Volunteer fair in the Atrium

Fair being coordinated as part of National Youth Services Day

By KERRIE KOSLOWE
Staff Writer

As a part of National Youth Services Day, representatives from local service organizations will be in the Atrium on April 25th from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. for a volunteer fair.

There will be three tables set up with information about the various volunteer organizations. Students will have the chance to talk to volunteers and receive brochures about several of the organizations.

The volunteer fair is being organized by Susan Hicks, project coordinator of the North Carolina Child Care Corps and full-time faculty member at UNCG.

According to Hicks, the idea for the fair is "to promote the whole notion of community service in North Carolina."

Stephanie Welsh, coordinator of the S.T.A.R. (Students Taking Active Responsibility) program, is also helping to organize the volunteer fair. Welsh will be providing information about the S.T.A.R. volunteer programs, as well as Gamma Sigma Sigma, a service sorority, and Alpha Phi Omega, a coed service fraternity.

Welsh thinks the fair will be successful because many college students volunteer their time to local organizations, which benefits the community and allows the students to become an active member in it. According to Welsh, many students are also required to do volunteer work for their major.

Nursing major Shalonda Brockington thinks the volunteer fair will provide a good opportunity for students who may want to become involved in some sort of community service. "I do think it is a good idea because everyone needs someone to look up to, and if a person helps someone else, then they will return the favor later on," Brockington said.

Budgets frozen

By SALLY THOMAS
News Editor

For the third week in a row, the delegates of the Student Government Association (SGA) were unable to make quorum. Although the SGA was scheduled to meet, only 25 delegates showed up for the 7 p.m. meeting, three short of quorum.

Normally at this point in the year, the SGA would be in the process of voting on 1995-96 budgets for SGA-funded organizations, however, since the delegates have been unable to meet officially as a group since March 28, the budget process is frozen. In addition, those students needing to bring new business to the delegates have been unable to.

"In the event that we are unable to reach quorum before the end of the academic year, no organization will have a budget through the summer, ... and no officers will be sworn-in until the fall," SGA Vice President Brandon Mathis said.

SGA rules state that the group can not do any "official business" until they make quorum, which is currently set at 28 members.

Delegate Jack Thompson proposed that those students in the gallery be temporarily included into the assembly so that the SGA could conduct business. Mathis responded that that was not an option.

"We can't deputize students. We can't do official business period. We can call roll," Mathis said.

During an informal session, the delegates and gallery members debated the merits of various actions they could take to remedy the situation.

Some students argued that the few people who repeatedly missed SGA meetings and refused to sign a letter of resignation were the root of the problem.

"These couple of people are ruining it for everyone else for next fall," delegate Montserrat Caballero said.

SGA President Erin McComb told the body that it could consider taking greater personal responsibility for the actions of those delegates who have repeatedly missed meetings.

"In a lot of ways it is our responsibility. We're the check and balance—and we're never the balance. We never do what we're supposed to do. We can't babysit them and walk them here, but what are we going to do about it? ... It's our assembly and we have to maintain it," McComb said.

Mathis announced that he and Parliamentarian Chris Leslie would be making an effort to contact those delegates whose attendance has been in question.

The last SGA meeting of the academic year will be held on Tuesday, April 25 at 7 p.m. in the Claxton Room of the Elliott University Center.

13th International Festival Sunday

By SALLY THOMAS
News Editor

The 13th Annual International Festival will be held this Sunday, April 23, from 11 a.m.-8 p.m. on College Avenue. This year's theme is "Our World."

The International Students Association (ISA) President and Business Manager, Ketak Sampat, explained that the theme was chosen to coordinate with the Spring Fling Week Earth Day celebration, which ISA is co-sponsoring with the Environmental Awareness Foundation (EAF) today from 1-5 p.m. on College Avenue.

"It has to do with the general spirit of ISA and a general awareness about the earth," said Sampat.

This year, ISA, the Student Government Association, the EAF, the Campus Activities Board, and the Multicultural Event Fund have joined with ISA to sponsor the festival.

Danielle Eastling, an ISA Council member, is handling public relations and promotions, and is helping to organize the event.

