VESPER SERVICE UNUSUAL TYPE

The vesper service which was held in the chapel of Students' Building on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, was of a very unusual type. Our representatives to the Des Moines Conference had charge of the services and the big crowd of students who gathered in the chapel showed how eager they all were to learn what these delegates received from the conference which they had attended. Lela Wade had charge of the services and those who spoke were Miss Riddle, Miss Graham, Miriam Goodwin, Janie Klutz and Mildred Barrington. Miss Riddle spoke briefly upon the Student Volunteer Movement and explained the volunteer pledge card. Pattie Jordan told about the atmosphere that prevailed at the conference. Miriam Goodman revealed some startling facts to all present about the negro problem. Janie Klutz brought out the important parts of Dr. Brown's speech on "The Christianization, both national and international." Mildred Barrington told us about the ideas of Dr. Smith on "Service." We were all especially interested in this, since it is the motto of our college. Then Miss Graham gave to us the four touchstones of character as they had been laid down by Dr. Eddy. After hearing these things expressed so earnestly, every student felt that she had had a taste of the many big things of the Des Moines Conference.

STATISTICS TAKEN AT MASS MEETING

Who's Who at N. C. C.

As a result of a most interesting mass meeting of N. C. C. students it has been found out "who's who" at N. C. C.

They are:

Louise Loetach, prettiest.
Lena Kernodle, best all-round.
Marjorie Mendenhall, brainiest.
Lela Wade, most popular.
Katherine Willis, most original.
Lois Wilson, most womanly.
Mary Wooten, best dancer.
Aline Hicks, best dressed.
Rouss Hayes, best actress.
Marie Richard, best athlete.
Margaret Stroud, best fish--er-man.
Norma Holden, most attractive.

Some girls use the expression, "can't hardly wait" so much that they "can't hardly wait" to say it again.

ROBT. E. LEE'S OPINION ON MATTERS NOW OF INTEREST

Monday, Jan. 19, 1920, is the anniversary of Gen. Robt. E. Lee's birth. Like many of this generation, he was a rising young man in a prosperous pre-war period; he became an active participant in that great war; and he, too, lived in a reconstruction period fraught with agitation, social unrest and sterner political differences than those that beset our time. Throughout the three periods he was constantly honored for his military and social leadership, for his manly character, and for his wise and loyal adherence to the principles of duty and righteous citizenship. So it seems that his opinions with reference to problems of his period similar to those we are now facing may be profitable reading. He said in regard to

1. Reconstruction policies.

"I think it the duty of every citizen, in the present condition of the country, to do all in his power to aid in the restoration of peace and harmony, and in no way to oppose the policy of the state or general government directed to that object.

"It should be the object of all to avoid controversy, to allay passion, give full scope to reason and every kindly feeling. By doing this and encouraging our citizens to engage in the duties of life with all their heart and mind, with a determination not to be turned aside by thoughts of the past, and fears of the future, our country will not only be restored in material prosperity, but will be advanced in science, in virtue and in religion."

2. Patriotism and Loyalty.

"The interests or the state are therefore the same as those of the United States. Its prosperity will rise or fall with the welfare of the country. All should unite in honest efforts to obliterate the effects of the war, and to restore the blessings of peace."

3. True Statesmanship.

"It is the principle I contend for, not individual or private benefit.

"The welfare of the state and the interests of her citizens should be the only principle of selection" (referring to choosing officials.)

4. War-Time and General Prohibition

"Tell your brother that I kept the brandy he gave me all through the war."

"I wish these military gentlemen would close up all these grogshops which are turning our young men to destruction."

Seniors Vs. Sophomores.

On Saturday, Jan. 10, the Fall Hockey Tournament was continued. The first game of the tournament was played by the Seniors and the Sophomores with no score. The second game was played by the Juniors and Freshmen. The Freshmen won. Again the Seniors and Sophomores played, making a score of 1 to 1. Hence last Saturday the tie was played, the score being, Seniors 2, Sophomores 3.

Those who saw the game agree that both sides did good hard playing. The center team work of the Sophomores was especially good. Although the Seniors lacked two players and used three substitutes, one of which made her first appearance, they made the Sophomores work hard for victory. The Sophomores and Freshmen will play the final game for the cup.

AN ALUMNA A SUCCESSFUL WRITER.

