H. L. CLAPP KILLED AND THREE INJURED

ARE PINNED UNDER AUTO

Frank Helston Held On Murder Charge

CAR RUNS INTO POLE

Painful Injuries Sustained By Helston, Anton Carson and Emil Kantoo When Machine Turns Completely Over on North Elm

H. L. Clapp sustained injuries which resulted fatally a short time later, and Frank Helston, Anton Carson and Emil Kantoo were painfully hurt about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which they were riding turned completely over as it crashed into a telephone pole on North Elm street, a short distance from Second street, this city.

Frank Helston, who was driving the car, is being held in the city jail to answer a charge of murder preferred following the death of H. L. Clapp, which occurred in St. Leo's hospital to which the latter was removed immediately after the wreck. The injuries of Helston were not serious and he tried to escape, according to information obtained by the police. When he was arrested by local police he was at his home on Forbis street. Helston had discarded the mud-soaked clothes in which he was found when he was removed from the wrecked car and he was evidently prepared to board a train for New York. Officers declared Helston had told Carson he was going to leave immediately for New York.

H. L. Clapp, who had long been a resident of Greensboro, was making his home at the Weaver house, 116 S. West Market street, and was well known throughout Guilford county. He was carpenter foreman for the George Fuller Construction company here. Helston, Carson and Kantoo also were employed by the George Fuller Construction company here on the new Jefferson Standard building. Helston serving as concrete foreman. Carson and Kantoo had been working for the company about a week.

Carson was discharged from St. Leo's hospital after his wounds were dressed. His were only flesh wounds of minor character. Kantoo, who also was hurried to St. Leo's, left the hospital this morning, announcing his intention to return to his home in New York. He sustained several deep scalp wounds.

People who saw the crash said the car driven by Helston was proceeding along North Elm at a very rapid rate. H. L. Clapp and Emil Kantoo were on the rear seat, while Frank Helston and Anton Carson were on the front seat. Directly opposite the residence of J. T. Cobb the car crashed into telephone pole, broke it off and then zigzagged, skidded and turned over on Second street 150 feet distant from the point where the pole was struck. J. T. Cobb and his son, Clyde Cobb, who rushed to the scene, ripped off the top of the automobile and the four men were extricated from the wreckage. Mr. Clapp, then dying, was taken to the hospital by J. T. Cobb, while the Poole and Blue ambulance hurried Kantoo and Carson to St. Leo's, and Helston quickly left, his capture and incarceration on the charge of killing H. L. Clapp following shortly afterward.

Practically all of the bones in Mr. Clapp's body were broken, it was stated. The automobile was a complete wreck. Helston told the police that the car struck the telephone pole when he drove too close to the curb in an effort to permit another machine to pass. J. T. Cobb, on the other hand, said no car was approaching and that it was evident Helston lost control of the machine. The odor of liquor was noticeable in the party, it was stated.

Mr. Clapp was 65 years old. His wife, who prior to their marriage was Miss Ada Wilson, died about eight years ago. He was a member of Friedens Lutheran church and had many friends in Guilford county. He leaves four sons, Lee Clapp, of White Oak, chief electrician for the White Oak, Proximity and Revolution mills; Leslie Clapp and Carl Clapp, of Greenville, S. C., and Peter Clapp, of the United States navy; two daughters, Mrs. Mary McPherson, of Winston-Salem, and Mrs. Minnie Bain, of White Oak; a sister, Mrs. Mary Greeson, and two brothers, Cornelius and John Clapp, who live six miles east of Greensboro.

Definite arrangements for the funeral had not been completed this afternoon, although it was stated that the service would be conducted at Mount Pleasant church. Pending receipt of word from a relative in another state the time of the funeral remains problematical.

Special Christmas Exercises

Special Christmas exercises will be staged at the Rock Creek Sunday school at 7:30 next Wednesday evening, it is announced. One of the features of the occasion will be a Christmas tree. The public is cordially invited.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Big Fire in Charlotte
Charlotte, Dec. 17.—The six-story Trust building on South Tryon street containing the Keith vaudeville theater and a large number of offices was destroyed and two other structures seriously damaged by fire early today with a total loss estimated at approximately $440,000.

Little Girl Killed by Playmate
Henderson, Dec. 16.—Sallie Satterwhite, 14 years old, was killed by her playmate, Hill Ellington, 11-year-old son of T. D. Ellington, of this county, with a stick of wood Friday afternoon near Dabney. It is stated the boy struck the girl twice, once on the back and once across the neck.

Dies from Shark's Bite
Tarboro, Dec. 16.—News has just been received here by Henry C. Bourne from Bishop Colmore of Porto Rico that his sister, Miss Katherine Wimberly Bourne, had been bitten by a shark while in bathing and died soon afterwards.

Vast Rum Stores Destroyed
Wilmington, Dec. 16.—The $100,000 rum cargo of the British schooner, Message of Peace, was poured into Cape Fear river here Thursday over 1,000 cases.

Vets and Widows of County Get Pensions

Checks for Confederate pensions were mailed Friday by Clerk of Superior Court Mason W. Gant to veterans and widows of veterans in Guilford county, the checks having originally been received from the state government at Raleigh. The total amount of these remittances, covering the first six months of 1923, is $15,030.

In this county 163 widows and 138 veterans receive pensions, the total number being 301. There are four classes, the amounts being as follows: First class, $75; second, $67.50; third, $60; fourth, $52.50. In Guilford one veteran receives a first class pension, being totally disabled; another former wearer of the gray is in the second class list, another in the third class; one widow obtains a first class pension; the other 297 beneficiaries receive fourth class pensions.

If the addresses of any pensioners are not on file with the clerk of court they may call at his office for the checks.

