Spartans slam gies 73-56

By ALEX RADOW Senior Sports Writer

The 8,952 on hand at the third annual Wrangler/Nat Greene Classic on Wednesday witnessed something that they had never seen: a UNCG victory over North Carolina A&T, 73-56. The game, which was played at the Greensboro Coliseum, ended the Spartans' five year losing streak against the Aggies.

With the Spartans controlling the opening tip-off, UNCG junior Scott Hartzell hit a baseline jumper to put the Spartans ahead, 2-0. A relentless Spartan defense would allow the Aggies only two points during the first three minutes of the game.

After jumping out to a 12-2 lead, the Spartans' offense was halted by an awakened Aggie defense. The Aggies retaliated with their own run, as they were thony Jones slammed in two able to tie the game at 14-14 after Aggie guard Phillip Allen slammed a two point basket.

For the next two minutes, the Spartans shut out the Aggies and jumped to a 21-14 lead. This seesaw battle continued throughout the first half, leaving the Spartans a 30-28 halftime lead.

At the beginning of the second half, the Aggies exploded with four early points. The Spartans tied the game at 37 with 13 minutes left, when UNCG forward Jonathan Clifton slammed in two and connected on a free throw

Coming out from a media timeout, Brian Brunson scored on layup and put the Spartans ahead for the duration of the game.

With just over five minutes remaining, Aggie center Anpoints and brought the Aggies within four points.

On the next trip down the floor for the Spartans, Clifton grabbed a pass out of mid air from sophomore Tony Daughtry and slammed in two.

"I thought one of the key plays was when Anthony Jones slammed, and then Clifton got one. It got our crowd right back into it," Dement recalled.

With four minutes left, the Spartans saw their six-point lead grow to 17 as time expired.

"This game had so much emotion in it. It was such a great feeling to finally beat them," said Brunson, who had a game high of 15 points.

With the 73-56 victory over A&T, the Spartans up their overall record to 13-3.

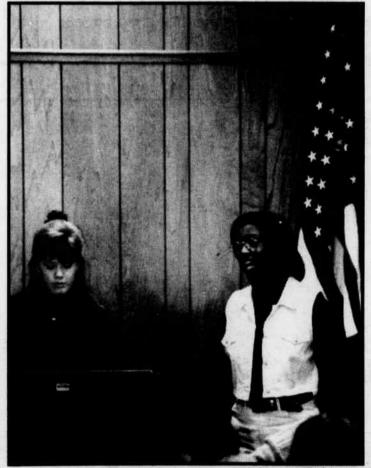

"It's great to finally get the monkey off our backs," an elated Hartzell said.

Residence Life to overhaul freshman housing system, make renovations

By JASON CLARK Senior News Writer

In an attempt to provide a better on-campus living environment, Residence Life is implementing a series of modifications.

John Campbell, Director of Housing and Residence Life, sent residents of Grogan, Reynolds, Ragsdale/Mendenhall, and Weil/Winfield residence halls a letter on January 23, explaining to them that these halls are being restructured for a more "focused living" environment for freshmen.

Campbell cites that "twentyfour percent of freshmen do not return to campus for one reason or another, and we (Residence Life) are taking steps to try and change that, as well as designating more programs to promote student success." According to Campbell, Residence Life is interested in providing a positive experience outside of the classroom and getting students to return to campus after their freshman year. As part of this effort, Grogan, Reynolds, Ragsdale/Mendenhall, and Weil/Winfield Halls will be made "Freshman Experience" halls. Upperclassmen will not be able to return to these buildings to live next fall.

Another significant change will come for students living in Phillips/Hawkins Hall. Next year, all of the rooms in Phillips/ Hawkins will be single rooms but will cost the same as a standard double room on campus. During the 1996-97 school year, Phillips/Hawkins will be renovated, contrary to what Campbell stated in the September 16 issue of The Carolinian.

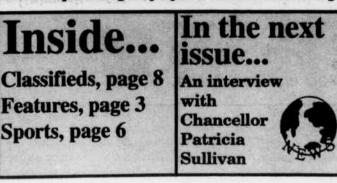

The decision was made to renovate because "Phillips/ Hawkins is, physically speaking, known as the worst dorm on campus. It is overdue for renovation, and we need to furniture, carpet in some hallways, and new mini-blinds in several locations.

According to Campbell, the Office of Residence Life itself will also be undergoing some modifications. Two new Area Community Coordinators and a new Freshman Experience Coordinator will be added to the staff. The Area Community Coordinators will be handling the discipline procedures and additional paper work. The change is designed to allow Resident Directors more time to work one one with students. on Upperclass residence halls will have fewer Resident Advisors in an attempt to place self-control into those halls and to teach students more leadership skills.

make the environment in there better for students," Campbell said.

