

Students Have Wide Choice of Majors In Earning Degree

Commercial Department Offers One-Year Business Course

Five courses lead to the degree of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science at Woman's college. Students following the Bachelor of Arts course have the opportunity of majoring in any one of sixteen departmental subjects, which they may or may not prepare to teach. These subjects are: art, biology, chemistry, English, economics, history, political science, French, German, Latin, mathematics, music, physics, psychology, sociology, and Spanish.

Girls who know in what subject they wish to major, in some cases, begin to prepare for that field of study in their freshman year. The selection of the field of concentration is made in the second semester of the sophomore year at the latest.

Laboratory technician, pre-medical, and primary or grammar grade teaching courses are the three interdepartmental majors which lead to the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

Bachelor of Science Degree

Included in the courses leading to a Bachelor of Science degree are music, home economics, physical education, and secretarial administration.

The department of music offers courses in musical education, and applied music, with majors in piano, organ, violin, violoncello, voice, public school music, or orchestral instruments. Students who do not wish to specialize to the extent required by the Bachelor of Science course may take music as their major in the Bachelor of Arts course.

Students wishing to work for the degree of Bachelor of Science in home economics take certain courses of instruction in their freshman and sophomore years according to the specialized field which they wish to pursue. Intensive study in one of these fields, which are general home economics, clothing and textiles, foods and nutri-

Lecture Course Offers Varied Programs

Representatives of Many Fields Visit Campus During Each Year

Each year the lecture course brings to the campus of Woman's college men and women outstanding in varied fields of interest. The lecturers represent authorities on world and national events, literary subjects, science and scientific explorations, education, art, travel and adventure, drama, and the dance.

All of the presentations of the lecture course are popular with Woman's college students, but perhaps the most popular of all are the plays produced by the Play-Likers, college dramatic organization. Each year the Play-Likers present six plays. So far this year they have produced "Girls in Uniform," "Our Town," and "Romeo and Juliet."

Every student at the college has a ticket which entitles her to attend any of the lectures, plays, and dance group programs. This ticket is included in the entertainment fee the student pays in the fall.

DEAN OF ADMINISTRATION GREETES NEW STUDENTS

One of the most important decisions you will ever make is the selection of the college you will attend. You will attend college only once and you want to make sure that you will choose the one that will give you what you want and need. There are several important considerations: that is, its general reputation, its standards of work, the kind of students you will be associating with, the social conditions on the campus, the character of the faculty, and the facilities for doing the particular work that you are interested in.

This issue of the CAROLINIAN is designed to aid you in making up your mind as to whether or not the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina is the college for you. From it you can learn in some measure the kind of college we have here. From it you will find that this college ranks high among the women's colleges of the entire country and is second to none in the entire South. The fact that we are one of the five women's colleges in the South that has a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa indicates our academic standing. You will find that we have an able and distinguished faculty; a rich and varied curriculum; an excellent student body made up of selected students from more than half of the states of the Union and from all parts of North Carolina; an attractive social life; a beautiful campus; and all of the conditions that make college life happy and attractive and valuable.

If you are interested in teaching, you will want to learn about our Training School and our faculty and facilities in this field. We still train more teachers than any college in the state. If you are interested in music, home economics, or physical education or in secretarial training, you will want to examine carefully all of the advantages and resources that we offer in these increasingly attractive fields of work. If you are interested in the straight Liberal Arts course, you will find that ours is on a par with the best in the country.

We shall be happy if you decide to make this the college of your choice.
DR. W. C. JACKSON,
Dean of Administration.

Advisers Help Freshmen Enjoy First Campus Days

College Makes Plans For 50th Anniversary

English Professor Is Chairman of Faculty Committee for Event

To the campus of the Woman's college of the University of North Carolina at some date yet to be determined in 1942, women from every profession, representing the majority of the states in the union, will flock to their alma mater to aid her in celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the college.

The college has sent forth women destined to be teachers, social service workers, business women, lawyers, physicians, artists, authors. The largest number of them, however, have married and established homes, enlarged the common good of their communities, raised children, and have sent their daughters back to Woman's college. Although the campus is greatly enlarged, and although the enrollment has increased from 223 to 2,216, the spirit that they loved remains.

Miss Jane Summerell, of the department of English, and a member of the faculty committee which is to assist committees from the alumnae and the Board of Trustees, planning for the celebration, promises that the anniversary will be "marked by candid consideration of our past, a proud acknowledgment of what is honorable there, and a frank admission of what has missed the mark of the truly excellent. It will be a rich experience for all of us . . . to share in this discovery of the past, and to help to safeguard for the future of our college whatsoever things are true and lovely and of good report."

Alumnae House Lends Charm to Campus Scene

One of the most beautiful buildings on the campus, and in this section of the country, is Alumnae house, located on College avenue. It represents beauty, culture, and dignity and lends these qualities to the campus scene. Although built by alumnae as headquarters for their work, the house is also used by the faculty and the students for teas, receptions, lectures, music, and literary events.

Student Government association has offices in the alumnae building as well as the alumnae. The legislature and judicial board hold meetings in a large room equipped with a long, horseshoe table. Office of the CAROLINIAN, student newspaper, is located across the hall. Also on the same floor are the offices of the Coraddi, student magazine, and the Pine Needles, student year book. A room for meetings of general organizations is found in the north wing of the building.

Alumnae house is one of seven buildings of its kind in the United States. It is said to be one of two in the country built from funds raised by intensive effort on the part of alumnae. Other schools having alumnae houses in the United States are: Vassar, Bryn Mawr, Agnes Scott, Goucher, Smith colleges, and Columbia university.

Woman's College Is Third In Nation

Woman's college is now the third largest woman's college in the country. Only Hunter college in New York City and Texas State College for Women surpass the Woman's college in enrollment.

Enrollment for the second semester of the current year stands at 2,257, the registrar's office recently announced. Included in this number are special students, one-year commercial students, and members of the freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior classes.

In 1892, 48 years ago, the college opened with 223 young women. At the time there were 17 members of the faculty, excluding assistants and executives. But the faculty has grown apace with the student body. Today there are 166 members of the teaching faculty and 63 assistants and executive clerks.

College Has Chapter of Honorary Fraternity

Third, Fourth Year Students Are Eligible for Membership In Phi Beta Kappa

Membership in Phi Beta Kappa is one of the highest honors that can be won by a Bachelor of Arts student. Organized in 1776 by a group of students at William and Mary college in Williamsburg, Virginia, for the purpose of encouraging scholarship and friendship among its student and graduate members, this honorary fraternity now includes one hundred and thirty-two chapters in accredited college and universities throughout the United States. In 1934 Woman's college was given membership in the Alpha chapter of the University of North Carolina.