Probing Into Slaying of Lee County Woman

Sanford, Dec. 16.—A recess was taken last night until next Wednesday by the coroner's jury which is investigating the killing of Mrs. Laura Waddell, whose body was found in a pool of blood in her home 11 miles from Sanford, Lee county, early Wednesday morning. She had been knocked in the head with an axe.

Mrs. Waddell, who lived alone, apparently had been dead several days when her body was found by two neighbors who went to her home early Wednesday morning to investigate her disappearance. The authorities say she probably had been originally attacked before being slain.

Legislative Aims of Federation of Labor

The executive committee of the North Carolina Federation of Labor met here Sunday and outlined a program of legislation, to be sought at the next meeting of the General Assembly. Its aims include:

The 48-hour week for women and children in industry; examination and licensing of all stationary firemen and engineers; the Australian ballot; a workmen's compensation law; The committee determined to oppose a wage garnishment law and an anti-picketing bill.

All instructions of the federation, as made at the last convention, will be carried out, it was agreed.

Harold Hodnett Held On Seduction Charge

Harold Hodnett must face a Superior court grand jury in answer to the charge of seduction preferred against him by Miss Annie M. Laughlin, of this city, daughter of Robert E. Laughlin, a car inspector, the defendant having been bound over Monday when given a preliminary hearing in Municipal court here before Judge D. H. Collins. Bond was fixed at $5,000 and when Hodnett failed to furnish it he was placed in jail.

Miss Laughlin on the stand swore that she entered into immoral relations with Hodnett upon his promises of marriage; that subsequently he left Greensboro and her child was born. Hodnett, she declares, is the father of her child.

At Annual Meeting Here C. F. Chapin, of Greensboro, Elected President of State Body—Various Awards Announced

The annual meeting of the North Carolina Poultry association in 1923 will be held in Greensboro in accordance with the unanimous decision reached Thursday night at the annual session of that organization at the county courthouse here. In conjunction with the meeting the official state poultry show will be staged here on the second Wednesday in December.

Chester F. Chapin, of Greensboro, on Thursday night was elected president of the association. E. R. Ostinger, of Wilson, was the choice of the convention for vice-president, while Dr. B. F. Kaupp, of Raleigh, was named secretary-treasurer. All officers were unanimously elected.

One of the most notable features of the meeting Thursday night was an address by R. E. Adams, of Charleston, S. C., director of the fourth district of the American Poultry association, the territory of which embraces North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky, Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, and Cuba. Mr. Adams urged poultrymen to adopt standard methods, pointing to the success which comes from such a course.

In interesting fashion A. G. Oliver, who has charge of the poultry extension work of A. and E. college, West Raleigh, told of the activities of the extension department in the encouragement of profitable poultry production. His suggestion that a modern exhibition building be constructed in some North Carolina city was enthusiastically received.

The invitation to the association to return to Greensboro in 1923 was extended by C. W. Williams, W. T. Corbin and other well known poultry breeders of this city who were largely instrumental in the success of the show held here last week.

Large crowds viewed the poultry exhibits on East Sycamore street, approximately 1,500 entries having been made by the 104 exhibitors representing many counties in North Carolina and some in other states. The exhibition closed at 10 o'clock Saturday night. Plymouth Rocks were numerically greatest in the exhibition and Wyandottes second in point of number. Other prominent strains included Rhode Island Reds, White Leghorns, Dark Cornish and Anconas.

The judging consumed most of Thursday and Friday and was performed by Jacob Eberly, of Dallas, Pa., and Garnett Booker, of Blackstone, Va., who are recognized as noted authorities in the poultry world.

Trial of the cases against Basil H. Hedgecock, former cashier of the Home Banking company, of High Point, was started this morning, marking the beginning of the second week of the December term of Guilford Superior court for the trial of criminal cases. Hedgecock is charged with false entry, embezzlement and conspiracy to defraud. Selection of the jury was completed in eight minutes today and the evidence is now being heard.

Arnold B. Huff and Will Switzer, of High Point, also will be tried this week. They are alleged to have aided and abetted Hedgecock in the abstraction of funds from the bank. It is expected that trial of these cases will require most of the court's time this week.

National Co-operative Council Forms Permanent Organization And Considers Rural Problems

Washington, Dec. 16.—Permanent organization of the National Council of Farmers' Co-operative Marketing associations was authorized today in the closing session here of a three-day conference of representatives of farmers' associations in all sections of the country.

The purpose of the council will be to handle common problems of co-operative marketing bodies, without conflicting with activities of other associations, and acting as their mouthpiece.

Modification of present agricultural loan systems to give farmers nine months credit paper, instead of six months, and to increase to $25,000 the maximum basis of loans from land banks, was recommended in resolutions unanimously adopted. Amendment to the federal reserve law to meet the special requirements of farm credits and to permit the financing of farmers and their co-operative societies was also favored.

The general policy for the council was laid down, favoring the local banker as the primary reliance of the farmer for production and marketing credits.

Erection of a farm credits department in federal land bank, with capital sufficient to issue farm credit

Jail Sentences Imposed Upon 22
Defendants in First Week of Superior Court Term

Twenty-two defendants in Guilford Superior court here last week drew sentences—which is most cases meant road sentences—the time thus imposed aggregating 19 years and three months. Fines totaling $100 were prescribed for two offenders by Judge W. F. Harding, five defendants were acquitted, judgment was suspended upon payment of the costs in two actions, and a number of cases were continued.

On Saturday sentence of one year on the county roads was drawn by Sherman Clapp, young white man, who was held for the dynamiting of the Davis Street Auto Exchange in this city. He had been given a sentence of 18 months in Municipal court, having appealed from that decision.

Arthur Clapp, the negro who was convicted of manslaughter when tried for the killing of another negro, Jess Albright, was ordered to serve one year on the county roads. Clapp himself was shot by the man whom he was alleged to have killed and the state of his health was declared delicate. He was given his choice of spending a year in state prison or on the county roads, finally electing to go to the roads.

