Studying abroad gets affordable

The American Institute for Foreign Study, based in Greenwich, Connecticut, sends more than 3,000 students to Europe each academic year.

The program offers young Americans the chance to study at a leading European university for one or two semesters, while living with, and providing part-time child care for a local family in England, France, Spain or Germany.

Beginning next fall, the institute is introducing program fees starting at $2,495 for the full academic year. The fee includes $75 a week spending money, air fare to Europe, registration and tuition fees, and assistance obtaining required visas.

"Young Americans have always been interested in studying abroad," says William Gertz, senior vice president of A.I.F.S. "The cost has been prohibitive for many families... this program makes the European cultural experience affordable to many more students by combining work with study- a long established American educational tradition."

Students have a choice to study at Sorbonne in Paris, the Collège International de Cannes in Cannes, France, the University of Granada, in Granada, Spain, Volkshochschule Köln in Cologne, Germany, and Richmond College, the American International University in London.

Summer camp registration begins

The Piney Lake Summer Day Camp will be open from June 4 until August 16. Registration for the two-week sessions has already begun and forms are available by contacting Director Mike Lazorchick at 274-4216.

Cost for the sessions range from $130 to $150, depending on the session. A deposit of $70 must accompany all registrations.

She was working here when UNCG began parking services, and she issued the first parking permit. •With the arrest of criminals like Clarence Parker, who was arrested in the McIver parking lot February 11, UNCG Police can help keep vandalism to a minimum, especially in areas like the Walker Avenue Parking Deck. When police arrested Parker they found a car stereo, a radar detector and numerous other items, which were stolen from residence halls.

Ade-Tomiwa pleads: Don't let the issue die

•S.G.A. focuses attention to stadium

Natalie Watson
Senior News Writer

Not surprisingly, the proposed increase in student fees to support a multi-million dollar baseball stadium was the main topic of discussion at Tuesday's Student Government Association meeting.

SGA President Stephen A. Ade-Tomiwa urged students to not let the issue die.

Ade-tomiwa feels that UNCG is against the increase and that we need to stand up and continue to let our views be known. He urged students and delegates to fill out and return the postcards printed in the Tuesday, Feb. 27, issue of The Carolinian.

The postcard, addressed to C.D. Spangler, president of the University system, makes a plea to stop the proposed increase.

The postcard states the views of the students and offers an alternative plan for funding.

"The student body has clearly communicated that they are not in favor of construction of a stadium in which they will have to bear the entire financial responsibility....it is unacceptable to build a stadium without attempting to obtain some sort of private funding."

Ade-Tomiwa urges the student body to quickly fill out and return the cards because the Board of Governors meet March 15 to determine the fate of the increase.

Although student morale for the issue was high at first, momentum has gone down in recent weeks.

"Midterms, the upcoming break and the recent warm weather has taken student attention from the student fee issue," said one student.

At a town meeting designated for a student fees discussion, student turnout was small.

Considering student turnout for other events related to the issue such as the rally at the fountain and the protest at the Board of Trustees meeting, the dozen or so students present at the town meeting was a big disappointment to

Although students were pumped up about the issue at first, a sense of apathy seems to have taken over.

Sophomore delegate Tramika Hines feels that town meeting attendance is low because of perception, but the furor behind the issue has died down significantly.

that it is a Greensboro thing. It should be renamed to Campus Meeting. "Yes, the issue has died down, but hopefully the postcards and the upcoming decision will help to renew student interest."

Federal judge blocks Net law

PHILADELPHIA (CP)-A week after hundreds of webmasters turned their Internet pages black to protest a new law they say could restrict freedom of expression, a federal judge blocked the government from enforcing it.

U.S. District Judge Ronald L. Buckwater ruled Feb. 15 that the part of the telecommunications act that bans the transmission of "indecent" material is "vague [and] would leave responsible people perplexed in evaluating what is not prohibited."