Only ten per cent of the graduating liberal arts students are eligible for election by the local chapter in one year. Juniors who have made exceptional records during their three years may also be considered in the election, which takes place early in the second semester of the school year. Transfer students are also eligible for membership under certain conditions.

Each year the society sponsors a lecture which is open to the general public. Miss Mary Ellen Chase will be the lecturer this spring.

Experienced Adults Aid New Students in Solving Problems

Academic Consultants Are Members of College Faculty

New students at Woman's college are never the lonely, bewildered freshmen of tradition. On the first day of her college life, each freshman meets a number of people whose primary interest is to advise her and help her to begin a new life happily.

She will live in one of the five freshman halls where she will meet the counselor of the hall to which she is assigned. To this adult, experienced person, students bring their problems and receive reassurance and advice. The student in charge of the hall, the house president, is a member of the junior class elected by the student body for her maturity and competency in assisting freshmen in entering their college careers with a minimum of hard knocks and a maximum of satisfaction.

Miss Helen Burns, class chairman, and Miss Harriet Elliott, dean of women, stand ready to help the students in any and every emergency.

In addition, every freshman has an academic adviser who is a member of the faculty. This faculty adviser is assisted by a member of the junior class. Each faculty adviser is responsible for approximately ten freshmen and works personally with them to plan their courses of study. The junior adviser is in actuality a "big sister" to her group of freshmen. She accompanies them to all meetings and appointments during the rush of freshman week. The junior adviser, as a student, can help a girl select room furnishings, clothes, and courses, too.

A freshman's advisers are particularly active during freshman week, but they keep in close touch with their advisees' activities during the whole year.

College Offers Red Cross Course in Life-Saving

American Red Cross life saving is taught at Woman's college as well as water safety instructorship.

Concluding this course Mr. Charles Mix, representative of the American Red Cross in this section, passes on the instructorship tests.

Pertinent Pencillings

The Real Thing . . .

You who are coming to Woman's college this fall will be thinking of what the hackneyed phrase, "college life," will mean to you. You will be excited and expectant; rightfully so, for great days lie ahead of you. For you will live four years with people of your own age and interests, with people who face the same problems you face, and who will teach you as you live with them more about living than you would learn from most campuses. Here you will find girls from most of the states of the union, with almost every conceivable interest and talent, girls greatly gifted, girls who are personally charming, who are good dancers, who are brilliant students, who are hard-working and conscientious. And you will find girls who are none of these things, but are good to know because they are sincerely what they are. You will find faculty and advisers understand your worried moments and bend the twig in the right direction as occasion demands.

You will find here all the color implied in the word "collegiate," and all the fulfillment of gradually widening interests—in a beautiful campus setting. You will find so many people, you will learn so much about such numerous things that attempts to put it down in words are more than a mockery of what coming to Woman's college can mean to you. All of us who call 100 acres on Walker avenue in Greensboro, North Carolina home recommend it heartily to you. It's the real thing—believe us!

1940 in Review . . .

In its editorial columns the CAROLINIAN attempts to interpret campus life for the campus and for interested readers. We present in review the campus as it was mirrored this year in selected editorials from the CAROLINIAN:

October 4, 1939—Founder's Day.

"Yesterday we paid tribute to the memory of a great man. It now remains for us to attempt to pay our debts to him. Through the great vision and powerful efforts of Dr. Charles Duncan McIver have been made possible the education of more than 20,000 girls since his death. . . . It is truly fitting that we pause at the beginning of each year and ask ourselves if we are worthy of such a heritage. . . ."

November 10, 1939—The Eight Outstanding Seniors.

"Eight girls have been chosen as the outstanding girls of the class of '40. There is the glory. But this is written for the other four hundred who were not chosen. There is the power. For it is they who made it possible for the eight to receive this honor. . . . It is no defeat that the four hundred were not selected, and no victory that the eight won the election. For every girl is her own judge. You can cast your vote today or any day for or against yourself as an outstanding girl. . . . You know yourself and you are the one who matters."

December 1, 1939—International Week-End.

"Saturday brings us another one. . . . An international week-end to be sure! Here is an opportunity that we should take advantage of in these days of international unrest. We, of the Woman's college will have a chance to entertain a number of foreign students from neighboring colleges. . . ."

December 19, 1939—Christmas.

"For American youth the Christmas message has this year great import. Let us keep watch by night that we may make of our visions great realities."

January 18, 1940—Pre-Exam Rush.

"Woman's college is plugging away in a manner that bids fair to hit the coming exams hard. Hammering typewriters and scribbling fingers are turning out source themes that are the end product of thumbing card catalogues, cutting big books from library to dormitory, taking card notes, chewing pencil ends, and burning energy and midnight oil. . . . We will not be caught unprepared. Exams are coming and we are on our way to meet them!"

February 23, 1940—Refugee Drive.

"Let us accept wholeheartedly the proposal that the students and faculty of the Woman's college raise funds to bring to our campus next year one or two refugee students to continue their studies here. . . ."

March 1, 1940—Freshman Class Organized.

"They have the power—the power of girls united. It is their responsibility to begin to direct that power, to make it count for something!"

I'm Telling You!

By MAUDE STATON

There are a few things we think you should know about Woman's college, the college of your choice. I'm not going to quote statistics, even though I may go into the subject of dates. You may not be particularly interested in how many socks the laundry washes each week or the exact number of pounds of sugar we consume per day, but perhaps you'll be wanting to know what the appropriate campus costume is or where to get the best chocolate sundae. If so, please continue.

Perky ribbons in the hair, those beautifully sloppy cardigan sweaters, charm bracelets and perhaps some junk jewelry around the neck, skirts of plaid, tweed, herringbone, and—well just skirts, ankle socks reclining in the ever present "not-too-new-looking" saddle shoes—and that's the way Woman's college girls go to class—so early in the morning. The pork pie hat has come to rival present scarves in head attire, but they're both grand for rainy days when hair perversely come drooping down. And when winter comes, we wouldn't be without our wool gloves and mittens.

When we go to town to take in a movie and some shopping, we drop the careless, casual dress. Stockings and hats may be the only change in costume, but we often dress in some tricky little sport numbers. (The shirt-waist dress is an unanimous favorite). In the evening it's fun to "dress up" still more sometimes, so it's best to pick up what the budget allows in the way of a dream of a "date" dress. And by all means if you're joining our midst, as we hope you are, don't forget evening gowns, because you'll certainly want to go to our formal dances. Week-ends at other colleges and our swellegant concerts also demand at least semi-formal attire.

We simply live in housecoats in our rooms. A bull session over the box of food from home wouldn't be the same without them.