Sentence of six months on the roads was given Joe Gates, who admitted he had driven an automobile while intoxicated, and he also was ordered to pay a fine of $500 plus the costs. It was provided, however, that upon payment of the sum specified, together with damages incurred when his car struck and killed a horse, the defendant would be released.

McKinley Shoffner confessed inability to pay a fine of $50 and the costs for carrying a concealed weapon. He was directed to work two months on the county highways.

Justice James Hastings, convicted of forgery, was sentenced to four months on the roads.

For false pretense Reid Adams must serve a year on the roads unless he returns $50 to his prosecutor. In the latter event the sentence will be reduced to six months.

Six months on the county roads was the sentence received by James Nelson for larceny.

For an assault with a deadly weapon John Brown must labor 10 months on the county roads, Judge Harding decided.

Acquittals resulted in the following cases: Foster Benton, charged with the larceny of chickens; Lillie Dick, charged with larceny of about $70; C. C. Douthitt, Dubbell Fields and Chelsie York, charged with breaking and entering; Clyde Holder, charged with the larceny of an automobile. Prayer for judgment was continued in the case against Thaddeus Gunn, found guilty of robbery.

R. W. Johnson, convicted of aiding and abetting in prostitution, was ordered to serve four months on the roads.

Nol pros with leave was ordered in the case in which Res G. Green was charged with driving an automobile while drunk.

The case against Ed Ragan, charged with receiving more than a quart of liquor in 15 days, resulted in a mistrial.

The jury acquitted Clayton Sloan, Robert Boland and Slim Dewberry, young negroes who were tried for an alleged criminal assault upon Cleo Cobb, a negro girl of 16 years.

Richmond, Dec. 17.—Police here are centering their efforts on the theory that Mrs. Thelma H. Richardson was shot to death by her employer, Thomas Pollard, following a quarrel over another woman. Pollard is to be tried on a murder charge.

Klan Discussion By Morrison and Others

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Dec. 16.—Prohibition and the Ku Klux Klan brought a clash of views here at the 14th annual conference of governors Thursday night after an address by Governor Olcott, of Oregon, in which he assailed the Klan as a national menace.

Governor Morrison, of North Carolina, taking the floor, declared he opposed introduction into the conference of either the Klan or prohibition questions, which previously had been brought up by Governor Parker, of Louisiana, in an address in which he declared prohibition was almost a farce and that the Klan should be curbed by federal legislation. As two of the "toughest" questions before the country, Governor Morrison said, he opposed their consideration at a conference which he believed should be devoted to an exchange of ideas on the administrative duties of governors.

While he did not mean to defend the Klan and deplored its possible danger to the country in arousing the spirit of religious intolerance and racial feeling, Governor Morrison said he could relate many acts of benevolence attributed to the secret organization.

Tobacco Warehouses To Close Wednesday

The Greensboro warehouses of the Tri-State Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Marketing association will close next Wednesday night for the Christmas holidays. They will reopen on Wednesday morning, January 3.

While the major portion of the crop will have been delivered when the warehouses close for the holidays, it is expected that a considerable amount will be brought here early in the new year. The time of closing of the season cannot now be predicted. The same schedule will be maintained after Christmas as that now prevailing; that is, the warehouses will be open every week day except Saturday. Warehouse Manager R. O. Gamble announces.

Enters Wrong House And Sustains Wound

When Jess Staton entered the wrong house early Thursday morning he was shot through the arm by Frazier Blanchard, who evidently suspected an attempt to burglarize the home. Staton had been rooming at the house next to the Blanchard residence several days and made a mistake trying to locate his room. Blanchard was asleep, but his wife heard the visitor entering and called to her husband. The man of the house called to the visitor, but upon receiving no reply he fired. Staton's identity was then established and medical aid was rendered. The wound was not serious.

President of Poland Victim of Assassin

Warsaw, Dec. 16.—Gabriel Narutowicz, first president of the Polish republic, fell before an assassin's bullet at noon today, just one week since his election and only 48 hours after actually taking up the duties of office. The slayer, one Niewiadomski, long regarded by his associates as mentally deranged, as soon as his deed was done, turned for flight, but was immediately borne down by the infuriated spectators, who kicked and beat him unmercifully. He was rescued with difficulty by the police and taken to the police station under exceptionally heavy guard.

FOG OBSCURES CREEK BRIDGE

And G. F. Alberti Narrowly
Escapes Death

ON RANDLEMAN ROAD

Body of Mrs. Edna Glenn Found in Car Taken From South Buffalo Creek, Two Miles South of Greensboro, Last Night

When the automobile in which she was a passenger plunged off the embankment at South Buffalo bridge on the Randleman road, two miles south of this city, about 9 o'clock last night, Mrs. Edna Glenn, wife of Stamey Glenn, wife of Stamey Glenn, of Greensboro, was drowned, while the driver of the car, G. F. Alberti, revenue officer, narrowly escaped death, fighting his way out of the water from underneath the machine.

The escape of Alberti may be set down as a modern miracle. His resolve to save himself, a resolve born of realization of the extremely desperate situation, enabled him to find strength to extricate himself, after which he aroused neighbors, informed them of the tragic wreck, then proceeded to Greensboro police headquarters where he was ordered held pending an investigation.

The recovery of Mrs. Glenn's body was effected about midnight, following three hours of difficult work on the part of a group composed mainly of officers, led by Sheriff D. B. Stafford. That discovery marked the first definite knowledge concerning the fate of the luckless passenger.