Buckwater granted the request by the American Civil Liberties Union and 18 other groups for a temporary injunction that stops enforcement of the law, which would be punishable by $250.00 or a two-year prison term.

The groups argued that the new law violates free speech rights and would prohibit Internet discussion on sexuality and abortion, not to mention many classic literary works.

But the judge refused to grant an injunction on another ban that prohibits describing or depicting "sexual or excretory activities" to minors. That material is patently offensive as measured by community standards and is not constitutionally vague, he said.

The next case will proceed sometime in the next weeks to a three-judge panel, who will hear the group's request for a permanent injunction. After that, any further appeal would go directly to the Supreme Court.

"The court's decision is a partial victory for free speech, but expression on the Internet remains at risk," said David Sobel, an attorney for the groups. "This is destined to become a landmark case that will determine the future of the Internet."

Many colleges are awaiting the case's outcome to see if they will need to adopt new policies to protect themselves from prosecution.

College newspapers on the Internet could be hit hard,

First committee meeting at EUC

•Organization presidents come together to merge ideas over stadium

Holly Scott
Senior News Writer

On Thursday, February 29, a President's meeting was held in the Kirkland Room of the EUC to discuss the possible increase in student fees.

Student Government Association President Steven Ade-Tomiwa called this meeting to bring together delegates from each of the student groups on campus so that they could voice the opinions of those in their organizations. This meeting was the first of its kind and Ade-Tomiwa hopes to hold a similar meeting each month in order to keep in touch with student opinions.

Students from the North Carolina Students' Legislature, Greek organizations, religious groups, and other organizations came together to discuss the stadium and to take information back to their respective groups.

Questions were asked about the building of the stadium, and several people were surprised by the answers that were given. Many people still do not know that if this stadium is built, it will be financed solely through student fees. There will be no outside help from alumni organizations or the community. It will also take twenty-five years of students paying an extra thirty dollars in student fees each semester to pay for the building of this stadium.

One student saw the stadium as being a positive issue for this school. It could bring some much needed publicity and support to the athletics program of the University. SGA President Ade-Tomiwa made the announcement that if the administration did not begin to acknowledge the negative opinion of the students, there would be a protest at the UNC Board of Governors meeting Friday, March 15. All interested students are invited to attend. There will be buses leaving from UNCG at 8:00 the morning of the meeting. The buses should return by noon.

The meeting concluded with an agreement that this type of meeting, where delegates from various organizations come together, was definitely helpful for venting student opinions. Each meeting will focus on the concerns of those who attend. All organizations should look for memos from SGA announcing the next meeting.

•Law, from page 1

according to free speech advocate Mark Goodman, executive director of the Student Press Law Center.

"College newspapers are a little more adventuresome in their content," he said, giving examples that ranged from the use of four-letter words to sex education features. "They're likely to be the first people selected for prosecution."

Student Services Column

This is the first installment of the Student Services Column, which we are planning to make a permanent fixture of The Carolinian. The column is designed to inform students of programs or deadlines for various student services. Various departments and offices on campus are invited to submit material for the column. Our first submission comes from Academic Advising. If you and your department are interested in submitting please call 334-5752 or e-mail at cary_ed@uncg.edu.

News from Academic Advising

Our office has newsworthy information to share with undergraduate students. We believe it's information that can help you succeed! Check-in here for Workshop announcements, news from our office, important dates, and tips for a successful college career. Below are some resources that can help you enhance your performance this semester.

Our office offers the Student Success Workshops throughout the semester. Two workshops are scheduled for March. Open to all! Free! No preregistration! They are designed to put you in control.

Time Management and Study Skills: learn guidelines for effective time management and put together an effective weekly schedule; discuss effective strategies for enhancing memory, reading comprehension, and note-taking skills. Date: March 19, 1:30-3:00

Stress Management and Test-taking: understand the symptoms of stress exhaustion and learn some coping strategies and relaxation techniques; discuss test preparation and test-taking tips. Date: March 26, 1:30-3:00

All workshops are held in the Claxton room, EUC.