"The students who do attend the International Festival—have attended in the past—really enjoy it—particularly the infamous fashion show. It's like a

A variety of musical and performing groups highlight the International Festival schedule.

"In selecting the music, we tried to get something from every continent," Sampat said.

In addition, food and merchandise vendors will be on College Avenue for the Festival.

According to Eastling, food vendors will include: Chef's Secret—a Thai restaurant, Hong Kong House, Tate Street Coffee House, ARAMARK, and SALSA

(Spanish American Latino Student Association). ARAMARK will be providing the "fast food" at the International Festival, and SALSA will be selling non-alcoholic margaritas.

Because the food vendors do not accept cash at the International Festival, tickets for food will be sold at the ISA booths only.

"There's no cost to get into the event, but if you want to purchase food, you need to buy tickets," Sampat said.

Briefly Speaking ... Brochure on STDs available for teens

The American Social Health Association (ASHA) is offering "For Teens," a free brochure that answers teenagers' questions about sexually transmitted diseases (STDs). Through June 30, people can request "For Teens" by calling (800)

972-855 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

ASHA is providing the free brochure during April as a part of National STD Awareness Month. ASHA's 1995 observance of National STD Awareness Month is focused on the fact that STDs have a disproportionately large impact on young people.

According to ASHA, of the 12 million new STD infections in the United States each year, two-thirds occur in people under age 25.

What do you really think about

SEX?

Stripping away financial woes

By JASON CLARK
Senior News Writer

When I first sat down with her for this interview, I was surprised to see her wearing a conservative dress and very little makeup. She is an exotic dancer, more commonly known as a stripper. However, to just look at this woman, one would never guess that taking her clothes off is her profession.

"Sometimes you have to do what you have to do, and then sometimes you begin to like what you're doing," she says. My stereotypes of what strippers and strip clubs are like were soon to be challenged by a woman who calls herself Misty.

Carolinian: How and why did you become an exotic dancer?

Misty: It's kind of a long story. When I was 19 I wanted to marry a guy that my parents didn't like at all. I was in love with him and didn't care what my parents thought. So we had a falling out, you can say. Well, just after I got pregnant, he left me. I had no way of paying for anything. A friend of mine was a dancer and said that, for at least a few months, I might be able to make some good money dancing. After the first time, I went home and cried. I couldn't believe that I had resorted to this. But I made a hundred dollars, and that made it seem a little better. I couldn't go to my family for money, so I went back the next night and the next, and it began to just feel like a job. When I started to show my pregnancy, I quit and worked at a fast food place until I had my son. About six months after he was born, I got myself back into shape and started dancing again. Having a baby is very expensive. For the past five years, I've danced professionally and now I like doing it.

Carolinian: Do your parents know what you do for a living?

Misty: Yes. I think my sister told them. Because I haven't spoken to them in seven years, I really don't know how they really feel about it.

Carolinian: How much can you typically make in a week?

Misty: In an average week, I make around $900. I get $200 as a basic salary from the club and about $700 in tips. Men at my club are very generous tippers.

It's just great money.

Carolinian: How many nights a week do you work?

Misty: Usually, I work four nights a week for four or five hours. Some weeks I have worked five days.

Carolinian: What will you tell your son about what you do?

Misty: Well, for now, he's not old enough to know. I guess I'll just have to be honest with him. But, I'm not going to tell him if he doesn't ask. If he does someday, I tell him the truth.

Carolinian: Why are you going to college?

Misty: I don't want to dance forever. And I want to improve myself as much as I can. At UNCG I think I can do that. Someday, I want to own my own restaurant or something. I need to have a good education to reach all my goals.

Carolinian: How difficult is it to go to school and dance at the same time?

Misty: At times it's difficult. Especially if I have to work and have a test the next morning. I usually have a little time before work to get my studies done.

Carolinian: What is the worst experience you have had while dancing?

Misty: One night, this drunk decided to reach up and grab my G-string before I took it off. As he grabbed me, I slipped off the stage and broke two toes. Luckily, one of the bouncers grabbed the guy and threw him out before he could do anything else to me. I wanted to kill the guy.

Carolinian: Does your dancing affect your love life?

Misty: Yes, more than I want it to. My boyfriend understands why I dance. But, I know that in his heart, he really doesn't want me to do it.