Alberti informed the police that he was driving to Greensboro with Mrs. Glenn at the time of the accident. Fog tended to obscure his view of the bridge on South Buffalo creek, near the home of R. W. H. Stone, he said. Thinking that he was safely starting across the bridge, he was amazed to find that the car had swerved to the left and the fatal plunge quickly followed, the machine crashing through some timbers and dropping about 15 feet from the bank to the water. There it struck the edge of the creek, turned completely over and went into water of greater depth—from five to eight feet.

In that awful moment Alberti heard nothing from his companion, he told officers. He found himself submerged in water and also under the car, but in some way he managed to extricate himself. Then, he declared, he tried to rescue Mrs. Glenn, but the attempts were unsuccessful. Two automobiles then passed over the bridge, but no attention was paid to his cries for assistance, and he then went to the Stone home, telling of the tragedy.

When people of the neighborhood hurried to the scene they found one rear wheel partly out of the water, while the rear light, by force of circumstances converted into an ominous signal of death, continued to shed its sickening rays above the spot where Mrs. Glenn ended the ill-fated ride.

When the police were advised of the accident by Alberti, who had caught a passing car and hurried to this city, members of the police department went to the scene. Sheriff Stafford, Deputy Sheriff Mike Caffey, the policemen and others organized a relief party. Lights revealed a part of the car, ropes were brought into action and finally the automobile was dragged to the bank. The fact that the embankment was unusually steep added to the difficulty of the work.

On the front seat of the car was found the lifeless body of Mrs. Glenn. It was believed that drowning alone was responsible for fatality, as no scars were found on her body.

Alberti said he had been in the Randleman section yesterday looking for a liquor car. Failing to find it, he was returning to Greensboro, and at John Gamble's store, 10 miles south of the city, he met Mr. and Mrs. Stamey Glenn. When he learned that Mrs. Glenn wanted to return to Greensboro he offered her a seat in the machine. She accepted the offer and they left Mr. Glenn at the store.

Mrs. Glenn was about 25 years of age. Mr. Glenn has been farming in Summer township, while he and Mrs. Glenn also have spent part of their time at the home of his father, Elmer Glenn, on East Lee street, this city.

EVENTS 80 YEARS AGO

It is the purpose of this paper to publish at frequent intervals comparatively brief references to events chronicled in The Greensboro (as it was then) Patriot of 80 years ago. In this enterprise valuable assistance is rendered by members of the staff of the Greensboro Public Library.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.—This last message of President Tyler, like his other messages, is reasonably short. And for conciseness and explicitness of language it is hardly to be excelled. The information of the state of the country, and of our foreign relations, to which the greater portion of the message is devoted, is such as every citizen ought to have; and it is such, we boldly say, as will be found nowhere else related in a manner more perspicuous.

At peace with all the world—the personal liberty of the citizen sacredly maintained, and his rights secure under political institutions deriving all their authority from the direct sanction of the people—with a soil fertile almost beyond example; and a country blessed with every diversity of climate and production, what remains to be done in order to advance the happiness and prosperity of such a people? * * * The receipts into the treasury during the first three quarters of the present year, from all sources, amount to $26,616,593.78; of which more than fourteen millions were received from customs, and about one million from the public lands. The receipts for the fourth quarter are estimated at nearly eight millions; of which four millions are expected from customs, and three millions and a half from loans and treasury notes. The expenditures of the first three quarters of the present year exceed twenty-six millions; and those estimated for the fourth quarter amount to about eight millions; and it is anticipated that there will be a deficiency of half a million on the first of January next—but that the amount of outstanding warrants (estimated at $800,000) will leave an actual balance of about $224,000 in the treasury.—Extracts from President John Tyler's message to Congress.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—The bill to repeal an act of 1835, to abolish the office of county trustee of Moore, etc.; the bill to establish a new county by the name of Catawba; the bill to incorporate Union academy in the county of Lenoir; the bill for the better regulation of the town of Statesville; the bill to alter the times of holding the county courts of Moore; the bill to amend the 65th section of the 59th chapter of the Revised Statutes, for the establishing of public landings, etc.; the bill to incorporate the Independent Iredell Blues; the resolution for the relief of the clerk of the county court of Franklin; and the bill to incorporate the New Hanover Rifle Corps; were severally read the third time, passed and ordered to be engrossed.

Montford Stokes, ex-governor of North Carolina, died at Fort Gibson, Arkansas, on the 4th ultimo, in the 82nd year of his age.

MARRIED.—In this place, Tuesday evening last, by the Rev. William D. Paisley, Maj. A. T. Humphreys to Miss Susan, daughter of Hon. John M. Dick.

*The message contained only ten thousand words.

The United States of America, In the District Court of the United States for the Western District of North Carolina.

In the Matter of W. C. Craven and J. M. Forrester, trading as Basketaria, Bankrupts, In Bankruptcy No. 569.

To the Honorable Jas. E. Boyd, Judge of the District Court of the United States for the Western District of North Carolina:

W. C. Craven and J. M. Forrester, trading as Basketaria, of Greensboro in the county of Guilford and state of North Carolina, in said district, respectfully represent:

That on the 25th day of August, last past, they were duly adjudged bankrupts, under the acts of Congress relating to bankruptcy; that they have duly surrendered all their property and rights of property, and have fully complied with all the requirements of said acts, and of the orders of the court touching their bankruptcy.

Wherefore they pray that they may be decreed by the court to have a full discharge from all debts provable against their estate under said bankrupt acts, except such debts as are excepted by law from such discharge.

Dated this 31st day of October, A. D., 1922.

(Signed) W. C. CRAVEN,
(Signed) J. M. FORRESTER,
Bankrupts.

Order of Notice on Petition for Discharge

It is ordered by the court that a hearing be had upon the above petition on the 27th day of December, 1922, before Clifford Frazier, special master, at Greensboro, North Carolina, in said District, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and that notice thereof be published in The Greensboro Patriot, a newspaper published in said district, and that all creditors and other persons in interest may appear at the said time and place and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petitioners should not be granted.

