Mebane, and others whose names the readers will recall, ought all to rest here together, but, unfortunately, the tombs of the two last named are lost forever, and those of others named, judging from present indications, inevitably will be.

JOSEPH M. MOREHEAD.

High Class Musical Organization.

Prof. Chas. J. Brockmann has perfected a musical organization which will be known as the "Berlin Sextette," three of the members having received their training in Berlin. The organization comprises: Prof. Charles J. Brockmann, first violin, manager and director; Herr R. Roy, violin virtuoso; Herr Conrad Lahser, flute; Claude Robeson, piano; Eugene Robeson, cornetist and Ed. Brockmann, cello. It is planned to work up some fine concert programs, to give an annual symphony concert and to assist the musical endeavors of the city. It is safe to assert that the Berlin Sextette will at once take rank among the high class organizations of its kind in the South.

LETTER TO TATUM & TAYLOR,
Greensboro, N. C.

Dear Sirs: There's twice as much horse in one horse—it may be a mare—as there is in two or three others together.

So with paints too. If a painter can do your job with 10 gallons Devoré for $50; it's take 12, 15 or 20 of other paints; and the cost of a job is about $5 a gallon, whatever the paint may be.

There are paints adulterated three-quarters—only one quart of paint in a gallon—he's got to paint four gallons of rubbish to get one gallon of paint. The worst horse you've got is as good as that paint, and he'll go as far.

The less-gallons paint is the paint, as the most-horse horse is the horse.

Yours truly,

F. W. DEVORÉ & CO.

GIFT FOR TAR HEEL CRUISER.

It is Up to the State to Make a Decision—What Shall It Be?

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—The people of North Carolina will have to decide pretty soon what kind of a gift they are going to present to the powerful warship that is to bear the name of the great old commonwealth. Equally important is the manner in which funds are to be raised with which to purchase a present. Custom varies. A number of states have direct appropriations through legislative enactment for the purchase of suitable gifts, while in others resort has been made to private subscription for the collection of a sufficient fund with which to do the proper thing in the way of a gift. No state has ever bought so handsome a present as Pennsylvania. The sum of $25,000 was appropriated by the Legislature for the purchase of a silver service. The only other state that has approached Pennsylvania in the amount of money expended is Missouri. In that state the people raised $10,000 for the purchase of a silver service. The city of New York appropriated a like sum for the purchase of a silver service for the armored cruiser named in honor of the metropolis and $500 for battalion

As for the character of the presents, in nearly every instance, a silver service has been selected, though several states have added ornaments that are every way emblematic of the Commonwealth. Among others, the state of Wisconsin, in addition to a silver service that cost $5,000, presented the battleship of that name with a bronze figure of a badger valued at 1,600. Massachusetts gave a bronze figure of a Minuteman. The state of Washington gave the cruiser Olympia a bronze tablet of "Victory" costing $1,700, which was additional to a silver service that cost $500. The cruiser Denver received from the city by that name a silver bell of the value of $2,500, which supplemented a silver service that cost $2,000. The few states—in fact, the only ones—that passed up the time honored silver service was Oregon. The citizens of that state purchased a punch bowl and glass for a gift, the price being $500.

Among the states that have made appropriations for gifts to warships named after them are the following, together with the value of the presents: Kentucky, $6,000; Texas, $8,025; Alabama, $3,290; South Dakota, $5,000; Tennessee, $5,000. Here follows a list of the states and cities where funds for the purchase of gifts were raised by popular subscription, together with the list of the presents: Iowa, $5,000; Indiana, $8,221; Illinois, $5,000; Maine, $1,200; Ohio, $7,000; Brooklyn, $8,966; Minneapolis, $3,900; San Francisco, $1,700.

When here some days ago, Governor Allen discussed the question of making a gift to the North Carolina that would be worthy of the state in every way, and while he did not commit himself, discussed the advisability of asking for an appropriation from the state for the purpose.

CHINESE TYPHOON CREATES HAVOC.

Five Thousand Natives Perish—Property Loss Runs Into Millions.

Hong Kong, Sept. 20.—It is now estimated that 5,000 Chinese lost their lives in the recent typhoon. Reports are increasing the mortality. Hong Kong, Sept. 19.—The loss of life and property in the typhoon which yesterday raged for two hours is far greater than first reported. A thousand persons are missing at Hong Kong alone and the damage is estimated at several million dollars. Wharves were swept away and houses collapsed. The military barracks are in ruins. Eighteen steamers are ashore. The American ship S. P. Hitchcock was also driven ashore, as were many of the launches that run about the harbor. The British reserve sloop Phoenix and a small gunboat, the Dongola, are ashore. The British torpedo boat Sir William Jervis was sunk. The French torpedo boat destroyer Froude was wrecked and the Francisque is ashore. The steamers Kwong Chow, San Cheung, Sorsong and Kongmou were sunk. The steamers Apurade and Johanne are partly awash. The harbor is strewn with wreckage thrown up on the shore. Hundreds of Chinese boatsmen and their families were saved by the bravery of the police and civilians, but several thousand of the Chinese water dwellers must have perished, many within short distances of the shore.

The Chinese take the disaster calmly and show no manifestations of grief. The river steamer Fatsam drifted into collision with a French mail steamer. The entire Chinese crew climbed aboard the French steamer and left Captain Thomas, who was injured, one officer and the engineers to navigate the Fatsam to Shelter bay, where she was blown ashore.

The bishop of Victoria, Dr. J. C. Hoare, who was on his way to visit some neighboring islands when the storm broke, is reported missing. His launch has been found floating bottom upwards.

The Japanese steamer Sada Maru rescued 66 natives and one English pilot as he was approaching Hong Kong.

Sir Matthew Nathan, governor of Hong Kong, and the authorities are doing everything possible to render assistance.

Reports of fresh disasters are arriving every hour. Only a few Europeans are missing.

Strong Ticket in Surry.

Mount Airy, Sept. 16.—The Democrats of this county met in Dobson yesterday and nominated a strong ticket headed by Dr. D. F. Holcombe, of Rockford, for the legislature. C. H. Haynes, the present clerk, was renominated, and Capt. S. G. Pace, of this city, was nominated for sheriff.

At the conclusion of the convention Hon. W. W. Kitchen, Congressman from the Fifth district, spoke to a large crowd. His speech was an able effort and marks him as one of the strongest advocates of Democratic principles. His speech was a votemaker and indications point favorably to the election of the entire ticket in Surry.

TO STOP WILD-CAT MINING.

The American Mining Congress, Which Meets in October, Will Take Final Action for the Protection of Mining Investors.

A bill providing for the punishment of all mining fakirs and promoters of illegitimate mining enterprises will be drafted by the American Mining Congress at its annual session which will be held in Denver, Colorado, October 16th to 19th inclusive. A committee composed of the best talent in the United States has been appointed to prepare and submit to the mining congress a draft of such bill. This committee comprises two United States senators, Robt. M. La Follette (Wis.) and Fred T. Dubois (Idaho); one congressman, Eben W. Martin (South Dakota); and the governors of two states, Geo. C. Pardee (California) and Jos. W. Folk (Missouri). Four are attorneys and all from mining states of prominence.

California has already adopted a law which has worked an almost complete riddance from that state of spurious mining stock and that lecherous parasite on the mining industry—the fake promoter. It is probable that the proposed legislation which will be submitted to the state legislatures this winter will be fashioned after the California law, which provides that any person who shall undertake to sell or assent to the publication, privately or publicly, of a fraudulently exaggerated report tending to give any person or the public generally the idea of a greater value or less apparent value or market value than such stock may really possess, with the intention of defrauding any person or the public, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and on conviction shall be punished by imprisonment in state prison or a county jail not exceeding two years, or by fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both.