In a recent letter to Miss Mary Petty, a friend of hers at Fort McPherson, tells of an article in the January number of the Woman's Home Companion, written by an alumna of our college, then Miss Amelle Adams, now Mrs. Amelle Harrington. About seven or eight years ago Mrs. Harrington took the commercial course here. She is now doing good work at Fort McPherson. Since this article, called "The Left Overs," was written by an alumna of our own college it should be doubly interesting to us. She was given $50 for this article, with a request for more at her earliest convenience.

HIKING TEAMS ORGANIZED.

How many of us belong to a hiking squad? If you have never belonged to one you can't know how much fun you are missing.

You ask where do we hike? Oh, to different places every time, but never far enough to tire you. There is nothing like hiking when you are looking for a real good time. So let's all join one of the merry groups.

Personal: Hiking will make you pretty.

Little Florence Miller.

Little Florence Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Miller, wins the spoon! Also the knife and fork. It was decided by the class of '18 that this gift was to go to the first class baby. Florence is the first. She was born January 6, 1920. Mrs. Miller, before her marriage, was Ellen Boney, '18.

NOTED LECTURER IN GREENSBORO

Dr. C. A. McMurray.

Dr. Charles A. McMurray, of the George Peabody College for Teachers, author and educator, has been in Greensboro for the past few days lecturing on the most vital question confronting the United States today: Public Education in the Secondary Schools.

Give the "Unusual Boy" a Chance.

In his address to the Rotarians Tuesday evening Dr. C. H. McMurray spoke of the "Unusual Boy." America has tried out the broad cultural high school education to the limit, said the speaker. Yet we are complaining at the unpreparedness for life of the average high school graduate. "No human being is fitted for life who is not an expert in some practical field," declared the speaker. According to our present system, except in some large cities, there is no chance for special training in any one field until the student reaches his latter years in colleges or universities. Vocational high schools should be available to all children. Then the unusual or bright boy problem could be easily solved.

Is Your Education a Bundle of Facts Or a Field of Big Ideas?

Last Wednesday Dr. C. A. McMurray addressed the N. C. College faculty and students. The ideal of secondary education was his main topic. We older men see the problems, and we are looking to the young teachers to solve them, said the speaker. Do not attempt to fill your pupil's mind with a vast bundle of facts, but fill it with big ideas, centered around a few valuable facts. We have a large store of materials and the problem is to simplify the materials and, at the same time, enrich the pupil's knowledge. Let your mind stretch, stretch and stretch until it can take in the broad ideas around you. If the modern teacher can develop his pupil into a broad-minded citizen by giving him high ideals based on a few fundamentals, she will have accomplished a magnanimous task.

GALLI-CURCI HERE JAN. 24.

First Number of Concert Course.

One bright star that looms up during examination week is the visit of Galli-Curci to Greensboro. It was thought that she would be here Jan. 17, but her visit has been postponed until Jan. 24, the first night of examinations. She will be assisted by Homer Samuels, pianist, and Mamie Berengner, flutist. One hundred and fifty tickets were sold to our students.

SPRING DRIVE FOR SUBSCRIP- TIONS.

Win Honor for Your Class by Winning One of These Prizes—First Prize, College Pillow Top; Second Prize, College Pennant; Third Prize, College Seal.

The spring contest for subscriptions begins January 17, 1920, and runs through February 4, 1920.
Records of girls obtaining subscriptions will be kept by classes and each individual girl's record will also be kept. There is every chance for you to win for yourself and for your class. Ask every member of the faculty you meet if they are now a subscriber to the Carolinian. If they are not, ask them to give you twenty-five cents and get the college newspaper for the next four months.
Write to every alumnae you know who is not a subscriber. Ask the home folks to subscribe. Write to your friends in high school who are thinking of coming to the college next year. But remember—subscriptions that are to be mailed are fifty cents.

GET BUSY.

We have heard that "It is always a wicked thing to be a little person, but it is more wicked than ever to be a little person at this time." Never before have so many important things lain before all of us waiting for us to do them. As college women we must realize that a large share of the responsibility is ours; as students we have been and still are receiving, but for what end is it all but that we might give it out again? Especially this year, many opportunities are coming to us. Shall we be little, content to sit idly watching the other fellow have the joy of accomplishment, or shall we put ourselves into the good work we see around us and before us?