And it is further ordered by the court that the clerk shall send by mail, to all known creditors, copies of the said petition and this order addressed to them at their place of residence as stated.

This Nov. 23, 1922. 95-101m

CLIFFORD FRAZIER,
Special Master.

FARM DEMONSTRATION

Cottontail Rabbits

In spite of their good qualities as food and game, cottontail rabbits in many localities become a great nuisance to orchards and farm crops, and control measures are necessary to prevent their increase. In addition to the natural checks effected by diseases and predatory animal enemies, the usual ways of preventing abnormal increases in their numbers, according to the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, are by hunting, trapping, fencing, or poisoning.

In many states east of the Mississippi rabbits are protected as game, and the close season for them must be observed. The game laws for 1922, issued by United States Department of Agriculture as Farmers' Bulletin 1238, shows the requirements in each state. In some states rabbits may be taken with dog, trap, or snare at any time, but must not be shot during the close season. In a number of states having a close season for rabbits the laws permit farmers and fruit growers to destroy the animals to protect crops or trees.

Poisoned baits can be used to keep down the numbers of rabbits where domestic animals can be prevented from gaining access to the poison. Shooting for sport and using for meat, however, is preferable and will usually hold the animals in check. Rabbit-proof fences can be profitably built when the area to be protected is not too large. Various washes distasteful to rabbits are recommended for use on tree trunks, as well as different mechanical contrivances to keep the hungry animals from eating the bark and girdling the trees. Feeding rabbits in winter with winter prunings of apple trees or corn, cabbage, or turnips has been practiced successfully in some orchards, on the theory that it is cheaper to feed than to fight them.

HOME DEMONSTRATION

Marketing Methods

Acting upon the advice of extension workers, South Carolina women have made steady advances in standardizing the products they offer for sale and in increasing their output. For example, in Charleston county, starting with one woman two years ago, there are now over 70 women shipping in weekly their graded and guaranteed eggs. Two years ago no one thought of fattening poultry before sending to market. Today no one thinks of sending poultry to market without first fattening it. The women realize as never before that a standard-bred fowl produces higher-priced eggs and market poultry than a mongrel. The improvement in preserving is also marked. Two years ago only one woman produced really standard preserves and jelly. Now there are nine who can for market and many others who put up a few dozen to sell. The original woman who sold preserves has so developed her business that she has built a factory and has planned for an output of 10,000 containers. The members of the local home demonstration club assist her and in this way not only make pocket money for themselves but improve their own work, and in a few years the entire community bids fair to be well known for its specialized products. The number of dozen eggs sold, as reported to the extension agent, is 8,142, and the pounds of poultry, 19,667. The value of canned goods actually sold is $512, and the total amount of all products is $8,504.94.

In the state last year approximately 5,000 containers of each standardized products as Dixie burgoo, pine bark fish stew, Brunswick stew, soup mixture, blackberry jam, fig preserves, plum jelly, grape juice, artichoke relish, and butter were put on the market through the South Carolina Home Producers' association. This year contracts have been signed for about 200,000 containers.

CERTIFICATE OF DISSOLUTION

State of North Carolina, Department of State

To All to Whom These Presents May Come—Greeting:

Whereas, It appears to my satisfaction, by duly authenticated record of the proceedings for the voluntary dissolution thereof by the unanimous consent of all the stockholders deposited in my office, that the Marmon Carolina company, a corporation of this state, whose principal office is situated at No. _____ street, in the city of Greensboro, county of Guilford, state of North Carolina (_____ being the agent therein and in charge thereof, upon whom process may be served), has complied with the requirements of Chapter 22, Consolidated Statutes, entitled "Corporations," preliminary to the issuing of this Certificate of Dissolution.

BIG CROWDS ATTEND NEW STORE OPENING

The formal opening of the handsome new furniture establishment of the Huntley-Stockton-Hill company last Thursday and Friday, afternoon and evening, was attended by immense throngs of people who expressed their admiration of the evident perfection characterizing every phase of the undertaking.

On every hand were evidences of the efficiency with which the ambitious plans of the company had been executed. The modern new Huntley-Stockton-Hill building at 213 North Elm street appeared to be a veritable furniture palace. Of the six floors in the big brick structure, which extends from Elm to Green street the first four floors are occupied by the Huntley-Stockton-Hill company, the others being provided for offices. The immense and beautiful displays of furniture attracted the highest praise from visitors, who referred in laudatory manner to the progressiveness of the company and predicted its constantly expanding success.

Formal opening of the new store marks a mighty achievement in the life of the company which for 18 years has occupied a distinctly enviable position in the furniture business. The store is generally conceded to be the largest and most complete retail furniture establishment in North Carolina and one of the finest in the entire country.

B. F. Huntley, of Winston-Salem, president of the company, Manager George L. Stansbury and other officials received many congratulations upon the success of the big enterprise.

Tried for Beating Wife

"MADAME WHO"

By HAROLD MacGRATH, Author of "The Man on the Box," "The Millionaire Burglar," etc.

WHO'S WHO—

Jeanne Beaufort, daughter of a Virginian, swears vengeance against the North for the deaths of her father and two brothers in the Civil War. She is enrolled as a spy for the Confederate government and instructed to use the wiles of her sex to bring down the Union.

Parson John Kennedy, a Union spy, within the power of the South. Discovered in the act of spying upon the group of Secret Service agents of whom Kennedy is the leader, Jeanne is given the alternative of death or marriage to one of their number. They are all masked, but Jeanne rejects one volunteer and chooses another of the eleven as her husband. To herself, she calls him Irony. Parson Kennedy performs the ceremony and the bride and groom, ignorant of each other's names and she not even knowing what he looks like, sign the marriage certificate as "Mary Smith" and "John Jones." As witnesses the group sign as follows:

- | | |
|--------|--------|
| C-WG-L | H-RD-M |
| A-NK-S | P-PAG |
| G-RD-A | J-NK-F |
| J-WG-A | F-BN-S |
| F-WG-S | W-BE-H |

They leave her bound and disappear.