The efforts of the American Mining Congress to protect the investor against mining frauds by furnishing information as to the true conditions at the mine, has made more apparent the necessity of legislation to suppress this evil, and it is hoped that all serious mining men will take an active interest and communicate with the secretary, to the end that the matter may receive the most intelligent consideration at the coming annual meeting. The mining congress never was in as strong a position to combat this evil, and the assistance of every mining man is needed to make its work more effective.

Steps will also be taken at this session for the creation of mine drainage districts similar to public improvement districts in cities, and for the creation of a Department of Mines and Mining as a separate executive department of the national government.

"ON THE WAR PATH."

Some Features of the Pleasure Ground of the Jamestown Exposition.

Chicago had her "Midway," St. Louis her "Pike," Portland her "Trail," and the Jamestown Exposition which will be held on the shores of Hampton Roads near Norfolk, Va., in 1907, will have a "War Path." The scenic amusements have much to do with making an exposition attractive and after a long weary day of sight-seeing among the exhibit palaces it is a relief and a recreation to turn to the great white way where the lights glitter, the mountebanks and songstresses rule their merry crews, where the joyous ballyhoo man bawls his incoherent buncombe, where, in short, the multitude is at play. The great play ground of the Jamestown Exposition has been named "The War Path." General Fitzhugh Lee gave it that name and it is certain that the entertainment to be furnished by the concessions that line its dazzling streets will be sufficiently exciting to make the name appropriate.

The War Path occupies a beautiful space fronting upon the military parade ground and is 1288 feet long by 730 feet in width. There are two parallel streets separated by a central block on both sides of which are concessions thus making a total frontage of more than a mile including the bazaars at either end. The streets are eighty feet wide and paved with brick. An arcade covered by a glass dome which at night will be aflame with lights divides the central block into two equal parts and makes a convenient passage way between the streets.

A miniature elevated railroad runs along three sides of the War Path affording rapid and cheap transportation as well as a charming and comprehensive view of the great city of myth.

The main entrance is flanked by the American and the Oriental bazaars which open upon a plaza 175 feet wide by 700 feet in length on all sides of which will be hanging gardens. There will be, of course, a scenic railway, a shoot the chutes and other familiar amusements, but for the most part the concessions will be new and many of them sensational. Among the good things thus far secured are "Paul Revere's Ride," "The Destruction of San Francisco," "The Palace of History," "The battle between the Monitor and the Merrimack," "The Haunted Castle," "The pyramids of Egypt," "The Swiss Village," "Tea Garden of Old Japan." There will be also a number of unique musical concessions almost stupendous. The War Path will be at its best at night when the light effects will make it a veritable dreamland of brilliancy and beauty. "Meet me on the War Path" will be the slogan of all exposition visitors in 1907.

A Virginia candidate urges the unimportance of his rival's work in Congress as a ground for his defeat. What member of the present Congress could meet an argument like that?

MR. W. G. RAGSDALE NAMED.

Prominent Young Business Man of Jamestown Chosen to Fill Vacancy on Democratic Ticket.

Over two hours were consumed by the Democratic county executive committee Saturday in determining who should succeed Mr. J. Henry Gilmer, one of the nominees for county commissioner on the Democratic ticket, and whose health prevents him from taking an active part in political or business affairs. Mr. Gilmer's withdrawal from the ticket was really decided upon by that worthy gentleman two weeks ago, and while reluctantly giving heed to the same, Chairman Brown wisely took advantage of the opportunity thus afforded to heal a breach in the Democratic ranks at High Point.

Going back a little, by common consent it was agreed prior to the Democratic county convention that High Point should name one of the county commissioners, but factional differences such as continually beset the pathway of the good people of that town rendered such a choice almost an impossibility, and the county convention, rather than attempt to interfere in a family fight, left both the High Point candidates, Mr. W. G. Bradshaw and Mr. S. L. Davis, out in the cold and selected commissioners from other parts of the county.

The situation was virtually the same when the county executive committee met Saturday. Instead of coming up with a candidate to succeed Mr. Gilmer upon whom the factions were united there were two strong delegations from "Grand Rapids," each favoring strong candidates, but not those presented to the county convention. One faction favored the nomination of Mr. O. N. Richardson. The other supported Mr. W. H. Ragan with equal zeal. Either gentleman would have been acceptable to the Democrats of the county at large. But there were bitter speeches in the strife, neither faction giving or asking quarter, and both unmindful of the suggestions and advice of their political brethren who failed to become enthused over or involved in their local differences.

The result was what might have been expected. Both factions lost out and Mr. W. G. Ragdale, manager of the Oakdale cotton mills at Jamestown, was chosen to take Mr. Gilmer's place on the ticket. He will receive the support of every true Democrat in High Point as well as every other Guilford precinct. Personally Mr. Ragdale is above reproach in every particular. He is a conservative successful business man and will bring to bear on county matters the good judgment that characterizes all his personal affairs.

His selection followed the turning down of a proposition to resubmit the question to another primary of the High Point voters, his name not having been mentioned up to that period.

While action was taken in an executive session of the committee it is known that Mr. Ragdale's name was presented by Mr. G. S. Boren, of Pomona. The vote was practically unanimous. In the meeting twenty-five precincts were represented by their chairmen, while two precincts were represented by proxy.

A MEMORIAL IN BRONZE.

Statue of Dr. Charles D. McIver to Adorn the State Normal and Industrial College Grounds.

North Carolina will fittingly preserve in bronze the form and lineaments of the late Charles Duncan McIver, president of the State Normal and Industrial College and his figure will stand for all time as the best type of the North Carolina educational statesman and will serve to incite ambitious youth to unselfish public service.

The idea originated among the townsmen of the great man whose death was so deeply deplored and found expression in the following statement:

TO THE PEOPLE OF NORTH CAROLINA: Charles Duncan McIver, foremost in many things that make for the upbuilding of our state, has finished his work. He has given himself to us, and his unselfish life will long be an inspiration to our children.

In view of all that he has done and all that he has been to us, we believe that a grateful people should take immediate action to perpetuate his memory. Let us cast in bronze his noble form and face, and let his statue keep guard over the institution which he brought into being and made great.

We respectfully request the Governor of the state to appoint a committee to take in charge plans for the making and creation of such a statue, and we request the newspapers to receive and acknowledge subscriptions to a fund to be raised for this purpose.

Signed: George T. Winston, W. H. Osborn, C. G. Wright, E. P. Wharton, Josephus Daniels, Z. V. Taylor, Lucy H. Robertson, R. R. King, A. M. Seales, Andrew Joyner, R. D. Douglas, E. J. Justice.

Responding to the request in a manner that betokens the fullest sympathy with the movement, Governor Glenn has since issued the following proclamation:

TO THE PEOPLE OF NORTH CAROLINA: The life work of Charles D. McIver is ended. For twenty-five years he served his state with fidelity, zeal and efficiency not surpassed in her annals. No one has rendered the state a greater service.

It is now the high duty and privilege of the people, whom he served with unselfish devotion, to manifest their grateful appreciation of his life and character by a memorial that will transmit his memory to posterity and be a perpetual incentive to the youth of the state to emulate his example.

An heroic statue in bronze, designed and cast by the great artists of the world, costing not less than fifteen thousand dollars, to stand on the grounds of the great institution that he created, has been selected by general consent as a most fitting memorial. For this purpose, immediately after his death, a plaster cast of his head and features was made and measurements taken of his body.

In order to raise the necessary funds and take other steps for securing the statue, there should be at least six committees, representing the varied interests promoted by his life, to solicit subscriptions from the people. I hereby appoint the following chairmen of these committees:

1. For the teachers and children of the public schools: Hon. J. Y. Joyner, Raleigh, N. C.

2. For the State Normal and Industrial College and its alumnae: Miss Gertrude Mendenhall, Greensboro, N. C.

3. For the women of North Carolina: Mrs. Lundy Patterson, Winston-Salem, N. C.

4. For the University, colleges and academies: Dr. F. P. Venable, Chapel Hill, N. C.

5. For the men of North Carolina: Col. W. H. Osborn, Greensboro, N. C.

6. For the press of North Carolina: Hon. Josephus Daniels, Raleigh, N. C.

I request each chairman to select a full committee, of not less than five, and to organize the same immediately for active work. The chairmen of these committees shall constitute a general executive committee.