The old saying is true: We get out of a thing just what we put into it. This year, besides our usual full program, we are to be the hostess of the Southern Inter-Collegiate Student Government Association Conference. Our college is growing, and we are proud of it, but let us remember that we make the college as our guests will see it, and we must make them admire it. It is a natural thing for newcomers to be more observant of details than we who are accustomed to them. Let us wake up then, look around and do some good spring cleaning before the representatives of other colleges come to us. It is the little things that make the big things; if we cut grass corners we are apt to be careless about our work and ourselves. This conference is one of our best opportunities to prove ourselves big—not little. Let's wake up and start our campaign now.

BACKYARDS.

Did you ever wonder at the beauty and order of some well kept lawn and attractive house? And then did you ever receive a big disappointment when you looked into the backyard and saw disorder reigning supreme? Some of our lives are like that, I fear. We all have orderly front yards, but what about our backyards? Are we always careful in the little things? Are we always as dependable as we might be?
I know we always respond when there comes a call that seems to us to be big and important, but oh, how often we forget to do the little thing, the thing that perhaps does not show up so well. Just the same we have usually promised someone to do it and that someone is depending on us. We are inconveniencing her and perhaps making her appear unfaithful to her task. Of course it is only an act of thoughtfulness on our part, but let's forget how to be thoughtless. Let's have folks saying about us, "That girl is always to be depended on." Let's clean up our backyards so well that people can never be the least little bit disappointed in them.

A LETTER FROM FORT McPHERSON

We Made Two People Have a Happy Christmas.

An interesteg letter has been received from Fort McPherson thanking the students of this college for the Christmas check which was sent to the soldier boys in a certain ward and telling us how this check was used.

It will be remembered that we sent before Christmas a check of $65.50 to a Red Cross sponsor at Fort McPherson, who had charge of a ward in which all the boys are confined to the bed and have been for over a year. These boys are suffering from lead poison caused by wounds in their legs. This Red Cross sponsor knew it would interest us to know how the money was used and has written the following interesting and grateful letter:

"I was appointed to do the Christmas buying and I had to do it early, so I had gotten beautiful pearl handled knives for some, fountain pens, eversharp metal pencils, folding leather picture frames (they all have a picture of a girl on their bed tables) and a few books on the order of 'Speaking of Operations,' Irvin Cobb; 'The Three Best Collars,' and such high brow literature. Then we had a stocking for each boy filled with nuts, a half pound of Norris' best candy, cigarettes, cigars, or pipe tobacco to suit each boy, a package of figs, two or three little foolish toys, horns, and a Santa Claus at the top. Then I bought small artificial Christmas trees for each bed table with ornaments and decorations and bells, red cord and wreaths to decorate the ward. I bought four eighteen-pound turkeys, which were roasted by different people and served cold with the stuffing heated in the gravy, home made biscuits buttered and heated, mashed potatoes browned in the oven, cranberry sauce, coffee, ice cream and fruit cake. Each tray had a sprig of holly laid on it and a little foolish Christmas favor of some kind. We served this supper Christmas Eve. I had bought and planned all this before your check reached us. Now, there is in the ward one terribly ill boy that had been operated on just before Christmas and was so ill at the time the check came that no one thought he could live until Christmas—too weak to stand the shock of amputation and could not live with leg on. We knew his mother could probably not afford to come to him. She lived in a little sawmill town in Louisiana. After your check came I wrote and asked her to come as our guest, and getting no reply, sent a night letter to the superintendent of the mill which we found was rated at something over a million dollars and the town having only three hundred inhabitants, we felt sure he could locate her. We asked him to do so and asked him to draw on us for the amount necessary; for her to come here and send her at once if she could come. We received a wire in reply saying that she was on her way, so we told the boy, who was too weak to be taken by surprise but not too ill to show his pleasure at the thought of seeing his mother. I explained that she was coming as our guest for his Christmas present, and if you could have seen his long white arms go around her neck when she arrived, I think you and all who contributed toward getting her here would have felt it was well worth whatever sacrifice they made. We were able to get a room for her at the Red Cross home right at the Fort and she had her meals right there in the ward with him, so she never left his side except to sleep, and the boy is better. He has picked up wonderfully and the surgeon says if we can build him up he has a chance. Isn't it splendid? He is a sweet, gentle kind of boy and his mother is very like him, but they are pitifully poor and she arrived here just as she walked out of her home with nothing but her money in her hand. We had her transformed before her son saw her. She only stayed until Friday night, as she had to be home on Sunday, when people were not working and could come for her, as she lived seven miles from the station. We took her to the station loaded down with a suit case which we dug up, and which was filled with her old clothes, some new ones, much lunch and so much Christmas junk which the boys in the ward insisted on sending to 'Glenn's kid brothers and sisters' that we had to get two of those paper bags with leather handles to hold the candy, cake, fruit, nuts and toys. She had a wonderful time and it did us all good."