Carolinian: Have any men who you have danced for ever asked for more than "just a dance"?

Misty: Sure. I have been asked to do some pretty weird things. But, I'm not a prostitute. I never have and never will sleep with someone I dance for.

Carolinian: Would you recommend exotic dancing as a way for women to pay for their way through school?

Misty: No, I don't think I would recommend it. But, if a girl wants to do it, she should go for it. It isn't as bad as you might think.

POWERR gives choices, options for sex-free life

By MEGAN HERRMAN
Senior Features Writer

Please Only When Everyone's Really Ready! (POWERR) is a club on campus whose goal is to work on communication skills between men and women and to raise comfort levels when dealing with issues of sex.

According to Shelly Wager, Health Educator I, "Instead of teaching STD information, which students already have heard, we are presenting information about how to talk about sex."

POWERR's aim is to break down the barriers about sex so that students can make better, healthier decisions about what they want and need.

Wager introduced the club this semester with three programs, hoping to get student feedback.

The response was good, and she had a number of students attend all of the activities offered.

"I'm trying to create something the students want," said Wager.

The aim of the organization is to teach students how to get over the embarrassment of the actual words so that they may reach an intimacy comfort level with their partner.

Wager teaches effective communication skills so that "instead of saying no and putting up a brick wall, it's coming up with a meeting point, where both people will be happy."

POWERR discusses everything about sex, and urges students to stop along the way and enjoy the foreplay, reminding them that sex should not be a goal in intimacy.

Because many college students are sexually active when they otherwise might not be, POWERR attempts to discuss the many activities other than sex that can build an intimate relationship.

"We don't promote to have sex or not to have sex," said Wager. "We ask students to look long and hard, and think and talk about it to determine if it's something they really want."

In addition to the emotional issues of sex, POWERR discusses the health risks and consequences of unsafe sex.

POWERR is teaching students that they can get into trouble, but more importantly, what they can do to be safe. POWERR also acts as a support group.

While the techniques of discussion are new and fresh, they also discuss the role of alcohol and drugs, and the dangers of STD's and AIDS.

While next semester POWERR will only be targeting the freshman dorms, Wager is hopeful that word of mouth will bring more students to the group for support and helping.

For more information, call Health Education at 334-3190.

Greensboro novelty abounds

By MELISSA FRICK
Features Editor

"I feel that everyone should be free to buy what they choose," says Cathie, a clerk at Gents Video and News on High Point Road.

Greensboro is notorious for its numerous sex shops and massage parlors. Everything is offered at these places from oils and massage potions to inflatable partners and strange aph-rodisiacs.

Cathie says that their most popular items are the videos and magazines. Videos range in price between $9.95 and $49.95, and magazines are from $2.95 to $23.50.

Cathie says that most people do not have a problem buying what some would consider to be embarrassing products.

RISQUÉ, a lingerie and novelty shop on High Point Road, also gave their input on sexual novelties.

The co-owner of RISQUÉ, who wishes to refrain from using her real name, says that lingerie is actually their most popular product.

"We do sell a lot of battery-operated equipment—vibrators," the co-owner said.

RISQUÉ also has massage oils, unique condoms, and toys designed to "give your lover more pleasure." She said that a person's response to buying novelties varies. "[The customer] either point blank asks or just looks. Men tend to get more embarrassed than the women do."

The co-owner said the most unusual events that occur at RISQUÉ are men asking to try own women's lingerie. "Of course we can't let them."

So throughout Greensboro, whether you just want to browse or to entertain a fetish, it can be found in one of the many novelty shops decorating our city.

Commentaries: Varied views on sex

A small price to pay for sex

DALE LEONARD

It would be hard to examine the role that intersexual relations play in our lives without examining the recent popularity of show clubs, better known as erotic dancing clubs or "Gentlemen's Clubs."

In recent years, these clubs have enjoyed economic success and have attempted to become more mainstream. Many of these clubs now advertise on local radio stations and in the various print media.

This has caused outrage and vocal protest from many religious and conservative groups. Some of these groups would have this particular form of entertainment abolished outright. Many people also believe that erotic dancing is demeaning to women and might possibly desensitize people to sexual violence.