Henry Morgan, a Southern officer, and spy for the Confederacy, is in love with her, but she rejects his advances. One day getting a letter signed "your husband," Jeanne realizes that her identity is known. Disguising herself with a brown wig and staining her face, Jeanne assumes the name of "Alice Trent," she goes to Baltimore to carry on her work. She is unaware that a real "Alice Trent" lives in Baltimore.

Alice Trent, she goes to Baltimore to carry on her work. She is unaware that a real "Alice Trent" lives in Baltimore.

John Armitage, a Union officer, rescues Jeanne from a drunken man. Jeanne induces Morgan to abduct Kennedy so that she may question him about the names on the certificate and about a curious tattoo mark on the arm of the man she married. Armitage rescues him, but Jeanne escapes. She sees placards announcing a reward for her capture, "dead or alive."

General Armitage, father of the captain, is discussing plans for the final campaign against Richmond when Jeanne, attempting to steal them, is captured. Though she is in boy's clothes, Captain Armitage recognizes her, but says nothing, and she is bound to face a firing squad in the morning.

Armitage helps Jeanne to escape and she makes her way back to her home. It is now the center of a Confederate encampment. Sentries bring word that a Union spy is on the grounds.

The spy attempting escape is killed. Jeanne reads a dispatch in his pocket indicating that he was G-RD-A and on his arm sees the tattoo mark. She now believes that he was her husband. Morgan is discovered to be a Confederate spy and swears vengeance on Kennedy. Jeanne hopes to obtain, by torture, if necessary, the truth about her marriage from Kennedy. The parson and Armitage accordingly are kidnapped and taken to a deserted cabin. There, bound, they are seated when Morgan lights a short fuse attached to a powder barrel.

Jeanne saves them and tells Armitage, with whom she is falling deeper and deeper in love, that she gives him "a life for a life." Armitage, rejoining his father's command, is present when she runs away with a federal locomotive. He fires at the engine and hits her in the arm. She makes her way back to the Confederate lines and while recuperating Morgan gives her a sheet of paper containing the names of the "eleven!"

Installment No. Ten

Parson Kennedy, Charles Lowell, Arthur Snell, George Armstrong, John Armitage, Philip Gardner, James Fogarty, Franz Schmidt, Wallace Henderson, Frederick Skinner, The WG, Washington, NK, New York, RD, Richmond, BN, Boston, PA, Philadelphia.

It seemed strange to her that there had ever been any mystery. J-WG-A, that meant John (Washington) Armitage—the man's name and his headquarters.

She idly counted the names—and instantly became animated. Again she went over the list.

Including Parson Kennedy, there were but ten names, and there had been eleven men that night! Oh, she had counted them with particular care—eleven, always eleven. Morgan had missed one.

Having lost the certificate, the eleventh name—the initials—had passed from her recollection.

Meantime, Armitage's telegrapher had restored communications and his command was saved.

It was Parson Kennedy who brought information of the Confederate trap. He had stumbled upon this information by the merest luck. He had left his comrade back there, dead.

"Who?" asked Armitage.

"Gardner."

The two, sent out to feel the way from headquarters, had run plumb into a scouting party of the enemy.

The two never hesitated; hesitation would be to invite death. They struck the astonished group before they thought to raise their carbines, broke through and went on, followed by a storm of bullets. The younger man twisted oddly in his saddle. A mile or so beyond, he called out in agony. Kennedy was beside him almost as soon as he fell.

"Gardner, boy?"

"Parson—if you ever see her again—Gardner was dead."

Armitage, with compressed lips and frowning eyes, listened to this vivid recital. Six gone: Armstrong, Fogarty, Schmidt, Henderson, Skinner and Gardner—six brave and gallant officers. Clark, the telegrapher, had told him it was a woman who held him up. Six comrades were dead; but Jeanne Beaufort lived; and she was free besides. He stiffened in the saddle, and the lines in his face grew hard. He would find Jeanne Beaufort; and woe to her when he did!

The ragged army had settled down for the winter. The living room was temporarily deserted, the chief in command and his staff having gone on a tour of inspection. Beyond the window the camp fires blazed brightly.

The door opened and closed softly, and Morgan stood with his back to it for a while, absorbing the lovely picture Jeanne presented. "You are very lively tonight," he said.

She did not reply. She could not quite hate this man. She vaguely wondered what her attitude would have been had he been less handsome.

"Have you ever paused to think, Jeanne, that a man falls in love involuntarily? That it is instinctive on his part to elude it as long as possible?"

"Between you and me, Major, love is taboo," she said, rising.

"Ah, you may draw that taboo line as much as you please; but I am always bound to cross it. You made a confession to me one night, under stress."

"You are under my roof, Major."

"A Yankee!"

"Still, an honorable man."

"And yet his name was on that list I gave you. Will you tell me, not as a woman to a man, but as comrade to comrade, what that list means?"

"No. Besides, there were eleven and you brought me the names of but ten."

"Eleven? I secured what I could. Didn't I tell you that I got them in Parson Kennedy's room? I didn't have much time. You can be like granite sometimes."

"If our meetings are unpleasant, you have only yourself to thank. I do not love you; but there was a time when I respected you, admired your courage and resourcefulness."

"You hit straight. Well, a thousand times you have signed John Armitage's death warrant." He spoke without apparent anger. "All I want is Armitage in front of my sword. I wish to conquer him before I kill him."

"The death of John Armitage will in no wise alter my sentiments in regard to you, Major. You ought to realize that."