"To the corner," which means to "Bert's," "the drug," or "the Grill," three favorite hangouts of all the girls, you will go. Between-class snacks are enjoyed there to the accompaniment of the chatter of campus gossip. We have something pretty special in our own Campus Tavern, open at nights and Sunday afternoon and mornings. The special attraction there is our snazzy milk bar which serves just about the best milk shakes you've ever jostled down. All the aforementioned spots are complete with jook organs, so we hear the latest five and swing while we eat. A list of social gathering spots wouldn't be complete without mention of the Junior shop. It's run by the Junior class, is centrally located on campus, and is just the place to dash for a coke or a candy bar before going to class.

Don't get us wrong! We do study and fully approve of it, but we know all work and no play makes Jill a very dull girl. We look to our social life! Gathering at the post office to discuss the mail (?) situation, a game of bridge in our rooms, dancing in Spencer game room, reading in the recreational reading room, dormitory teas and parties, the Play-Like productions, our Saturday night movies in the auditorium, Sunday afternoon strolls in the park—all add zest to our daily routine.

We also approve of dating. All freshmen are allowed two "Ten-thirties" a week, and that means you can take in picture shows, go dancing on campus, sit with your dates in the parlor (or terrace if the weather permits), or if you're lucky enough to get the invitation, have dinner down town at one of the very super places where "steaks 'n French fries" are a specialty. You may want to splurge once in a while and on a "dutch" party with your crowd here at school. There is never a crowd and the more the merrier! Saturday nights are usually the big nights in our lives. We may have company or play around on campus until 11:30, and on Sunday nights we little Cinderellas are allowed out until 11 p.m. Monday night is "closed night," and that means we can catch up on our studying, wash our hair, darn our Sunday stockings, or maybe just relax after a week-end full of fun and frivolity. After the first semester if you've made a "C" average (and we hope you will) you may have three "Ten-thirties" a week.

And the dates will be—well, we aren't so far from Carolina, State, Davidson, Duke, Wake Forest, and there's Guilford and Elon colleges very near at hand, not to mention Oak Ridge Military academy. There are always girls who know other people, and many of the counselors are swell about seeing that you meet students from other colleges. We think one of the prime purposes of a college education is to help you meet and make friends.

"Life in a Dormitory, or Who Borrowed My Red Hair Ribbon" would be a good title for a novel about our life in the residence halls. It suggests the air of friendly borrowing and lending, of helping one another out, that goes on all the time. Our rooms are really our homes most of the year, so bring with you all of your special possessions, toy pets, pictures, pennants, tennis rackets, and so on; for, while there's no fun in having your abode overflowing with junk so that you can't step backwards without overturning a knick-knack, you will want the place as much like home as you can get it. Extra chairs, plenty of gay pillows, or a small chest help immensely. Remember your roommate will probably have some good ideas about "fixin's," too, so you won't have all the work to do. It's a fifty-fifty affair.

Speaking of roommates! You have no idea what extremely handy persons they are to have around. When you're dashing around trying to get ready for a date and have about a jiffy to take a bath, iron your dress, and put on your "face," it's the roommate who jumps in and get you off looking like Miss Vogue. Who but a roommate would listen to our troubles, remember to turn off the alarm clock in the morning, or lend us a clean shirt in an emergency? But remember you will be just as much help to her!

When you arrive in Greensboro with five suitcases, a hat-box, and an armful of magazines, don't begin to feel lost. Walk nonchalantly up to a taxi and tell the driver to which dormitory you want to go. He'll know all about it, and soon you'll be spinning along out here without any trouble. Come on in the dorm and your counselor will tell you about your room and what to do. There are also always girls who have arrived ahead of you who will want to get acquainted and perhaps give you aid and advice about unpacking and putting your room to rights. The ten cent stores down town will be the answer to your prayer in regard to tacks, curtain rods, wastebaskets, and all those little necessities. You'd better have a few extra dollars on hand to get some of the things that you will undoubtedly have forgotten to get at home, and then have your money for lab fees and books along, too. In regard to spending money—we advise you to fix that up before you leave home!

There are so many people willing to help you out and see that you find your way from the beginning, that there isn't much worry in it at all for you. In fact, what there is to worry about is so heavily overbalanced by the breathlessness of just making a class on time—the excitement of making an "A" on your first biology test—the funny things that you shriek about as you put down your cafeteria tray and eat lunch with a bunch of friends—the thrill of making the freshman hockey team—the glorious fun of it all—that we who are leaving envy you the four great years ahead of you!

Dean Harriet Elliott Describes College Life

"Strangers in a strange land? Oh, no!" Dean Harriet Elliott laughed. A CAROLINIAN reporter chatting in the office of the dean of women had asked in behalf of the freshman class-to-be if new students often felt lost in a large student body. "Freshmen tell me that they soon feel very much at home," Miss Elliott said.

To the fact that freshmen live in relatively small residence halls with upperclassman student government officers who greet and introduce them to other students the dean attributes the feeling of most freshmen that they are a part of the college almost from the first day of their life on the campus. Junior assistants to the academic adviser makes life simpler for the new freshmen, Miss Elliott points out. They guide their particular charges, a small group of ten girls, skillfully through Freshman week and the problem of academic course selection. "Indeed, by the end of the first month, most girls have found as many new friends as old ones," Miss Elliott smiled and pointed to the girls passing her window on their way to the post office or the junior shop.

Social Life Is Varied

"Variety is the spice of life, and we try to create a social life in which all students may participate," said Miss Elliott when asked about the after-class activities. All students have an opportunity to entertain their friends from other colleges at teas, residence hall parties, and dances, and each hall has a social committee made up of students living there to assist the counselors in planning social programs, particularly for the week-ends. The dean drew a true picture when she said that "a visitor on our campus on Saturday night might find a thousand students and their friends at the auditorium enjoying a moving picture, a play, or a lecture; other students might be dancing in the gym with their friends or enjoying a small residence hall dance in their own college home; others might be in one of the many residence hall game rooms playing shuffleboard or ping-pong, or many other games."

Advice Is Tentative

But, still, most of the girls passing by seemed to be going to classes, so necessarily the question of academic work came up. Miss Elliott dispelled the fear that anyone may have about impersonal faculty members, saying that "When a student enters college, a member of the faculty called a faculty adviser assists her in selecting her courses." This adviser is at her service for the next two years. In addition the freshman academic class chairman is always available to give advice and help to solve student problems, as are also the counselors in the residence halls. The dean emphatically stated, "In this college, members of the faculty know the students they are teaching, and they give unlimited time to them in office conferences."

But suppose in spite of everything she can do, a student becomes ill at Woman's college? "Then," says the dean, "there is a well-equipped infirmary where all students go when they are ill. Two physicians and three nurses are on constant duty."