Judging from the economic success of these clubs, there is quite a demand for their services. So, who is right?

Only one way to find out, huh? That is right, time to pack up those inhibitions and send them home to mother (C.O.D. of course).

To find out for myself, I decided to see firsthand what all the fuss is over. I was very surprised.

I chose Baby Dolls in High Point for my observations. Contrary to popular belief, their patrons did not appear to be on the parole list.

Dress ranged from casual to business attire, and I didn't notice any knuckle-dragging neanderthals.

My preconceptions continued to evaporate.

Every last one of the dancers this night were exceptionally attractive. They did not appear even the least bit sleazy. After speaking with several of them, I got the impression that their line of work had been exciting initially, but they now approached it just like any other job.

They did give me the impression that they were well paid.

As a society we seem to be very repressed towards nudity. Any sunbather on the French Riviera would see just as much nudity as I saw this night. And that is on a public beach. Kind of makes you wonder if we're a little tilted to the right, doesn't it?

I'm no expert on sexual violence, but if the patrons at this club are prone to it, then we should all be very scared. They looked as if they could be your next door neighbor.

Could it be that in an age of AIDS and other S.T.D.s that people feel like it is safer to fantasize about sex than to participate in it? We all know that these days promiscuous intimacy can lead to AIDS and ultimately death.

Given these parameters, the choice to think about or fantasize about sex may make more sense than we think.

As I left the club, I realized that I felt no guilt or shame for having seen these dancers.

However, had I seen anyone that I know personally as I was leaving the club, that's when I would have felt guilty.

It is hard to escape the grasp of society's morals, and that may be what the patrons are trying to get away from by visiting these clubs.

Pursuing honor, love in society

With all the talk about sex, love and beauty disappear into explicit sexuality of society

STEPHANIE NICKELL

All this talk about sex. Is there not anything else worth talking about?

Sex is a very beautiful and special thing that was meant to be enjoyed between two people. It is a shame that people today have lost touch with this.

The glorification of sex in our society has done nothing but decay the morals and values upon which this country was founded.

Sex should be kept private. By allowing porn shops and erotic dancing clubs to remain open, we are encouraging our next generation to betray the values of their elders's teachings.

Enough temptations exist already for today's youth that by publicizing what should be personal relations, we encourage low moral standards.

Opponents will say that having sexually explicit shows on T.V. and having strip clubs does not hurt anyone.

I would say, while these places do not directly hurt people that stay away, it indirectly undermines the moralistic teachings of society in general.

Sex is a beautiful thing and a powerful show of love that should be kept private. Do not be mistaken.

I am aware that some of these women and men engage in sexually explicit things for financial reasons.

But why is it that as a society, we have left stripping and erotic dancing as their only form of financial gain?

Spartans fall short against Heels

By STEVEN HUNTLEY
Sports Editor

On Wednesday evening the UNCG Spartans dropped a road decision to the Tar Heels of North Carolina, 6-1.

Five hundred-thirty fans witnessed the evening game that saw no Tarheel batter receive more than one hit.

The Spartans used six pitchers and baffled the Tarheels over seven innings, but a six-run fourth put the game out of reach for the Spartans. Freshman pitcher Marcus Battle gave up three earned runs to pick up the loss for UNCG.

The Tarheels scored all of their runs in the fourth inning when Josh Rowell walked and Brett Kaplan singled. Tyrone Brown doubled home Rowell for the first RBI.

Battle then walked David Boone before he was pulled in favor of Jason Parsons who gave up a two-RBI single to Brian Whitlock and (then) Boone advanced to second. Second baseman Mike Stoner singled home an RBI and, after Boone scored unearned, Parsons was pulled out of the game for Anthony Sylvester.

One more run would cross the plate before the Spartans were able to get out of the inning. The Spartans were able to mount their only offense of the game in the seventh inning when Chris Healy single home the lone RBI with two outs.

The Tarheels used five pitchers on the night when UNCG forced the Heels into making some changes by getting runners on base. The Spartans left nine runners on the bases on the night.

Ethan Stein pitched one and one third innings, giving up two hits while striking out one to pick up the win for the Tarheels.