Charles D. McIver's entire life was given for the better education of all our women, the improvement of the educational opportunities of all our children, the uplifting of all our citizens, and the elevation of all our ideals of civic service. His work touched helpfully all classes of our people. Surely, now, we will all vie with each other in establishing this memorial.

R. B. GLENN,
Governor of North Carolina.

Already hundreds of dollars have been subscribed toward the enterprise and it is felt that there will be a prompt and generous response from every section of the state now that the plan has been systematized by Governor Glenn.

Doctors are Puzzled.

The remarkable recovery of Kenneth McIver, of Vanceboro, Me., is the subject of much interest to the medical fraternity and a wide circle of friends. He says of his case: "Owing to severe inflammation of the Throat and congestion of the Lungs, three doctors gave me up to die, when, as a last resort, I was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery and I am happy to say, it saved my life." Cures the worst Coughs and Colds, Bronchitis, Tonsillitis, Weak Lungs, Hoarseness and La Grippe. Guaranteed by all druggists. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

Mt. Airy News: Rev. Walter Holcombe, of Nashville, Tenn., who spent several days with his parents here last week, left Friday morning for Cartersville, Ga., to be with Rev. Sam P. Jones in a tabernacle meeting at that place. From there they will go to Oklahoma City and Jackson, Miss.

Judge Bynum's Arrangement.

Raleigh News and Observer.

At no time in the history of the Republic has there been so completely under the domination of officeholders and little men who have no conception of politics except such as is dictated from Washington. At no time has the Republican party in North Carolina been led by such small and inferior men as today. There isn't a man in the leadership who is more than a dunghill to diamond in comparison to the old leaders like Settle and Dockery and Pearson. The present crowd makes no appeal except to cupidity and to prejudice. The arrangement of the party by its ablest lawyer was not overdrawn when he said:

"The time has come in the tide of Republican politics in North Carolina when one of two things must be done: Either the Federal officeholders must own, control and manage the affairs of the party absolutely, as they seem to be doing at this convention, or they must abdicate and allow the party to be managed and its policy shaped by those whose policies and principles are governed by other considerations than office-getting, greed, grab and graft. If the Federal officeholders continue in control, then no self-respecting man can or will be induced to take part in Republican politics in this state. If they are forced to abdicate, as should be done, then there is a future for the party. This may as well be said here and now. The party seems to be drifting without a leader or any one who has the courage to speak above a whisper. Everything is subordinated to the chance of being a delegate or getting an office. The thoughtful, prudent people of North Carolina never will and never ought to consent to the management of the affairs of this great state by such an irresponsible cabal as now controls the affairs of the Republican party of this state."

An Old Political Sore Healed—Jamestown Furnishes the Ointment.

EDITOR PATRIOT: The old political sore in High Point, which has puzzled the Democratic physician in Guilford so long and had almost become chronic, was satisfactorily healed Saturday, Jamestown furnishing the remedy in the person of William G. Ragsdale. I assure every Democrat of Guilford county that the high standard which has so long been maintained by the Democrats of the county on the board of county commissioners will not be lowered in his selection. While he has not had experience in county affairs, yet he is a fine business man and has succeeded in all of his undertakings. He is kind and generous yet stern enough not to let the county suffer, and when elected will be an apt student in county affairs. And I assure every Democrat in Guilford that there will not be one drop of factional blood in his veins, and he will go to work with one aim: to raise the majority of every man on the Democratic ticket; and when elected he will be commissioner for every Democrat, autocrat, dictator, persecutor, and every other kind of erat known to political science. Now let every Democrat in the county as an appreciation of the settlement go to work to get an overwhelming majority for the Democratic ticket this fall. Yours for victory, males and 6 colored females. We found everything in good condition and the inmates under good discipline. We further report that we found at the county home the following property: 2 mules, 16 head of cattle. There was raised on the farm this year 400 bushels of wheat and oats. There are twenty acres of corn; fifteen acres of peas and a good supply of vegetables.
J. M. DAVIS.

We visited the county jail and find it in fairly good condition. The prisoners state that they have plenty of wholesome food and are well cared for. We recommend that the outside cells and basement be given a thorough cleaning. We also recommend that the county commissioners investigate the fence inclosing the jail in order that such precaution may be taken as is necessary for the safety of the institution.

We find the various county offices in good condition, with arrangements for keeping records in the modern way. We also find the officers a most capable and efficient force.

The following magistrates have made reports to this term: D. H. Collins, Gilmer township; J. H. Joyner, Rock Creek township; W. H. Bennett, Greene township; J. W. Sapp, Friendship township; L. R. Noah, Morehead township; Thos. Wakefield, Morehead township; J. M. Sechrest, High Point township; W. E. Johns, High Point township; J. R. Pearce, Gilmer township.

We visited the county convict camp No. 1 and find there 30 colored men and 3 colored women. The prisoners report that they are well fed and cared for and their treatment humane. We find everything in this camp in good condition, except the tent for women. As to this we are advised that the county commissioners have ordered same and an invoice is now in their hands.

At camp No. 2 we find 23 prisoners. These prisoners express themselves as being well cared for and their treatment humane. We find the stock and road machinery in good condition.

In conclusion we congratulate the people of the county upon the able management of its offices and public institutions in general.

Respectfully submitted,
W. C. JONES, Foreman.

P. S.—We also recommend that the county commissioners provide adequate facilities for witnesses waiting to give testimony before the grand jury.

DEAN J. I. FOUST IN CHARGE.

Directors of State Normal and Industrial College Give Him Temporary Control of the Institution—Resolutions Adopted by the Board.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the State Normal and Industrial College Wednesday afternoon, Prof. J. I. Foust, dean of the faculty and thoroughly conversant with the affairs of the great institution, was asked to serve as its executive officer until a successor to the late President McIver could be chosen. This honor was worthily bestowed.

The board also decided to hold a public memorial service at the college on Thursday, October 11th, and to then present a suitable memorial commemorative of the life and service of Dr. McIver. The selection of his successor will in all probability be made at that time. Among the names most prominently mentioned in that connection are those of State Superintendent J. Y. Joyner, Prof. P. P. Claxton and Dean Foust capable men, all of them, and in thorough accord with the aims and purposes of the institution as well as familiar with the details of its management. Before adjourning the board adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, by the Board of Directors of the North Carolina State Normal and Industrial College:

First, That we deeply deplore the death of Dr. Charles D. McIver, president of this institution. He was the originator of the idea of the State Normal and Industrial College; the founder of the institution; its faithful friend in adversity and prosperity, and in his death the institution has suffered an irreparable loss, the state and the nation one of its foremost educators, and popular education a vigorous defender and advocate.

Second, Dr. McIver had mental capacity to devise, heart and enthusiasm, to inspire, energy to execute. He had but one purpose, one desire, one ambition in life—to serve and elevate mankind.

Third, He was a man of broad and patriotic sentiments and sympathies. He loved his state with a deep devotion, and believed that all the interests of the state could be best served and advanced, and popular education could be best fostered by training and elevating for service in the home, the church, and the schools, the young womanhood of the state. For this idea and to advance this purpose he gave his efforts, his energies and his life.

Fourth, The State Normal and Industrial College, with its magnificent buildings and equipment, is a visible monument to his memory; but in the hearts of the people of North Carolina there is a monument to his life and service more lasting than stone, bronze or marble.

Fifth, Resolved, That the chairman of this board appoint a committee of three to act with the dean of the faculty in arranging for a public memorial service to be held at the college on Thursday, October 11, 1906, and to present at that time a suitable memorial commemorative of the life and service of the distinguished dead.

