Senate to approve staff appointments

The following appointments will be approved by the Student Senate on Tuesday, Sept. 11, at 7 pm. The appointments fill vacancies in the Executive and Judicial Branches.

Executive appointments include: OFFICE OF

I.D. deadline extended

David Ledbetter
Staff Writer

The deadline for the making of student I.D.'s without a late fee has been extended to Wednesday, September 12. All persons who have not yet had their I.D.'s made should come to the Campus Security Station beneath the dining hall between 3 and 5 p.m. on Wednesday and bring their temporary I.D. cards stamped by the registrar. Anyone not having their I.D. made on Wednesday or losing their I.D. during the course of the year must pay a five dollar ($5.00) fee. Fees should be paid to the cashier's office and the receipt presented upon having the I.D. made.

Late I.D.'s and lost I.D. replacements will be made on each Wednesday during the school year. Persons who cannot have their I.D.'s made on the deadline date should call the Campus Security Station before Wednesday, September 12, for an appointment.

Fantasy is passe: TYPixie to go relevant

Another UNC-G institution undergoes a change this year as the Pixie Theatre changes its name and its focus. The new name is the Theatre for Young People or TYP for short and the new focus is to produce contemporary plays for school-aged children.

Although the Pixie productions have been attended by younger and younger audiences in recent years, often pre-schoolers, the new plays being written today deal with contemporary themes and people that are of more interest to the school aged audience.

The Theatre for Young People will produce new original plays this year that will appeal to those young people in grades 1-6. Director of TYP, Tom Behm states, "For the first time in many years, we will not be opening the season with a well known story or fairy tale."

A recent survey indicates that school-aged children prefer the contemporary plays that they have not seen over and over again on T.V. to the fairy tales and other often repeated stories.

The schedule for TYP productions will also be different than the Pixie productions. The plays will run on eight consecutive days, opening on Sunday and closing on Sunday, rather than on consecutive week-ends as in the past.

Behm says of the importance of young people's theatre, "Introducing the theatre-going experience to children is an important part of building the theatre-going public of the future, and we want to teach them to appreciate and expect the best."

Also a part of the TYP program this year will be an experiment in "involvement drama" as the TYP In-School players bring a production of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" to Greensboro school classrooms.

The children in the audience, grades 1-3, will be called upon to participate in the telling of the well-known story and will actually play parts in the play.

'You've got a friend'

by Debbie Batter

"Friends" is the UNC-G confidential crisis control center. The staff of students and advisors (Dr. McRae, Dr. Whitner, Dr. Humphrey, Doug Camp, Dr. Lumsden, and Mrs. Patterson) are trained to deal with drug, sexual, and emotional problems.

Located in the infirmary, "Friends" is open seven days a week from 7pm to 7am. Students are free to either call or walk in. There are always two students in the office and two students on call.

A training session for all new members will be held the weekend of September 7 at Piney Lake. There will be lectures, demonstration, role playing, and much discussion to prepare workers for the types of problems dealt with. If any of you missed the first meeting and would like to join "Friends" please call

We hope that now that the UNC-G Student Body is more fully aware of the existence, function, and confidentiality of "Friends" that it will be receiving more calls, more chances to help. That is what we are here for—give us a chance.

Magruder scheduled for E. H. series

Sue Ellen Brown
Staff Writer

Jeb Stuart Magruder, the Bella Lewitsky Dance Company, and the Max Frampton Trio are only a few of the names coming to UNC-G for the new University Concert and Lecture Series this fall and winter.

Clifford Lowery, the new dean of student activities, has coordinated the expanded entertainment series, which opens with the Max Frampton Trio, on September 7 at 8:15, in Aycock Auditorium.

The University Concert and Lecture series is designed to provide diverse programs for different interests. "We are open to suggestions for additional programs the students may desire," comments Lowery. "The present features scheduled were chosen by students and faculty."

Performing groups of students from UNC-G are also included in the series. Groups from the School of Music and the UNC-G Dance Company will perform.

The Greensboro community may take advantage of the University Concert and Lecture series open to them through season memberships or advance tickets for particular programs. Lowery stated the four types of memberships: Patron, $100; Sponsor, $50; Donor, $35; Regular, $15. Memberships are available through writing or calling the reservation desk in Elliott Hall on campus.

All events are free to students with University identification.

The events scheduled for the complete series are: Max Frampton Trio, September 7, Aycock Auditorium, 8:15. Performance of compositions varying from Chopin to current hits.

Bella Lewitsky Dance Company, September 12, Aycock Auditorium, 8:15. Saturday Review, "a revelation... a great dancer... a major

UNC-G parks new policy

A new policy toward illegally parked vehicles will go into effect by the end of October this year. Fines will be levied on all illegally parked vehicles, instead of towing or having warning tickets issued in the past.