"The college keeps an eagle eye on the students' health. Every student is given a careful examination by a physician when she enters college, and every little disability is taken care of."

Social Responsibility Taught

"A college should give young women an opportunity to continue their social development," the dean concluded. "Our students plan and direct their own dances and parties. They learn how to be responsible and gracious hostesses."

With that, Miss Elliott had to turn to other things, but the reporter, though a student at Woman's college herself, was far wiser and a trifle envious of a brand new freshman with four years of Woman's college ahead of her.

A thorough medical examination is required of all freshmen and seniors. In the intervening years, every student on campus finds it necessary to visit the infirmary to get a quick cure for a headache, the sniffles, or a skinned knee. She may be assured that she will always be well attended by Dr. Ruth M. Collings and her staff.

Music Department Offers Wide Field for Majors

Civic Music Concerts, Informal Recitals Offer Valuable Musical Experiences; Creative Ability Encouraged

Woman's college music department offers many fields for the prospective musician. Training in voice, piano, violin, organ, and other instruments are made interesting by the encouragement of creative ability, the study of theory, and the history of music. The college offers degrees in piano, voice, organ, violin, 'cello, general public school music, and instrumental public school music. There is excellent practice teaching equipment in Curry Training school for music majors preparing to teach.

Each spring high school musicians from all over the state make the Woman's college campus their headquarters for at least one week, becoming familiar with the music department of the college. The annual State Music Contest Festival held on the campus was founded by Dr. Wade R. Brown, and is now headed by Dean H. Hugh Altwater.

Students Are Composers

Each week there are informal student recitals given by the music students when vocal and instrumental selections are offered. Compositions by students themselves often have their first hearing on these weekly programs. Creative ability is encouraged by Dr. Ruth Hannas, teacher of composition, harmony and counterpoint. A number of formal faculty recitals as well as the concerts by well-known artists brought to the college campus by the Greensboro Civic Music association of the remarkable musical experiences.

The Glee club, A Capella choir, and the college choir offer the voice student varied fields for ensemble training. The Glee club for the past two years has broadcasted programs over WBBB in Greensboro and WFTF in Raleigh and appeared in many communities in North Carolina.

The College choir under the direction of Mr. George Thompson has a membership of 126 voices chosen from the whole college. The choir plays an important part in the student life, singing in chapel each week and giving regular concerts throughout the year.

Band Is Unique

Woman's college band draws a blue ribbon to itself for being the first all girl band in the South. It was organized in the fall of 1938 by Mr. Thomas Henry and has been progressing rapidly with its fine equipment and immaculate yellow and white uniforms. Courses of instruction in the various instruments are offered to beginners interested in joining the band. The band appears at various college functions and plays at many of the nearby football games.

In the fall of 1939 Dean H. Hugh Altwater of the school of music joined members of the band, the string choir, the faculty string quartet, and students from the public schools of Greensboro, to form what is known as the Greensboro orchestra. This organization makes possible interesting studies and presentations of symphonic works by the great masters. The String choir and the Faculty String quartet still appear as individual organizations. These organizations offer many opportunities for the students both to participate in and to hear good music.

One-Year Commercial Work and Play at W. C.

One-year commercial students at Woman's college work hard at a well-rounded, practical business course, which includes typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, business English, office practice, and a course in the use of office machines. The class includes over a hundred members this year.

But the life of a commercial student is not all work. The girls live together in Hinshaw residence hall, and have a social life which includes one formal dance each year, and several informal dormitory parties.

The one-year business students have established themselves in a definite position on the campus. Recently they have formed a constitution, they have selected a class song, and have chosen class colors.

Woman's College Gives Treatment for Paralysis

Woman's college is the only institution in the state to offer underwater treatment for paralysis.

Girls who cannot participate in the regular physical education courses receive individual attention in faulty posture, weak musculature, defective feet, and backs.

Woman's college has a new science building valued at approximately $300,000.

Students Govern College Community in Democratic Style

Loyal Support, Sense of Duty Are Essentials Of Self-Government

Woman's college is a democratic community in which students govern themselves wisely and well. Every student enrolled at Woman's college is a member of the Student Government association, the student organization which has the responsibility of campus conduct and control. The purpose of this organization is to uphold the academic, and more especially, the social standards of the college, to exercise the powers of self-government, and to help build a greater university.

Around the Green Table

Necessary regulations regarding conduct are enacted by the legislature composed of the house presidents, three representatives from each class, two members of the commercial class, president of the town student's association, and three faculty members. The vice-president of the Student Government association presides at these meetings.

A hall board composed of students in each residence hall deals with certain cases of infringement of this student-enacted legislature. The college judicial board is composed of five seniors and two juniors appointed by the president of the Student Government association, who is in turn elected by the students. The president presides at the judicial board meetings, which reviews hall board cases and acts in an advisory capacity to the hall boards.

Of, By, For Students

Thus, each officer, each board of control is directly responsible to the students who are the ruling power at Woman's college. The opportunity for self-government necessitates the serious effort of student officers, the judicious use of the powers entrusted to them, but above all else, the loyal support of every single student working for the improvement of the college and feeling her own responsibility in upholding its standards.

Four College Dining Halls Seat 2,000 Persons

There are, at the Woman's college, dining room accommodations for nearly 2,000 persons. The four dining halls—North, South, West, and Spencer—each seats approximately 500 students. These halls are built around a central kitchen, serving room, and cold storage plant.

The college has its own bakery, where pies, cakes, pastries, and bread are prepared. Cream, sweet milk, and buttermilk are furnished by the college's own dairy.

Breakfast, Sunday night supper, and lunch, on every day except Tuesday, are served cafeteria style. Dinner and Tuesday lunch are served family style. At the family style meals, there are eight girls at each table. Seniors are table heads the first semester and juniors the second semester. Students may eat at any table they choose.

Miss Mabel Swanson, head dietitian, is a graduate of the University of Washington and of Columbia university. She has as her assistants Miss Bessie Doub and Miss Sarah Sue Cassell, and a large staff. A number of students part a substantial part of their expenses by working as waitresses in the dining halls.

College Entertains Parents on May Day

College students may write home about having the lead in the current Play-Like production, about the beautiful May Day festivities and about their roommate's new spring outfit. But seeing will always be better than hearing. Parents are given an opportunity to see each May Day at Woman's college. Three years ago Parents' Day was instituted as a feature of May Day at Woman's college—a day when parents may visit the campus, attend classes, May Day activities, and meet students and faculty.