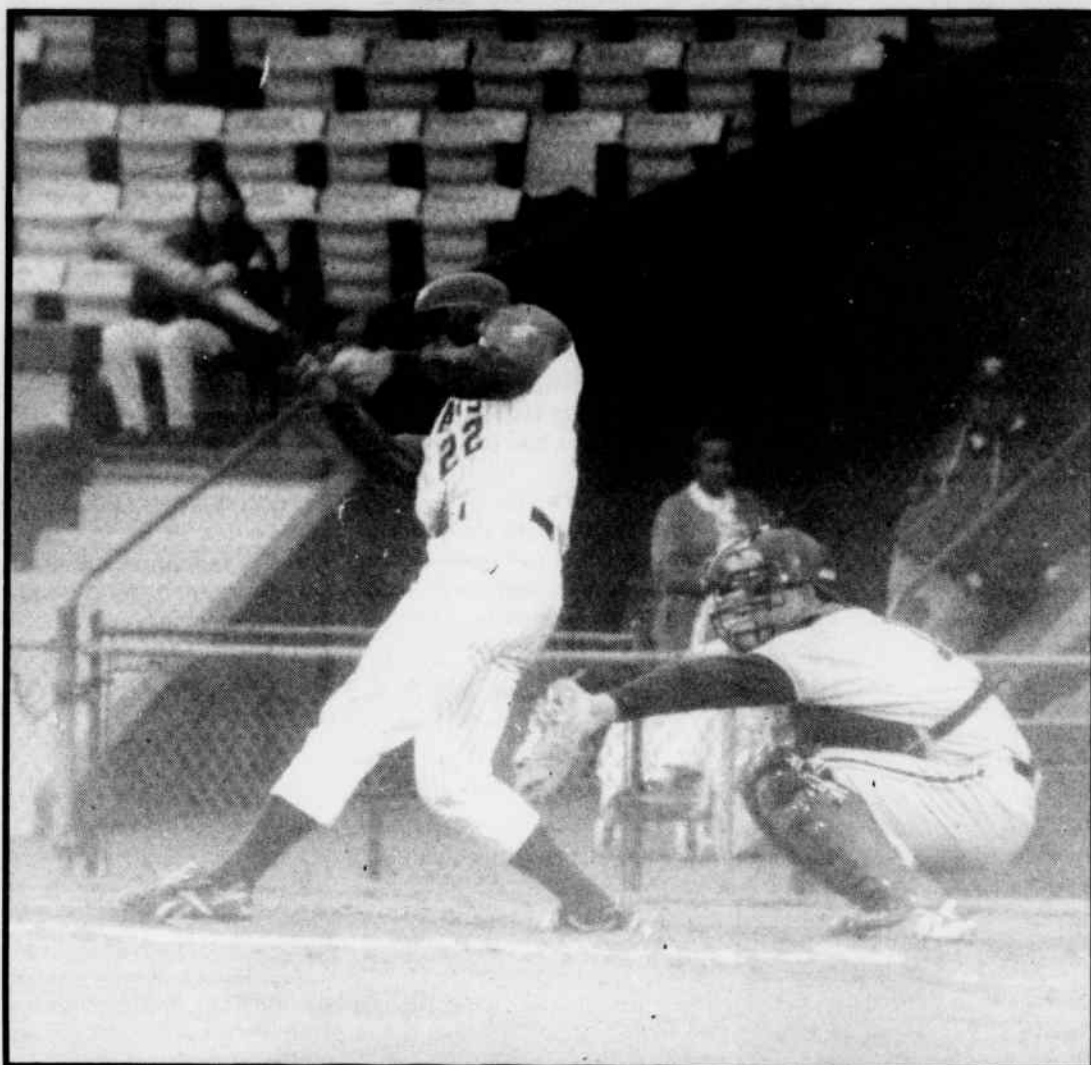

Scott Young and Chris Healy both two hit games for the Spartans.

Although UNCG connected on seven hits, the Spartans could only account for one run.

The Tarheels improve to 30-12 overall and have beaten the Spartans for the first time this season. UNCG will face the Tarheels one more time this season on Wednesday when they will host Chapel Hill.

The Spartans fall to 24-16 overall and are currently trailing Winthrop in the Big South Conference race.