Another renovation project that students have wanted will also take place: the heating systems in the the quad halls and Mary Foust will be modified so that the temperature can be better regulated. Universal rewiring of the high-rises will also be taking place.

Overall, Campbell says that approximately $1,000,000 will be spent on residence hall improvements. This includes painting of resident rooms, new

Briefly Speaking ... Kidney Foundation collecting old cars

The National Kidney Foundation has collected over 170 old cars as part of their annual fundraising campaign.

The cars will be sold at auction or for parts, depending on the condition of the vehicles.

Donors within a 70-mile radius of Greensboro will receive a free tow from Sadisco of Greensboro and could be eligible for a federal tax deduction, depending on the blue book value of the car.

Donations of cars will be accepted throughout the year. Because the cars will be towed free of charge, they do not necessarily have to be in working order.

SGA debates merits of residence hall changes

By SHERRILL HAYES Senior News Writer

The Student Government Association (SGA) meeting on January 24 seemed to show a spirit of concerned activism. When the meeting was called to order, the Assembly was buzzing with an undertone of discussions.

Student Forum set the pace for the rest of the evening's proceedings. Several residents of Ragsdale/Mendenhall Hall voiced their frustrations to the Assembly concerning the plan to restructure on campus housing.

All Assembly members received a copy of the form letter that was issued to the residents of the six dorms in question.

It was suggested from the floor that a representative of Residence Life be

After Student Forum, SGA President Errin McComb made several announcements, including that the State of the Campus Address will be next week. Chancellor Patricia Sullivan will attend the address.

McComb also made a point of addressing the proposed changes in on-campus housing which the delegates discussed a length.

"I would not make a bee-line to Residence Life ... make a collective effort," said McComb.

McComb stressed that the delegates should try to exhibit open-mindedness and a willingness to collaborate.

The Public Relations Committee displayed their newly purchased election banners, much to the jubilation of the assembly. The banners will be used at voting tables during campus elections.

UNCG Counseling and Testing Center offers help for depression

By MEGAN HERRMAN Senior Features Writer

Depression, a prominent disorder in college students, often leaves its victims without hope. Luckily, however, UNCG's Counseling and Testing Center may be able to help relieve the reasons and symptoms of depression.

Clinical depression is a mental illness that affects people of all races, ethnic groups, economic, and social status.

Depression is caused by complex interactions among brain chemicals and hormones that influence a person's energy level, feelings, sleeping, and eating patterns. tor or mental health specialist is required.

Doctors look for five or more symptoms, persisting for two or more weeks.

Symptoms may include: feelings of sadness, irritability, loss of interest/pleasure in activities once enjoyed, change in weight or appetite, guilty feelings, restlessness, physical pain with no medical explanation, and thoughts of death or suicide.

Depression causes persistent changes in a person's mood, behavior, and feelings. It tends to run in families, and some individuals are born with genetic The National Institute of Mental Health estimates that 80 percent of people with depression can be treated successfully with a combination of psychotherapy and medication.

CG defeats A&T in Classic opener

By STEVEN HUNTLEY Sports Editor

Last year's UNCG-N.C. A&T matchup was an exciting overtime thriller. This year the Spartans squandered an 11point halftime lead at the beginning of the first half but they managed to recover and pull out a 10-point victory over the Aggies on Wednesday night, 79-69.

The Spartans jumped out to a 5-0 lead on Julie Moore's Jumper with 18:38 remaining in the half.

UNCG continued to push the lead out until they took their biggest lead of 14, 27-13 at the 14:38 mark in the first half on a made free throw by Stefanie Walter. A&T managed to cut the lead to 11, 34-23 the eventual halftime score.

The Spartans were in command going into the locker room at the half. Erica Turner's jumper just 12 seconds into the second half put the Aggies on a 8-2 run to cut the Spartan lead to 3 36-33 with 17:36 to go in the game.

Sadie Och's jumper at the 17:21 mark squelched the Aggie comeback.

The Aggies would get no closer than seven with 3:12 to play when sophomore Nisha Watson added to her game high 23point performance with a short jumper.

The Spartans then pushed the lead out to 14 points on a made free throw by freshman Sadie Ochs. A&T reserve Angel Greene formed the final margin with a made lay-up, drawing a foul on Julie Moore to end the game.

Spartan forward Julie Moore scored 21 points and grabbed eight rebounds, both were team highs.

Alisa Moore and Sadie Ochs were the other Spartans in double figures for the game.