May 4 is the date of May Day and of Parents' day this year, and according to Mr. Charles W. Phillips, public relations director of the college, parents may be invited to spend the afternoon and evening at the college. Tentative plans would give the parents an opportunity to do their sight-seeing, attend student-faculty teas, attend May Day, eat dinner in the college dining halls, and attend a play by the college Play-Likers in Aycock auditorium that night.

Annual State High School Music Contest To Be Held April 16-19 at Woman's College

The twenty-first annual State Music contest for high schools will be held at Woman's college from Tuesday, April 16, to Friday, April 19. This contest has progressed from a small piano contest with very few contestants to a contest for instrumentalists and vocalists, groups and soloists, with an attendance last year of over 5,000.

The contest is sponsored by the college to inspire an interest in, and to raise the standard of music in North Carolina. Miss Lucille Browning, a former winner of the vocal division of the contest, is now with the Metropolitan Opera company.

The state is divided into ten districts. The schools compete in the districts with other schools of their class, and the winners compete in the state contest here. The schools are classed according to enrollment. Class A high schools have an enrollment of 600 students or over, class B schools have from 250 to 600 students and class C have under 250. Winners of the contest are given honor ratings and certificates of award.

Two main features of the program are the massed band concert which will be held at the end of the instrumental contests, late Wednesday afternoon, and the festival chorus, at the close of the vocal contests, on Friday night.

The principal judges this year will be: Mr. Olaf Christiansen, Oberlin college, vocal judge; Mr. Charles Haubel, New York university, piano judge; and Mr. Ray Dvorak, University of Wisconsin, instrumental judge.

Placement Bureau Succeeds In Placing 90% of Seniors

Graduates Continue Study After Graduation In Varied Fields

It is the policy of Woman's college to assume responsibility for its students even after graduation. Jobs or aid for further study are found for almost all graduates through the Placement bureau of the Public Relations department, which is on the job to find jobs the entire year.

Numerous graduates continue their study in various parts of the nation. Large percentages of every class earn their masters and doctors degrees within a few years after graduation.

Mr. Phillips states that in the past five years more than ninety per cent of graduates have been placed. About sixty per cent of the placements have been for teachers, but there is no concentration of finding jobs for teachers in preference to students trained for other work. Places are also found for technicians, dietitians, secretaries, office workers, recreation workers, workers in department stores, and workers in special fields.

All students prepared to be elementary teachers, home economics teachers, technicians, dietitians, and good secretaries are usually placed. Those who are trained in special fields, such as art, music, and physical education and those who are planning to teach commercial subjects are also greatly in demand. Students who have prepared to teach high school subjects, especially history and English, are placed with the most difficulty.

A well-prepared student in almost any field can be placed, however. Few students who have prepared to do social work or work in the field of psychology are placed before they do further study.

Emphasis is placed on the fact that employers are interested in what students can do in addition to making good grades. They want to know the student's ability to serve her community and to adjust to her environment.

Efficient Infirmary Cares For Students' Health

In Anna M. Gove infirmary the new student will meet the people who will take care of her health—who will take very careful care—Dr. Ruth M. Collings, Dr. Bernice L. Eversmeyer, full-time physicians, Dr. Anna M. Gove, half-time physician, Miss Jessie McLenn, Miss Cora J. Staton, and Mrs. D. G. Luck, graduate nurses.

Students become acquainted with the infirmary staff when they have their medical examinations, required of every new student entering Woman's college. This examination, which includes X-ray for tubercular detection, is also given to seniors.

Office hours throughout most of the day will accommodate any student who needs medical and minor surgical care. Emergency cases will be accepted at any time, of course. Early treatment of colds and the like is at all times advisable. Any student who is too ill to attend classes may pack her bag and move into the infirmary until she is completely rested and well.

Woman's College Has Varied Membership

Woman's college is a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools; the American Council on Education; the Southern Association of Colleges for Women; the North Carolina College Conference; the American Association of University Women; and is on the approved list of the Association of American Universities.

The college has chapters of four national honorary fraternities: Phi Beta Kappa (scholastic), Pi Kappa Lambda (music), Alpha Psi Omega (dramatics), and Alpha Kappa Delta (sociology).

Student-Teachers Work At Curry Training School

Girls who plan to become teachers are always interested in Curry training school, a model grammar and high school where student-teachers teach under supervision. "Curry," as it is familiarly called, is located on the Woman's college campus, and will become of daily importance to all students who have teaching ambitions.

Curry has all the equipment of regular public schools and is a part of the state's public school system. It offers the traditional high school courses as well as music, art, creative writing, physical education, and vocational training. There is a large athletic field, indoor gymnasium, biology and art laboratories, auditorium and stage, and well-equipped library, as well as numerous classrooms for both high school and college students.

Prospective teachers have courses in the technique of teaching, and methods of their particular subject, and several education courses which they may select. In the senior year, future teachers get actual class-room experience in teaching at Curry training school, under the supervision of experienced teachers. The amount of teaching depends upon the requirements of the state in which the prospective teacher expects to teach.

At Woman's college a girl may start her education at the age of three in the home economics nursery school; continue through kindergarten, the elementary and high school grades at Curry Demonstration school; receive a college degree in any of five fields; and continue graduate work in two fields, and never leave the campus.

Artists Have Choice Of Study in Numerous Courses and Fields

Department Gives Classes At Beaufort During Four Weeks of Vacation

One of the youngest major departments at Woman's college, but one of the most widely recognized for its excellence, is the art department. Situated in its new quarters in renovated Melver building with a faculty of nationally known artists, the department attracts students interested in taking their degree in the field of art from several states of the Union.

Commercial, interior, fashion, textile, or theater design courses are offered with interesting possibilities in each. Courses in drawing and painting include figure drawing and painting from life. Wood and clay sculpture are other possible fields of activity. Students interested in teaching art may do their student teaching on the campus during their senior year.

For four weeks in the summer, an advanced course in drawing and painting is taught at Beaufort, North Carolina. This course is open to graduates as well as to undergraduate students.

The faculty of the art department ranks high in artistic circles. A broad acquaintance with the art of today and an interest in student work make the art course a practical field of study.

Self-Help Students Hold Important Positions

Ambitious Girls Earn Portion Of Yearly Expenses by Doing Various Part-Time Jobs

Leaders in student government, in extra-curricular activities, and in scholastic fields are often girls who earn part of their expenses at Woman's college, in spite of the time required by their job. Mr. C. W. Phillips, director of the college Public Relations bureau, announces that approximately 550 girls yearly earn part of their expenses.

Numerous self-help positions at the college are open to well-qualified and ambitious students. These positions are in the college book store, the college post-office, the college library, the science laboratories, and in professor's offices.

The full-time dining room job pays over $200 a year, which is the most that a student can earn in self-help work. Other jobs require less time and pay smaller amounts.