He reached for his hat, but did not put it on his head. For two troopers entered, wheeled right and left and stood at attention. A man followed them blinking. Two more troopers came after him. Then came the staff.

John Armitage and Jeanne Beaufort looked into each other's eyes once more. He took off his hat.

"Do you know this man, Major?" Morgan was asked.

"Yes, General; he is Captain Armitage of the federal secret service, one of the eleven I have often told you about."

"He was found within our lines,"—grimly—"He shall be shot at dawn."

"Did you find any papers on him?"

"No."

Presently Jeanne heard the men filing out. She opened the door cautiously. Armitage was seated before the fire, stretched out in his chair, his chin in his collar. He was alone. The guards had been stationed outside. Jeanne entered and approached within a few feet of him. He heard her, turned and rose.

"Jeanne Beaufort!" he said quietly.

"Yes; this is my home. Captain Armitage."

"Do you know why I am in this room tonight? I disobeyed orders for the mere sake of seeing you once more. In the back of my watch are my notes of observation."

"You tell me this!"—horried.

"Yes. You played with me, you sought my love to break it. Well, here they are, love and life. Break them. I was there that night, as you know. Take your revenge. They will have me shot anyhow."

"I do not want your life. God forbid!" she cried brokenly.

"I have ceased to regard it as anything very valuable. I have stamped upon this love, but it is too strong for me. So here I am, contemptuous in my eyes and doubtless in your own."

"You force me to play traitor!"

He leaned toward the fire and spread out his hands.

"Will you give me the name of the man I married that night?"

"Say that I was the man, and let it go at that."

"It is impossible, because you are the man who first stepped out."

"On my word of honor, I was not that man."

Should he tell her that it was Morgan, Morgan, whom she trusted? He doubted if she would believe him; so he let the opportunity pass.

"You will not tell the truth?"

Armitage smiled into the fire.

"Suppose I tell you that I did not play with you, that I admired you beyond all other men?"

"I'm afraid of you, Jeanne Beaufort," was all he said.

"Then God help us both!" And with this passionate cry she ran from the room.

The cry lingered in Armitage's ear for a long while. He fought against it resolutely. She was a consummate actress; but all her arts were useless now, of no avail.

Morgan came in, smiling. "So here we are at last!"

"At least it will not be murder."

"You and the Parson were in my way. Lord, how I fooled you all!"

"Not recently, Major."

"Alice Trent—there was drama for you. How she laughed behind your back!"

Something impelled Armitage to say, "You lie!"

"I have stirred you, then?"

There was a sentry outside the window, one on the veranda, three more distributed around the house. Armitage had made careful note of this. A great many things might happen within an hour.

"Suppose we play a game of piquet to while away the time. We need to try our hand at that."

"I shouldn't mind in the least. Armitage instantly formed a purpose. He believed he saw his way out. There was a chance of a bullet missing his back tonight but no chance of a dozen missing his breast in the morning."

They sat down at the table, and Morgan rifled the cards. "I'll always remember you as a cool one, Armitage. For my part, I'd much rather have you at the end of my saber." He dealt a hand.

Armitage led.

Banter of a deadly character began to pass between the two men. One was sure of the situation; the other was watchful and ready to seize upon the slightest advantage.

"Armitage," said Morgan finally, "I hate you more than anything else on earth. But you are a brave man."

"I pass the compliment back—only, I do not hate you, Morgan; I despise you."

"That renegade Parson Kennedy will mourn for you."

"But he has my dispatches by this time. For two nights I have been inside your lines. If I lose my head, it is because I wanted to make sure that Jeanne Beaufort did not play fast and loose with me. She will never be yours either, Morgan."

"No?" Morgan gazed at his enemy through half-closed eyes. "If, as they say, the dead come back, you will see."

PUBLIC HEALTH

By Wm. M. Jones, M. D.

Christmas Seals

The following statement is by Dr. L. B. McBrayer:

The National Tuberculosis association is the one great volunteer health organization whose thorough organization extends to every state in the union, every county and every town.

It is the one and only national volunteer organization devoted to the fight against tuberculosis.

It counts among its membership every scientific work in any phase of the tuberculosis problem.

It has, on request, rendered great service to the government, both in times of war and in times of peace, in advising it in regard to the handling of its tuberculosis problem.

It helped the foreign nations during and since the war in their tuberculosis problems.

It is, through its committees and in every way possible, constantly conducting research in regard to the transmission of tuberculosis; in regard to the methods; in regard to improvement of diagnostic methods; in regard to the treatment of tuberculosis, etc.

It has, with its allies—state and local health departments, state and local tuberculosis associations, etc.—reduced the death rate from tuberculosis in the last 20 years nearly 50 per cent.

It receives its support from the sale of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals. No community chest nor other thing can afford to interfere with this sale.

Another Fire In New Bern

New Bern, Dec. 16.—Fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, early Thursday destroyed a large unoccupied dwelling house on National avenue within two blocks of the ruins of the Roper lumber mill, which was burned two weeks ago. The property, which was owned by W. B. Parker, was built by W. C. Willett and for many years was one of the most handsome homes in the Riverside section.

"Slimy Taste"

"When I feel stupid, get constipated, or bilious, I take a good dose or two of Black-Draught and it sets me straight," writes Mr. George B. Haislep, of R. F. D. 2, Columbia, S. C. "It cleanses the liver and I feel all right, and have not used any other medicine as I do not see the need of it. I am a guard at the State Reformatory, and have been for three or more years. When I first heard of and the good medicine it was, I had been having a tired feeling when I'd get up in the morning. I would be stiff and sore, and had a slimy, bad taste in my mouth, but didn't think so much of it till I began to feel stupid and didn't feel like eating—then I knew I needed medicine. It was then I began Black-Draught, and I felt all made over, ready for any kind of work, ready to eat and sleep. So, for any return of this trouble, I take Black-Draught, and for 25 years it has been my medicine, and I wouldn't be without it at all. My work is constant. I am on my feet a lot. I am out of doors, and fresh air and Black-Draught are all the medicines I need. I recommend it to others for I know it is good."