Make maximum use of library resources, the Writing Center, and the computer labs. If you have not already done so, visit these areas to find out what they have to offer. For extra assistance in a course, contact the department office or your instructor to find out about tutoring availability. A tutoring list is also available in our office.

Unsatisfactory Progress Reports (Unsats)

Unsats are mailed to campus box addresses in the last week in February. An Unsat is a warning from your instructor that you are doing below satisfactory work in class; it is not necessarily a predictor of your final grade. Consider an Unsat as a call to action: speak with your instructor to understand exactly what you need to do to get back on track, use your campus resources, find a study partner. If you feel withdrawal is your most prudent course of action, remember that the last day to drop without penalty is March 13.

Map may prove Vikings arrived first

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (CP) - Long ago in 1492, Columbus sailed the ocean blue. But instead of navigating his ships by the North Star, the Italian explorer might have had some help from a Viking map of the North American coastline, researchers now believe.

The Yale University Press recently published a new edition of "The Viking Map and the Tartar Relation," which explains how a medieval map found tucked inside a rare book about 40 years ago is not a fake, as once thought.

The very accurate Viking drawing of Greenland, Iceland and "Vinland," or Newfoundland, dated to 1440, was denounced by critics in the 1970's because its ink contained titanium anatase, not invented until around 1920.

But scientists say that titanium occurs naturally and quite possibly could be found in ancient ink. The legend accompanying the map indicates that Leif Eriksson and other Viking explorers reached the Northeast American coast on a voyage in 1000 A.D.

George D. Painter, the sole survivor of the team of scholars who wrote the book's first edition in 1965, called the rejection of the map "a miscarriage of justice."

"Columbus wasn't just an amazing navigator, a brave man; he was also an expert in maps and geography and knowledge of the world," Painter told the Associated Press.

2-23-96, 7:19 a.m., Breaking and Entering Auto: An officer on patrol observed the rear vent window broken out of a vehicle parked on Oakland Avenue.

The vehicle was entered but nothing was taken. The car belongs to a male student.

2-23-96, 5:10 p.m., Carrying Concealed Weapons: An officer checking a complaint of two suspicious males openly consuming wine on the corner of Tate and Carr Streets arrested Rodney Wayne Wallace, AKA "Houdini," of Brighton, TN, for this offense.

Two black dagger-type knives were found concealed in a rear pocket covered by a sweatshirt and a denim jacket.

Wallace said he worked for Labor Finders on Lee Street, but had no local address.

2-23-96, 11:59 p.m., Larceny from Auto: A female student reported the theft of her Indiana license plate from her vehicle parked on Gray Drive.

2-24-96, 2:40 a.m., Tampering with a Motor Vehicle: Kenny Lewis Smith of Greensboro was arrested after an officer observed him tampering with a vehicle on Spring Garden Street.

There were two other males with Smith who were in a vehicle near the one he was tampering with.

The owner of the vehicle, a Jeep, which Smith was tampering with could not be located at the time.

It was later learned a speaker box had been removed from the Jeep and an attempt made to remove a Sony tape player.

Smith was arrested and a male accomplice who was of age warned off campus. The thirteen-year-old was released to his parents.

The incident will be further investigated due to another set of speakers being found in the vehicle the three were driving.

2-24-96, 3:04 a.m., Assault, Assault on Female: A male student and his girlfriend, a non-student, were walking on North Drive toward the high rises when a vehicle containing several white males pulled alongside and starting making remarks to the girl.

One of the males then jumped from the vehicle and assaulted the male student by punching him in the face.

The girl tried to assist but the male shoved her aside and continued the assault.

The man returned to the vehicle and they drove away.

The female victim described the suspect vehicle as a dark metallic blue Hyundai, 2-door.

The suspect committing the assaults is a white male, about 5'9" tall, sandy blond hair, large build, and short hair.