Early applicants are usually the ones who obtain these positions. Prospective students who wish to earn a part of their expenses may write to Mr. C. W. Phillips for application blanks.

Woman's college has 48 buildings and more than 100 acres of ground.

The library is probably the most frequented spot on the campus. Students from every class go there for recreational reading as well as studying. It is one of the first buildings with which the entering student will become acquainted.—(CAROLINIAN photo).

Woman's College Library Is Well-Equipped, Efficient

One of the campus gems is the Woman's college library, which contains nearly 50,000 volumes. The library is run and equipped along modern trends. Here, in the library students do required as well as leisure reading, and faculty members are almost as frequent visitors as students.

The library is interested in familiarizing every student at Woman's college with its facilities. Special efforts are made to help the students, particularly those who are not accustomed to using large libraries. The reference department of the library offers an extensive course (carrying full credit) in library instruction for freshmen, which intends to facilitate the student's progress in using library tools and ultimately contributes to a successful college training.

Library Staff Helps Student

Members of the library staff and student assistants are everywhere to be consulted each hour that the library is open. When two thousand girls—freshmen and upperclassmen—are finding material for source themes, the staff and the student assistants are indispensable. The readers' adviser also selects the popular fiction and current works on the shelves of the recreational reading library, where girls browse among the books in a pleasant, lounge-like atmosphere.

The main channel through which students consult books is the card catalog. Because of the consistently increasing enrollment at the college, the closed stack system is necessarily maintained in the lower divisions, but the reserve book system provides frequently used books in current classes to be placed on the open shelves in special reading rooms. The freshman class made its presence felt decidedly at the library this year. An unusually large demand for freshman parallel books led to the establishment of a new freshmen reserve room, separated entirely from the former reserve room. There is a consensus of opinion now among freshmen and upperclassmen alike that it is a smoother and more efficient way for them to do their very necessary (a friendly tip, that!) parallel reading.

The reserve room and the recreational reading room are on the second floor of the library. Down on the first floor, the reference librarian and the periodical librarian supervise the use of these particular departments. Approximately 450 periodicals are kept in the periodicals room, and bound magazines of the last few years are placed on the open shelves of the room. Older numbers of both magazines and newspapers are in the stacks.

Reference Room

Actually one of the most useful departments in the entire library is the reference room. Here encyclopedias, atlases, magazine and newspaper indexes and general reference may be consulted. It is the room where new students first are initiated into the art of writing source themes. In the reference room one traces sources, consults bibliographies, and gathers material through many indexes.

The library annually prepares a handbook, "Help Yourself," a guide to the various departments of the library. A preview glance at any college library often is a wise thing to have before you arrive. The handbook of the Woman's college library will be sent to anyone who writes for it.

Three Publications Portray Campus Scene For College Community

Yearbook, Magazine and Newspaper Feature Selected Student Contributions

Every college has its student publications. Woman's college has three of them—the Coraddi, a magazine which appears four times during the school year; Pine Needles, the annual; and the CAROLINIAN, weekly student newspaper.

Coraddi is the creative publication of the college. It is the medium through which students interested in writing and art may express themselves. Poetry, news articles, short stories, critical essays, and many types of drawings are included.

Coraddi first made its appearance on the campus in 1897, at which time it was known as the State Normal magazine. In 1919, the name of the magazine was changed to Coraddi, a combination of the names of the three societies existing at the time—Cornellian, Adelphean, and Dikean.

The purpose of Pine Needles is to picture vividly all phases of campus life and to serve as a reminder, in years gone by, of the friendships and happy times of college days. It records all activities of the administration, student government association, classes, societies, clubs, and athletics.

The Pine Needles personnel consists of over 35 members whose duties are to work together to gather material and pictures, proofreading, typing the reading matter, and designing the book. The art staff has complete charge of the layout, and the business staff collects the ads, sells the books, and gives all the publicity.

The CAROLINIAN is the official voice of the students at Woman's college. It presents accounts of all of the college activities; the usual campus "scandal"; columns on national and international affairs, happenings on other campuses, reviews on the latest books, campus opinion, and interpretative editorials.

The editors of the Coraddi, Pine Needles, and CAROLINIAN are elected by the student body in the spring of each year. They appoint their business managers and other assistants.

Each student has a chance to "try out" to become a member of the staff of the publication in which she is most interested.

Post Office System Is Boon to Students, Faculty

The college post office enables students and faculty members to communicate with each other through a unique system of "locals." Messages are written on cards of uniform size and, without any postage requirement, are distributed by the post office employees. Students are saved over $2,000 a year by this convenient system, which few colleges are able to have. The college "P. O." is not a government sub-station but a private one, owned and operated by the college itself.

General mail is not delivered to the residence halls, but it is distributed to the students through post office boxes twice a day except Sundays, and once Saturdays. Special delivery letters and packages are, of course, delivered directly to the residence halls.

The post office employs from twelve to fifteen college girls a day under the National Youth administration to sort out and distribute mail. It is interesting to note that Valentine's Day is the busiest day of the year for post office employees.

Woman's college has a splendid lecture course and civic music program.

Graduates May Take Work in Two Courses

Woman's college offers for graduate study courses in the home economics and secretarial administration departments. This work may be taken in the regular session or in the summer session of the college. All study is under the supervision of the Graduate School of the Greater University of North Carolina.

In home economics, a student may major in any one phase of home economics, and minor in another related phase of home economics or another closely allied field of study. At present graduate students in home economics are majoring in child development, nutrition, costume design, home economics education and institution economics. Graduate courses at the three units of the Greater University of North Carolina are interchangeable. Approximately 200 graduate students are enrolled in home economics at the Woman's college during the summer session.

Students See Movies On Saturday Nights

Every Saturday night in Aycock auditorium, movies are shown by the college for the students and their friends. The moving pictures are selected by a college committee made up of four faculty members and five students, at the head of which is Dr. John A. Tiedeman. The aim of the committee is to select those pictures which the students will find most entertaining. Among those shown so far this year are "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "The Lady Vanishes," "Four Daughters," "Marie Antoinette," "Jesse James," "Love Affair," and "Bachelor Mother."

The average attendance this year has been 1,150, as compared with 887 last year. Students may see the pictures free, and guest tickets may be bought for only ten cents. The committee welcomes suggestions from the students as to both the movies and the short subjects they wish to see.

Woman's college is a member of: the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools; the association of American Colleges; the American Council on Education; the Southern Association of Colleges for Women; the North Carolina College Conference; the American Association of University Women; and is on the approved list of the Association of American Universities.

Physical Education Course Opens Many Fields to Students

Woman's College Ranks With Best Professional Schools in Country

The professional course in the physical education department ranks among the best in the country.