Director of Security Jim Blevins said that fines will be assessed on a graduated scale according to the severity of the offense. Towing will only be done when a vehicle is inhibiting the flow of traffic or blocking emergency accesses.

However, details of the fining system have not been worked out. The N.C. Legislature has approved the right for campuses to levy fines, but the Consolidated University Board of Trustees must first establish the rules.

Until the fining system goes into effect, tickets will be issued as a warning to violators and vehicles will be towed where inhibiting the flow of traffic.

Sabbatical Tales, Part One.. Dr. Baecker returns from Europe

Cynthia Bland
Staff Writer

At UNC-G, as at most universities, professors take periodic leaves of absence to study, write, or do research elsewhere in the United States, or abroad. All take Sabbaticals, in which they are paid for their studies. Others request additional leaves of absence to do special work for a year or a semester.

This issue of the Carolinian contains the first of a series of interviews with the professors returning from leaves of absence last year, in which each is asked, "What did you do and where did you go during your leave of absence?"

DR. ANNE BAECKER

What is everyday life like in modern East and West Germany and Czechoslovakia? Dr. Anne Baecker stayed for different lengths of time in each of these countries, as well as in England and Austria, from February 14 to August 14, and returned to UNC-G with some insight into the matter.

Though Dr. Baecker's main purpose in going abroad was "investigating the manuscripts and correspondence of Gertrude von le Fort," (of which she intends to publish volume of a criticism in 1976), in Marback, West Germany, she began her stint in Europe with 3½ weeks as a guest at the University of Bristol, where she attended the International Congress of Germanists.

Earn college credit reading the 'News'

Subscribers to either the Greensboro Daily News, or the Greensboro Record will be able to take college-level courses via "courses by newspaper" beginning the last week of September.

Ten UNC campuses and eight North Carolina newspapers will offer these courses due to a $96,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, originating at the University of California at San Diego.

The first Course by Newspaper consists of 20 lectures each written by one of the nation's distinguished scholars. One 1400-word lecture will be printed by the News and Record each week.

The first course, "America and the Future of Man," will deal with the impact of change on society and value systems, biological and ethical implications of advances in medicine and genetics, and the future of technology and its effects on the quality of life.

Students seeking credit may enroll at any one of the ten UNC campuses where brochures explaining tuition, fees, kits, etc. may be obtained.

After the tenth lecture and at the end of the course, a faculty instructor will meet with students on campus, for three hours each.

Kits are required for credit students, and mid-term and final exams will be given.

North Carolina teachers can earn two certificate renewal credits by successfully completing the course with one of the UNC schools.

Library annex to open this fall if state approves

Joan Little

UNC-G's new library addition will be open for student use in early October "if everything goes as planned," stated assistant librarian Stanley E. Hicks, Tuesday.

According to Hicks, the addition, which has been under construction for over one year, is "nearing completion under general contract."

An inspection by the state of North Carolina (tentatively scheduled for late September) will take place pending the building's finish.

Hicks stated that state approval (or lack of it) will finally determine how soon occupation of the addition can occur. He said the moving process itself should take "only three or four days."

The new structure, valued at 3.2 million, consists of a ground floor which will the building.

The tower's general stack collection will be located on the second through ninth levels. However, certain Library of Congress classifications will still be housed in the old portion of the building.

Sr. Ed. majors for your eyes only

College seniors preparing to teach school may take the National Teacher Examinations on the following dates: November 10, 1973; January 26, April 6, and July 20, 1974.

The National Teacher Examinations, which are administered by the Educational Testing Service, are used by many large school districts in the selection of new teachers and by several states for certification and licensing of teachers.

On these test dates, prospective teachers may take the Common Examinations which measure their professional preparation and general educational background and an Area Exam which measures their mastery of the subject they expect to teach.

THE BULLETIN OF INFORMATION FOR CANDIDATES, which contains a list of test centers, exam information, and a registration form, can be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel departments, or directly from National Teachers Examinations, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey, 18540.

Comment...

Magruder appearance draws dissension

Well folks, it's that time of the year again. Time to hang up the tennis rackets and golf bags, put away the beach bags, and get down to studying.

Many of you are starting a new phase in your life, university life. The rest are continuing their quest of knowledge. All of us will have to adapt to new situations in the changing university. As this adaptation takes place, attitudes will change. What one expects out of a venture will alter. The CAROLINIAN must be able to change with the expectations of the university community.

This year, the CAROLINIAN is trying several new things. Returning students will notice that the size of the paper has increased. This larger size paper is capable of holding more copy and advertising space than the smaller size. It also allows for more flexibility in layout. However, this larger size paper will not be feasible unless we receive a larger amount of copy. There is an abundant supply of story material on this campus.