Sixth, Resolved, That the board officially and personally join with the widow and family of the deceased in mourning the loss that we have in common sustained, and that we tender to them assurance of our deepest and tenderest sympathy.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Correspondence of the PATRIOT.

Washington, Sept. 22.—As further events progress in Cuba the less administration officials like them. Both the insurgents and the Palma government have been holding an irreconcilable pose, each declaring that the other was everything it should not be, and making the task of Secretary Taft as peace-maker increasingly difficult. It was even said at the State department late in the week that armed intervention on the part of the United States might after all be necessary. This announcement was received with different emotions, according as it touched the diplomatic or the militant department. Armed intervention in Cuba just now might result in a guerrilla war of a year or more, and would almost certainly force this government to take permanent possession whether it wanted to or not. This of course is just the thing that the pro-annexationists would enjoy, but it would be adding to the "White Man's Burden" at a rate not to be relished by a government which has just finished off a $20,000,000 insurrection in the Philippines. It is barely possible that this government may intervene without actual hostilities. Neither the insurgents nor the Palma government want to see civil war rampant in the island, and for this reason they may agree to let the United States administer affairs for a while without attempting themselves to interfere.

At the same time the outlook is not at all promising. The Department of State does not pretend to be thoroughly advised as to the situation in Havana, because President Roosevelt has largely taken matters into his own hands and is in direct telegraphic communication with Secretary Taft. But unofficial advice received from Havana agree that it is almost impossible to reconcile the difference between the existing government and the aspiring faction. It was said at the State department that the American officials were almost ready to give up and that a rupture might occur any day. The officials did not admit having any confirmatory advice, but they were not cheerful over the outlook.

One of the most curious features of the situation is that a guerrilla war of any magnitude will almost certainly necessitate the establishment of reconcentrado camps, such as were the deepest blot on the last months of the Spanish occupation. Of course these camps need not be such charnel houses as they proved to be under General Weyler. Similar camps were run for the benefit of the Boers in South Africa during the British campaign there, but they are an expensive luxury and would add very heavily to the cost of an American campaign in Cuba.

As to the force at the disposal of the United States it is ample to meet almost any emergency. The new battleships Louisiana, the Cleveland and the Virginia are already in Havana harbor. The Matietta, the Columbia and other vessels of the cruiser and gunboat type are scattered around the island, and fully 5,000 marines and blue jackets could be landed at an hour's notice without crippling the working force of this great American fleet. To send soldiers to Cuba would necessitate hiring or buying transports and would be an expensive undertaking while the insurgents are of such a character that they could retreat to the hills and keep up a guerrilla campaign for a long time before they were finally crushed. Meanwhile Cuba would industrially stagnate and her era of material prosperity, which has been one of remarkable growth in the past few years, would be brought to an abrupt close.

From high diplomacy to the corner grocery is a sudden and a sad drop. But a very important period has been reached in the preparation of the Agricultural department to enforce the new meat inspection law, and in all probability this is of more immediate interest to the householder than war and rumors of war in Cuba. The department has just issued a small pamphlet that ought to be memorized by every housekeeper showing how the real meat may be distinguished from the spurious in buying all sorts of meat products. Fresh meat has always been inspected by the Department of Agriculture before it was allowed in interstate trade, but now this inspection will extend to all sorts of smoked and prepared meats and to canned meat stuffs. Worse even than this for the dealers is the fact that imitations will have to be unmistakably labeled and in this lies the value of the pamphlet. A "Virginia Ham" which was never raised in Virginia can only be called "Virginia Style Ham" when it is put on sale. Vienna sausage, frankfurters and English sausage must all have the incriminating word "style" inserted in the label if they are not the real imported variety. The same thing is true of lard and when the consumer buys "Pure Leaf Lard" or any other well known variety of lard he may be assured that he is getting what he asks for unless the contrary is distinctly explained on the label. The same is true of canned and potted meats of all sorts, and to the regret of the dealers, hog snouts and mutton will no longer be allowed to masquerade as "Potted Chicken." This volume is a most interesting one, and as it is a government publication which costs nothing, ought to be in the hands of every housekeeper. Write the Secretary of Agriculture for it.

An indication of the material progress that is being made in the South is a report by the Department of Commerce and Labor showing a few facts which perhaps are not generally known. In the past five years the South's manufacturing capital has increased from $667,701,865 to $1,597,503,217, or at a rate of more than $120,000,000 a year. The value of its factory products has risen from $1,257,589,667 to $1,787,776,794. The value of the cotton crop amounted to $700,000,000, keeping 90,000,000 spindles employed and representing three-fourths of the total spindles operated in the whole world. The total value of the agricultural outputs including the cotton crop was $1,200,000,000. In addition to this petroleum was produced at the rate of 5,000,000 barrels a month, bituminous coal at the rate of 6,000,000 tons a month and pig iron at the rate of 300,000 tons in the same period.

By this time the South American must have an idea that even our "root" beer is named after the Secretary of State.

Republican Party Presents a Rare Spectacle in This State Where Every Federal Officeholder is in Thrill to the State Committee.

Raleigh, Sept. 22.—Chairman Simmons, speaking with reference to the attitude of Federal officeholders in this state towards local politics, said today that the situation in North Carolina was somewhat anomalous this year. He said that the Republican party and its convention had been for a number of years controlled and run by the postmasters, revenue officers and other Federal officers of low and high degree and that those officials had always been more or less active in behalf of their candidates and against Democratic candidates but this year, he said, they were marshaled as an army under the direction of its chief, and present a front of organized activity never before shown by them in this state. This, he said, is due to the fact that the President and the departments of the government had turned over to the chairman of the Republican party all Federal officers in this state not under the civil service. To further strengthen the power of the chairman over these officeholders, the Republicans at their recent convention in Greensboro passed a resolution requiring all candidates for Federal positions to file their applications for appointment with the executive committee and to agree in writing to abide by the decision of the committee. This puts every Federal officeholder in the state absolutely under the control of the Republican chairman. He can kill or make. The officeholders scattered throughout the state furnish a regular army always at the beck and call of the Republican chairman. Whenever he commands they must do or take the consequences. All he has to do is to issue his orders and they must lay aside their public duties if necessary and obey.

The senator commented severely upon the spectacle of a state chairman marshaling thousands of Federal officeholders in a fight to gain control of the state for his party. He said there had been no such Federal interference in the politics of a state in our history, so far as he knew, and that it could not be too severely condemned.

That the people of North Carolina would resent this interference of the Federal government in a way that would be uncomfortable for them and for their chief he said there was no doubt.

The senator added, with earnestness, that he intended to call upon the people of the state to advise him of any political activity or interference of Federal officials in our local politics and that, wherever the evidence furnished showed that such official was violating the civil service rule by improper and offense activity or interference, he would offer the matter to the President, the civil service commission, or the department under which the official was serving, with the request for an investigation and for such discipline and punishment as might be deemed proper, under the circumstances, and, he declared, if the people could not otherwise procure protection against this unwarranted interference, he would deem it his duty to call the matter to the attention of Congress and ask for an investigation and for such legislation as might be deemed necessary to protect the state against the organized assaults of the Federal officials located in it.

Is Disease a Crime?

Not very long ago, a popular magazine published an editorial article in which the writer asserted, in substance, that all disease should be regarded as criminal. Certain it is, that much of the sickness and suffering of mankind is due to the violation of certain of Nature's laws. But to say that all sickness should be regarded as criminal, must appeal to every reasonable individual as radically wrong.

It would be harsh, unsympathetic, cruel, yes, criminal, to condemn the poor, weak, over-worked housewife who sinks under the heavy load of household cares and burdens, and suffers from weaknesses, various displacements of pelvic organs and other derangements peculiar to her sex.