Graduates from this course hold prominent positions as teachers, recreational, Y. W. C. A., and play ground directors, physiotherapists, and community leaders in countries all over the world including China, Africa, South America, Cuba, West Indies, and in American cities from San Francisco to New York.

This course in physical education offers not only adequate training in teaching athletics and health, but also a wide professional and cultural background. The first two years are devoted to the regular requirements for the A.B. course with orientation and practice classes in physical education. Intensive work commences in the field of physical education with the junior year.

Woman's college has chapters of four national honorary fraternities: Phi Beta Kappa (scholarship); Phi Kappa Lambda (music); Alpha Psi Omega (dramatic) and Alpha Kappa Delta (sociology).

Girls With Dramatic Talent Find Selves Through Play-Likers

Mr. W. R. Taylor
Directs Group of
About 400 Students

Acting, costuming, scenery painting and construction, and makeup are all arts that the Play-Likers, dramatic organization on the campus, do for themselves. Everyone who has the inclination to learn how to do any or all of these things, whether she has ever done them before or not, is welcome at Aycock auditorium.

Masqueraders is the executive and administrative part of Play-Likers, and to become a member of this selective group is quite an honor. The members of Masqueraders have shown themselves outstanding workers in more than one field of dramatics over a period of time. Twice a year, the new members are elected by the traditional ceremony of "tapping" them in the dining room; up to this time their election has been a secret.

Fraternity Honors Members

Alpha Psi Omega is a national dramatic fraternity, and the Zeta chapter is at Woman's college. The members of this fraternity are chosen for their excellence in one or more fields in dramatics, and the organization is honorary rather than functioning.

Mr. W. R. Taylor, director of Play-Likers, has been responsible for the establishment of the organization and for its rapid growth. The girls do the building of the sets, the making of the costumes, the lighting, and the publicity themselves. All of this work is voluntary and does not carry academic credit for any of the participants. Some of the set designs have been done by the students also, although they are usually done by Mr. Wilbur Dorsett, the technical director, or by Miss Marion Tatum, teacher of dramatics and director of several of the productions each year.

Former Plays Prove Popular

In the last two years, "East Lynne," "Susan and God," "Trojan Women," "Craig's Wife," "Our Town," "Torch-Bearers," and "Romeo and Juliet" have been among the plays given. The men's role have been played by Greensboro men, members of the faculty, and men from the near-by colleges ever since 1935. So there are no "sweet young things" assuming male voices and mustaches in the Play-Liker plays.

Town Students Are Important in College Life

Another compact part of Woman's college is the Town Students' organization composed of some 300 students who live in Greensboro. The centrally located town room in the basement of the Administration building is one of the favorite meeting places for both campus and town students. This year two new rooms for study and relaxation have been provided for students not living on the campus.

Town Students' organization is patterned after Student Government association and consists of a separate constitution, executive department, and judicial board. The town students meet quarterly to plan their activities and social functions. In addition to picnic suppers, informal parties, teas, and banquets, the organization sponsors a formal dance each spring for members of the association and their dates.

Woman's college has four dining halls, a cafeteria, a tavern, and the first milk bar in the South.

Woman's college has blue prints ready for a lake and amphitheatre on the site of the old golf course.

Woman's college has a director and center for religious activities.

Four Societies Lend Gaiety to College

Initiation Is Annual Reign Of Terror; Sports Day Is Popular Event

Every student of Woman's college, early in her first year, becomes a member of one of four societies—Cornellian, Adelphian, Dikean, or Aletheian. These societies furnish a large part of the gaieties of college life—outstanding among them the formal dances that each society holds once a year. In the spring of every year three juniors and five seniors, chosen for their beauty and popularity, are selected by each society to represent them as marshals for college functions. These marshals act as college hostesses at lectures, concerts, and plays.

"Day of Terror"

The most amusing day of the year is Initiation Day—when all four societies bring forth their mascots (Cornellians have a goat; Aletheians, a mule; Adelphians, a greasy pole; and Dikeans, a skeleton), and the incoming members are rigged up with large paper hats, hair ribbons, towels as scarfs, books in pillow cases, and innumerable other accessories to be inflicted by the officials of the societies.

Each society has a large, comfortably furnished hall in which to have its secret meetings, bridge parties, teas, informal dances, and "pen house."

Calling All Athletes!

Next in popularity is "Sports day." One day is set aside for competition in games, in relays, and in skilled sports between the societies. The society winning the most events gains possession of the silver "Sports day" cup for that year.

The president of each society is elected by her sister members. In addition to directing the meetings, she shares honors in the figures of the society formal, serves as leader of her group on "Sports day," and represents her society during initiation. Presidents this year are: Cornellian, Alice Suiter, Rock Mount; Aletheian, Beth White, Durham; Adelphian, Muriel Qua, Northampton, Mass.; Dikean, Altha Stevens, Baltimore, Maryland.

The societies are truly democratic organizations—managed by the students, and for the students, requiring no initiation fees, no membership fees, and no membership qualifications.

We Invite You to Visit the Studios of
WBIG in the O. Henry Hotel,
Greensboro

WBIG was established in 1926 and serves an area with a quarter million families. The determining factor in the size of a station's audience is its program policy rather than its wattage. The more grade A programs it broadcasts, the larger its habitual audience. WBIG, in Greensboro, the most popular station in a most prosperous region, has a loyal audience and also a loyal advertising clientele. Both of these blessings are due to one cause—the high standards set and jealously maintained by WBIG. The popular preferences thus created have kept some of the station's advertisers on its air continuously for more than eight years. Success is a hard habit to break! We also invite you to visit our new 5,000 watt transmitter, located on the Guilford Battleground Boulevard, U. S. Route 220, 3½ miles from Greensboro, a transmitting and antenna system of the newest and most modern type, second to none in the country.

Carolina Artists Visit Campus in Concerts For College Students

Pianists, Violinists, and Singers Appear On
Aycock Stage

The Civic Music association at the Woman's college sponsors for the most part on its programs artists of international fame. Rose Bampton, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, and Sergei Rachmaninoff, recognized as one of the giant figures of the day in piano playing and composition, have already appeared on the 1939-40 concert course. Nathan Milstein, a leader among present day violin virtuosos, and the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra under the direction of Eugene Ormandy are scheduled to appear. Included in this list for the current year is a young North Carolinian, Lansing Hatfield, who is rapidly coming to the fore as a baritone.

Other North Carolinians who have appeared on campus under the auspices of the association are Lucille Browning, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, and Marian Anderson, pianist and graduate of the school of Music at Woman's college.