He was wearing light-colored jeans and a buttoned down shirt.

Three female witnesses in the area heard the female screaming and went to assist but neither observed the vehicle or suspects.

Student pursues professional jet-ski career

Michelle Marquardt
Senior Features Writer

Spring break is here and many students will be headed to the beach, sunbathing and playing frisbee. Some may even enjoy renting a jet-ski and racing around on the waves.

Sophomore Ryan Krumroy knows all about jet-ski racing. Krumroy is a professional water craft racer. Krumroy has been jet-skiing since he was 12 and racing since 1993.

That first year, Krumroy participated in the novice class which he explained was one of three classes of water craft racing.

The classes are Novice, Expert and Professional, and Krumroy has raced in all of them.

In 1993, Krumroy captured numerous top-three finishes, and, in 1994, he qualified and raced in the World Finals.

Last year, Krumroy competed in the national tour as well as in regional races. Krumroy picked up several second place prizes in races in North Carolina and Tennessee.

1996 is Krumroy's first year racing professionally. Competition in this class is vigorous, and Krumroy must follow a strict training schedule to remain in top racing form.

"On Monday, Wednesday and Friday, I do weight training, and on Tuesday and Thursday I do a cardiovascular work out," said Krumroy.

Professional water craft racers travel cross-country, competing in the Budweiser National Tour, which will air on ESPN.

Krumroy will begin his rookie year this May in Savannah, GA, and travel to Virginia Beach, Dallas, San Diego, Connecticut, Detroit, Chicago and, finally, Washington state.

"I will be traveling with Team Tri-City Yamaha," he said.

The team consists of Krumroy and Guilford College student Fernando Requero. The races are exciting and draw crowds of up to 30,000, according to Krumroy.

He says even though the competition is a major factor of a race, water conditions are even more important.

"In Santa Barbara, the water was really rough, and in Fort Lauderdale it was so hot people were putting ice in their wet suits," said Krumroy.

As for his goal this summer on the tour, Krumroy said, "I want to finish in the top seven, and have fun."

Outdoor Adventures helps students build skills, confidence

GREENSBORO--When Tony Draus talks about white-water, he is referring to a river, not the Clintons' failed real estate venture.

As director of outdoor recreation at UNCG, Draus's job is to operate Outdoor Adventures, a new program of trips and activities for UNCG students, faculty and staff.

White-water rafting is just one of the many excursions the program offers. It also offers mountain biking in Uwharrie National Forest, rock climbing at Seneca Rocks and caving in southern Virginia.

"We're fairly diverse in our activities," said Draus, who joined UNCG's staff last fall after directing the outdoor recreation program at Bloomsburg University of Pennsylvania for several years.

Outdoor Adventures is designed to give students a chance to explore and challenge themselves. The focus is on development and enhancing students' collegiate experience.

"It's all about stepping outside normal comfort levels," Draus said.

The program is also about relaxing, relieving stress, spending a day or a weekend getting away from the usual routine. Along the way, participants develop more self-confidence, leadership and teamwork skills while learning about the environment and how to protect it.

Private outdoor programs, such as Outward Bound, have been around for decades, and, over the years, their popularity has spread to college campuses, Draus said. Administrators at UNCG created Outdoor Adventures after studying similar programs at other universities.

Campus Recreation Director Cindy Hardy was a big advocate of Outdoor Adventures from the beginning, Draus said. "She's been real helpful in pushing the program."

So far, the number of people who have gone on Outdoor Adventures trips has ranged from six to fifteen, which is fine with Draus. Smaller groups work together better on trips, he said.

Some outdoor recreation areas even limit group size to minimize environmental impact. As the program grows, Draus will add more trips to accommodate the demand.

More than a dozen trips and activities are on the calendar for the spring semester, with a leadership trip to Colorado scheduled for the summer. The costs of the trips are reasonable, Draus said, and UNCG provides all the necessary equipment.