Frequent bearing of children, with its exacting demands upon the system, coupled with the care, worry and labor of rearing a large family, is often the cause of nervousness, derangements and debility which are aggravated by the many household cares, and the hard, and never-ending work which the mother is called upon to perform. Dr. Pierce, the maker of that world-famed remedy for woman's peculiar weaknesses and ills—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—says that one of the greatest obstacles to the cure of this class of maladies is the fact that the poor, over-worked housewife does not get the needed rest from her many household cares and labor to enable her to secure from the use of his "Prescription" its full benefits. It is a matter of frequent experience, he says, in his extensive practice in these cases, to meet with those in which his treatment fails by reason of the patient's inability to abstain from hard work long enough to be cured. With those suffering from prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion of the uterus or other displacement of the womanly organs, it is very necessary that, in addition to taking his "Favorite Prescription," they abstain from being very much, or for long periods, on their feet. All heavy lifting or straining of any kind should also be avoided. As much outdoor air as possible, with moderate light exercise is also very important. Let the patient observe these rules and the "Favorite Prescription" will do the rest.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound.

Jordan Land Sale

BARBECUE AND PICNIC

Having had so many calls for large lots and truck farms on a macadamized road near the city, I have bought the fine Douglas Farm of 300 acres, two miles south of Greensboro, to supply the demand.

This tract begins at the bridge over South Buffalo creek, on the Asheboro road, and fronts nearly one mile and a half on macadam road leading to Alamance church. Good roads are now being constructed and lots and small farms planned to suit all purchasers.

This property will be sold at PUBLIC AUCTION

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 3, 1906

for one-fourth cash, one-fourth in six months, one-fourth in twelve months and one-fourth in eighteen months, with 6 per cent. interest on deferred payments. Purchasers wishing to pay cash and take deeds will be allowed 6 per cent. discount.

There is a fine public school nearly midway the property, and excellent churches of all denominations within easy reach, while R. F. D. carriers will deliver mail at your very doors.

The chances are that the Methodist Protestant College will be built on its present site between this land and the city at no distant day. I honestly advise all who want now or ever wish to secure a country place to take advantage of this opportunity, for land of this character is getting high and scarce.

I have arranged to give the nicest Barbecue and Brunswick Stew ever given in North Carolina, and my friends are all invited.

Between thirty and forty fine pigs and lambs are now being fattened for the occasion. Dinner will be served in nice dishes like those used to feed old Confederate Veterans, and I request every one to slip his own knife and spoon in his pocket to eat with. John Weatherly, a real artist, will have charge of this department.

PROGRAMME

Sale will commence at 10 o'clock A. M. on the hill at the Schoolhouse and last until 1 P. M., when dinner will be served.

DYNAMITE WRECKS TENNESSEE TOWN.

Report Heard for 20 Miles and Business Section of Town Shattered—Many People Homeless and Whole Town in Bad Flight.

Jellico, Tenn., Sept. 21.—Twelve lives were snuffed out, scores of persons hurt and property damage estimated at probably $500,000 was done here this morning at 8 o'clock when a car load of dynamite, standing in a track near the Southern depot, exploded with a report that was heard for 20 miles, shattering buildings in the business section of the town and breaking nearly every piece of glass within a radius of one mile of the scene. The dead are:

George Atkins, aged 30, fireman for the East Tennessee Telephone Company.

John Cook, aged 50, car inspector for the Southern Railway.

Waller Rodgers, aged 28, clerk for United Cold Storage Warehouse, cut to pieces and almost unrecognizable.

John Gordon and James Sharp, colored.

William Lovette, aged 12.

Ida Rayne, aged 3.

James Reynolds.

John Hoch.

Son of J. M. Cook.

Joseph Sellers, engineer on Louisville & Nashville.

One body remains unidentified, making the total dead at noon 12.

There is a bare possibility that other bodies may be recovered from the ruins of buildings, but this is hardly probable.

The most seriously injured are: E. V. Campbell, engineer of the Louisville & Nashville; Judge and Mrs. Foreman, proprietors of the Carmother Inn; R. D. Baird, president of the National Bank of Jellico; and mayor of Jellico; Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Jones, both badly bruised, their house having fallen in upon them.

TWO THEORIES OF EXPLOSION.

The freight car, one of the Pennsylvania's lines, contained 450 boxes or 20,000 pounds of high explosives consigned to the Rand Powder Company, at Glenfield, Tenn. Two causes are assigned for the explosion. One is that three persons were shooting at a mark on the car and that a bullet entered the car and caused the explosion. The other is that while the car was standing on a side track a car load of pig iron was switched against it and that the force of the jar caused the explosion. People here are divided as to the theories, some going so far as to say that they actually saw the men firing at the car with a rifle.

Jellico is situated on the Tennessee-Kentucky line, about 65 miles from Knoxville, the main business portion of the town being on the Tennessee line. Two lines of railroads, the Southern and Louisville & Nashville, enter it. The depot of the Southern, which was located near the scene of the explosion, was wholly wrecked. Two hotels, the Glenmorgan and the Carmother, were badly wrecked, the third story of the latter being wholly destroyed. One person, Mark Atkins, who was asleep in a room on this floor at the time, is one of the most seriously injured of the entire list, which will number fully 200, counting all who were but slightly hurt. Business houses were badly disfigured, stocks of goods ruined, while residences suffered severely, windows and doors being blown out in houses as far from the scene as one mile.

BUSINESS BUILDINGS WRECKED.

Among the buildings totally destroyed were the Armour Packing Company's warehouse, the Jung Brewing Company's warehouse, oil tank and warehouse of Kentucky Consumers' Oil Company, the Standard Oil Company's warehouse. Besides the two damaged hotels, the Jellico Furniture Company's building collapsed and the stock of the Smith Dry Goods Company was practically ruined, although the building which it occupied, the Cumberland opera house, the finest structure in Jellico, escaped with little damage. Fully 20 other firms suffered losses, but they occupied small buildings.

Rescuers began work soon after the explosion and medical aid was asked of Knoxville, which sent a dozen physicians to administer to the wounded. Twelve of the most seriously wounded were sent to Knoxville on tonight's train.

train to hospitals in that city. The holding of inquests over the bodies of the victims was begun this afternoon, but was not completed. Mayor R. B. Baird issued a circular notifying the public that all persons found on the streets after 8 o'clock tonight would be arrested unless they were owners of buildings or stocks of goods or agents therefor. Many people are homeless as a result of the disaster, and as almost every chimney was destroyed, cooking cannot be done in any of the houses.

Some estimates made tonight on the loss of life place the number of victims at as high as 40, but it is believed that this is a gross exaggeration and that not more than fifteen have lost their lives, if that many. It is the most serious disaster in the history of the East Tennessee mining section since the terrible explosion in the Frannville mines in 1902, when 184 miners, men and boys, lost their lives in a coal mine near Coal Creek, less than 20 miles from the scene of today's explosion.

IREDELL CARRIER COURTING TROUBLE.

Republican Machine Debauching Rural Service—Cortelyou Informed

Raleigh News and Observer.

Affidavits filed with Senator Simmons from a number of gentlemen of Iredell county, charging obnoxious conduct and disturbance of the speech of Hon. R. N. Hackett on August 11th, by one J. F. Dagenhart, a rural free delivery carrier, calls attention sharply to a condition which is rapidly becoming acute throughout the state. Senator Simmons has forwarded the affidavits to Postmaster General Cortelyou and has asked that an investigation be made and that the offending carrier be dealt with in a manner consistent with the expressed policy of the administration as to partisan participation in political campaigns by government employees. It will now be seen whether such expressed policy indicates political platitudes or sincere purpose.

Dagenhart is charged with having entered the hall while the speaking was in progress and in the presence of a number of ladies behaved himself in so boisterous a manner and talked in so loud and offensive a way as to seriously disturb both speaker and audience.