More often than not, students are responsible for story material. Thus, it is up to the students whether or not the larger size paper continues.

In response to a questionnaire sent around near the close of school last year, the CAROLINIAN will regularly print a Campus and Area Calendar.

The frequency of this service will coincide with the amount of activities scheduled. Events in and around Greensboro as well as events on other statewide campuses will be printed along with UNC-G activities. Last year's Happenings/Events column will not be continued this year.

Rather than having general stories about campus, this year the CAROLINIAN hopes to have special feature stories about the lesser known people, events, and strange occurrences on campus.

We will also expand our national news coverage of stories of interest to the University community.

A new column entitled Campus Briefs will soon be appearing. It will include brief stories of interest to students as well as being an expansion of the Campus Calendar.

Campus religious organizations and the Recreation Association will regularly be submitting a schedule of activities planned by them.

Deadlines are 12:00 noon Tuesday for Thursday's paper and 12:00 noon Friday for Monday's paper. Priority will be given to those articles meeting these deadlines.

The Carolinian attempts to present significant news interpretations and opinions on its editorial page. All unsigned editorials express the opinion of the editor-in-chief, while letters and columns represent only the views of the individual contributors.

To the Editor:

The University Concert and Lecture Series Committee is to be commended for planning a program which will benefit the campus and the community during the coming months. However, we seriously question the propriety of Jeb Magruder's appearance on the list of events (Ed. note: Oct. 17). This constitutes to us, one of the most vivid recent examples of the term "rip-off". Until roughly 15 months ago, Mr. Magruder was one of many White House/CRP aides. However, it is only because of that Mr. Magruder will reveal involvement in an instance of criminal activity that he is being invited to speak. Several statements have already revealed under oath mentioned that it is hoped that Magruder "will shed new light" on Watergate. It seems to us at least a little dubious if only because of anything in Aycock Auditorium, or elsewhere on campus, which he has not already revealed under oath before a Senate committee.

Man's art through the ages traced in Museum Without Walls

As part of the University Concert and Lecture Series, five evenings of art on film entitled, Museum Without Walls, will be presented. Comprised of two films on each of the five dates offered, Museum Without Walls surveys the course of man's art through the ages, ranging from "The Greek Temple" through the works of Picasso. Each film will reveal to you an historic art experience made possible only through the artistry and flexibility of the motion picture medium. The camera records art with intensity and effectiveness. All showings will begin at 8:15 and will last about two hours.

OCTOBER 2: "Picasso: War, Peace, and Love." A new film covering Picasso's work from "Guernica" to the present. It includes many unknown and unfamiliar works as well as some truly unique live sequences of the artist.

"Goya": Featuring the artist's major works in Madrid's Prado Museum. Also frescoes at the cathedral at Salagossa and the Church of St. Anthony.

OCTOBER 23: "Giotto and the Pre-Renaissance." The hieratic mood of Giotto's predecessors is contrasted with his great innovations. "Crete and Mycenae." Photographed in detail showing the archeological findings as well as Mycenae on the Greek mainland, comparing the cultural history of the Minoan civilization with that of Mycenae.

NOVEMBER 15: "The Art Conservator." Demonstrates how damaged art objects, paintings, and sculpture are examined, treated and restored in the conservation laboratory of a great museum.

"Kinetic Art in Paris." A film study of light and movement and how they have inspired modern experiments in young artists.

"The Impressionists." Presents the origins and development of Impressionist painting from Corot and the

Barbizon painters to Monet's "Water Lilies."

NOVEMBER 19: "The Greek Temple." The evolution of the structure and decoration of temples in Magna Grecia through the Doric, Ionic, and Corinthian styles.

"Le Corbusier." This film by Carlos Vilardebe, one of the great architect's collaborators, deals with Le Corbusier's revolutionary ideas on architecture and urban renewal and depicts photographically their practical application in his most important buildings in Europe and Asia.

DECEMBER 6: "The Cubist Epoch." A comprehensive survey of Cubist art in the context of its period.

"Germany-Dada" Provides a unique insight into the aims and activities of this revolutionary group of artists and writers.

photography and the choreography. Greene uses a clean, empty New York City for spectacular effects. The dance number on top of the Twin Towers is magnificent. The only flaw in the film is that it becomes too cute at times.

"Godspell" is not a religious movie. It makes no great statements and carries no great message. What it is, however, is a colorful, exciting, and hilarious film. "Godspell" is guaranteed to make you come out feeling happy.

Each of the disciples is embroiled in the harrowing business of living in New York City: traffic jams, spilled coffee, ballet practice, and the like. But at the appearance of a handsome John the Baptist (David Haskell), all their responsibilities evaporate into the polluted air. The rest of the film covers various slapstick versions of the parables leading up to the crucifixion on a junk yard fence.