Draus plans to expand Outdoor Adventures with a journey to Nepal over the 1996 winter break and a trip to Alaska in the summer of 1997.

However, students do not have to go on a trip to take advantage of the program. The outdoor recreation office rents backpacks, mountain bikes, inline skates, sleeping bags and other equipment to students, faculty and staff who want to explore on their own.

Draus hopes to have an indoor climbing wall built in the Student Recreation Center by the beginning of fall semester. Draus plans to offer classes in climbing, and students will be able to practice their skills on the wall.

For the time being, Draus is focusing on building and training his student staff and telling the campus about the outdoor opportunities that are available.

Draus still has a lot of work ahead of him, but response has been good so far. "Right now, I'm very pleased with it."

"Muppet Treasure Island" entertains young and old

Kim Stephens
Contributing Writer

This film is yet another triumphant return for the entire Muppet cast. It is the classic tale of Robert Louis Stevenson's novel, "Treasure Island."

The movie starts out with Gonzo and Rizzo the Rat working in a tavern where they meet pirate Billy Bones, played by Billy Connelly. Billy has a treasure map that he gives to Gonzo, Rizzo, and their new friend Jim. Jim, played by Kevin Bishop, is a child who also works in the tavern.

British actress Jennifer Saunders is wonderful as Mrs. Bluenrenge, the tavern owner who helps Gonzo and Rizzo escape with the treasure map.

They soon set out to find the treasure by obtaining a ship from a ship-builder's "half-wit" son, Fozzie Bear. They also enlist the help of Kermit the Frog as Captain Mallet.

Then, they set sail to search for buried treasure with a whole cavalcade of Muppets aboard. Tim Curry plays Long John Silver, the ship's cook. Long John Silver befriends Jim, even though Billy Bones has warned him to beware of a one-legged man who had been following him.

The warning goes unheeded, and Long John makes his plan to take over the ship.

After taking control, Long John and his band of misfit pirates kidnap Jim, and off they go to find the treasure. Kermit and Fozzie come to the rescue and encounter Demjanna Gunn, played by Miss Piggy.

They all set off to find the pirates and the treasure. Soon, all is well again in Muppet land.

Jim is rescued, Kermit and Miss Piggy unite, and, at last, the treasure is found.

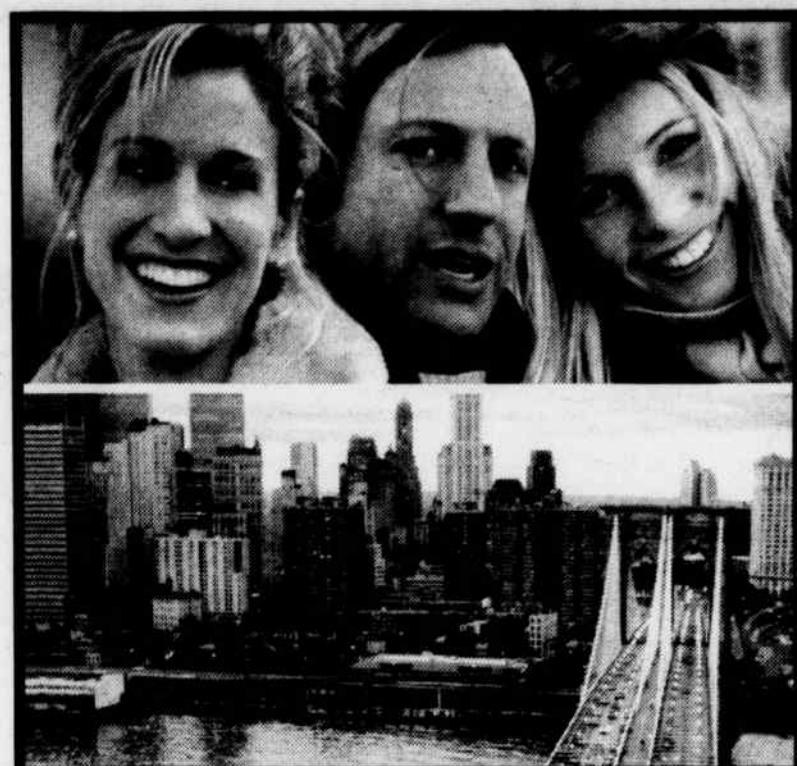

The film is produced by Frank Oz and is very much a welcome addition to the Muppet collection of films. There are a lot of really great singing and dancing numbers in true Muppet style.