From the number of complaints which have recently been heard as to the actions of rural carriers in different parts of the state, it is apparent that a large number of that force have been otherwise inspired than by their own impulse. If past history is any index to the conditions, the inspiration comes from the state Republican machine, which is now headquartered at Greensboro. During the Republican primaries which decided the fight for control between Adams and Blackburn, it was evident that the office holding class could be used by that influence even to the extent of brow-beating and defrauding independent members of their own party. Butler and Adams showed then their reliance on the postoffice and revenue classes for their own ends, and they are now probably using the same elements in an attempt in certain sections to oppose the Democratic campaign and to do missionary work for the Republican ticket among the people with whom their official duties throw them in contact. If this be true the administration, which has spoken most righteously upon the subject, has fine opportunity to emphasize its preachment with deeds which will stop the abuse.

There is no public servant in whom objectionable partnership is more objectionable than a rural carrier. Such an employee goes daily among the people, who rely upon his faithful performance of duty for their touch with the world and with the events of the day. He is in an acute sense a "public servant." To perform his duties satisfactorily he must attend strictly to business, must so conduct himself as to gain the friendship instead of exciting the resentment of the people he serves. Any business suffers by a too active participation in politics, but when the employee of the government stops his duties to take sides in a campaign his efficiency decreases directly with his zeal. Aside from the bad policy of in any way committing the government to an interference with the popular voice of which it is the result such activity as that charged to have been displayed by the Iredell carrier is distinctly bad business as well as bad ethics.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Cortelyou will give to the charges which have been preferred an attention which shall not be blinded by the incident that the carrier is a member of his own party. The principle involved is broader than politics. It strikes at the economy of government. In addition, it is especially irritating to all right thinking men. It is so irritating in fact that it will not be countenanced much longer. Public opinion will speak out and ultimately bring the remedy whether the administration acts or not. It is to be hoped that it will act, and in a way which shall serve notice on the state machine that there are some methods at which it must pause in waging a campaign.

Every county in the state has doubtless had experience with these rural delivery politicians and their objectionable practices. In Wake county, particularly, there has been one flagrant instance of partisan conduct. But justice requires that the carriers be not blamed too much. They doubtless follow their orders. They know on whom their positions depend. When they offend flagrantly, they should be punished, but it would be well also that notice be served on the really responsible persons. One way in which such notice will surely be given will be when the resentment and irritation of the people finds its protest at the ballot box in November.

A new swindler is abroad in the land according to some of our exchanges. The swindler sells barbed wire fencing stretching machines. He leaves the machine and 40 rods of good fencing wire on trial, requiring the farmer to sign for the return of the stretcher. The farmer signs for $3, which, of course, turns up at the bank for $300 instead. It would be a wise plan for our farmers to give this individual a wide berth and buy their stretchers of a legitimate home store.

WOULD CURB MR. BRYAN.

Former Senator Jones Urges Him to Drop Federal Ownership.

Washington Post.

Former Senator James K. Jones is the latest Democrat of prominence to enter his protest against the government ownership plan of Mr. Bryan. When it became known yesterday that Senator Jones, who, during both of Mr. Bryan's campaigns for the Presidency, was chairman of the national committee, had sent a letter to Mr. Bryan, urging him to drop public ownership and make his fight for the enforcement of the laws now in force, especially the new rate law, there was some surprise among Democrats in Washington.

There has been no more ardent supporter of Mr. Bryan than Senator Jones, and their friendship has been not only political, but personal as well. It was to Senator Jones that Mr. Bryan wrote his letter from Europe in which he indicated he might again run for the Presidency if his party wished him to. The loyalty of Senator Jones to Mr. Bryan was such that many supposed he would be willing to accept his government-ownership issue.

Because of this warm personal and political friendship existing between Mr. Bryan and his former manager, the disaffection of Senator Jones is considered significant and as likely to influence many other admirers of the Nebraska man who may be hesitating as to what their policy should be. Democrats who disagree with Mr. Bryan as to the wisdom of the continuance of the line of campaign he has evidently marked out will await the effect of the advice of Senator Jones with some anxiety, as it is believed if Mr. Bryan cannot be headed off through his old personal and political ally, other influences will not prevail to caution him to desist in his advocacy of government ownership.

Talmage Sermon

By Rev.
Frank De Witt Talmage, D. D.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 23.—In this sermon the preacher finds a lesson amid the mountain peaks and valleys, the breeding places of storm and tempest. The text is Psalm lxxxi. 7. "I answered thee in the secret place of thunder."

I wonder where the sweet singer of Israel caught his inspiration for my text? Was he herding his sheep one day in the valley or the lowlands, where the shepherds, a thousand years later, watched their flocks by night and heard the angel of the nativity say, "Fear not, for behold I bring you tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people, for unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour which is Christ the Lord?" While he was sitting upon a rock in the fields did he not look up and see the storm clouds gathering over the surrounding hills? Then away off in the distance did he hear the muttering of the thunder? And while the valleys remained dry did he see the rain falling in torrents upon the mountain heights? Then did he see a beautiful rainbow in a great arch lift itself above these mountain tops? And then did he remember the words which God spake unto Noah a thousand years before the psalmist was born, "I do set my bow in the clouds, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth, and I will remember my covenant which is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh, and the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh?" Then when David saw the rainbow and witnessed the storm clouds disappear did he feel that God was his protector and never failing friend? Was he filled with the divine peace which passeth all understanding?

Or it may be different scenes that suggested to the sweet singer of Israel the image of my text. Perhaps it was on a day when one of his sheep went astray. He counted the flock over and over again, and he found that one was surely lost. So he started up the mountain side to hunt it. Higher and higher he went. He plunged through this thicket and that. Then at last he found it. But in the meantime the night settled in. Then the stars of the heavens were shut out by the black clouds. Then the thunder began to growl. Then, with his bleating sheep following close at his heels, he saw the lightning flash and shatter a huge tree just a short distance off. Then he said: "Ah, that must have been the voice of God's voice sounded to Moses when he spoke to him among the caverns and the deep ravines of old Sinai. This is truly one of the secret places of thunder." I personally believe that the psalmist did not catch the meaning of my text when he was tending his sheep down in the valleys, but when he was hunting for a lost lamb in one of the secret places of thunder, upon one of the highest peaks of the Judean mountains overlooking the little village of Bethlehem, where he was born and where his family at that time dwelt.

Secret Place of Thunder.

We do not know what were the scenes that caused these words to spring from the lips of the ancient poet, but since his time the child of God has often been reminded of them in times of trouble and crisis. It is well to know that there are secret places in which God's voice may be heard by the discouraged soul. There are times when the heart of the faithful is depressed by the noises wrangling around him; when his ears are filled with the loud babble of the world's disputings, with the fierce cries of contention, with the silly utterances of society's frivolity, with the vain and foolish sophistry of learned philosophers proclaiming that there is no God. Then happy is he if he can retire into his closet or some other secret place and hear the voice of God answering his perturbed spirit in thunder tones.

The words suggest that God's secret places of thunder are far away from the ordinary haunts of man. They are so far away that for a little while at least we can get away from the selfishness and meanness and sordidness surrounding us. We can live upon a higher plane. We can be, as I was some time ago, when I climbed the San Bernardino mountains to camp in the noted Little Bear valley of southern California. After we had gone up 4,000, 2,000, 3,000, 4,000, 5,000 feet suddenly we came to the summit. There we were able to stand upon the rocks and with sweep of eye take in the hot plains dotted with cities and villages and ranches. There we could see where men and women were toiling and struggling in the work of everyday life, but we were above them all and above their turmoil. We were in the flesh, yet we were so far up that when the mists began to gather they shut out the whole world beneath us. These hills looked like a great sea, with here and there a mountain peak pushing itself up, reminding us of the world beneath us as the Azores rising above the Atlantic remind us of the continent of Europe. It was a strange experience—that of withdrawal from the world and all its concerns. It is necessary at times, when our vision is clouded and our spirits weighed by the world's principles and maxims, to climb beyond its reach into the upper air of God's presence, where in the secret place of thunder we may hear his voice. Thus in order to reach God's secret places of thunder we must get out of the world. We must lift ourselves above its meanness and sins. We must lift ourselves from earth and walk with God and commune with God upon the mountain tops of love and gentleness and kindness. We must learn upon these mountain tops of spirituality to breathe the pure air of the purposes for which we were born and for which we can live through all eternity.