The cast are all young, fresh, and high spirited. Most of the cast are the same as in the off-Broadway show. The score, by Stephen Schwartz, is well known, such as "Day by Day" and "Bless the Lord."

Max Frampton performs Friday

UNC-G News Bureau

The Mac Frampton Trio, a concert ensemble which is gaining national recognition will perform at UNC-G, Friday, September 7, at 8:15 in Aycock Auditorium.

The trio consists of Mac Frampton, bronze medal winner of the 1969 Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, percussionist Tony Phillips, and bassist Douglas Smith.

Rapidly becoming a sought attraction in the college and community concert field, the trio will present a two-hour program featuring the piano and personality of Mac Frampton. The concert will be entitled "Pops with Class." An admission fee of $3 will be charged to non-students.

The appearance by the Mac Frampton Trio will kick off an expanded University Concert and Lecture Series at UNC-G this year. Information on the series can be found elsewhere in this issue.

Grant awarded local infant-toddler center

UNC-G News Bureau

The State Department of Social Services has awarded a $125,000 grant to the North Carolina Training Center of Infant-Toddler Care at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

The grant will finance overall operations of the center for 1973-74.

Mrs. Aurelia Mazyck, director of the center, said the facility will continue the training activities which have been carried on there for the past year and a half.

The center, which was formerly known as the UNC-G Infant Care Project, conducts workshops and provides general assistance and training for day care consultants in the state's Department of Social Services and staff members of child care programs operated by those departments.

It operates under the aegis of the Department of Child Development and Family Relations in the School of Home Economics.

Mrs. Mazyck said the center has expanded its quarters to accommodate more children. It now serves a total of 45 children, ages three months to four years.

"And this is the first time we've had four-year-olds, we're trying it on an experimental basis. If we decide to continue taking four-year-olds, it will allow us to follow the development of some children for a longer period of time."

Tennis intramurals, golf tournament to highlight R.A.'s fall activities

Where do you go when the symptoms of "book boredom" get you down? R.A. has a miracle cure for you!!!

September 4 was an important day! "Open rec" officially began. Gyms and gamerooms will be open from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Open equipment check out is something new that the R.A. began last spring. You may check out most anything from tandem bikes (bicycles built for two!) to darts. The equipment can be checked out from the terrace of Coleman Gym. Hours are Monday and Wednesday from 3-7 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday from 4-7 p.m.; and Saturday from 12-6 p.m. Also on September 4, "Rec swim" began. All you need is a swim cap, University I.D., and the desire to get wet. Pool hours are Monday-Thursday from 6:30 p.m. to 8:00 p.m.; and Saturday from 3-5 p.m.

For the "tennis nut," Women's intramurals begin September 5. Days are Monday-Wednesday (September 5-7).

Monday, September 10 has been the date set for the Student Co-ed Golf Tournament. Starting time is 3:30 p.m. Sign up deadline is Thursday, September 6 at 12 noon. Students are encouraged to have their own partner but will be paired if necessary. To sign up, call Miss DeeDee Owen, 379-5570; Sue Overstreet, 379-5035, or Mary Luedeka, 270-6035. Indicate if you have a partner and leave a phone number where you can be reached if there is a change in the starting time.

Beginning on September 11, gymnastics club will get into the "swing of things." Hours will be from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. in Rosenthal Gym.

R.A. is for the students' benefit and needs support.

Piney Lake offers variety of activities

Piney Lake is a recreation center owned by the University. The center is open only to UNC-G students, faculty, staff, and their guests. There is no charge for the use of the facility. Admission is by University Identification. No alcoholic beverages allowed.

The waterfront and picnic areas are open during the Fall and Spring, every Saturday and Sunday from 2-7 p.m. Swimming, boating, canoeing, fishing, sunbathing, and recreational activities are permitted during these hours. Picnic tables and grills are also available for use.

The Student Committee Organized for Research and Evaluation, based in 253 Elliott Hall, is currently involved in a joint effort with a faculty committee to run an evaluation this year. The evaluation that would be used by SCORE is the product of two years of committee meetings, nationwide correspondence, research, more committee meetings, and sample runs. This evaluation is not to be confused with the pilot project run this summer by another group of students.

All persons who have opinions or would like to work with us, please contact Janet Hall, Director of Course and Teacher Evaluation, in 201 Coit Hall, phone 5172.

The deadline for submitting organizational constitutions for reviewing and approval is Sept. 15. The constitution for every organization on campus has to be resubmitted every year. It is important to get your constitution in immediately. Please leave it with the SGA Secretary in room 261 Elliott Hall.

The CAROLINIAN is in desperate need of a reporter to cover Senate meetings every week. Interested persons come to Cary office, 201 Elliott Hall from 12-5 or call 379-5339.