After reading this letter it makes us feel so glad that we had a share, even though for each it was little, in making two people spend a happy Christmas, which would have probably been very unhappy and sad. This was the best way in the world for the spending of our check.

GREAT SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY!

Found! the Missing Link Between Man and Monkey.

Last week, when Isabel Ardry, Margaret Lawrence and Lois Wilson were hard at work in the laboratory, they accidentally ran across the missing link. It happened like this. The light in the laboratory was rather bad and the three of them—Margaret, Lois and Isabel—started across the room to see what could be done. About middle way between the desk, rather on the south side of the room, almost hidden in its outer wrappings, they stumbled upon the phenomena, which upon very earnest and serious investigation proved to be nothing but Ethel Boyte.

HIGH HEELS; DO WE WEAR THEM?

We are influenced by the acts of others and by the things we hear. One of the good influences to which we have been responding here at the college is the tendency to discard high heels. A count was taken Monday at lunch, and it was found that only fifty-two of all the people in the dining room were wearing high heels. No one knew that the count was being taken, and so of course the number of high heel shoes observed were not fewer on that day than usual. We are proud of this low percentage—only 52 out of about 760—but we want to see even a smaller percentage.

High heels came into existence during the reign of Louis XIV of France. This was one of the notably frivolous periods of court life in France, and its bad effect is still to be seen in the foolish, impracticable high-heel shoes which are to be seen today. Ours is a college of progress, and one of our directions of progress, we are glad to see, is the rapid discarding of high heels.

BIT OF BOSTON MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS VISITING US.

In the near future we will have a display of historical textiles. Miss Langner, head of the art department, has secured a number of pieces of textiles of the 14th, 16th, 16th and 17th centuries. These mounted textiles came to us from the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. The collection includes some lovely Persian, French, Italian and Flemish textiles and three very interesting pieces of drawn work in unique designs.

Russian Symphony Orchestra.

It will be welcome news to all the students, especially the music lovers, that a concert will be given by the Russian Symphony Orchestra Tuesday, January 20th. This concert will be given at the Municipal theatre, both matinee and night.

A. S. (Junior to crowd of Juniors)—Oh, I am crazy about Mr. Linderman. I just love to hear him.

H. M. (Junior)—I have not heard about him before. Where does he preach?

WASHINGTON ALUMNAE CELEBRATION.

Toast to Be Given to Us—Our Response Will Be Read.

The Washington Alumnae Association is planning a very attractive banquet for Saturday night. During the banquet a play entitled, "Four Years at College," will be presented. Dr. Foust is to be the theatrical manager, the Alumnae Association, the press agent, and the student body the actors, and the banquet is to represent their "first night" before the audience—the world.

Estelle Dillon will toast N. C. C. and Lois Wilson has been asked to reply in behalf of the student body.

The reply is as follows:

"Our Washington Alumnae."

The asbestos curtains and purple music of our "first night" hold no terrors for the seven hundred actors in "Our Four Years at N. C. College," for we have put our faith in Manager Foust and in our press agents, the Alumnae Association. We would wish that our Four Years could be ten if we didn't know that the joys of being Alumnae follow close on the heels of "Our Four Years."

We are proud of our Alumnae and will rejoice if we can help you lay the foundations of the Alumnae Building.

Love and best wishes, seven hundred strong to our Alumnae,
The Student Body."

A REPORTER IN HARD LUCK.

A Call for Help.

People seem to marry only by fits and spells. Of course, there should be no objections from disinterested, unconcerned people if there are no fits and spells in the month of January. But when one considers that fact in connection with a general cessation of parties, teas and other social functions, one realizes that "two and two" in this case means idleness for certain reporters—on certain staffs. Idleness finds nothing good and lots of bad. So won't someone kindly consider taking the fatal step? Or, at least entertaining?

WINTER AND SUMMER VIE WITH EACH OTHER FOR SUPREMACY

Odd Scenes Seen.