Professor Curie's Death.

My friends, I would like to ask you a blunt question: Have you ever tried to seek God far away from the haunts of man? Have you ever tried to commune with him in the secret places of the thunder? In order to do this you do not have to climb the Matterhorn or Mount Shasta or Mount Rainier or Baldy Peak of New Mexico. You do not have to leave the city walls and life yourself to the hills and listen to the songs of the thrushes and the woodpeckers of the brooks. A man can live in the city and yet not be in the city. We should do so if we were really absorbed in spiritual things. Some time ago Professor Curie, the great discoverer of the element radium, was walking through the streets of Paris with his mind so concentrated upon his scientific problems that he was utterly unconscious of his surroundings. When a heavy truck rumbled down the street his ears were deaf to the noise and to the warning calls of the driver, and he was crushed to death in an instant, as the car of the Indian juggernaut would crush out the lives of the devotees who flung themselves under its revolving wheels. My friends, how many times during the week do you withdraw yourselves from man to commune with God? How many times do you seek him in prayer and in holy communion? How many times a week do you say to your loved ones, "Come, let us go and talk with God for a little while in the secret places of thunder, as Moses talked with him upon Sinai's heights?"

But I find that God's secret places of thunder are upon the mountain tops of difficulties, as well as in the quiet places removed from the ordinary haunts of man. They are to be found only among the steep heights where the eagles build their nests and where only the most persistent of Alpine climbers is willing to go. Do you suppose for one instant that the psalmist had an easy time finding his lost sheep in the secret place of the thunder? Nay, methinks that one of the other shepherds at first went forth with him to hunt the lost sheep. David said to him at starting: "Ephraim, you go down the valley in this direction, and I will travel in that direction. You keep calling, and I will do the same. Then we shall meet at the foot of yonder hills. Then if we do not find the sheep in the valley, why, we must seek her in the hills." Thus they do, and the lost sheep is not found. Then up the rocks they begin to go, higher and higher. Now the darkness settles. Now is heard the blood curdling scream of the wildcat. Now comes the roar of the mountain lion hunting his prey. They climb on. Their flesh is lacerated. Their clothing is torn. They stumble. They fall. Now they have to go over a narrow ledge by the side of a steep precipice. Ephraim grows tired. He trembles with fear. He says: "David, I am going back. We can never find that lost sheep. She has either been dashed to death upon the rocks or else she has been slain by the wild beasts." But David keeps on. He keeps on climbing and slipping, but higher and higher he goes, as he calls, "Yohoe! Yohoe! Oh, lost sheep, Yohoe! Yohoe!" At last—yes, at last, he finds her in the secret place of the thunder.

On Mountain Tops.

Ah, yes; the secret place of the thunder is always to be found upon the mountain tops of difficulty. It is no easy matter to be a real Christian. It is no small task to listen to the voice of God in the secret place of thunder and hear aright and obey aright. I was never more impressed with this thought than some time ago. As I was tramping along the country roads of the lowland a couple of automobiles passed me. The women in those cars were dressed in the latest fashion. The men were lounging back in their seats. The gentleman with whom I was walking said, "How would you like to be riding in one of those machines?" "No," I answered; "that is not the way people get health. Nature does not give strong lungs and stout limbs to those who are seeking the easy times, but only to those who are willing to make sacrifices for it." But the work of tramping over the lowlands was nothing to the work of climbing the San Bernardino hills. In the first place, even though we were walking, we had to take every ounce of weight out of the wagon that we could take. We kept in the wagon only a light camp stove, a few blankets and enough to eat for a few days. We threw aside every extra pound and had our goods carried up by the heavy team wagons. Then we made our trip to the foot of the mountains early in the evening and went to sleep, and when the night had settled down and the moon had come up and the heat of the day was gone we were up and on our way.

My, what a journey it was! The grade was the steepest I ever climbed. They say it is about five miles to the summit, but I would willingly go six times that distance on the level road. Every few yards we had to stop and let the horse rest. One man handled the break, the other led or drove the horse. Zipping backward and forward the switchback road went. In one place you could look up and see where the road, like a lazy river, curved backward and forward in seven distinct places. It was only by the most persistent effort and struggle that at last, tired and exhausted and hungry, we came to the top. Then we reached the ravines where the thunderstorms were cradled and the mighty tempests were sent forth on their mission of giving drink to the famished crops and orchards of the valleys below. Yes, truly I am right when I assert that the secret places of the thunder are always built upon the high peaks of the mountains of difficulties.

Low Valley Christians.

My friends, the great trouble is with most of us we want to be Christians, but we want to be low valley Christians. We want to be Christians of the crags and cliffs, but not of the orchards and the harvest fields and of the flower gardens. We want to be the lazy Christians, lying upon beds of ease, where the bees will bring to us their honey and the sun will smile upon us a continual benediction, and the tossing, tumbling mountains will shake our thirst, and where the birds will never cease to sing for us their sweetest lullabies. Ah, no, that is not where we will hear God's voice speaking to us in the secret place of the thunder. It is not in the lowlands, but upon the mountain tops. It is not where we lie down upon a bed of roses and close our eyes in indolent somnolence, but only upon the mountain heights of difficulty, to seek which we will have to do as Paul did when he described himself, in the twelfth chapter of Hebrews, as running a gospel race: "Wherefore seeing we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin which doth beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us." When you read those words, dare you for one moment assume that Paul had an easy time when he gave himself up for consecrated service to Jesus Christ?

It is only when we are able to press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus that we are able to reach that prize. It is only when we are willing to climb the highest mountains of difficulty that we are able to hear God speaking to us in tones of love as he spoke to Moses in the secret places of thunder. There is a beautiful story told that in olden times a heathen king lay dying. He was mortally wounded on the field of battle. No sooner did he receive the fatal thrust than he sent for his most trusted servant and said, "Tell the dead that I come." At once the servant drew the king's sword and drove it into his own heart. And as his spirit was about to speed away the servant said, "Master, I will go and tell the dead that thou wilt soon be in their midst." "Oh," you say, "that was a beautiful devotion. That servant was willing to give up all for his king." So must we sacrifice if we are to hear our divine King speak to us in the secret place of thunder. We must be willing to give up all for him. We must be ready to climb every mountain of difficulty for his honor and glory. "So likewise whosoever he be of you that forsaketh not all that he hath he cannot be my disciple."

Forsaking All For God.

The psalmist in all probability cared but little for the scientific causes of the thunderstorm. In his time the national and international systems of weather bureaus had not been established. There were not then, as now, weather outposts or observatories stationed all around the world connected with telegraph wires. In our day no sooner does a storm start south from Alaska than the great ganglion or nerve center at Washington is made cognizant of the fact, and the danger signals are lifted along the coast to warn American shipping. In all probability David knew nothing about the different strata of air overhead. He did not know that, just as the scientist today drops a fathometer line into the ocean and finds different currents of water in a straight line flowing above or underneath each other in different directions, so the aeronaut in his balloon finds different currents of air in the atmosphere overhead blowing in different directions. But this one fact the psalmist knew about a thunderstorm—it represented an atmospheric change. Before the storm came the hot valleys would be blistered. Then the droughts would be parching the grass and drying up the water holes. Then the sheep would be bleating from hunger and thirst. But no sooner did the echoing of the storm sound forth from the secret place of thunder than at once the hot, blasting air became cool. Then the reservoirs of the clouds were emptied of their waters. Then all nature began to teem and to smile and to hum and to sing with life. So in the secret place of thunder, when God speaks to us, our natures will be changed. Being sinful, we shall become pure. Being morally crooked, we shall become straight. Being spiritually dead, we shall become spiritually resurrected. "Though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as white as snow. Though they be red like crimson they shall be as wool." Oh, the miraculous change which comes into man's sinful nature as soon as the siner comes into touch with Christ's love in God's secret place of thunder.