The Spartans have a crucial three-game series with the Charleston Southern Buccaneers this weekend. The Spartans will begin the series with a 3 p.m. game on Friday and will conclude on Saturday with a doubleheader at 1 p.m.

Coach builds success from the ground up

By JASON GAERTNER
Staff Writer

As the women's softball team heads to the Big South Conference Tournament in Rock Hill, South Carolina, this weekend, head coach Melody Cope feels that her team is "very confident going in." Coach Cope has every reason to be proud of her team, and the players have every reason to feel confident. UNCG is 42-11 this season, and will be the top seed in the tournament as they face Liberty at 5:00 p.m. today at Cherry Park in Rock Hill. In her fourth year as head coach, Cope has taken the team to new heights. Cope took over the program when it first became Division I, and has guided the Spartans to success ever since. Last year, UNCG finished at 35-23 and won the Big South Conference tournament before bowing-out to Canisius in an NCAA play-in series. In 1993, the squad set a school record for wins in a season with 36, had a 22-game win streak, and won the conference's regular-season championship.

This year, the former catcher from UNC-Wilmington has coached the Spartans to a first-place finish in the regular-season. The team is rated ninth in the nation in hitting with a .333 team batting average. The freshmen have combined for 75 RBI, and a .300 batting average. "Defensively, the freshmen have played great. They have been a big part of our success, and have made a great impact," coach Cope said.

During the three previous seasons, Cope's squad has compiled a record of 102-55-3 for a .647 winning percentage. Cope has also coached four seniors throughout their career at UNCG: pitcher Winn Hazlegrove, second baseman Shonda Spagnola, outfielder Erin Kluttz, and catcher Shannon Brooks. "The seniors have brought this team confidence, leadership, and composure," said Cope. "Hopefully, if the seniors [step up], the freshmen and the rest of the team will follow their lead." As far as each individual player goes, Cope commented that Hazlegrove has had a great year on the mound so far.

Spagnola has had the best batting average of her career, as has Brooks, after coming off shoulder surgery. Cope said Kluttz has displayed great leadership, and that "she is the glue that holds the outfield together." These girls have been special to Cope because they have been here throughout her career as head coach and "helped start the program" at the Division I level. "They have had a big impact on the team both on and off the field."

Not only can Cope coach on the field, but she can recruit as well. UNCG has signed two players for next year from New Jersey. Danielle Seokula is a third baseman/second baseman, and Tracy Stromer is an outfielder. Cope has gone in-state this year as well, signing catcher/outfielder Jessica Marsh. Recruiting players from North Carolina is difficult, because half of the state's high schools play slow-pitch softball. "It takes a kid [who's played slow-pitch] a while to get adjusted. They can't compare to kids who have played fast-pitch year after year." Cope feels that the national exposure that

Sports Notes

Men's lacrosse win state championship

The UNCG men's lacrosse club defeated N.C. State 8-7 on Wednesday to win the North Carolina club state championship.

The Spartans defeated the Wolfpack on the strength of a pair of goals by David Strong. Chris Cunningham also scored a goal for the Spartans and Ethan Boylen scored the game winner with 50 seconds left in the game.

Also of note for the Spartans, Jamie Meltzer got his first ground ball in the game.

The game decided the best team in the North Carolina club league.

UNCG will play in Richmond on Saturday for the North Carolina/Virginia Championship and the right to play in a match in Washington, D.C.

The Spartans will play the winner of the George Mason/Richmond match that was played on Thursday afternoon.

The Spartans have posted a 6-4 record overall on the strength of goalie Billie Bombright, who has recorded all six of the victories this season. The Spartans recorded the victory fresh on the heels of a 9-7 victory over the Fighting Christians of Elon.

The Spartans will host Duke University on Sunday at 3 p.m. in the soccer stadium.

Women's lacrosse to host Wake Forest

The UNCG women's lacrosse team will host Wake Forest University at 1 p.m. on Sunday in the UNCG Soccer Stadium.

The Spartans are 3-2 on the season and most recently defeated Appalachian State 31-1 two weeks ago at UNCG.

Men's Basketball solidifies schedule

The UNCG men's basketball team is currently working on their schedule for the 1995-96 season. The Spartans have three marquee games against traditional national powers.