There are a few scenes that threaten to be violent, but the film is a very light drama/comedy for children of all ages to enjoy.

The cast includes all of the Muppet regulars plus a plethora of new characters, including my favorite, Potato Woman! Also to be noted is Mr. Blimpie, the man who lives in Fozzie's finger.

So until the Muppets return this spring in prime time television, catch their latest film and relive your childhood!

Spartans advance to semifinals in Big South

Steven Huntley
Managing Editor

The top-seeded UNCG Spartans advanced to the semifinals of the Big South Conference Tournament with a 78-67 win over the eighth-seeded Coastal Carolina Chanticleers Thursday afternoon.

The win boosts the Spartans into a semifinal matchup with Charleston Southern, a 55-82 winner over Radford in the second game of the afternoon.

The Spartans (18-9) competed without first-team, all-conference selection Eric Cuthrell. Early foul trouble kept the senior out for most of the game. Coastal (5-22) jumped out to an early first-half lead on a pair of baskets by junior forward Ben Avery.

The Spartans stormed back to stretch the lead to 13 points on a layup by senior forward Jonathon Clifton. UNCG took a 15-point lead, 39-24, with just 43 seconds to go in the first half. The Spartans took the floor in the second half to see the 11-point lead that they had enjoyed at the break dissolve to just five points on a layup by Coastal forward Maurice Ingram. The Spartans could not shake the Chanticleers in the second half, but five made free throws down the stretch sealed the Spartan victory.

In Cuthrell's absence, senior forward Brian Brunson scored 23 points and grabbed seven rebounds. Senior guard Scott Hartzell added 20 points, and junior forward Jeremy Davis poured in 18 points, including eight of 10, shot from the free-throw line.

"Brunson is our best inside player," Spartan Head Coach Randy Peele said. "He's been on a tear the second half of the season."

The Spartans held the Chanticleers to just 36 percent from the floor and a paltry 30 percent from behind the three-point line. The Spartans managed to connect on 79 percent of their free throws, uncharacteristic of a UNCG squad.

"This UNCG team is very resilient," Peele said. "They've been in first place in the Big South for the past two years without ever falling into second, and they've survived some runs."

Ingram and Donald Moore each contributed 18 points for the Chanticleers. Avery added 12 points and nine rebounds, and freshman Lee Grant chipped in 11.

"I'm proud of my kids," Peele said. "They got it done when it counted in the second half."

Alisa Moore named Pepsi Big South Player of the Week

From Staff Reports-Alisa Moore received the Big South Conference's Pepsi Women's Basketball Player of the Week award for the week ending February 25. The senior is the first Spartan to win the prize this season and has won the award twice over her four years.

Moore averaged 20.5 points per game over UNCG's two games, including a career-high 26-point performance in the Spartans' 90-71 home finale on February 24. The forward/center added seven rebounds in her 23 minutes of action. Earlier in the week, Moore scored 12 of her team-high 15 points in the second half and pulled down 12 rebounds as UNCG rallied for a 49-45 road win over UMBC.

Moore leads the Spartans with 14.3 points and nine rebounds per game. She tops the Big South Conference in rebounding and ranks fifth in the league in scoring. Her nine double-doubles and .553 field goal percentage also lead UNCG. Moore surpassed the 1,000 career points plateau against Liberty on January 12 and ranks sixth on UNCG's career scoring chart with 1,191 points.