Harmony With Man.

But in the secret place of thunder man is not only brought into right harmony with God, but also into right harmony with man. There we are taught to love the Lord our God with all our heart and soul and mind. But we are also taught there to love our neighbor as ourselves. And in no place on earth does a man try more to help his neighbor than when he is in the mountains. The valleys are the places where man too often lives for himself. The wild mountains are the places where man lives for others. If you are in trouble in the high hills you can always go to the first man you meet and he will help you out of that difficulty if it is possible for him so to do. There everybody is honest.

There everybody tries to help others. We had our goods carried up into the hills by a teamster. Where did he leave them? By the public roadside. There they lay hour after hour unlocked. Scores and hundreds of people passed them, and no one touched them. They have four legged thieves in the mountains. The wild cattle will come and steal your grain, but there are no two legged thieves in the mountains called men. There every one is honest. "If you want anything from town just give the money to the first man you find going there," said a gentleman to me. "Tell him what you want and he will get it for you and bring you back the right change." I tested this honesty of the mountaineer again and again and never found it to fail. Then the kindnesses of the people! Oh, how kind they are. If you have a sick horse, as I had, they will hitch up their horse and bring you your goods. If you are hungry you can find food at their tables. If they have only one loaf of bread they are always willing to give you half. Kindness, kindness, kindness, brotherly and sisterly kindnesses are to be found everywhere in the mountains. Oh, why do we not learn to help each other in the valleys and lowlands, as the mountaineer is always willing to help his neighbor among the hills? Yes, in the secret place of thunder man not only learns to love the Lord his God with all his heart and soul and mind, but he also learns to love and to help his neighbor as he would his own child.

But there is still another fact about these mountains that I would have you bear well in mind. God's secret place of thunder is not circumscribed. There are many secret places of thunder. Just as mountains seem to overlook mountains, so for man there should always be higher secret places of thunder, to which he should always be striving to go. This fact also is most beautifully illustrated among the hills. While I was on my way tramping I looked up and saw where a storm was raging in Little Bear valley. "Oh," I said to myself, "if I could only climb up there and sit by the cradle of that storm!" Time passed on, and I was able to climb up to where the storm was born. "We had an awful electric storm here a few days ago," said a lady to me after I had climbed into Pioneer camp. "Did you see it in the valley below?" "Yes," I answered; "we saw it." Then I was in a secret place of thunder. Then I went to observation point, at Skyland, and looked off upon the valley. How far below me that valley appeared! Far, far below I could see the trees laid out in rows. I could see the ranch houses dotting the horizon here and there. I could see the cities and villages through which we had passed. Then, from watching the earth under my feet, I began to look up. I saw the greater mountain peaks rising just as high above me as the valley was below. There were mighty Graybacks and San Jacinto peak and old Cuernavaca. There they lifted their snow capped heights thousands upon thousands of feet higher than I was. Then I said, as I saw the valleys below and the mountain heights above, "There are secret places of thunder where God talks to us near to the valleys." But the Christian who stays in one secret place of thunder must surely die in a spiritual sense. "Higher than his present spiritual life he must see visions. God keeps saying to him all the time this sentence: 'Child, climb, keep climbing higher and higher into the spiritual realm. Way off among the cloudlands of the mountains I have for thee other secret places of thunder, where thou canst commune with me. Thou must climb and keep on climbing until at last thou shalt dwell with me in the eternal secret places of heaven.' As one of God's chosen ones are you continuing to climb higher and higher into his spiritual realm?"

The Beautiful Valleys.

And oh, how beautiful the valleys look after we have dwelt for a little while among the hills. A man as a rule cannot appreciate the lowlands and the valleys when he is climbing up the mountain sides. Then his breath comes quick and short. Then he, like Bunyan's hero, Christian, is tugging at his load. He stops every little while to put his mouth to the waters to quench his thirst, for his lips are feverish and his brow is an overcasted forehead. But after he has climbed the mountains and rested his tired limbs among the cool shades of the trees and slept for a little while upon the softest of couches made up of pine needles, everything is changed. Then when he starts down into the valleys the world looks so different. Every brook sings to him. Every tree rustles with gladness. Every step seems buoyant with perpetual youth. A supernatural strength and a supernatural joy are his. Oh, tired and weary soul, working in life's lowlands, would you enjoy your life? Would you feel that every deed that you do is a joyful deed of gospel opportunities? Then for a little while he away from the deep valleys of selfishness. Climb. Keep on climbing. Climb up into the secret places of thunder and listen to God's voice talking to you. Then God will send you back to your work strong in a physical and mental and spiritual sense. Then he will make you say, "Next to the blessed opportunity of singing the song of Moses and the Lamb before the great white throne of God is the blessing of working for him in his vineyards in the lowlands of earth."

O God, may we hear thee speaking to us today in the secret places of thunder, that we may go forth as joyful reapers to gather thy sheaves from the great harvest fields of the world into the gospel granaries. Dost thou not hear God speaking to thee in the secret place of thunder?

Mr. W. C. Boren has purchased the handsome residence of Mr. W. I. Young just this side of Lindley park and will take possession the latter part of next month. The place is one of the most desirable in the county. While the consideration is not stated it is believed to be in the neighborhood of $12,000. Mr. Young will move his family to Knoxville, Tenn., where he is building a cotton mill.

Mr. A. Chadwick, a well known farmer living near Jamestown, narrowly escaped death at the Bull Run railroad crossing near that place late last Wednesday evening. A fast train struck his team as he was in the act of crossing the railroad, killing his team instantly and demolishing his wagon. While Mr. Chadwick was painfully bruised it is not believed that he suffered any permanent injury.

If you are a millionaire and pay eleven or thirteen dollars a pair for your shoes we don't expect you to trade at this store, but it's a mighty good place for the average man or woman who needs and expects a hundred cents' worth for every dollar spent to buy shoes and dry goods. The store is full of new goods, and you are given a hearty invitation to come and look. We promise not to "get mad" if you don't buy a cent's worth.

THACKER & BROCKMANN. Aaron Mendenhall, one of the most highly respected colored men in Greensboro, died early Saturday morning and was buried Monday from St. Matthew's A. M. E. church. His funeral procession contained over fifty vehicles. Aaron set a worthy example to his race. Scrupulously honest in all his dealings and holding his word inviolate, he prospered in business and lived at peace with the world, acquiring considerable property by his industry and frugality. He was about sixty years old.

Mr. Thomas McMullen, a traveling salesman from Detroit, Mich., was stricken with paralysis Friday afternoon while walking along South Elm street, and had it not been for the prompt assistance of passersby would have fallen to the sidewalk. After medical attention given him at Helms' drug store he was taken to St. Leo's hospital. His entire right side is affected. Mrs. McMullen reached the city the first of the week and will remain until her husband is able to attempt the journey home.

In discussing the tariff at Salisbury, Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw said among other things: "The Douglas shoe, advertised in every town in the United States for $3.50 per pair, is also popular in London, the metropolis of a free trade country, at the equivalent of $4 per pair, and in Paris at the equivalent of $4.25 per pair." So it seems that the famous W. L. Douglas shoes are known and liked in the old country as well as on this side of the water. Thacker & Brockmann are agents for the line in Greensboro and carry a large stock of Douglas shoes of all grades from $2.50 up to $4.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than in all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, etc. Take Hall's family Pills for constipation.

The Journal Publishing Company has just been reorganized and the paper will be improved in various material respects. Mr. Bruce Craven, formerly of Randolph, becomes editor under the new management, which is to be congratulated on securing the services of the two able gentlemen named. Mr. Whitaker enjoyed the highest esteem of his fraternal brethren here and his departure is regretted.