Astonishment was plainly written on the faces of many N. C. College citizens last week while they were carrying out their daily campus routine. And yet, 'tis no small wonder, for who would not be astonished when old winter is at full blast and the mercury rapidly going out of sight, to turn some sudden corner and see a vision before one's eyes of summer in all her glory? A garden tea scene—pretty maidens dressed in dainty organdie frocks with picture hats, gentlemen lounging in "ice cream" suits, sipping tea and idly conversing of fanciful topics such as love, a hired man taking his daily "siesta" 'neath the shade of the old apple tree, or to be walking in the park and come full upon a jolly evening gathering of Elizabethan dames and gallants dressed in the very height of fashion and frivolity.

Do you wonder at our astonishment? A line will explain it all—the Pine Needles' photographer was here!

Student Government Election.

Do you know who the new officers of the Student Government will be? No, we don't know now, but soon we shall publish the list of elected officers, for it is not long until time for election. Have you been thinking about the person for each office? Now is the time to begin deciding who will make us the best president. Let us begin now to find out whom we want and why.

SEVENTY PEOPLE AT POINT OF FREEZING

PUSHED OUT WITH ALL POSSESSIONS TO STAND WEATHER.

Two Women Prove Heroines—All the Lives Are Saved.

One day last week seventy people, all the members of one family, were pushed out with all their possessions to rough the weather. They had previously been occupying the little room about the size of a closet in the city of Administration Building on the Main street. They have now been deprived of that.

Upon seeing such a dire calamity befalling this pitiful family two kind women came to the rescue. No longer willing for society to abuse this family of Juniors in such a manner, these two women, Miss McKimmon and Mrs. Boyd, decided something must be done. Miss McKimmon gave a place in her own yard for these poor people to have a home. Mrs. Boyd donated an old washstand which has been remodeled into a shop. They are now comfortably and permanently settled in the little green shop down in the postoffice, and have good positions for the whole family. They all stay busy. They are retailing sofa pillows, pennants, rings, seals, canned heat, hair nets and developing kodak films.

All the neighbors are requested to aid this poverty-stricken family by visiting their little "Art Shop" and making some purchases.

This family feel deeply grateful to Miss McKimmon and Mrs. Boyd for the kindness shown them.

SOME EXPRESSIONS OF ROBT. E. LEE'S OPINION ON MATTERS NOW OF INTEREST.

"My experience through life has convinced me that, while moderation and temperance in all things are commendable and beneficial, abstinence from spirituous liquors is the best safeguard to morals and health."

"The thorough education of all classes of the people is the most efficient means, in my opinion, of promoting the prosperity of the South; and the material interests of its citizens, as well as their moral and intellectual culture depend upon its accomplishment."

"Now, I do not want our young students to really injure their health; but I wish them to come as near it as possible."

6. Personal Conduct.

"There is a true glory and a true honor; the glory of duty done, the honor of the integrity of principle."

"Truth and manliness are two qualities that will carry you through this world much better than policy, or tact, or expediency."

LEARN TO WRITE, GIRLS!

Now Is Your Opportunity.

Miss Panthea Harrelson has kindly consented to teach a large number of Mr. E. J. Forney's commercial girls the art of writing legibly. "Push and Pull" seems to be the slogan of this class, for each morning at 9 o'clock they may be seen industriously pushing and pulling away at the Palmer Method, under Miss Harrelson's direction. So now is your chance, ye poorly writing students. Learn to write!

Service—Is it the test of your life?

Selfishness marks the defeat of the highest and best life.

Egotism is the motive that leads to defeat.

"You measure a man by the height of his ideals, the depth of his convictions and the breadth of his interests and sympathies."

"Every man should work in the next ten years as though he was the only man Christ was counting on to carry the gospel to the world."

J. Campbell White.

Intercession is the soul of service.

You can do more than pray after you have prayed, but you cannot do more than pray until you have prayed.

Love never asks how much must I do—but how much can I do.

The gate of the world is the gate of leadership.

Do you know God as your Father?

Are you a profiteer or a sacrificer?

Faith without works is dead.

E. M. (upon getting off the train in Cincinnati, Ohio)—Well, on which side of the railroad is Cincinnati?

Lela Wade's fears of having to address the ten thousand at the Des Moines convention were happily not realized.

Christianity is the bedrock of Democracy.