The Spartans will play the Gamecocks of South Carolina on November 24 and the Blue Devils of Duke University on November 29. Both of these games are on the road. UNCG will also travel to Virginia Tech on January 15.

The schedule also includes return games against Akron, St. Francis (Pa.), Campbell, and Appalachian State.

These games are owed to the Spartans because UNCG traveled to play against these opponents last season.

UNCG finished last season with a 23-6 overall record and a runner-up finish in the Big South Conference Tournament in early March.

UNCG returns every starter and adds two redshirt freshmen and 6-6 Justin Stewart to their ranks.

The Spartans held the best record of any team not selected to a post season tournament.

Golf teams win Big South titles

Pair of titles put Spartans in the hunt for the Big South Commissioner's Cup honors

By STEVEN HUNTLEY
Sports Editor

The UNCG men's and women's golf teams each captured Big South Golf Championships at Colonial Charters Golf and Country Club in North Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, on Tuesday.

On the men's side, UNCG shot a team total 890 to finish just three strokes ahead of Charleston Southern and 10 strokes in front of Winthrop to claim the victory in the event.

North Myrtle Beach native Wil Weldon, a junior at Coastal Carolina earned medalist honors for the men with a one-under par, 214.

Sophomore Michael Way finished third with a three-day total of 220 to lead the Spartan bid for the school's first Big South Conference Championship in men's golf.

Senior John McCann finished tied for sixth place with golfers Lorne Kelley of Coastal Carolina and Tim Tumstall of Winthrop. All three golfers shot 221 on the event.

J.J. Morgan finished tied with Jamie Bilbrey of Charleston Southern for 10th place overall with a three-day total of 225.

Other Spartans placing in the three day event were Mike Devlin, a junior who finished 19th with a 232 overall score. John Callahan withdrew from the event in the second round of the tournament for UNCG.

Spartan head coach Bud Hall was also named Big South Coach of the year in the Big South Conference.

The Spartan women's team placed the top three positions and cruised to a 25 shot victory over second-place Winthrop and a 28-shot victory over third place Coastal Carolina.

Sophomore Becky Morgan won her first individual Big South title with a two-day total of 151. Senior Jennifer Brown shot a 75 second round to boost her score to 155 to place second in the event. Junior Jen Hermesen shot a strong 77 in the first round but managed only an 80 in the second round and finished third in the event with a 155.

Junior Kareen Qually recovered from a first round 84 to shoot a 73 in the second round and tie Hermesen for the third spot.

Winthrop's Stephanie Caverley and pairs of golfers from Winthrop and Coastal Carolina were the only challengers in the event.

The Spartans not only received both the team championship and the individual medal, but head coach Mary Beth McGirr received Coach of the Year honors for the Spartans.

The pair of conference Championships put the Spartans in the hunt for their first Commissioner's Cup in the Big South Conference.

The Spartans are on pace to clinch the cup even though they do not participate in two Big South sports.

Last season, Campbell won the cup finishing with 110 points in 15 sports. The Spartans have amassed 78 points with 11 of the 15 sports decided.

Strong finished in softball and baseball will put the Spartans in a position to win the cup.

Cope

UNCG has gotten this season will help recruiting in the future, especially trying to recruit players from hotbeds such as California and Arizona.

Cope has not had all her success alone, however. Assistant coach Teena Murray has been a great help, and with her experience as a former pitcher, she brings another dimension of knowledge and skill to the team.

Murray commented that during the middle of the season, the pitchers do not get much rest.

When tournament time comes around, however, sometimes pitchers will have to pitch several days in a row and even more than one game per day in some cases. Murray says of the Spartan pitching going into the conference tournament,

"They're used to it; I think they can handle it."

Prior to being head coach, Cope served a stint as graduate assistant coach for UNCG during the 1988 season.

Before accepting the position of head coach, Cope was a physical education instructor in elementary and middle schools for three years.

If the Spartans win the conference tournament, they will travel to the winner of the Trans American Athletic Conference Tournament for an NCAA play-in series to determine which team will go to the NCAA Tournament.

The Spartans could have to face Campbell, Southeast Louisiana, or Florida International in the play-in series.