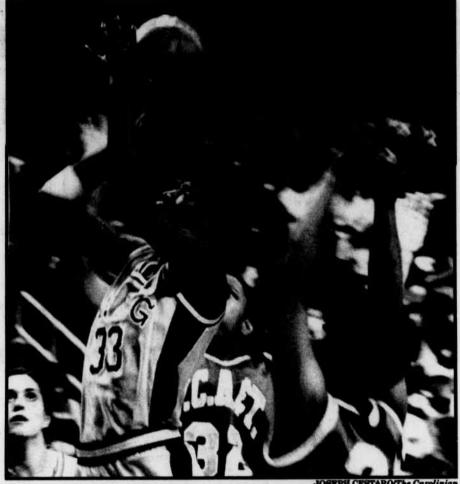

Moore scored 17 points and collected seven rebounds for the game; Ochs scored 12 points for the Spartans.

The Aggies fell to 9-5 on the season and were led by Watson who managed 23 points, and Turner and A'eesha Bell both chipped in 11 points. Turner also led A&T with seven rebounds.

A&T was plagued by poor shooting both from the floor (44 percent) and from the free throw line where they managed a poor 46 percent on 12 of 26 shooting. The Spartans managed to outrebound the Aggies 36-33.

The win gives UNCG a two-game win streak against the Aggies.

UNCG gets first win over Aggies in six tries behind big games by Brunson and Cuthrell

By STEVEN HUNTLEY Sports Editor

With seven seconds left in Wednesday night's basketball game between UNCG and N.C. A&T, Scott Hartzell pulled down a rebound. Hartzell dribbled up the court with his left arm in the air. An uncharacteristically loud Spartan crowd erupted in the stands while students fell over each other in triumph.

After six tries UNCG has finally beaten the Aggies in an emotional game which was witnessed by almost 9,000 fans and a predominantly Spartan crowd. Sophomore redshirt Ivan Jacklenec charged the court and proceeded to highfive and hug anyone he could find. Several Spartan students jumped onto the floor and were seen hugging the UNCG cheerleaders UNCG jumped out to a 14-6 lead with 14:43 to go in the first half on a jumper by Tony Daughtry. The Aggies then battled back to a 14-14 tie when Phillip Allen made a dunk with 10:40 to go in the game. The Spartans then jumped out to a nine-point leadwith 3:56 left in the half. The Aggies tied the game to open the second half on a jumper by Tari Beasley. A&T jumped out to a five-point lead in front of a stunned UNCG crowd.

UNCG
N.C. A&T

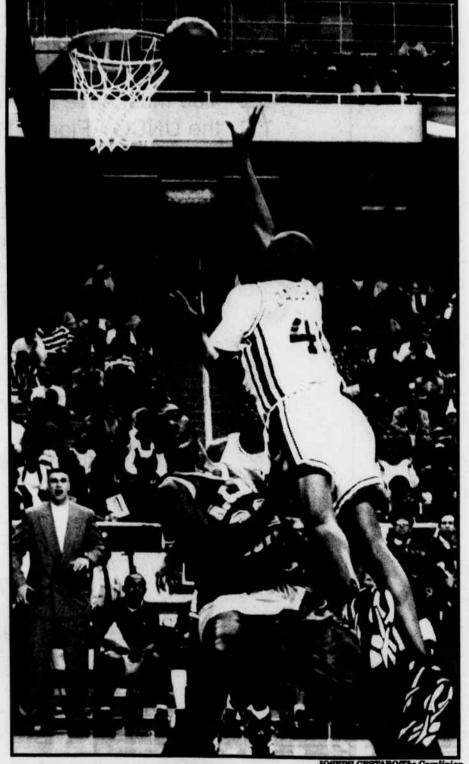

The Spartans were led by Brian Brunson who scored a season-high 15 points and grabbed seven rebounds for the game. Eric Cuthrell played just three minutes in the first half and only 22 minutes for the game, en route to an eight points and 16 rebounds performance.

Freshman point guard Derrick Nix manged 12 points and only four turnovers against a tough Aggie press.

A&T was led by senior John Floyd who managed to score just 15 points for the game. Floyd has exploded on two occasion this year scoring 37 against Bethune Cookman and 29 against N.C. Central.

Senior Phillip Allen scored 14 points and scored his 1,000th career point midway through the second half.Anthony Jones added 12 points for A&T.

The Spartans outrebounded the Aggies

UNCG picked it up again and fought back to a tie on a free throw by Jonathan Clifton. The Spartans then went on an 8-2 run to take the lead for the rest of the game.

The Aggies came storming back down the stretch when they cut the lead to four at 54-50.

The Spartans broke the game open on a slam dunk by Jonathon Clifton with 5:08 to go in the game. Clifton's dunk sent the Spartans on a run that put the Spartans up 66-53.

UNCG held on to win the game by a final score of 73-56. The Spartans shot 49 percent from the floor for the game and 56 percent in the second half.

UNCG faltered again from the foul line shooting 67 percent for the game.

40-29 getting ten more rebounds on the offensive boards than the Aggies.