Other great personalities who have appeared on the concert course are Josef Hoffmann, pianist, Jascha Heifetz, and Efrem Zimbalist, violinists, John Charles Thomas, baritone, Elizabeth Rethberg, soprano, and Elio Pinza, base, both of the Metropolitan Opera company.

Numerous faculty recitals are given each year for the benefit of the students.

In Varied Practical and Vocational Subjects

Hopeful housewives or dietitians, interior decorators, fashion experts, or journalists, will find their courses included in the field of home economics at Woman's college. They may be assured that the home economics department of Woman's college offers one of the broadest and most thorough programs in the south.

Wide Range

A home economics major may select any of many fields: clothing design, nutrition work including home demonstration, house planning, home furnishing, nursery school or parent education, high school teaching, hospital dietetics, and institutional management.

Practice in Gracious Living

In her senior year each home economics major must spend six weeks in the home management house, where "the family group" takes complete charge of the home. The six girls who spend the period together plan meals, do the buying, housework, cooking, entertaining; in short, everything necessary to make the household operate smoothly and efficiently is seriously studied. They must bring back into practical use all of the essentials of previous courses in this "home" situation. At the end of six weeks, the group is graded on accuracy of work, promptness, executive ability, cooperation, initiative and social poise.

Openings for home economics graduates are numerous, the department having the record of placing all girls who want a position. Salaries depend naturally on the nature of the job, and the girl herself, but as a whole, run at a high level.

Woman's college is the third largest woman's college in the country.

Four-Year Secretarial Course Offers Liberal And Technical Training

Offering both a four-year and a one-year course, the secretarial administration department of Woman's college has a two-fold plan which develops not only proficiency in office work, but also a general cultural education. For this reason the four-year course hold a distinct advantage over the one-year. It is evident that the best jobs would be offered to those students who have a degree in secretarial training.

The outstanding feature of the course is the machine laboratory. These laboratories, which literally hum with activity, might in reality be the offices of some of our modern business men. Students are given training in the use of dictographs, accounting, and mimeographing, as well as typing and short hand.

Dr. Albert S. Keister, head of the department, announces that around one hundred girls graduate each year with the degree of Bachelor of Science in Secretarial Administration.

College Tavern Is Favorite Hang-Out

A place to meet and eat—that's the College Tavern. Run by students, under the supervision of the home economics department, the Tavern is located in one wing between West and North dining halls and each year is re-decorated by an art student in the most up-to-date collegiate style.

The Tavern, in the five years that it has been operating, has become an institution on our campus, any night between 7:30 and 10:30 p. m. (or 11 and 11:30 on week-ends) groups of students, girls and their dates, or even faculty members, can be found in the Tavern enjoying a "dope" and crackers, milkshake and sandwich, or some other delicacies, and discussing the latest campus news or listening to the "hit-of-the-week" bursting forth from the nickelodeon.

Steadily increasing in popularity, the Tavern has been forced to enlarge and this year installed a handsome "Milk Bar," the first of its kind to be installed in a Southern college. The bar is white with a brass rail, and back of it hangs a large mirror decorated with neon lights.

The Tavern is under the management of a senior home economics student, and the food is prepared and served by students.

Lecture Course Offers Varied Programs

This year the lecture course included Vincent Sheean, the American Ballet Caravan, Major George Fielding Elliot, Lord Marley, the Don Cossack choir, the Graft ballet, H. R. Knickerbocker, Elsa Maxwell, T. V. Smith, Louis Adamic, George Dangerfield, Mary Ellen Chase, Herbert Agar, and John Mason Brown. Approximately one program in every ten days has been presented this year.

A few of the famous persons presented on the lecture program in previous years are Frances Perkins, Lowell Thomas, Richard Halliburton, Mrs. Martin Johnson, Emil Ludwig, Norman Thomas, Vicki Baum, Lloyd C. Douglas, and Thornton Wilder.

Woman's college offers five degrees: Bachelor of Arts; Bachelor of Science in Music; Bachelor of Science in Physical Education; Bachelor of Science in Secretarial Administration; Bachelor of Science in Home Economics.

Religion Holds Very Important Place in Life on Campus

Set-Up Provides Varied Program of Activities For All Students

Woman's college recognizes religion as an important part of life and makes provision for a varied program, including voluntary religious organizations and a religious center where their activities may be carried on, a religious emphasis week for the entire campus, outstanding speakers who come to the college to interpret religion in terms meaningful to students, and courses in religion. Miss Wilmina Rowland, director of religious activities, not only serves the religious organizations, but also counsels with individual students. She is especially eager to make friends with newcomers.

"Y" Is Active and Growing

The Young Woman's Christian association is the non-denominational organization on campus. Its purpose is to realize a full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God. The freshman "Y" clubs are planned to help students entering in the fall to become adjusted to the new environment of the college. These clubs aid students in re-thinking their religious ideas, encourage and direct the establishment of worthwhile interests, and train students in the qualities of personality and in effective participation in group work. Intercollegiate social functions are planned and made interesting realities each year.

Church Groups Function

Four of the churches of Greensboro maintain adult student secretaries who work with an organized group. All churches welcome the students. The church student groups and the Y. W. C. A. are federated in the Inter-Faith council which serves the practical purpose of preventing overlapping and furthering cooperation. The council sponsors a number of joint activities.

All new students will inevitably find their way to the religious activities center. It consists of a kitchenette, a committee room, and a social room. Here students drop in to relax, reading the paper, browsing among the books in the library, or joining a group around the piano. It is characterized by its friendly atmosphere and comfortable surroundings.

Alumnae House Lends Charm to Campus Scene

Penrose V. Stout, a native Southerner, was the architect who drew the plans for the Alumnae house, which is of colonial architecture and furnished in colonial tradition. J. Frank Jones, Inc., associated in the restoration of Williamsburg, Virginia, was the decorator. The inspiration of the architect who planned the building was "Homewood," which was built about 1800 by Charles Carroll, a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

Staff Urges Girls To Register Early

An applicant may enter Woman's college by two means—by certificate and by examination. Students admitted by certificate must be graduates of standard high schools, and those admitted by examination must have completed the equivalent of a four-year high school course and must pass the uniform college entrance examinations arranged by the North Carolina college conference. An applicant must also be sixteen years old and in good health.

If the applicant offers fifteen acceptable units, deficiencies may be allowed in foreign language, history, or mathematics. Such deficiencies must be removed before the student may register as a sophomore.

High school records must be submitted on blanks furnished by the college. Address communications in regard to admissions to Miss Mildred P. Newton, Secretary of Admissions.

It is most desirable that prospective students register early. It is much easier to secure high school records before the school closes. Since the residence halls are assigned in order of application, it is almost impossible for late applicants to secure rooms on campus.

Woman's college has an enrollment of 2,236 students (the largest in its history).