The Spartans have won 10 of their last 11 games and can clinch their fourth straight Big South regular season title in Thursday's regular season finale at Radford.

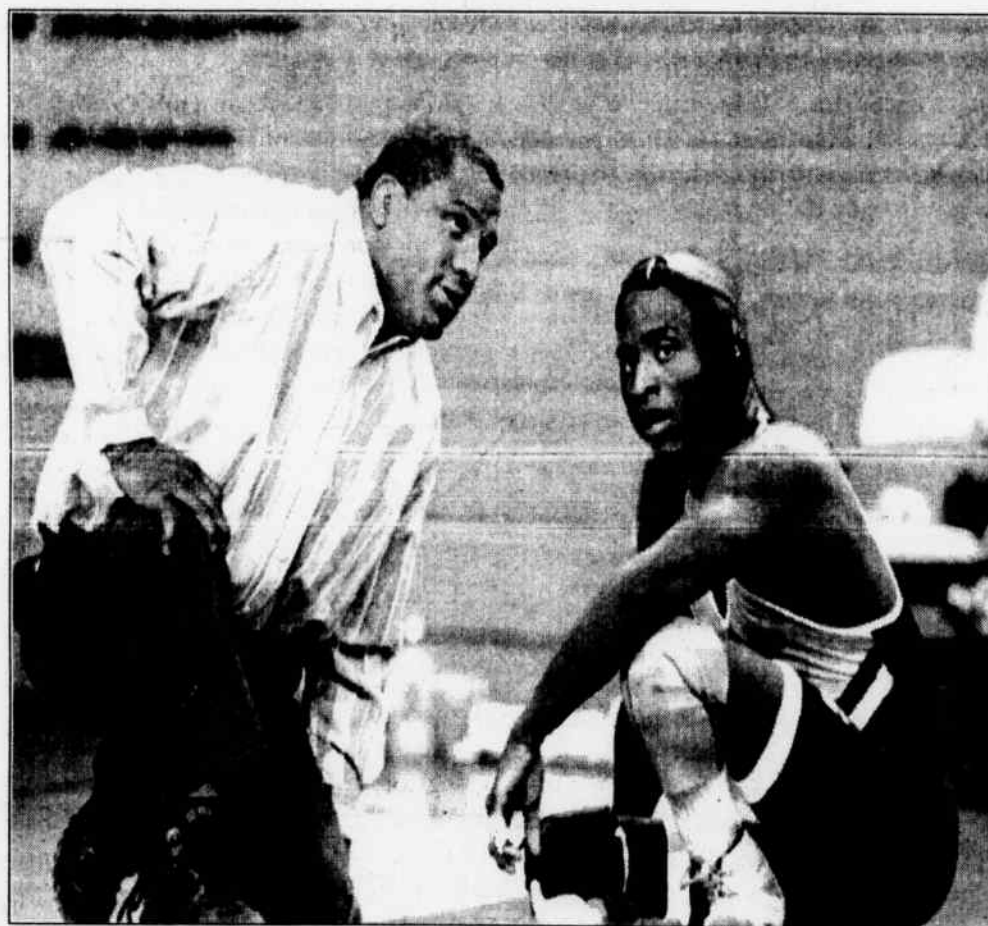

A first-place finish gives the team the top seed for the Big South Conference Tournament which begins at Radford on March 7. The winner earns an automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament.

PAUL BATT-THE CAROLINIAN
Senior Jonathon Clifton slams in two over the heads of opponents earlier this season. The Spartans earned the number one seed in the Big South Conference Tournament, taking place in Lynchburg, Va. this weekend.

The Big South Conference Championship game will be aired on ESPN Saturday, March 2 at 1:30 p.m. Don't miss out!

The Carolinian Sports Department is currently looking for Sports Writers to cover spring sports. If you are interested, call Marie at 334-5752.