BLACK-DRAUGHT

A BIG CHANGE

One of the biggest periods of advancement in the history of agriculture was marked by a conference at Washington Thursday of the co-operatives, all the co-operatives of the United States, the cotton and tobacco people of the south, the fruit growers of the west, potato people, peanut people, all the co-operative marketing association.

They met to lay plans for further progress in co-operation and closer relations toward a single aim—a fair price for what is produced. The meeting is bound to result in progress along that line. What one man cannot, several men can; what a few farmers can not do thousands of them, working together, can accomplish.

The public is beginning to realize the great force that lies behind these co-operatives. They do not have now to stand around with their hats in their hands asking for something. The leaders in American life come to them. It is a big change, and it is significant, indicative of their strength, to work together, "one for all and all for one."

DRIVER, NOT DRIVEN

When John Wannamaker, commonly given the place of greatest retail merchant the United States has ever produced, died the other day, the man who had been his first office boy paid him a great tribute. "He was always on time at his work."

John Wannamaker was born poor, very poor. He was born in a poor little shack of a house, but that made no difference. He started to work at $1.25 a week, but that made no difference. When he was born hundreds of other boys were born, on the same day at the same hour, some of them with silver spoons in their mouths, with parents able to do anything for them, educate them, set them up in business, give them all the advantages that wealth and social position confer. But that made no difference. John Wannamaker worked—on time.

Of course he had a fine mind, able to plan. He had a strong will, able to execute. He was thrifty, far seeing, willing to venture when he had mapped out his course, and thought it all over. But that was not his, none of those was his outstanding characteristic. Plenty of other men have had them.

He worked, on time. He took advantage of his work by beating it to it. Old Ben Franklin made a proverb once to the effect that he who is late to his work has to hurry all day and never catches up with it, come night. A few minutes at the beginning of the day make a big difference. It is the difference between driving and being driven.

CONDEMNED TO DEATH

A scrub bull was tried for his life at a meeting of the county agents and dairymen of Wake county, held at Raleigh last week. The scrub didn't know what it was all about. It really didn't matter much to him; nothing does. Coming and going, life has always been a simple matter for him. His case is peculiar in that everybody knows that he isn't any good but a great many people put up with him, just the same.

The scrub bull is like a great many of the offenders that get into the court, a shaggy critter, bad stock, of bad parentage, bad habits, keeping bad company. Any old way suits him and he manages to do a great deal of damage, like the scrubs who glut the jails. Like a great many of them, he can no more help being what he is than he can fly. He was born that way and he will die that way.

The difference is that there is some chance of reforming the human offenders who get into the courts. It is possible for a wise judge to strike some spark in the breast of a felon and induce him to turn over a new leaf. A sentence may make him be more careful in the future. But there is no help for the scrub bull. Capital punishment is the only thing that will do any good. He can perhaps be of some service by being butchered; it is possible that some of his meat can be eaten.

Sentenced to death—that is the sentence for the scrub bulls, and let come in their places animals that can be used to build up real milk and beef animals whose progeny will not be like the no-account sons and daughters of the scrub. Let there be in place of the scrub a blooded animal that will make profits, not losses.

The scrub bull has offended long enough. He should be put out of existence. Not clemency of any sort, but condemned to death, condemned for what he is, what he can not help being—that is the best sentence. He has been too kindly treated.

ONE CURE

Ralph de Palma is a fellow who has gone mighty fast in his time. One of the speed kings of the world, he has copped some of the big money at great automobile races. He knows how to step on the gas so as to get the results.

But he says that he is going to do that hereafter only on the race track. He has just completed a sentence in a California jail for speeding on the highway. They have some fine highways out there and he thought he knew what he was doing. But, out of jail, he declares that he's cured. Nobody was in any danger from him, he said, but he admits that there can not be one law for one person and another for another.

A large number of people are like him in one respect and unlike in the other. They, too, believe that nobody is in danger from them. They think that they know all about driving an automobile, all about its control, and that, with nobody in sight, there is no use in not hitting it up a little. But they don't know all about it. That is one reason many people get killed every year.

Where they are unlike is that they think they should be governed by one law; others by another. Do not most of us, deep down in our hearts, think that we are a little above the law; that it was made for other people; that we, meaning no harm, should be allowed special privileges? And there is an extra point of similarity between the speed king and others who are jailed—that cures sensation. It is not likely that folks who spend a time in jail or on the roads, a mighty slow time, will be quick to travel so fast again.

THE PARASITES

One reason why people often find times "hard" is that there is such a great raft of people who do nothing who must be kept up.

The parasites generally eat three times a day, often four, topping off the day with a midnight supper and washing it down with the most expensive kinds of liquor.

If they do not produce anything or assist in the distribution of anything they are dead weight, drones, in the way, lead in the shoes of folks who do do something.

Right now in New York an army of prohibition sleuths is working as hard as it can to prevent Christmas being soaked wet in New York. Another army, booze dealers of all kinds, is trying to outwit the sleuths and get in on the easy money to be picked up from the big army of people who think Christmas was designed in order for people to get full of liquor.

Among that army of people who have set their hearts on getting tight and staying tight just as long as possible there are a great many who have nothing more to do than drink liquor, eat three and four times a day and sleep. Their hands are soft; they've never done any manual labor. Their brains are soft; they've never done any mental labor.

And in every city, town and village in the country there are others who do not work, or who make a pretense at working, but who really live off the work of other people.

The conference of Central American republics has adjourned until next week, but we shall try to worry along somehow in the meantime.