UNCG recovered from a 13-turnover first half and gave the ball up only five times in the second half to secure the win.

"It's been a long time coming," Spartan Head Coach Mike Dement said, "We' ve tried to get a little better, and they've won every one."

The Spartans managed to hold off a very determined and physical A&T team for most of the second half. UNCG's defense prompted the run that brought UNCG back from the five point deficit. UNCG entered this game on a one game losing streak after recently receiving national recognition in both the national coaches poll (where they received one vote) and in the Associated Press Top 25, where two votes were awarded to the Spartans. UNCG is ranked 91 in the Sagarin's Ratings, just two spots behind St. Johns.

The Spartans will entertain Radford on Saturday evening at 7:30 p.m. in Fleming Gymnasium. UNCG will also host Liberty on Monday evening at 7 p.m. before hosting Florida State on Wednesday.

Spartan guard Tony Daughtry makes a layup against an Aggie defender. UNCG defeated the Aggies for the first time in six tries Wednesday night.

Atwell and Spiceman speak

Sports Commentary by Dan Atwell and B.J. Attarian

Welcome to the first edition of "Out of Bounds" with Dan Atwell and Flip Spiceman.

This is where we field your burning and maybe not so hot questions about the world of sports.

Drop your questions by The Carolinian offices with your name and hometown, and we'll see if they are worthy of responses from us.

Trust me, they're all worthy. But that's enough of that ... let's dip into the mailbag...

Dear Guys,

I just found out that Coach K of Duke is going to be out for the entire season. Will Duke win an ACC game this year?

Dean from Chapel Hill

Hello Dean-o,

With the leadership of "The Intimidator" Cherokee Parks...no, they probably won't win one this season.

But don't despair, Duke fans-the Blue Devils do get to play North Carolina State again this year.

Flip,

How about those Spartans?

Wade from Winston Dear Wade, How about 'em?

Flip, Are they for real?

mente commente actor

Wade, The Sportene

The Spartans are playing some of the best basketball in the University's history and things can get heaps better. Coach Dement has to keep his players focused, however. This week we were on the verge of breaking the Top 25 for the first time ever. Combine that with those mammoth games with A&T and Florida State and UNCG could actually be recognized outside of Guilford County.

Yesterday morning on 102 JAMZ, morning personality Nisey was forced to yell 'go Spartans', on the air in the middle of the A&T bookstore.

That's what she gets for betting against Dan and the Spartans.

But with the Noles looming in the distance, we forgot about Towson State.

I will say this, Wade, get your tickets for Fleming Gym early because they are going to start turning people away.

Flip

Dear Out of Bounds, This far into the column and you guys haven't mentioned anything about the Super Bowl?

I'm sure Dan's dying to talk some trash!

Brian from the Boro

Dear 'Boro Brian,

Dan is giving me 14 points for the Chargers. He will soon also be giving me a pizza because the Lighting bolts WILL win this game.

Yes, I am serious. Stan Diego can run the ball at the corners.

Combine that with the Boltergeist defense led by Junior Seau and the AFC has a chance. Dan thinks I've lost my mind.

Charger fan Flip Dan, Dan, the 49er fan, 19 points? The 49ers are favored by 19 points in the Super Bowl?

How big would the spead be if Buffalo were in the Super Bowl instead of San Diego?

Gordon from Graham.

Dear Gordo,

If it were a 49ers-Bill Super Bowl, the point spread would probably be equal to the amount of the miles between the two cities of San Francisco and Buffalo...say, about 6003.14 points.

The Niners would cover this spread if and only if they allow Steve Young and all of the starters to play the entire first quarter before putting in Elvis Grbac and the rest of the crew from Graceland.

Niner fan Dan

Dan and Flip,

This past Sunday, the local Fox affiliate preempted the ALL-Madden Team special for a 700 Clud Telethon. After all of the money the Fox Network poured into the NFL, why in God's name (pardon the choice of words) would an affiliate preempt NFL coverage?

Tammy Faye in Charlotte

Dear Tammy,

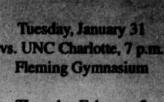

We were upset too, but we think we can sum it up: fat guys in a bus. 'Nuff said.

Flip 'n' Dan

And that brings this edition to a close. Remember to send us any questions you may have.

right now

This past fall, hundreds of high school students and their parents attended the "UNCG Right Now!" receptions across the state. Many of you were namedroppers, inviting prospective UNCG students to the programs. Thank you for spreading the good word about UNCG. Join us at the men's basketball game on for the grand prize drawing at halftime. If your nominee attended a reception, you may be the lucky winner of a PC or 2 free tickets on Continental Airlines!

Monday, January 30, at 7 PM Fleming Gymnasium Spartans vs. Liberty Flames