Dock Kelly and Coach Moore talk during a match this season. The Spartans traveled to Norfolk, Va. this past weekend and came away with two wins, over Norfolk State and Wilkes University, and one loss to Old Dominion. The next time the Spartan grapplers will be in action will be the CAA championships in Fairfax, Va., March 8-9.

Michigan players avoid serious injury

ANN ARBOR, Mich.-Some schools will try anything to impress a potential player. But a rollover car crash was not what the University of Michigan's basketball team had in mind during a recruit's visit to campus.

Five Michigan basketball players and the high school recruit escaped the February 17 incident relatively unharmed, except for center Robert Traylor, who broke his arm. The 320-pound freshman, who was averaging nine points just under six rebounds a game, will miss the rest of the season.

"I am relieved and extremely grateful that we didn't have a catastrophe, or a tragedy," said Michigan coach Steve Fisher at a news conference. "Because it could have been."

Sophomore Maurice Taylor was driving the Ford Explorer at around 5 a.m., returning home from a party in Detroit. Traylor was in the passenger seat; players Willie Mitchell, Louis Bullock and Ron Oliver were jammed in the backseat with Mateen Cleaves, a Flint, Mich.,

high school senior on his official visit.

Taylor, the 1995 Big Ten Freshman of the Year, apparently fell asleep at the wheel, Fisher said. When the car drifted off the road, Taylor overcorrected and the car flipped over completely.

Police said alcohol and speeding were not factors in the accident, although Taylor was issued a ticket for careless driving. Both Taylor and Traylor were wearing seatbelts. None of the players were suspended, and the uninjured four helped Michigan beat Indiana the next night, 80-75.

Fisher said it is not unusual for the players to show recruits a good time out during their visits, although he had asked them to use good judgment.

"We were trying to show (Cleaves) a good time," Taylor later explained. "We were trying to make it memorable-it was definitely memorable."

The word on the University of Michigan campus is that Cleaves will choose Michigan State instead, but not because of the car accident.

Women's Lacrosse Club begins play

The UNCG women's lacrosse team played their first scrimmage Saturday, February 14, 1996 at Wake Forest University. The club team consists of 17 UNCG women.

The team was down one goal, 8-9, at the half. The goals in the first half were scored by Erin Mulqueen, Jennifer Cole, Katie Kunsman, and Colleen Nicoletta each with two. Stephanie Zeh was in goal and did a great job with the help of her defense.

The second half held Abigail Archer in goal. Zeh, Mulqueen, Kunsman, and Nicoletta all put in goals to bring the score to a 10-16 tie. UNCG was defeated in a three minute overtime with a final score of 16-18.

UNCG is hosting a tournament April 20-21. The tournament will be held on campus, and they are anticipating 8-10 teams.

The UNCG women's lacrosse club is still looking for interested players who want to learn the game. If anyone is interested, please contact the Club Sports Council at the Student Recreation Center.

Spartans defeat N.C. State

Tim Giles singled in the go-ahead run in the bottom of the seventh inning as UNCG handed 14th-ranked N.C. State its first loss of the season, 4-2, at War Memorial Stadium Tuesday.

The Wolfpack (9-1) took an early 2-0 lead on a two-run, second-inning home run by Chris Combs. UNCG (6-4) got one run back in the third when Dominic Pattie doubled with one out, stole third and scored and on a Nicky Phillips ground-out.

Still trailing 2-1 in the seventh, the Spartans began their comeback when Brandon Weber laced a one-out single to center, and Pattie followed him with a double to right. Weber scored on Phillips' bunt single, and Phillips followed him home when Giles delivered his game-winning hit.

John Sheeran pitched five and one-third innings of scoreless ball in relief of starter Anthony Sylvester to earn his first win of the season. Jason Parsons pitched the final two innings to pick up his first save of the season. N.C. State reliever Dustin Baker was tagged with the loss.

The loss ends a nine-game winning streak for State.

The win ended a six-game home stand for the Spartans, who take to the road for three-game sets at Alabama and Auburn, beginning Friday.
